Query British Studios About Act Revision

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, April 30.—The Board of Trade has circulated among British studios a questionnaire, calling for answers to 15 queries and designed to provide information on the existing state of British production. The material, which will cover all phases of production activity, is for the departmental committee now in session to consider possible revision of the Films Act.

Several of the questions asked refer to the capacity and capabilities of the stages existing or to be erected. In addition the questionnaire calls for the negative and positive used during 1928 and 1935, the first and most recent years of the operation of the Act; the feature picture footage and cost in those years; details of films made by other units than that owning the studio; earnings of films in 1928 and 1935; the number of permanent employes in those years; comparative labor cost totals, and similar figures for players, costumes, props, furniture and the like; estimates of activity planned for 1936.

Columbia is willing to talk business with any British producer who can make pictures good enough for release by Columbia in the United States, Joseph Friedman, European manager for the company, declared on his arrival here from New York.

Columbia does not want its own British production unit, Friedman said, but is willing to pay good money for good films. He advocated a revision of the quota regulations to impose an obligation to spend a fixed amount of money, in place of the necessity of producing footage. He said if this change were made American producers would spend more than they do at present on "quickies," and would not object if the exhibition quota were abolished. The pictures would sell on their merits in England and many of them would get world release, he declared.

Plans have been completed for the erection of a $25,000 theatre by R. L. Smallwood, Jr., attorney; Sykes Haney, automobile dealer; Bramlett Roberts, county attorney; and S. T. Lyles, Jr., insurance agent.

The theatre will seat 750 and will open in the fall. Williams is mayor of Oxford.

Special Session for Kansas Seen in July

Kansas City, May 7.—The present view is that Kansas will not have a special session until some time in the summer, probably July, and that it will be called simply to put up to the voters in the fall election a constitutional amendment permitting the state to take over from the counties enough of the responsibility for social security to enable participation in the Federal social security program.

A special committee of the state legislative council was supposed to have made a report by April 15 on the legality of a special session to bring the state's laws into harmony with the Federal on this issue. This report probably will be made this week, and is said to call for a constitutional amendment as the only way Kansas can solve the social security participation difficulty.

U. S. Films Are Most Popular in Portugal

Washington, May 7.—Although American films continue to be most popular in Portugal, there has been a marked increase in the importation of German and British pictures, states a report to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce from Vice-Consul William B. Douglass, Jr., at Lisbon.

In 1934, Portugal censored 886 pictures; in 1935, 1,083, an increase of 197. American films jumped from 437 to 512, German from 84 to 128, British from 25 to 65, French from 157 to 180, and others from 7 to 10. Tickets sold by film houses during 1935, the vice-consul reported, in the seven principal cities of Portugal, totaled 5,533,673, an increase of 69,652 over 1934. The number of performances in 1935 in the same cities totaled 16,739, an increase of 804 over 1934.

U. S. Product Brings Czechoslovakia Gain

Washington, May 7. — Average attendance in Czechoslovakia during the three peak months—November, December and January—advanced eight per cent over the same period of the previous year, according to a report from Commmercial Attache Sam E. Woods in Prague to the U. S. Dep't. of Commerce. The attendance was four per cent better than the similar period of 1933-34.

The gain is attributed to the return of American films to the Czechoslovakian market during 1935. The attendance percentages were figured on the basis of the amusement tax receipts, which is the only method available in the country of checking on attendance.

The smallest number of eliminations was three, for the week ending April 16, when 139 reels were reviewed, while the largest number was 10 out of 122 reels for week ending April 23.

The above record compares with 563 reels reviewed and 35 eliminations ordered in, March.

Building Code Passed

Wilmington, Del., May 7. — The proposed new building code with its drastic regulations for theatres was passed by the City Council and is now before Mayor Walter W. Bacon, who is expected to approve. The proposed code will work unusual hardships on present and future rebuilding and replacements. Theatre men protested vigorously several features of the code pertaining to seating, aisles, rigid steel curtain and the like.

Short Subjects

"Share the Wealth"

(Columbia)

Andy Clyde, a cobbler with Scotch background, is having a bad time of it and goes to visit the mayor, Vernon Dent, who is also his landlord, about the back rent. He comes into contact with crooked politicians and is set up as candidate on a "Share the Wealth Platform." He campaigns earnestly and when elected finds he is heir to $50,000. He backs out and prepares to flee, but the town and his gangster sponsors raid his home and store, "sharing" his possessions. It ends when Clyde calls the White House and explains his plan was a failure, reversing the charges. There are some stock comedy situations that will amuse the Clyde fans and the theme should be interesting. Average comedy. Production Code Seal, No. 2,009. Running time, 17½ mins. "G."

"Major Bowes' Amateur Parade"

(Radio)

This, No. 1 of the new series of Bowes subjects, and in one reel, instead of the previous two, provides a fair measure of entertainment, and is salable by reason of the publicity and general ballyhoo which still surrounds the Bowes radio programs. It may be noted, however, that in the numbers presented, there appears surprisingly little amateurishness. In fact, Major Bowes, introducing one performer, described the girl as one of "the foremost" toe-tap dancers, which appears rather at odds with an "amateur" designation. On the whole the short is entertaining. Production Code Seal, No. 0915. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Pathe Topics No. 5"

(RKO)

The highlight of this number of the series is Robert Benchley's address on "The Causes of the Depression," which was made originally in 1931 and is herein reissued. It is still more than funny, especially as it is preceded by predictions from personalities in economics and politics. Benchley's name as a comedy speaker is at the moment worthwhile, and the subject as a result gains considerably. Two other sequences offer glimpses of England's famous prep school, Eton, and the Berlin Zoo, where are caught unusual animal shots in contrast to the lithe grace of a group of dancing girls. Entertaining. Production Code Seal, No. 0980. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Football Bugs"

(Columbia)

A football game between the Beetles and Boogie Bugs is the source of much spirited animation in which the Beetles come out on top in the last period after undergoing heavy odds and much battering from the rivals. It is done in color and the story has novel twists which should be entertaining. Production Code Seal, No. 2,033. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Wholesaling Along"

(Radio)

There are real laughs in this comedy, produced by Lee Marcus, and featuring Leon Errol, as the husband who prefers to "gain" by buying things wholesale. When the plumber asks a high price to replace a bathtub, Errol goes to a "wholesaler." He discovers that he has to take the tub home and install it himself. The result is good for hearty laughs from any audience, seeing themselves for a moment as others may occasionally see them. As straightforward comedy, it rates with the best of them. Production Code Seal, No. 2,045. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Major Google"

(Columbia)

A burlesque of the amateur hour tycoon provides some laughs and a bit of whirlwind action as the characters of the comic strip cavort amateurishly is this Technicolor cartoon. Barney imitates Bowes and his actions and speech follow the master. Lowizie, Snuffy and their brats do a few turns in their fashion and Bunkie Hill winds up the piece in a cyclone of drama as he plays all the characters in a playlet. Snuffy then empties the theatre with his trusty firearm. Entertaining. Production Code Seal, No. 2,136. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"High Pressure Beer"

(Radio)

Edgar Kennedy, who is in perpetual hot water with his wife, mother-in-law and brother-in-law, has his troubles this time when he gets his bonus. He is all for raising pigs, chickens and vegetables, while the family is in favor of a beer emporium. He is firm—and starts to open the beer place. With the able assistance of his relatives, especially brother-in-law, he goes to work on the place, and as usual comes out very much on the short end of the stick—and with the remains of the shop on his head. A few laughs and entertaining for those who like the Kennedy type of comedy, which has its moments. Production Code Seal, No. 2,055. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Midnight Blunders"

(Columbia)

A mediocre comedy offering Monte Collins and Tom Kennedy as a pair of dumb sleuths who blunder into a Frankensteinish situation. A Chinese with a wooden leg steals the revivifying apparatus and makes off with the scientist who would not reveal the secret. Collins and Kennedy are the butt of the usual business and eventually, after being chased about and having some adventures with the "corpse" capture the villain. It is a stupid sort of affair, but has its moments. Production Code Seal, No. 2,044. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Speed Mad"

(Columbia)

A collection of old and new automobile racing shots, presumably gathered from newsreels, flash in orderly fashion on the screen as the subject of this News World of Sports issue. It is interesting but has been done before. The shots of wrecks and horrible closeups of death on the track, may provide some uneasy moments for audiences. Production Code Seal, No. 0957. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Princess Comes Across"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—This comedy-romance, the ingredients of which run all the way from satirical burlesque to mystery murder, is a worthy entertainment successor to "Hands Across the Table," last Carole Lombard-Fred MacMurray feature. It has been smartly produced by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., and intelligently directed by William K. Howard to take full advantage of the intriguing amusement quality motivating the story. The stars and supporting cast should have no difficulty clocking with mass patronage.

The action takes place aboard an ocean liner. It moves rapidly, with peppy dialogue and engaging action. Starting as a farce-comedy when Miss Lombard, a chorus girl, masquerading as a Swedish princess, meets and falls in love with MacMurray, a band leader, the burlesque quality turns dramatic with the appearance of Porter Hall, a blackmailer, and Bradley Page, an escaped convict.

A murder brings a group of European and Asiatic police chiefs into action. When they center suspicion for all the evil doings on Miss Lombard and her companion, Alison Skipworth, MacMurray goes to work, protecting the girl and confusing the police and George Barbier, ship captain, in their efforts to solve the crime. The finale is romantic.

Miss Lombard and MacMurray act with an easy grace which is sure to enhance their popularity. Capable performances are turned in by Douglas Dumbrille, as the menace; Page, Hall, William Frawley, Miss Skipworth, Barbier, Lumsden Hare, Sig Rumann and Mischa Auer.

Based on a story by Philip MacDonald, from which a quartet of writers prepared the screen play, the show is gay and entertaining. In addition to the title and star value, the production is crammed with potential showmanship angles.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,130. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

A., at a dinner dance held at the Oklahoma City Country Club here this evening climaxed the three-day convention of Griffith Amusement Co. Consolidated Theatres, Inc. Congratulatory telegrams were received from Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell and Clark Gable as well as from many other actors and producers.

James Adams, Paramount newsreel cameraman, made records in sound and photography of all Griffith managers which will be shown in 126 Griffith houses throughout the southwest.

Set Fire Endangers Twentieth-Fox Plant

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—A fire which broke out today on one of the Twentieth Century-Fox sets threatened to spread to the nearby sound stages, but was localized and finally brought under control by the combined efforts of the company's fire-fighting unit and the local department apparatus. The set to which the fire was confined was entirely destroyed.

Just a few hours prior to the blaze the set had been occupied by a company headed by Jane Withers.

Order Song Suit Detail

Federal Judge John C. Knox yesterday directed that William H. Hodgson, a song writer, submit a bill of particulars in connection with his action against Edward Farley and Michael Riley over the song "Music Goes 'Round and Around." Hodgson charges the song is a steal from his composition, "Orange, No." Also named as defendants are Rockwell O'Keefe, Inc., Select Music Publications, Inc., and Columbia Pictures, Inc.

Cantor Files a Denial

A general denial was filed in Federal Court yesterday on behalf of Eddie Cantor in connection with a copyright infringement suit over "Roman Scandals" for $500,000 brought against him, Samuel Goldwyn, United Artists Corp. and Samuel Goldwyn Inc. by Mort Elsman, Clara Dellar and Robert L. Shayn. Cantor denied that he had a contract with United Artists, but admitted that he was under contract to Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.

Cocalis May Join Major Group Here

rangement which Cocalis is believed to have turned down. One of the major moves is reported to provide for pooling three of his 20 theatres. The houses involved are located in the Bronx, it is said.

Efforts are being made to have Cocalis realign with Jack Springer, but the former is said to have vetoed such a plan. Presently, Cocalis and Springer are jointly interested in about 15 theatres. The joint interests last week took over the Gem and the Majestic in the west Bronx from Herman Yaffa.

Springer is branching out on his own. The same applies to Cocalis, who has just purchased an interest in the Mineola, Mineola, L. I., with Dave Rosenzweig. Two new theatres will be built by Cocalis. Plans will be filed in two weeks for the construction of a 1,000-seat house and another for a 1,400-seat structure. The theatres will be ready for opening between Oct. 15 and Nov. 1, it is said.

When these theatres are completed, the Cocalis group will total 23. The joint interest in the Springer & Cocalis circuit is said to amount to about $2,000,000.

Cocalis yesterday was to have made a decision on one of the major propositions, it was reported, and postponed it a week. He is regarded as one of the shrewdest film buyers in the east and may fit into a post now vacant in an important theatre string.

J. J. Thompson, a former member of the New Jersey legislature, who has been handling Cocalis' theatres across the Hudson for the past eight years, is understood to have been appointed his assistant, moving his headquarters to the newly established New York office on Eighth Ave.

abroad, indicating that the financing may be extended abroad.

The incorporation, organization detail and actual functioning of National will await his return from abroad, in about six weeks, Fox said.

The company, it was said at the time of Fox's resignation from Standard, will arrange preliminary financing for "meritorious film enterprises and aid in their development from the initial stages." No specific deals have been made or are contemplated as yet, Fox indicated, and will not be until his return to New York.

Harry Brandt Dickering

With 53 theatres in the circuit, Harry Brandt currently is negotiating for another half-dozen to add to the string. Some of the deals may be closed within the next week.

Negotiations for reductions in the obligations, if consummated, will leave a final deficit of $401, it was stated. Of the 182 members, 116 are paid up and 66 have not been heard from.

Morris asserted that within a few days an important announcement will be made regarding Warners' production plans on the other side. About seven or eight foreign branch managers will attend the annual coast sales confab. No changes in personnel abroad were made, he said.

At the pier meeting the arrivals were Harry and Mrs. Charnas, Stanleigh P. Friedman, Albert and Mrs. Warner, Joseph Bernhard, Karl MacDonald, Joe Hummel, Sam Sax, Ann Weiss and Edwin Morris.

Fund Trailer Fine

The trailer for the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital Fund, assembled by Truman Talley of Fox Movietone combines dignity and variation in such a manner as to present the maximum of appeal with a minimum of "dunning." Lowell Thomas opens the reel in introductory fashion, then, in turn, Bing Crosby sings "Home on the Range," a Rogers favorite, and Irvin S. Cobb and May Robson urge audience help. Shirley Temple is shown unveiling a plaque to Rogers' memory, and there is a shot of Rogers and Wiley Post. Excellent was the idea which presents the entire trailer against a background of the song, "Home on the Range." The screen material takes six minutes, while the song alone, with a blank screen, occupies three, with the house lighting up for the purpose of the collection.

The trailer, which was a cooperative effort, will be distributed by National Screen Service to all of the approximately 3,000 circuit and independent houses which will participate in the collection drive during the week of May 22-28.

Looking 'Em Over

"Pension Mimosas"

(Tobis)

A maudlin tale of love of a godmother for her godson, this film has a good amount of drama, but registers as a tear-jerker.

Pierre, the son in question, is brought up in a hotel in the atmosphere of the French Riviera and gambling casinos. He acquires gambler's instincts early in life and later, when he is living in Paris, gets himself in difficulty as a result. While ill, his foster mother visits him amid his underworld surroundings and arrives in time to find him returning, beaten up by the lover of a woman with whom he had carried on an affair. Recovering, he returns to the Riviera, but the memory of the girl pursues him. A letter from her sets him off again. As he attempts to rob the till of his people's hotel he is discovered by his godmother, who has just returned from pawning her jewels to obtain money for him to bring the girl from London. He is forgiven and goes for the girl. At home again, the girl brings all sorts of complications into the orderly routine of the hotel and finally runs off. Pierre, learning of this, gambles his last money and his employer's, loses, and takes an overdose of sleeping tablets, which cause his death.

Excellently projected English titles effectively follow the story as it develops in French.

The players, delivering fine performances, include Francoise Rosay of the Theatre National, Paul Barnard, Lise Delamare, Raymond Cordy, Jean Max and Arletty.

The film will be found acceptable entertainment by French picture clientele.

Night Clubs Told to End Gifts

Giveaways spread from theatres into night clubs some months ago, but they have just run into a snag in the form of an order from Commissioner Bruckman of the State Alcoholic Control Board. He threatens to suspend liquor licenses wherever prize drawings are held.

The drawings began to gain some months ago when one or two proprietors figured a prize of a bottle of champagne or something similar might draw customers in Sunday nights—usually a dull night.

One or two clubs have expanded on the idea recently to the point where automobiles have been given away and cash prizes have run into hundreds of dollars.

WPA Films Costing More Than $50,000

WASHINGTON, May 7.—From $50,000 to $60,000 is being spent by the WPA for films showing its activities, according to testimony of Administrator Harry P. Hopkins made public today by the House Appropriations Committee upon introduction of the 1937 relief legislation.

Hopkins did not go into detail as to how the pictures are being produced, but told the committee "no regular actors" have been used. Members of the committee, apparently thoughtful of the vote-getting possibilities of films showing how the Government is aiding the unemployed, did not press for details.

The Administrator defended his Federal theatre project against criticisms called to his attention by members of the committee, assuring them that "no political propaganda" is being engaged in, although he admitted that some of the plays produced were "controversial."

The cost of the theatre project up to July 1, next, is estimated at $7,000,000.

Whitehead Refuses Post

Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the American Federation of Actors, has declined the post of director of the proposed new division of musical comedy, vaudeville and circus under the Federal theatre project. Whitehead explained yesterday that his refusal to accept was based on the fact that the WPA sought to restrict his activities to New York, while his plan was for a national setup. The A.F.A. council accordingly canceled Whitehead's leave of absence. He had tentatively accepted the post last week.

Pearson has advised the U. S. Dep't of Commerce. It is said that part of the studio equipment will be purchased abroad and part from a Danish manufacturer, Bang & Olufsen, in Copenhagen.

Decision has not been reached whether to rent studio space from Nordisk Films Co., in Copenhagen, or to erect two large studios in a Copenhagen suburb. In case the latter plan is followed, the studios would be constructed so that they could be used as badminton halls when not needed for studio work.

Federal Judge Martin B. Manton has made an allowance of $1,111,641 to the Union Guardian Trust Company of Detroit as part of its claim on a lease for the Fox Theatre and office building in Detroit which was to run to 1947. He disallowed another claim of $1,421,178 which was the amount of accrued rent, and also disallowed a claim of $8,010,465 for damages for future rent under the lease. This decision was handed down in the proceedings brought against Fox Theatres Corp. by the Chicago Title & Trust Co.

Long Feature Forces Dropping Stage Show

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—A new angle of the long-picture problem has been encountered by the Fox, with "Under Two Flags." Unable to get in its regular stage show and still make a turnover, the theatre dropped its show policy for the engagement and is featuring only a musical prologue. It is the first time in years that the problem has arisen, though presentation theatres are beginning to make plans for similar situations in view of the many lengthy films awaiting release.

The Fox's prologue, presented entirely from the pit, except for a flag display on the stage and screen, presents the house orchestra, a vocal group, a baritone soloist and a soprano soloist, all recruited from local radio talent. The group offers 15 minutes of instrumental and vocal music. At the conclusion of the first presentation, the prologue won sustained applause from the audience.

"Trail" Suit Is Set For Monday Hearing

Tax Plan Changes Likely in Senate

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Growing conviction on the part of members of the Senate Finance Committee that the undistributed profits tax adopted by the House would prove unworkable today led to the belief in informed circles as hearings on the bill concluded that the committee will adopt an increase, possibly of five per cent, in the present corporation tax removal of the exemption of dividends from normal tax and a tax on undistributed profits in excess of a certain proportion.

Such a plan, it was said, would meet

Slight Hopes Held Now for Picture Bills

Copyright and Booking Expected to Go Over

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Members of the Senate and House committees concerned with film legislation today admitted that little or no chance is in prospect for enactment of either copyright or block booking legislation if the session is to be adjourned in time for the Republican National Convention in Cleveland.

No important measures other than those providing for taxes and relief will be taken up, under the plans of Congressional leaders, and a number of major bills are expected to be left on the calendar for action next year in order to avoid bringing up controversial measures that might delay adjournment.

There is a chance that if film legislation is reported to the House it may be acted upon, since that body will have nothing of major importance before it while the Senate is struggling with taxes and relief, but it is not believed that time will permit of its consideration in the Senate.

The condition is not regarded as serious, but Mayer feels he wants to be under a doctor's care for a few days before heading for the Chicago sales convention next week.

A Correction

In the Broadway gross story published in yesterday's Motion Picture Daily it was erroneously reported that "The Moon's Our Home" was playing at the Paramount with Guy Lombardo's orchestra. It should have read "13 Hours By Air."

The first week's gross on "Under Two Flags" at the Music Hall was $93,000, and not $85,000 as published.

Thus far, according to the attorney, 21 dealers have declared their willingness to join the new group, and 70 manufacturers have agreed to cooperate. Three dealers have promised to attend a Chicago meeting if it is held.

If the Chicago meeting does not take place, Eisenberg said, another time and place will be set but he indicated that the association definitely will get under way during the summer. U. S. Films Best in Mexico—Seidelman American product is still far out in front in popularity with Mexican audiences, declared Sam Seidelman, United Artists manager in Mexico, in town for home office conferences on the product for the new season. The outlook for next season is very promising, said Seidelman, anticipating one of the best years in that market. Federal censorship he sees as inevitable in Mexico, replacing the present local censorship.

There is a surplus of good American product in the country as a result of the long strike which kept major American product out of the country, and which was settled only a few months ago, Seidelman declared. There is a real need, especially in Mexico City, for new theatre building or the remodeling of present houses, he said. The considerable use of independent American films and foreign product by exhibitors in the country during the strike has not had the effect of retarding the major product. Spanish and French pictures are the chief American competitors in the country. English product is making no inroads on American supremacy, Seidelman said, and only four or five English films, outside of the United Artists London Films releases, are shown in Mexico each year.

Seidelman will remain here about two weeks before returning to his headquarters in Mexico City.

Dramatists Averse To Any Compromise

An agreement between the Dramatists' Guild and the League of N. Y. Theatres on a new form of contract for playwrights and producers appears less likely now than during meetings of the contract committees of the two organizations last week, it was learned on Saturday.

A meeting of the guild's council which lasted until late Friday presented a solid front against any compromise with the producing managers on the two principal points at issue in the guild's new contract. These are the 60-40 split of proceeds from the sale of film rights to stage plays and the retention by the author of legal

Lehman Signs Bill On Child Admission

ALBANY, May 10.—The Joseph Bill, providing for the admission to theatres of children under 16 under certain specified conditions, was signed yesterday by Gov. Lehman. The measure was passed by the state Senate and Assembly in the past month.

Cameras Expose Racket

Chicago, May 10.—Movie cameras clicked when the taxicabs collided, for the cameramen knew when and where the collision was to occur. The cameras clicked again, when the victims paid off the drivers for arranging the accident. And the other day those films were shown in court, to convict three men as members of a fake accident ring.

It was the first time, legal experts said, that films had been used in the Illinois courts.

Confronted by the pictures, the three men pleaded guilty before Judge John J. Lupe in Criminal Court to charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. They are Julian Lewis, 24; Bernard Waldman, 26, and Howard Weitzman, 24.

The story, as presented by Assistant State's Attorney James Brown, was this:

Several months ago Lewis approached two cab drivers and offered to pay them for arranging fake accidents. The drivers were Henry Kramer of the Checker Taxi Co. and Edward Bernstein of the Yellow Cab Co. The drivers reported at once to their employers.

Perennial victims of fake accident rings, the companies instructed the drivers to pretend to enter the conspiracy and to do as they were told. Cameramen with equipment equipped to take pictures at long range were engaged.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THEN:

Chase is preparing to clear itself of its holdings in Twentieth Century-Fox under the letter of the Federal law, enacted early in the Roosevelt Administration, which dictates that a bank must be a bank or an investment house, but cannot play double-headers. . . .

The practical aspects of the impending Chase divestment include the formation of a securities syndicate by the Lawrence Stern Company, Chicago investment brokers. It is seeking to arrange for the acquisition of the Chase stock. It would purchase, with resale the clear intent, the preferred and common; if not all, as substantial an amount as it can arrange the capital to buy. . . .

The owners of Twentieth Century, among other considerations set up when the merger with Fox Film was effected, acquired one-half of the common of the latter company and approximately one-tenth of the preferred. A reputed proviso in the current deal discussed with Chase sets forth that the dominant factors in Twentieth Century-Fox are to acquire the bank's common while its preferred is to be distributed generally. Boiling it all down, the plan indicates that the Joe Schenck-Darryl Zanuck interests, through whatever arrangements they may make, would assume a larger ownership in Twentieth Century-Fox and enough to keep control in the hands of the present management. Joe is close to Nick, Darryl to Louis B. Mayer. This may seem extraneous data and perhaps it is. At least, here it is. . . .

As recently as ten days ago, this looked like the ticket. As recently as last week, some of the machinery slowed down, then stopped. As recently as now, negotiations are virtually at a standstill. The one certain factor in this tale of finance and films is the necessity for the Chase bank to get rid of its Twentieth Century-Fox holdings at the first reasonable opportunity. If this is not to be the deal, there will be a substitute—a new one or a revamp of terms and conditions, but not of objective.—INSIDERS' OUTLOOK, December 2, 1935.

NOW:

The company [Twentieth Century-Fox] reported that holders of ten per cent or more of its stock on Feb. 1 last were the Chase National Bank, 574,753½ shares of preferred, or 42.29 per cent, and 287,376¾ shares of common, or 23.43 per cent; White, Weld & Co., 202,126 shares of preferred, or 14.87 per cent; Joseph M. Schenck, 204,642⅝ shares of common, or 16.68 per cent; Darryl F. Zanuck, 183,979½ shares of common, or 15 per cent, and William Goetz, 214,642⅝ shares of common, or 17.5 per cent.—Washington dispatch in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, May 6, 1936.

Of the common, therefore, the original Twentieth Century interests currently own 613,263 shares, or 49.18 per cent. The percentage bracket is what counts. . . .

TO COME:

Whether through the machinery set up toward the end of last year or through a substitute, there continues to be no change in intent where Chase's holdings in Twentieth Century-Fox may be concerned. It was the damage suit brought last fall by T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corp. against Fox West Coast in the Federal court in Los Angeles which delayed the stock transfer plan. Only a few days ago came a refusal of Federal Judge James A. Fee to reopen the case. Still later, Tally's insistence on the ground of new evidence. Finally, a hearing, down for today, to determine if Tally's allegations warrant listening to his lawyers again. Once this obstacle is hurdled, the conceived plan bears every indication of going through. Schenck, Zanuck and Goetz, in combination and already the most formidable group in Twentieth Century-Fox, need little more to assume operating control. As the strategic alignments and the dynasties in this industry go, things to come in this formidable company are tinged with vast import, actual and potential. . . .

"Yankee" Revival at $20,200 in the Roxy

The revival of "A Connecticut Yankee" at the Roxy grossed $20,200 for the week. "Big Brown Eyes" at the Capitol garnered around $12,500. "A Message to Garcia" and "Times Square Playboy" ended with about $7,000 at the Palace. This is $2,000 better than the previous week, but the house continues in the red.

SWG Kills Art. 12; New Group to Meet

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—The Screen Writers' Guild lost ground in its producer fight when Article 12, pertaining to screen contracts beyond May 2, 1938, was rescinded by the membership at a meeting held at the Hollywood Athletic Club.

The move was described by guild leaders as a "strategic retreat." It is not expected to affect the amalgamation with the Authors' League. It is understood here that the guild conceded the loss of the point to the producers but has no idea of withdrawing.

The meeting was first called unofficially but when nearly 100 members showed up the discussion started on Article 12. Lawrence Beilenson, guild attorney, stated that the meeting was official in character.

Meanwhile, a new group, consisting of 19 high-bracket writers, stated that a meeting will be held at the Beverly-Wiltshire Hotel on Monday night for the formation of a new writers' association. The new group will cooperate to the fullest with the producers, it was said. According to the announcement, non-members of the S.W.G. are requested to attend.

The new group consists of Rupert Hughes, Bess Meredyth, Tom Reed, Williams Slavins McNutt, Frank Butler, Bert Kalmar, Hermann J. Markiewicz, Waldemar Young, John Lee Mahin, E. Richard Schayer, Grover Jones, Roy Chanslor, James K. McGuinness, Carey Wilson, William Conselman, Patterson McNutt, Kubec Glasmon, Leon Gordon and Howard Emmett Rogers.

No Swope Successor Set on Met's Board

Although Herbert Bayard Swope resigned some time ago as chairman of the KAO board, he has not been replaced on the directorate of Metropolitan Playhouses. KAO owns 20 per cent of the Metropolitan Playhouses stock and because of this interest has had a representative on the board.

With the Metropolitan board scheduled to meet May 20, there is no certainty a successor to Swope will be named. Officially, the circuit has not been advised of Swope's resignation and until it is no moves will be made. If, and when, it is decided to replace Swope, directors of Metropolitan will ask Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, who approved the original setup, to officially sanction the new man. It is possible that Leo Spitz, head of the RKO circuit, will fill the Swope vacancy.

Reports current that United Artists Theatres would drop the Rivoli are unfounded, it is stated. The current lease expires in November, 1937, after which there is a 20-year option which most likely will be exercised by the circuit. George Skouras, who operates about 50 of the Metropolitan houses, is guiding the activities of the Broadway theatres.

The picture will start a regular run day and date at the Pantages and Hill Street the following day.

New Beecroft Setup Advanced by Court

Madison, Wis., May 10.—In an order filed in U. S. District Court here by Judge Patrick T. Stone, Attorneys Carl N. Hill and Frank A. Ross, representing bondholders of the Beecroft Bldg. Co., have been named reorganization managers for the company bondholders.

The managers will draft the machinery of reorganization as outlined in the plan which is to be carried out by a board of voting trustees to be appointed by Judge Stone and a board of directors who will be selected by the trustees from among the bondholders. About 60 days will be required to perfect the reorganization.

The directors will have complete charge of managing the reorganized company with power to lease or sell the Orpheum, Parkway and Strand.

Move to Halt Appeal Of Brokerage Houses

Motions to dismiss the appeal of five brokerage houses whose records were subpoenaed in an effort by the Capital Co. to discover hidden assets of William Fox will be made this week, returnable in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on May 18.

The Capital Co. holds an unsatisfied judgment of $240,000 against Fox, which was the basis of the subpoenas it obtained in its search for Fox assets. The brokerage houses last week were granted leave to appeal from the order directing them to produce their records.

Academy vs. Academy In Action Over Name

Hollywood, May 10.—The Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences has filed suit for a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction against Academy Pictures, Inc., and the company's distributing organization, headed by the Halperin brothers. The action seeks to prevent the film company from continuing use of the trade name "Academy."

The film Academy claims that the name attached to the producing company has been misleading and damaging to the organization.

ported by Mayor LaGuardia and other city officials in New York, and was an outgrowth of a series of arrests of managers and other employes of New York theatres for violation of the law prohibiting the admission of unaccompanied children under 16. The raids were conducted under the orders of Byrnes MacDonald, director of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the New York Police Department. MacDonald said at the time that the arrests were made on the basis of the belief that the only way to bring about alteration of an unpopular law was by the strict enforcement of that law.

Overseas Previews

"Tudor Rose"

(Gainsborough-G.B.)

London, May 1.—American audiences and American box-offices should welcome and reward this British production as a remarkable illustration of the fact that history need not be ultra-romanticized to provide pageant, color and glamour understandable by the fan but equally acceptable by the critical. It is a vivid picture of the past, beautified by costumes and by settings which make Tudor London live again. It is also real drama. England has not recently sent over a better picture.

Opening at the death-bed of Henry VIII, and his dying declaration that his successors are to be, in order, his son Edward, his daughters Mary and Elizabeth and Lady Jane Grey, the picture shows the progress of the struggle for power between the Earl of Warwick and Edward Seymour, in which the innocent young Lady Jane is an unwilling tool. Finally, betrothed to Warwick's son, she is crowned Queen on the death of Edward VI. The nation rises and puts Mary Tudor on the throne and the "nine days' Queen" is beheaded.

Without "heart interest" in the conventional sense, save that Jane is shown as falling in love with the youth whom she is being forced to marry, there is a sense of reality and of tragedy which it is difficult to overpraise. Partly this is due to brilliant acting by Nova Pilbeam as Lady Jane, John Mills as her husband, Lord Guildford Dudley; Cedric Hardwicke as Warwick, Felix Aylmer as Edward Seymour, Leslie Perrins as Thomas Seymour and Gwen Francon-Davies as Mary Tudor. Partly it is due to cultured and imaginative direction by Robert Stevenson on his first full-responsibility job. An immense amount of credit is due also to the art direction, which has recreated the background of Tower, house-lined London Bridge and the Court with a fidelity worthy of the skill with which artists and director have made flesh and blood of historical characters.

There are the potentialities of another "Henry VIII" here, though humor is, necessarily, lacking.

Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

Allan.

"Lady Jane Grey" is release title in America for "Tudor Rose." The attraction is one of G.B.'s for 1936-37.

"Two's Company"

(Soskin B. & D.-U.A.)

London, May 1.—There is good American appeal in this comedy of a New York family, on a trip to England for the first time and up against amusing difficulties of custom and language. The disappearance of mutual national antagonisms is most entertainingly epitomized in a love story of an American girl and a British aristocrat.

The big laughs begin when, on the liner, the Americans mistake the aristocrat's man-servant for his master. When the honest-to-goodness lord gets down seriously to his chase of the girl there is more fun in trouble between the butterfly-hunting earl and the Americans which ends in an assault charge, a court case, and a let's-be-friends finish on riotous lines.

It goes with a swing from beginning to end, owing to first class dovetailing of the methods of Ned Sparks, Henry Holman, Morton Selten, Gordon Harker and Mary Brian. Its laughter value is best expressed in the statement that it will remind most people of "So This Is London."

No production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Hope Williams.

Expect $33,000 for "Let's Sing Again"

With $3,800 chalked up for the opening day, "Let's Sing Again" is expected to tally around $33,000 for the week at the Roxy. In face of the unusual weather, the gross is regarded by the management as above average. Bobby Breen, the star of the picture, and Eddie Cantor appeared in person at the Roxy Saturday night.

Para. May Pick Chicago

Chicago will most likely be the convention city for Paramount this year. A definite decision whether or not to hold the annual sales meeting in the Windy City on Jun 5-6 will be made today or tomorrow.

Kent, Schenck In Possible English Deal

New World Prod. here for the purpose of producing four British films, to cost $500,000 each, for world distribution within the next year. Robert T. Kane, director general of Twentieth Century-Fox production in England, is in full charge of New World production.

The possibility also has been aired here that Woolf is seeking to buy Gaumont-British, with the financial backing of Lord Portal and Rank. The production deal between Twentieth Century-Fox and Woolf is seen as having a possible bearing on that situation, in view of the fact that Twentieth Century-Fox holds a 49 per cent interest in Gaumont-British.

Recently Kent and Schenck denied here that Twentieth Century-Fox was seeking to buy complete control of Gaumont-British.

Meynell Joins Gaumont

London, May 10.—Francis Meynell, director of publicity for United Artists here, has resigned to join Gaumont-British in a similar capacity.

Lincoln Trial Date Is Set for May 18

Bard of Lincoln, asks $1,353,000 in damages from United Artists, Paramount, M-G-M, Universal, RKO, Warners, Twentieth Century-Fox, Lincoln Theatre Corp., its head, J. H. Cooper of New York, and Robert Livingston of Lincoln.

The defendants are charged with having controlled 90 per cent of all feature films while only operating half of the local theatres. Independent controlled the Rialto, Orpheum and Liberty and was the chief stockholder in State Theatres, Inc. State, after introducing a similar action, asking $440,000, caused its suit to be dismissed without prejudice early in April after a trial date had been set for May 11. Representing the plaintiff is Paul Good, former state attorney general, who obtained a $25,000 verdict for William Youngclaus in the protection case of several years ago.

"Dream" in 73 Spots

Warners have set special limited roadshow engagements on "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 73 situations over the country this week.

"Under Flags" $31,000 Lead, Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—The Fox went over the top this week with a rousing $31,000 for "Under Two Flags," its best figure in months. The picture was held for a second and possibly for a third week.

It was about the only film in town which got business last Sunday, playing capacity all day. Every other theatre felt the effect of the balmy weather which sent hundreds of Philadelphians to the seashore and the country.

"Things to Come" opened well at the Aldine and got $10,000 on the week, but began to slump badly toward the end of the week. It was held, "The Great Ziegfeld," consistently off at the matinee, dropped to $10,000, and this week may be its last at the Chestnut.

The weather all week was warm and daylight saving helped to hurt the early evening shows.

Total first run business was $97,900. Average is $79,960, inclusive of "Great Ziegfeld."

Estimated takings for the week ending May 7:

"THINGS TO COME" (U. A.)

When approached for an interview while working in the lobby of the Rialto, where he is employed as a general utility man, he said he "was too busy to bother with such trifles."

Slofner started as a chore boy attending the oil and gas lamps in the old Globe Opera house, which closed many years ago.

"Parole"!

Paroled Convict's Mania for Cars Jailed Him 3 Times;

The Commissioner recommended that parole hearings be publicized, that law enforcing agencies be notified when a prisoner is released on parole, and that the various parole boards be consolidated.

Assailed by Moore.

He also asked that no prisoner be paroled until it is positive he will engage in lawful employment.

Problems Are Listed.

"One of the major troubles with the system," he said, "is the number of men each parole officer must supervise. Parole officers cannot perform their full duties when each is assigned to from ninety to 100 paroled men."

Odds on the Criminal, 50 to 1

These, too, are the official government figures.

Coddling of criminals, misdirected sympathy from crackpots and maudlin sentimentalists, a criminal code full of loopholes and technicalities and a combination of politically influenced courts and prosecutors make the odds FIFTY TO ONE against the perpetrator of a crime receiving the punishment his crime calls for on the statute books.

M-G-M's List To Be 44-52; Limit Titles

Rodgers, general sales manager, will most likely announce about 50 per cent of the titles and stars and featured players who will appear on the roster.

This will give the company sufficient leeway to add a number of new vehicles and stage plays purchased as the season progresses.

The six to eight specials will probably be on a percentage basis with increases in flat rentals to be sought all along the line, it is said.

Among the specials, the following are likely to be included: "Marie Antoinette," "Camille," "The Good Earth," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Maytime" and "The Prisoner of Zenda." "The Great Ziegfeld" was one of the six specials on the current program, but was taken off the contract when it was decided to roadshow it.

Three of the five days will be devoted to open sessions. The last two days are to be given over to meetings of the various sales forces with divisional and district managers.

Sales forces from Canada, the west and east converged here this morning and late tonight for the yearly sales fest, which opens Monday at the Palmer House. Including the home office contingent, about 240 are on hand. The special convention train which left New York Saturday afternoon arrived at 10:15 this morning with representatives from the New York, New Jersey, Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, Albany and Buffalo exchanges. The Overland Limited, arriving this morning from the coast, had on it members of the Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and Portland branches. All during the day regular trains from other parts of the country brought division, district and branch managers, salesmen and bookers.

Mayer Attending Later

Louis B. Mayer, who had planned to leave New York Monday night and speak to the conventioneers Tuesday morning, has delayed his trip. There will be screenings of several new releases.

No changes in the managerial lineup are expected.

Those arriving today immediately registered at the Palmer House, reporting to convention headquarters for badges and a checkup on reservations. At 2:30, the auditors met with Alan Cummings. The salesmen and managers spent the rest of the day renewing acquaintances and exchanging news of the territories.

Monday the first session will get under way at 10 A. M. sharp in the Red Lacquer Room on the fourth floor. Luncheon will be served at 1 P. M. and at 2:15 the afternoon meeting will start. Photographs will be taken at 5:30. Dinner is scheduled for 6:45 and at 8 P. M. an announcement of the evening's activities will be made.

Three Shorts in Work

Hollywood, May 10.—M-G-M has three shorts in work under the supervision of Jack Chertock. They are "Violets in the Spring," two-reel mucal with Jean Chatburn; "Modern Miracle," story by Duffy Cornell, and "The Killer," a dog film. The last two are in the Pete Smith group.

Roy Shield to Roach

Hollywood, May 10.—Hal Roach has signed Roy Shield to arrange the musical score of "Our Relations," next Laurel & Hardy picture. Shield, who is with NBC in Chicago, is due here tomorrow.

Roars from Leo's Lair

Chicago, May 10.—Scheduled as one of the principal speakers on Tuesday's program, Louis B. Mayer is not due on the local scene until Wednesday. Last Friday night, he entered Doctors' Hospital in New York for observation with expectations of being discharged Monday.

Howard Strickling, studio publicity head, planned to leave with the convention special out of New York, but last minute changes has him in the east keeping in close touch with Mayer. According to present plans, Strickling will leave New York Monday night.

Ernest Morrell, head of M-G-M's transportation department, on April 11, celebrated his 15th year with the company. He started in the accessory and supply division, later becoming manager of the department. When Frank Rhorenbeck was transferred to WHN some time ago, Morrell took over the reins of the travel department.

J. S. MacLeod, in charge of exchange maintenance, has been here for several days dressing up convention headquarters at the Palmer House. With him is Bill Ferguson, who is plastering the place with displays. Ferguson also has under his wing the roadshows on "The Great Ziegfeld," which he is trying to handle in addition to campaigning for the convention. If he hasn't dropped his Scotch tendencies by now, it will be a surprise to a lot of the boys.

Charles Deesen of the home office didn't have anything to worry about this year. As a rule he adds a grey hair or two trying to figure out who will be his room mate on the train. On this trip, M. L. Simons, editor of The Distributor, was the second man. According to reports Simons read his companion to sleep en route.

Within an hour after he arrived, Bill Rodgers' right hand went limp because of the many handshakes congratulating him on his appointment to the top post in the sales setup.

Fred C. Quimby and James A. FitzPatrick had many "short" things to talk about on their way out. FitzPatrick, who produced 10 Traveltalks last season, is upping his schedule two to make an even dozen. All will be in Technicolor. M-G-M, by the way, has a tieup to release the 12 features FitzPatrick will make next season for England.

Arthur Loew and his foreign contingent are not in evidence. Loew may hold an international sales meet of his own.

Morris ("Moishe") Wolff, Boston manager, has finally been relieved of the Charley Horse in his arm by teaching Lefty Grove of the Red Sox a couple of pointers in pitching, it is rumored.

Jack Byrne, who pilots the New Haven exchange, is a handball artist of no mean ability. The nearest he can come to getting a game on the local grounds, however, is to challenge Howard Dietz to a ping pong setto.

Ira Furman, Charlotte boss, is trying to sign up a partner for a round of golf. He may get Bill Scully and Jack Bowen on the greens, but it all depends on the fourth man. Al Lichtman may enter the contest if he can manage to take off a couple of hours, the prospects of which are not so sanguine at the moment.

Bob Lynch, garbed in his usual convention black shirt, wanted to be the engineer of the special train, but the boys talked him out of it. Lynch will get even with his confreres in another way, he says.

Clayt Lynch, the St. Louis Kid who was switched to Los Angeles when J. J. Milstein resigned, is catching up with the latest gossip from the Mound City by keeping constant company with "Doc" Banford, who now holds the reins at the St. Louis branch. Banford hails from Des Moines and he's hunting up gossip about his old home town, too.

Charles C. Kessnick, southern district manager with headquarters in Atlanta and a colonel in the reserve corps, contends he's losing his southern accent. He holds this is due to his association with the Yankee divisions, meaning namely Jack Flynn of Detroit and Bill Scully of New York.

Traveling with the 50 home office executives and their assistants, the New York exchange crew kept together like peas in a pod. Scully, Bowen, Dave Levy, Bob Cummings, Ben Abner, Howard Levy, Capt. Harry Miller, Dudley Peck and Bob Ellsworth were the inseparables. Miller reminisced largely on his recent silver wedding anniversary celebration.

Harry Margolies, formerly a booker at the New York exchange and now spending his second year as office manager of the Charlotte exchange, is attending. From this branch also are Furman, Ben Rosenwald, Burtus Bishop, and Thomas Bailey.

Jack Byrne's contingent from New Haven was the smallest. Milton Hyams and Fred Rippingale are the only salesmen in the exchange and each covers a lot of territory.

Frank Scully, a salesman in the Capitol exchange, is a brother of Bill, but, notwithstanding, has chalked up a fine record for himself in the past year. Rudy Berger is the boss and hates to be interviewed by the press. Others from the Washington office attending include Harold Weinberger, Phil Bobbys, Harry Cohen, Jack Goldberg and Murray Greenfield.

On Monday, all the boys will be photographed in groups. The cameras will start clicking as soon as the afternoon session is over.

Insurance to Use Films

St. Louis, May 10.—Selling insurance by means of films is the latest gag under consideration here by the Fire Underwriters' Ass'n. All the citizens who have been dodging insurance agents for years may encounter them unexpectedly on the screen.

N. E. Insurance Is Set

Boston, May 10.—The new group insurance policy plan started here by Independent Exhibitors, Inc., local Allied affiliate, is set, according to business Manager Arthur K. Howard. The scheme, which insures 50 or more theatres of the organization as a whole and assures reductions in prevailing rates, has gone through. The return of the certified policy is all that is being waited for, according to local Allied headquarters. Nathan Yamins was in town for final arrangements.

Double Bills In K.C. Area Gain Rapidly in Kansas City, Mo., nine advertised double bills, and the Waldo offered such a program with free china.

W. D. Fulton's five houses—Southtown, Colonial, Mokan, LaSalle and Tivoli—showed doubles with Fulton's "mutual" money giveaway.

This is more double billing and giveawaying than the city has had in many a moon.

About the same situation obtains in the territory. Fox Midwest has paced other exhibitors in this respect, but independents have occasionally opened the double-barrelled shooting.

R. H. Montgomery's Cozy at Ottawa, Kan., recently instituted double bills. The Fox Webster and Strand have been using one apiece a week, but probably will use more now.

Fox took doubles into Topeka this spring, into Wichita last fall, and has adopted the double practice widely in other towns in this division.

He is preparing the score now for "The Garden of Allah" for Selznick, and will start on a production for Pioneer as soon as that is completed. Steiner recently resigned from Radio where he has been in charge of scoring and conducting many of the major productions. So far, no one has been signed at Radio by Al Colombo, manager of the music department, to take his place.

All are stories by Clarence E. Mulford.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Anthony Adverse"

(Warners)

Hollywood, May 10.—New interest is given talking pictures with the presentation of "Anthony Adverse." It establishes a standard of dramatic tragedy that easily may stand as a shining beacon for future production. The finest picture ever turned out by this producing organization, it is a thrilling triumph to the courage, intelligence and perseverance that went into its making. It is an honor to everyone who was connected with it. Certain to be a box-office sensation, it is all audience entertainment as it is a showmanship feature that makes available limitless opportunities for commercial exploitation.

In clear bold strokes it tells the story of "Anthony Adverse." It tells it with power, dignity and a precision sure to grip the hearts and stir the emotions of all who see it. Deftly avoiding any possibility for censurable objection, retaining always the full vigorous spirit of the original, it paints character drama that takes a child of passion through a welter of experiences—romantic, dramatic and tragic—always pitched to a key of sympathetic human interest that held the attention of the preview audience in a viselike grip.

In four vivid chapters it tells the complete story. One is the tragedy of Anthony's birth and his childhood in a convent school. The second is his apprenticeship to Bonnyfeather, who knows the child is his daughter's son, which has for its dramatic contrast Anthony's great love for and marriage to Angela. Next is his life as a slave trader where the man of ambitions becomes a beast. The finale is his meeting with Angela again, the discovery that she is Napoleon's paramour and his happiness when he claims his child and sails to America for a new life with the boy.

Splendidly acted with Fredric March giving the most convincing and accomplished performance of his career, and Olivia De Haviland, Donald Woods, Anita Louise, Edmund Gwenn, Claude Rains, Gale Sondergaard, Steffi Duna, Ralph Morgan, Henry O'Neill, Louis Alberni and Fritz Leiber measuring him stride for stride. The show is an excellent example of interpretive narration. Impressive as is the work of the star, principal support and minor players, the musical score arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold fulfills a function that brought the story to the screen without missing a beat in mood and spirit.

The task of adapting Hervey Allen's monumental novel as accomplished by Sheridan Gibney not only digests the full scope of the original, but embellishes it with a realism and believability that bring the picture within the understanding and appreciation of the simplest mind.

Mervyn Le Roy's direction not only takes full advantage of what Gibney prepared and the opportunities which the talents of the star and support made possible, but brings in a finished, convincing way the something new, different and unusual that has been so long cried for. Accepted as a picture that will exceed one's fondest hopes in stimulating theatre business, "Anthony Adverse" has a new significance to all who have the welfare of the industry at heart.

title to the plays. All other points settled between the contract committees were described by a guild spokesman as "utterly trivial."

Whether the managers' organization will accept the 60-40 split and authors' control of plays is regarded as extremely doubtful in both camps. Managers have been insistent upon the retention of the former 50-50 split provisions. Indications are that the question of whether managers are willing to cede this point in the interest of an agreement will be put before a membership meeting of the League of N. Y. Theatres today or tomorrow.

Royal Police Fail To Corral This Man

Ottawa, May 10.—The interesting story is being told of how the Royal Canadian Mounted Police did not get their man in traditional fashion in connection with the presentation of a Russian film under the auspices of the Ottawa Film Society, an arty group.

An officer of the R. C. M. P. attended a meeting of the society at which the Russian feature was screened and immediately branded it as Communist propaganda. The matter was referred to Major-General Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the mounted police, who got in touch with the society's secretary. The secretary finally advised the commissioner to get in touch with the president of the Ottawa organization.

"Who is the president?" the commissioner asked.

"Mr. Justice Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada," was the reply.

Fox Midwest Drops Novel Copy in Ads

KANSAS CITY, May 11.—Fox Mid-west managers for the most part have ceased using Screen Reporter news-paper advertising, begun last year by the circuit as a novelty. Elmer C. Rhoden, president and general man-ager of the circuit, adopted it as a means of bringing theatre advertising out of the usual routine. The plan was originally to be used at the dis-cretion of the managers.

The decreasing use of the method is attributed to two factors. One is that it required considerable time on the part of the managers, and the other is the fact that the novelty of the plan has worn off and the public is no longer as much attracted to it as was true at first.

Columbia Sessions To Be on the Coast

Columbia will hold its annual convention on the coast this year, provided Harry Cohn, president, approves the plan. The dates will be set for about the middle of June.

End Arguments on Center RKO Claim

RKO yesterday began its court opposition to the allowance of the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim against the company at a hearing before Federal Judge William Bondy. The allowance of the claim at that amount was also opposed by RCA, Time, Inc., and individual RKO stockholders.

Oral argument was completed at the lengthy hearing yesterday and Judge Bondy gave both sides two weeks for the exchange of briefs and

Production Slows, 39 Films in Work

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—Major and independent production activity during the past week continued to show a gradual letdown, as has been indicated for the past month, with 39 features in work as compared to 40 during the preceding week. Short subject production dropped off sharply from six films in work last week to one this week. Warners headed the feature production list with seven in work.

Columbia had two features shooting, two in preparation and scheduled for the cameras within two weeks and eight in the cutting rooms. M-G-M had six, one and 12; Paramount had six, three and eight; Republic, two,

The new board consists of seven members, instead of the five of the old board.

Warners Will Meet In N. Y., Chicago

The New York business sessions will be presided over by A. W. Smith, Jr., eastern and southern sales manager, and the Chicago meetings will have Gradwell L. Sears, western and southern sales manager, in charge.

Warners May Confer with Trade Group

MPTOA Heads Expect Early Conference

Indications are that Warners will receive the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee during its current sessions with individual distributors, the first of which will be held with Paramount today.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, on his arrival from Oklahoma City yesterday, said that he believed that Warners would meet with the exhibitor committee in an individual session as the company's failure to join in the initial joint meeting between the committee and sales heads of seven national distributors three weeks ago was ascribed to Warners' unwillingness to participate in a group conference. The sessions now being inaugurated with individual companies should eliminate the original Warner objection, Kuykendall believes.

Warners is the only company which has not accepted the exhibitor committee's invitation to confer on new season trade practices. Republic, which like Warners, did not participate in the joint session three weeks ago, advised Kuykendall last week that it would be glad to confer with the

New Breach Is Seen On Dramatist Deal

Indications of a new breach in the negotiations between the contract committees of the League of N. Y. Theatres and the Dramatists' Guild on a new contract for playwrights were apparent yesterday following a meeting of the two committees at guild headquarters.

Although neither the League nor the guild would comment officially on the situation, it was indicated that unless a change of attitude on the part of both organizations occurs today no further meetings will be held. The refusal of the guild to discuss any change in the provision for a 60-40 split of the proceeds from the sale of film rights to stage plays is reported Theatre business in Paris has returned to normal following the recent political upheaval after elections, Arthur Field, assistant general manager for M-G-M in Europe, stated on his arrival yesterday on the Normandie. Field said he is here on a vacation-business trip. He plans to stay in New York about a week or two and then leave for the coast.

Arriving on the same liner was Cedric Gibbons, M-G-M designer, who returned after a six-week vacation in Sweden, France and England. He will leave by plane today for Hollywood.

five days thereafter in which to file answering briefs. His decision is not expected for a month at the earliest, and, regardless of its nature the case is certain to be taken to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by the loser thereafter.

The claim is based on a 20-year lease made by RKO with Rockefeller Center in 1931, which provides for an annual rental of $950,000. Under articles of the lease RKO was also held liable for the unamortized construction costs of the Music Hall and Center. The claim was filed for $12,185,000, and, after hearings last year, Thomas D. Thacher, acting as special master, recommended the allowance of the claim at $9,950,000, subject to discounts which would reduce it to approximately $9,150,000.

Donovan, Newton, Leisure & Lumbard, attorneys for Irving Trust Co., the RKO trustee, has been endeavoring for the past year to effect a settlement of the claim but the negotiations were ended last week and the decision was made to contest the claim in court. The basis of the opposition is the trustee's contention that despite the lease provision RKO is liable only for three years' rent. George S. Leisure, of trustee's counsel, told the court yesterday that this would limit the claim to between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

As the claim now stands Rockefeller Center is the largest unsecured creditor of RKO and as such would be a power in the reorganization of the company. The status of the huge claim has been the principal obstacle to the development of a plan of reorganization for RKO and it is apparent that until the claim is disposed of little or no progress on a plan can be made.

In addition to Leisure, RKO was also represented at yesterday's hearing by David Teitelbaum, of the same law firm. Stuart N. Updike, attorney for Time, Inc., which owns a block of unsecured RKO notes acquired last year from Pathe, opposed the allowance of the claim on behalf of Time as an RKO creditor. RCA, which owns about 43 per cent of the RKO stock, also opposed allowance of the claim, with William D. Whitney of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood as its attorney. Josiah Stover appeared as attorney for an RKO stockholder in opposition to the claim. Rockefeller Center was represented by Timothy N. Pfeiffer of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb.

Looking 'Em Over

"It's Love Again"

(G. B.)

If there isn't a great showman's bet in the effervescent, fast-stepping, attractive and wholly appealing Jessie Matthews, this picture's star, then this reviewer has completely lost his grip. She may be British, and speak slightly with the accent of the King's English, but she will draw a response from any audience, American—or Chinese, for that matter. The girl, in a word, has what it takes.

Behind her is a light and completely entertaining story with plenty of humor from the laugh to the chuckle; "catchy" tunes, effective ensemble numbers, and for American audiences in particular, the presence of Robert Young, capable U. S. player, who plays opposite Miss Matthews, and does it with a well-rounded performance. Sonnie Hale is excellent as the leading player in support. The theme and title song, especially, has that something which should send audiences out of the theatre humming. Sam Coslow and Harry Woods did the music and lyrics.

Victor Saville, who directed, has drawn the most out of the material, in story and players, and the result is well-paced, entertaining and thoroughly enjoyable, with all credit to the star, who can dance with the best of them, sings well, and is an entirely competent actress. Buddy Bradley's dance numbers are elaborate and eye-filling.

The screenplay by Marion Dix and Lesser Samuels has Miss Matthews seeking a chance in his musical show from an eccentric producer. He refuses to pay any attention as she sings and dances for him. Angry, she leaves, and runs into Young, who with his pal, Hale, is in danger of losing his columnist job because they can get nothing on a celebrity who is the exclusive property of a rival columnist. Young is more than a little attracted to Miss Matthews and she to him.

At about the same time, Young and Hale conceive of a brilliant idea. They construct, on paper, an entirely fictitious Mrs. Smyth-Smyth, who shoots tigers, is wealthy and has lived in India for many years. Then Miss Matthews gets an equally brilliant idea. She goes to the best hotel, surrounds herself with mystery, and makes a public appearance as Mrs. Smyth-Smyth, without the knowledge of that person's creators. Her idea is that the publicity will get her a chance. She makes a bargain with Young and Hale, and they promote her in their column. There follow entertaining and lively sequences, as she gets in and out of jams leading to exposure. She gets her chance, then walks out in the middle of the show to save Young's job, when the rival reporter gets wind of the hoax. But on her own, without the benefit of a "name," Miss Matthews proves her ability to the producer, and she and Young see happiness ahead.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 79 minutes. "G."

RKO. F. & M. is believed to be negotiating for control of the St. Louis Amusement Co., 42 per cent of which will be transferred to the circuit when Warners step out of St. Louis theatre operation.

Although it was estimated that F. & M may take over the 20 neighborhood houses, the Orpheum, Shubert-Rialto and Hi-Point from Warners on Friday, the switch in management most likely will be put off until next week.

Jack Miller of Chicago, O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City, and Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia, who, with Kuykendall, comprise the M.P.T.O.A. committee, also arrived yesterday. Ed Levy of New Haven, M.P.T.O.A. counsel, was here during the day to confer with the committee, but will not participate in any of the sessions.

Kuykendall indicated yesterday that the trade practice committee would not be enlarged by the inclusion of representatives of other exhibitor organizations, several of which have requested that they be admitted to the conferences with the individual distributors. Nathan Yamins, Allied States president, is reported to have stated that his organization would not recognize any agreement resulting from the meetings unless Allied was represented on the committee. The principal concession which a majority of distributors have indicated they will be willing to make is a more liberal cancellation privilege.

Crawford and Robert Taylor in one, Boyer and Garbo in one, Crawford and Gable in one, perhaps two; Eddy and MacDonald, Howard and Shearer, Loy and William Powell in two, Loy and Montgomery in one.

Prior to the outlining of the coming season's plans, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, had opened the session with a sincere and moving eulogy of the late Felix Feist, his predecessor. "If my supreme efforts," he said, "are half as good as Feist's, I will be satisfied." His tribute was followed by a minute of silence in memory of the departed executive.

M. N. Wolf, of Boston, then extolled Rodgers, telling him that he had the confidence of all, including exhibitors, and presented him with a large floral horseshoe as a good luck token for the years to come.

Rodgers followed with a talk concerning the coming season, touching on the matters of increased dates for shorts and the increase in negative costs of features.

During the afternoon session Rodgers compared this season's product with the pictures yet to come, after which Al Lichtman discussed the studio side of the story.

An address was also given by Col. E. A. Schiller, after which a wire from Nicholas M. Schenck was read by Howard Dietz.

Following dinner this evening the group attended "At Home Abroad" as guests of Dietz.

Roars from Leo's Lair

CHICAGO, May 11.—SAM SHIRLEY, BILLY FERGUSON, FELIX MENDELSSOHN, FRED BARTOW and J. KEMPTGEN met M-G-M "Sales Special" when it arrived here Sunday morning from New York. Palmer House bellboys, 22 of them all in uniform, were in attendance and stood at attention while the Metro party disembarked and walked down the carpeted room. The special stopped Saturday night for five minutes in Syracuse, in front of the City Hall where the group were greeted by the mayor and other officials.

Being the first convention where district managers, branch managers, salesmen, auditors, bookers and office managers have all conferred at the same time, the meeting has the largest attendance of any Metro sales meeting to date.

All day Sunday delegates from the various cities arrived and registered for the meeting. Balaban & Katz inserted a special welcome ad in the local dailies and wished the gang a splendid visit here. In the lobby and at all entrances of the Palmer House, AL FULLER, press representative, and his cohorts, had placed decorative posters with a photo of Mayor EDWARD J. KELLY, greeting Leo, the lion. Various managers held meetings Sunday preparatory to the opening sessions today.

SI SEADLER spent a quiet Sunday. He visited with a number of friends and renewed old Chicago acquaintances.

HOWARD DIETZ wended his way over to the "At Home Abroad" company appearing at the Grand Opera House, in the stage play which he authored. DIETZ spent Sunday afternoon and evening visiting with BEA LILLIE, HERB WILLIAMS and other members of the cast.

Report that LOUIS B. MAYER and HOWARD STRICKLING would not be able to attend the opening of the convention were received with great disappointment. There is some possibility that they may be able to get here before the convention has ended.

Chances that Governor HENRY HORNER will speak at the banquet Tuesday night are very good. The governor received a special invitation from MAYER and his acceptance is expected some time Monday.

News that ELEANOR POWELL would be in town Tuesday and possibly be in attendance for the banquet, was enthusiastically received by the conventionites. Miss POWELL will depart from Chicago Tuesday night on the first trip of the new Santa Fe "Super-Chief," a streamliner making its initial trip to the coast.

ERNEST MORRELL, transportation executive, arrived with the Eastern party and found that his plans had worked out very satisfactorily, everyone finding accommodations on the special train excellent.

BARRETT KIESLING from Hollywood is the only studio representative present. KIESLING arrived Sunday from Toledo where he had been speaking to women's clubs about "Romeo and Juliet." BARRETT is touring the country on behalf of the picture, filling speaking engagements and also planting news copy.

MAURY SHERMAN'S orchestra has been hired for the floor show at the banquet. Members of the Palmer House floor show and others will be present to provide entertainment. Many of the stage and screen celebrities present in Chicago will attend the affair as guests of M-G-M.

JEAN HERSHOLT, now in New York, expects to fly in for a day or so. He is now in the East making appearances on several radio programs and, if he can get away, will be here to meet the sales group.

"parole!"
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL
NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM,
Is your life in the hands of criminals?
A challenge to the courts --to all America?

ODDS AGAINST CAPTURE SPUR CRIMINALS

The odds against a criminal getting caught and sent to jail on the indictment growing out of an original charge are better than 50 to 1 in these United States.

... "life sentence" does not mean "life"—the average time spent in jail on "life sentences" is ten years.

Murder results in average sentences of four years.

Startling figures, these, but authentic because they come from the Uniform Crime Reports of the United States Department of Justice.

CODDLING CRIMINALS.

Courtney Ryley Cooper, internationally famous as a writer on crime, found the figures listed above in the Department of Justice reports.

"And," he says, "one out of every 30 persons believed to be in jail, by the general public, is out, either on parole, by pardon, or through a suspended sentence. A Judge may stand up in court, shake his finger at a supposedly quaking prisoner and sentence him to a given term of years in an institution. But that doesn't mean that the prisoner will be in jail the number of years the sentence indicated."

JURIST ASSAILS PAROLE SYSTEM

The World-Telegram today asked a distinguished jurist to give his opinion of the parole system.

By PRESIDING JUSTICE FRANCIS MARTIN,
Appellate Division, First Department.

Many of the most atrocious and savage crimes in recent years have been committed by paroled convicts. For many years I have publicly [illegible] that there is something radically wrong with our parole system and I have on numerous occasions urged that our present method of paroling prisoners has proved a failure.

The best way to obtain an efficient parole system is to place the paroling of prisoners in the courts, where belongs. The Parole Board should e composed of judges of courts of ecord.

FAILURE IN THE COURTS.

The police get their man and the courts suspend sentence or accept a reduced plea. A few months or a year or two in prison and the criminal skips out to continue his career

Short Subject

"The Undersea Kingdom"

(Republic)

This is another of those super scientific serials which will find favorable reception with the younger element. The story concerns the adventures of Ray "Crash" Corrigan and a party consisting of Lois Wilde, a newspaper woman; C. Montague Shaw, a scientist, and Lee Van Atta, his young son, when they descend to the ocean's bottom to find the causes of earthquakes. On the bottom they find a strange country, and powerful rulers who provide the usual thrills, excitement and drama. Corrigan is a fit hero and the cast containing such names as Monte Blue, William Farnum, Jack Mulhall, Lane Chandler and others delivers the goods. It is a well done film, the models and trick camera effects are in a measure, quite convincing. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, first chapter, 20 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Singing Cowboy"

(Republic)

A pleasant mixture of drama, romance, villainy and song in measured quantities, plus some future entertainment possibilities as a concoction of television performances, make this an appealing western for the Gene Autry radio fans and the theatre-seat cowboys.

The story concerns Autry's benevolent attentions to Ann Gilles, who is seriously injured during a horse raid in which her father is murdered by Lon Chaney's gang. Autry sets out with the cowhands for the east in an attempt to sell a radio program to pay for Miss Gilles' hospital bills. In desperation, he finally puts it over with a coffee company and sets out with a covered wagon caravan from which television performances are given. He has a measure of success and, reaching his home town, meets with his radio boss' daughter, Lois Wilde, a runaway, who aspires to sing. She is trailed by her stupid fiance and a detective. Autry starts her on a singing career by teaching her a few songs for an amateur contest. There follows at this point a series of complications and evolvements which finally lead to the capture of the murderers and a fulfillment of the romance of Miss Wilde and Autry and the recovery of little Miss Gilles.

In addition to the work of the principals, a good comic performance is turned in by "Smiley" Burnette. Others in the supporting cast include John Van Pelt and Earl Eby. The direction is by Mack Wright, from Dorrell and Stuart McGowan's screen play. The credit for effective photography goes to Bill Nobles.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,167. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

France-U. S. Film Agreement Reached

Washington, May 12.—Stabilization of the situation now existing in France with respect to American films is guaranteed in the reciprocal trade agreement with that country signed last week, it was disclosed tonight by the State Dep't in making public details of the pact.

Writers Move To Start New Organization

Hollywood, May 12.—Rupert Hughes has lost no time in leading the revolting writers into a new organization for the purpose of fighting the Screen Writers' Guild and its proposed closed shop amalgamation with the Authors' League.

More than 100 former guild members met here last night and discussed what they described as the evils that have cropped up in the guild and then outlined plans for a new organization. One of their aims, it was stated, will be cooperation with producers for the purpose of serving the interests of the industry.

Although the new organization will be made up principally of men and women who do most of the writing for the industry, it was stated, a provision will be made for associate members, who write or wish to write for the screen, and who will be invited to join with full membership status when they prove their worth.

Hughes was named to draw up a

Trust Cases In Missouri Are Dropped

Seen As Final Step in St. Louis Battle

Dismissal of the anti-trust ouster proceedings against Warners, Paramount and RKO, on application of State's Attorney Roy McKittrick of Missouri, in the State Supreme Court at Jefferson City and St. Louis yesterday removed the last stumbling block to the perfection of the agreement reached on April 30 by the various interests involved and signed by Federal Judge John C. Knox here.

Under terms of the stipulation signed by Judge Knox, the injunction proceedings in St. Louis and Jefferson City, filed by McKittrick against Warners, RKO and Paramount, were to be dropped. Although a hearing scheduled for April 30, had been continued to May 21 in St. Louis, the action has been automatically taken off the court dockets.

The two actions yesterday were dismissed an hour apart, the Jefferson City suit being the first. McKittrick said in the withdrawal papers that the violations of the anti-trust laws, as alleged, are now ended, referring to the stipulation agreed to here, and "everything has been gained that might be gained by a successful prosecution of these cases." The quo warranto action was filed April 15 in Jefferson City.

It is unofficially estimated that dis-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

WRITTEN, as this is at a point distantly removed from the battleground, the impression is that the Screen Writers' Guild dealt itself a lusty blow midships when its membership voted to rescind Article 12. Much of the strength to come was represented in that article which sought to bind guild members from signing away their services or their writings beyond May 2, 1938. Exactly what this objective meant to guild aims was explained in unmistakably clear language by Ernest Pascal, president of the S.W.G., in a recent issue of Screen Writers' Magazine, official organ of the guild. . . .

We refresh your memory:

"It may seem to some of us a hardship to be asked not to sign a contract that pledges our services and works beyond two years. But actually it will prove to be a boon. It will tend to abolish the 'option' contract, where the advantage is always on the side of the producer and never on the side of the writer. The individual, of course, as a rule is helpless to hold out against these one-sided options, but in this way, through his organization, it will be impossible for him to accept such a deal.

"Picture then the strength and the power that will be ours in the next two years. Material can be worked upon only by members of our organization. Contracts, except for a very few, will have expired by May, 1938. We will be in the invulnerable position of controlling both material and manpower. Writers, the Authors' League of America, will hold the winning hand. And the producer, who has always proved himself to be a very shrewd poker player, will know it. It won't be necessary to call his bluff. Then without a strike, without any of us suffering from being out of jobs, it is only reasonable to conclude that we will gain all that we are after—guildship and a fair minimum basic agreement."

Obviously, the reverse must be the fact. If Pascal envisioned in a writers' agreement not to sell services or wares beyond May two years hence an "invulnerable position of controlling both material and manpower," the deduction becomes palpably simple that without it, which the Guild now is, hopes must go aglimmering. The "very shrewd poker player" producer, it is also patent, is living up to Pascal's self-ascribed reputation. No Napoleonic strategy was required to dope out that one effective manner of spiking the Guild's Big Bertha was to sign on extended contracts substantial personalities in the very membership which Pascal sought to hold on other lines. It is being tried and it appears to be working. . . .

We may not know all of the angles, sitting and observing on the Atlantic seaboard that which has the Pacific slope so excited. As a matter of fact, we concede the point. But a significance not easily disposed of is reflected in the measure of successful negotiation which has marked producer effort and another significance, by the same token, becomes painfully apparent in the failure of the guild to keep its ranks intact. The guild may not have been able to resist the lure dangled by the studios in the form of fat contracts ranging over a period of years and, in all instances, beyond the May, 1938, date. But when its own roster crumbled in its stand sufficiently to rescind the very article on which the hope for power began and ended, the fight might well be said to have reached and passed its storm and fury. . . .

The exact extent of producer participation in the rival guild about to be organized by Rupert Hughes and others is, likewise, a factor not clear. Yet, as these matters proceed and when war is declared officially on both sides in any conflict, the bars drop and anything goes. If the opposition writers' association is not actually being spawned by the major studios, it is a leadpipe cinch that its development and its nutrition will flow from willing studio faucets. . . .

The story stated that in the event Twentieth Century-Fox were successful in getting the Roxy, it would be pooled with the Capitol for use of the choice product of M-G-M and Twentieth Century-Fox at the Capitol and the other pictures of the two distributors at the Roxy.

Paramount Settles "Pine" Rights Suit

An out-of-court settlement of the suit brought against Paramount by the Trail Co. over production rights to "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" was concluded yesterday. The settlement involved the payment by Paramount of $10,000, a sum described by attorneys as satisfactory to both sides.

The Trail Co.'s action was for an injunction and an accounting, based on the allegation that certain dramatic rights which it owned were vital to the film production and had not been obtained by Paramount. Trial of the suit opened on Monday in N. Y. Supreme Court and was halted after an hour and a half of testimony when the court urged attorneys in the case to attempt a settlement.

Roars from Leo's Lair

Chicago, May 12.—Under the supervision of Billy Ferguson and his gang, convention headquarters are trimmed in a riot of color. The posters and banners adorning the walls of the convention hall are the subject for much praise. Huge blow-ups of Metro stars are on the wall back of the speaker's table and the surrounding wall space is devoted to banners and scenes from various pictures, "The Great Ziegfeld" and "Romeo and Juliet" predominating. Slogans everywhere announce that "M-G-M Is the Greatest Company on Earth." Large-size match packets, colored blotters and stationery are at each desk in the hall and make colorful decorations. Place cards at each desk are out to represent a figure of the globe with the above slogan written on them.

The entire group were presented individually with real leather zipper bags as the convention opened. The name of each delegate was inscribed in gold on the bag with a cut of the company's seal also inscribed.

The most fascinating window for the conventioneers in the many Palmer House shops is the one in the drug store that is filled with various types of brushes. The $100 shaving brush and the $250 hair brush win the most comment.

Leroy Bickel and his Texans arrived in Chicago with 10-gallon hats resting on feverish brows and loads of Texas Centennial publicity under each arm.

William F. Rodgers will probably return to New York with his right arm in a sling if the handshaking continues. So far everyone at the convention has congratulated him on his new job at least twice.

He had na time ta pose in New Yark, but the cameraman caught him in Chicaga. Latest pase af William F. Radgers, Lea's new general sales manager.

The convention hall echoed loudly with the great round of applause for Rodgers when he took charge of the meeting.

Barrett Kiesling continues to be the solo M-G-M studio representative present. That is, if you don't count Hal Roach. Hal is the lone member of his coast organization present.

Morris Abrams and Benny Darrow were two exploiteers unable to attend on account of illness.

Col. Harry Long, division manager for Loew's in Cleveland, arrived this morning, a day late. A. M. Holah was another late comer. Both were delayed by business engagements.

Col. E. A. Schiller is being warmly greeted by his many friends. This is the first convention in three years that he has been able to attend.

Felix Mendelssohn, after several weeks' rest from his recent illness, is now up and about taking the convention in full stride.

Bill Parker joins the crew Fred Barthow is sending downstate to exploit "Ziegfeld."

Neatly bound editions of "Kim" and "Enoch Arden" were given salesmen. Metro plans to produce these stories in the near future and the lads will have a chance to read the stories before they go out to sell them.

Trust Cases In Missouri Are Dropped

missal of all pending suits resulting from the St. Louis situation will save the distributors about $1,000,000. This includes the time various executives would have had to spend on the new cases, legal fees and other expenses. It is also stated that the criminal and civil suits already tried have cost the three companies more than $1,500,000.

With the elimination of the Jefferson City and St. Louis injunction moves, the criminal indictment against Abel Cary Thomas, secretary of Warners, will be dropped from the St. Louis Federal court calendar. Although all other defendants in the misdemeanor suit were tried and acquitted, Thomas was excused because of ill health. However, the indictment has never been marked off the calender, but this is expected forthwith.

In addition, the private suits instituted by Harry C. Arthur and F. & M. at about the same time the criminal action was filed against the same companies for triple damages also will be cleared from the court dockets.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, former NRA administrator, who negotiated the recent settlement, yesterday expressed gratification at the Missouri results. He represented all parties in reaching the stipulation and will act with S. R. Kent as arbiter on any dispute which may arise in the negotiation of agreements, franchises, leases, mortgages, notes and bonds between Harry C. Arthur of Fanchon & Marco and distributor interests.

Papers for transferring the Shubert-Rialto, Orpheum and Hi-Pointe to F. & M. by Warners, in addition to the latter's 42 per cent stock interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co., are now being drawn. Arthur arrived early this morning by plane from the Mound City to complete negotiations for acquisition of the properties in St. Louis and product.

The appeal taken by distributors in connection with Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux's decision dismissing the equity case without prejudice will be withdrawn from the Supreme Court docket, it was said yesterday. The film companies have insisted on going through with the appeal until the injunction suits were out of the way.

Negotiations for settling the civil action were begun on April 3. Warners agreed to the terms on April 14. A meeting with Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Rosenblatt and interests concerned was held in Rosenblatt's office on April 24. The stipulation took six days to work out, extended time being necessary because RKO, in process of reorganization, required the approval of Federal Judge William Bondy before signing.

April 15 Case Dismissed

JEFFERSON CITY, May 12.—Attorney General Roy McKittrick of Missouri today dismissed the proceedings filed in Supreme Court on April 15 against General Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Paramount and RKO which sought to stop them from operating in Missouri.

that no new measures will be taken to place American films in a position less favorable than that now enjoyed in comparison with French or other foreign films.

France also gives assurance that the present import duty, together with the valuations upon which the ad valorem duty is assessed, will not be increased, and the reductions in the import tax from six to two per cent will also apply to films.

French imports last year of all films, exposed and unexposed, amounted to $1,570,000.

Favor Pettengill Bill

NEW HAVEN, May 12.—A special meeting of the M. P. T. O. today went on record as favoring the Pettengill bill, and Abram F. Myers and Nathan Yamins were authorized to represent the unit in endeavoring to secure passage of the bill.

Another Award

It was at the Griffith Bros. theatre convention in Oklahoma City last week. Among the speakers was Gradwell L. Sears of Warners. He advanced to the rostrum, put on his best selling front, which is some front, and built his harangue around how distributors at large felt toward the Griffiths for the expertness and the showmanship with which they handled product. By his side was a package. It began to look like something.

Then Ned Depinet of Radio and Bob O'Donnell of the Interstate Circuit advanced for the presentation. With pomp and circumstance, they did it. The award was a duplicate of the recognition accorded Sears, Andy Smith and Charlie Einfeld by Jack Warner when they were on the coast recently.

It pointed the way, stalwart and strong, to higher and higher achievements. The Griffiths smilingly acknowledged the propriety of the symbol.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Two Against the World"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—This is sensational, grim melodrama. In it a scandal-mongering broadcasting station replaces the yellow journalism of yesterday's screen in disseminating vicious news no matter what the cost in human heartbreak and tragedy. Stark in context and carrying no comedy relief, but contrasted by an appealing love interest situation, the show is of that quality that made such pictures as "Front Page" and "Five Star Final" interesting to the public.

Mad with the lust for power and wealth, Robert Middlemass, station owner, resurrects the sordid details of a forgotten murder case. His mania for sensationalism is opposed by Humphrey Bogart, station manager, and his secretary, Beverly Roberts, who see it leading only to trouble and tragedy. Implored to desist by the woman in the case, Helen MacKellar, and her husband, Henry O'Neill, who seek to protect their own good name and the welfare of their daughter, Linday Perry, who is about to wed Carlyle Moore, Middlemass persists in recreating Miss MacKellar's crime story. As Bogart strives to bring about the radio commissioner's influence to stop Middlemass, heartbroken Miss MacKellar and O'Neill commit suicide. Vengeance bent, Miss Perry would kill Middlemass. She is prevented by Moore.

The story is based on the suggestion of Louis Weitzenkorn's "Five Star Final." Arthur Michael Jacoby's screen play is a stern, rigid picturization of human callousness. Directed by William McGann it sticks close to that atmosphere with the featured players giving convincing realistic performances.

Meaty stuff, it calls for vivid exploitation.

Film Men Studying New Canada Budget

subjects as presented in theatres come under the budget change.

The exemption clause reads as follows:

"Educational moving picture films of all widths, silent or sound, positive or negative, when certified by the minister as entitled to exemption from customs duty under the convention for facilitating the international circulation of films of an educational nature; subject to such regulations as the minister may prescribe."

The exact meaning of this provision is a puzzle to the film companies.

One item in the budget which may seriously affect the industry in Canada is a new five per cent excise tax on payments to foreign film companies for imported pictures. If this is found to be a blanket resolution, the impost is expected to prove a real detriment.

There is no change in the tariff on imported advertising accessories, but the sales tax on practically all commodities has been jumped from six to eight per cent, thus adding to the cost of supplies and printing. Another important point is that the corporation income tax has been raised from 13½ to 15 per cent and where a chain or group of companies makes a consolidated return, the rate is advanced from 15 to 17 per cent. This adds materially to the cost of being in business. Film exchange and theatre officials of Canada feel that they have gained nothing from the budget even with the exemption on educational films which form a small fraction of footage.

Theatre Managers, Dramatists Agree

stage plays, with the percentage in the author's favor. The contract also retains all legal rights and title to plays for the author. Other provisions are regarded as being of minor significance by both producer and author. The contract continues in force for a five-year period.

Film companies which plan participation in play financing have asked for a protective clause in the contract which would give them the right to be advised of any offer made to an author for the purchase of film rights to a play in which the film company is financially interested. Indications are that this provision will not meet with any opposition.

The contract with the minor changes agreed to during the past few weeks has yet to be approved by the Dramatists' Guild membership. When this has been done it will end the protracted negotiations over the new playwright pact which have been under way between managers and guild since the latter declared the contract operative last March 1.

Allow St. Louis Claim

St. Louis, May 12. — Referee in Bankruptcy Hope has allowed a claim of $72,086 for back rent in favor of the Empress Amusement Co., owner of the Empress, against the bankrupt estate of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc. Nelson Cunliff, Federal court trustee for Skouras Brothers Enterprises, gave his consent to the payment.

Back in 1921 Skouras Brothers Enterprises entered into a 20-year lease on the Empress, agreeing to pay $2,500 a month rent. The claim just approved included unpaid rent for the period Dec. 1, 1931, to Nov. 11, 1933, and also $14,041 in taxes. Referee Hope approved an offset item of $940 obtained by the owner through reletting the theatre.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER NEW YORK

Para. Favors Local Boards, Cancellations

kendall are Jack Miller, Chicago; L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga., and Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia.

Indications are that the principal concessions which will result from the meetings will be an unqualified cancellation privilege and distributor cooperation in the establishment of the local conciliation boards. The latter are expected to accomplish much in the way of correcting overbuying, unfair clearance, the forcing of an unreasonable number of shorts with features and in obtaining relief from arbitrarily designated playdates.

The exhibitor committee holds to the view that sales heads of individual companies by modifications of sales policy can give exhibitors immediately an unconditional, minimum rejection privilege on all group buys; a simplified standard form of contract; elimination of score charges; relief from arbitrary designation of an excessive number of preferred playdates and relief from the forcing of an excessive number of short subjects. Although the committee is seeking a 15 or 20 per cent cancellation privilege indications are that an unqualified 10 per cent rejection will be the best distributor offer. Such a rejection privilege, however, would eliminate the necessity of proving a picture to be unsuitable for exhibition and, when cancelled from a higher picture bracket, would not be followed by the addition to that bracket of a picture from a lower classification.

"Sales Managers Can Help"

The exhibitor committee also holds that sales managers, by coordinating their own aims in the near future, can give exhibitors local conciliation boards; relief from unreasonable and unfair clearance; from overbuying which deprives competitive theatres of needed product; from unfair cut-rate competition between theatres; from non-theatrical competition, from arbitrary designation of unsuitable pictures for Saturday or Sunday exhibition and from the forcing of an unreasonable number of shorts.

The last seven points are, for the most part, believed to be attainable through the local conciliation boards. The setting up of these boards is regarded by the M.P.T.O.A. committee as primarily a distributor function and, for this reason, meetings of sales managers who favor their establishment probably will have to be held later to work out functions, maintenance and machinery of the boards.

Mass. Case Postponed

Boston, May 12.—The Bank Night legality case which was scheduled to be heard in the Massachusetts Supreme Court has been postponed indefinitely because of the inability of the Bank Night counsel to appear.

A local infringement suit brought by Bank Night is awaiting a hearing on an appeal from having been thrown out of the lower court when both Bank Night and the alleged infringement were declared to be lotteries.

No Lawyers

The M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee concluded its first conference, held with Neil F. Agnew of Paramount, in record time yesterday, disposing of all issues under discussion before lunch. Asked if there was any explanation for the speedy understanding a member of the committee replied pointedly:

"Yes. There were no lawyers present."

Richard Hayward of Belfast, Ireland, has arrived in New York with his first feature "The Luck of the Irish." He plans to produce three additional pictures entirely with Irish casts.

Trustee Protesting Claim on Skourases

St. Louis, May 12.—Nelson Cunliff, Federal court trustee for Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc., is expected to ask the Federal court to reject the recent action of John A. Hope, referee in bankruptcy, in approving the claim of $3,171,796 of the Central Properties Corp. bondholders' committee against the Skouras firm, former operators of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central and majority stockholder of the St. Louis Amusement Co.

The claim was based on bonds issued in 1925 by Central Properties, on which Skouras, as the parent corporation, had guaranteed payment. Cunliff claimed the bonds had been discharged through the reorganization of Central, but Hope declared the reorganization provided that the bondholders would not release liability on the bonds. Hope rejected two other claims of the bondholders' protective committee, involving $215,300.

Looking 'Em Over

"Lawless Range"

(Republic)

Routine and average western material, this, nevertheless, has its full quota of action, with the fast riding, gun play and general all around scrapping which is especially pleasing to the youngsters and seems still to have its devotees among many of the adults. As double bill, week-end material it rates with the others, which is to say it is satisfactory entertainment of its kind.

John Wayne, young and active, has the lead, with Sheila Mannors chiefly concerned with the romantic aspects of the support.

Wayne, called to the aid of an old friend of his father, who is in trouble, finds the old man gone and his niece trying to protect the ranch from a gang of marauders, who had tried to frighten Wayne out of the country. He discovers that the gang is keeping supplies out of the valley and seeking to drive the ranchers out. Wayne brings in the supplies, and is asked to assist in driving the cattle to market.

He is captured by the gang, finds the old man, and the two escape. Wayne rides for a sheriff's posse and they arrive in time to save the cattle and trap the gang. It is revealed that the local banker is the brains behind the raids, he seeking to foreclose on all the ranches in the valley. R. N. Bradbury directed from a story and screen play by Lindsley Parsons.

Alperson, Group Take Over 66,667 Grand Nat'l Shares

Edward L. Alperson and associates have acquired 66,667 shares of Grand National Films stock out of the 200,000 shares which are now outstanding, it was disclosed in a letter sent to stockholders of Pathe Film Corp. yesterday. The remainder of the 200,000 shares of Grand National outstanding is held by Pathe, but, of this number, 117,000 shares will be required for a stock dividend to be paid to Pathe stockholders. This will leave Pathe with approximately 16,333 shares of Grand National.

The new producing and distributing company, of which Alperson is president, has an authorized capital stock of 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 per share. Grand National received $800,000 for the 200,000 shares now outstanding in the hands of Alperson and Pathe, according to the latter's letter to its stockholders. This would indicate that Alperson and associates subscribed approximately $266,000 of new capital to Grand National and Pathe approximately $535,000, believed to represent what was its controlling interest in First Division.

Provision has been made to obtain additional capital by offering to Grand National stockholders subscription rights to additional shares out of the authorized and unissued capital stock of the company. Warrants covering the additional stock to be offered will be distributed to Grand National stockholders of record as of a date after the company has complied with S.E.C. requirements on such additional stock.

Under the provisions of Pathe's

The Winnah!

When "One Rainy Afternoon" went into production in Hollywood a couple of months ago, there was a ceremony to mark the event. It rained.

When the picture was completed, it rained.

On the way to a first preview, Jesse L. Lasky turned to Francis Lederer, Ida Lupino, Rowland V. Lee and Hugh Herbert and said, "I'll bet you, it rains in New York the day the picture opens." They took him on, but at two to one.

Yesterday morning after his arrival, Lasky received a wire from Lederer inquiring about the weather. Lasky replied, "Cloudy, but looks like rain."

What happened all through the afternoon and early evening cinched the bet for the producer.

Safeguards Studied For Sale of Plays

Protective provisions to safeguard the interests of film companies under the sale of film rights to stage plays which film companies have financed are to be worked out immediately by a joint committee representing producing managers and playwrights, it was stated by the Dramatists' Guild yesterday.

The provisions will be in the form of instructions for the guidance of Joseph P. Bickerton, who serves as negotiator in the sale of production rights. The instructions themselves will not be made a part of the new five-year contract just negotiated by managers and playwrights, but will

"U" Promises Score Charge Elimination

Cancellation and Local Boards Also Assured

Universal has agreed to eliminate the score charge from its new season contracts, the M. P. T. O. A. trade practice committee was advised yesterday by James R. Grainger, Universal sales manager, at the second of the committee's series of individual meetings with national distributors.

In addition to foregoing the score charge next season, Universal will agree to the elimination of all restrictions and qualifications in connection with the exercise of the cancellation privilege and will support the move to establish local conciliation boards in all key cities. These boards are counted upon by the M. P. T. O. A. to aid materially in solving local problems of overbuying, the forcing of shorts with features, arbitrarily or unfairly designated playdates, unreasonable clearance, unfair cut-rate competition between theatres and competition from non-theatrical sources.

The M. P. T. O. A.'s trade practice program calls for immediate relief from designation of an excessive number of preferred playdates and from the forcing of shorts with features, in addition to Universal's stated concessions. Universal has not been granted it and have lost the sale of our product. Much of the clearance now in existence came into being during the NRA period, approximately two years ago. Conditions have changed in the past two years and I would suggest that everyone of you carefully analyze existing clearances with a view to correcting them."

In his final speech, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, said, in part:

"We undersell our product. I believe more exhibitors would have a tough time surviving without Metro. So let's get the best price possible for our pictures. I face the future with confidence."

Group conferences were the order of the day with Connors and E. M. Saunders in consultation with those from the most distant points first in order that they might leave at once. Policy and situational problems were discussed with office managers and bookers while district managers conferred with Rodgers and Al Lichtman. Exploiteers left this noon after talks with Howard Dietz and W. R. Ferguson.

Among the promotions announced by Rodgers were: Clayton Lynch, from St. Louis to Los Angeles as branch manager; Walter Banford, Des Moines, succeeds Lynch; Dexter Kennedy, salesman, succeeds Banford. Forrest Snyder, St. Louis booker, was made office manager there and Al Putz, Chicago booker, becomes office manager at Minneapolis.

The convention closed last night with a banquet in the Palmer House ballroom.

Rodgers was presented a complete set of luggage by the sales force. F. D. Drew made the presentation speech. Allen Cummings and E. M. Saunders were given star sapphires laid in platinum rings. Connors was given diamond-studded platinum studs.

The banquet room was elaborately decorated. Rodgers and Al Lichtman made short speeches, but the balance of the evening was devoted to entertainment supplied by B. & K. headliners. Among them were Gus Van and Bob Hall, the Palmer floor show, and a dozen other acts.

The group meetings will be continued through Friday.

subject to change in advance of the piration of the basic agreement if y fail to work out to the satisfacn of both sides. Only the method drafting the instructions for the gotiator are incorporated in the sic agreement.

Indications are that the instructions the negotiator will provide that a n company financing a play be given first chance to acquire the film hts to that play before it is placed the open market. In addition, safeards for the author of a play anced by a film company are excted to be included in order to prent the forcing down of bids for film hts by limitation of outside interest plays so financed. This would probly involve alloting the author five ys or a week in which to obtain a tter offer for film rights to his play an that made by the film company nich financed its stage production.

These provisions will not have to be submitted to the membership of the Dramatists' Guild or the producing managers' organization, so that their definition is not expected to delay final approval of the five-year basic agreement by the guild. The agreement has already been approved by the council of the guild and the membership of the League of N. Y. Theatres, the managers' organization. The guild membership is expected to give final approvement at a meeting to be held about May 25.

Grand Nat'l Shares To Alperson Group

stock dividend one share of Grand National will be issued for each five shares of Pathe stock, payable to holders of record May 22. Dividend certificates are expected to be available about June 5.

The letter to Pathe stockholders relates that the company's board felt "that it did not have adequate management for the operation of the business of First Division Exchanges, Inc., and it could not acquire new management familiar with the distribution of motion pictures which was willing to take over the operation of First Division and furnish adequate additional capital."

"Therefore," the statement continues, "the Pathe board determined to liquidate First Division and organize Grand National Films as an independent production and distribution company for the purpose of providing an outlet for the laboratory business of Pathe and incidentally for the purpose of distributing the films now under contract for distribution by First Division."

The letter points out that First Division had become involved in financial difficulties and in order to protect advances made to it by Pathe the latter company, through the formation of First International Pictures and the making of further advances, had acquired control of First Division.

"The orderly and economical liquidation of First Division," the letter states, "has been made possible by the arrangement under which Grand National will take over the distribution of the films now under contract by First Division. It is expected that Grand National will furnish a substantial amount of business to the Pathe film laboratory and that the relations between the two companies will be mutually profitable."

N. C. Frowns on Bank Night

CHARLOTTE, May 13.—Attorney General A. A. F. Seeawell of North Carolina, has repeated his opinion that the plan of Cash Night and Bank Night submitted to him by an Aberdeen theatre manager is in violation of the state lottery laws, although such nights operated along other plans might not bring the same opinion.

Seeawell said he had no authority to enforce the criminal laws and "it would be far better for you to consult the solicitor of your judicial district and explain your scheme to him."

Bronx Hearing Postponed

Hearing on the Bank Night case against the Bronx Opera House, scheduled yesterday in Special Sessions, Bronx, was postponed until May 20.

Edward Goldstein, local agent for the game, has sent out a warning to all exhibitor accounts against a group of alleged racketeers who are said to switch tickets in the theatres playing Bank Night in an attempt to defraud lucky winners. Goldstein stated yesterday that one man was caught at the Alba, Brooklyn, and after spending six days in jail was sentenced by Judge Ruddick in the Bridge Plaza Court to 30 days.

Goldstein asserted the man was offered immunity if he would reveal his associates, but he refused to confess.

a few theatre fires during idle periods, but not in any sense due to carelessness or to film projection.

"We have had complete cooperation from the industry and it has adopted every recommendation we have made. In the studios they have gone beyond anything ever believed possible. In filming pictures everything about the studios—scenery and even the women's costumes—are soaked in fire-resistant fluids, with the result we have not had a conflagration or loss of life there.

"The record of fire loss in the industry has been low for several years and is steadily dropping."

Trans-Lux '35 Net Reaches $182,272

Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen Corp. and subsidiaries had a net profit of $182,272.65, after all charges, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1935, the stockholders were told at their annual meeting yesterday. The 1934 net was $180,637.

Net for the theatres was $30,879.35 after all charges. This compares with a loss of $51,159 for 1934. Cash dividends paid totaled $142,160.60, leaving a consolidated earned surplus at the end of the year of $426,064.01. Total assets of the company were listed as $1,167,984.61.

In his report Percy N. Furber, president, said an improvement in business last year had been maintained during the first quarter of this year, and that the net for the first three months of 1936 was $72,386, as compared with $35,072 for the same period last year.

Trans-Lux Movies Corp., wholly-owned subsidiary, for the first three months of this year showed a net of $14,697, as compared with a loss of $13,248 for the corresponding period in 1935.

Furber called attention to the purchase of a Washington theatre site and said the company hoped to open at least three new theatres this year. He predicted that in time the theatre division would show a larger profit than the company's ticker unit.

All officers were reelected as follows: President, Furber; executive vice-president, Furber; vice-president and treasurer, Arthur C. Payne; vice-president, Robert L. Daine; secretary and assistant treasurer, Edward T. Holway; assistant secretary, A. T. Mulcahy; comptroller, A. D. Erickson; directors, Robert W. Atkins, Daine, George H. Eichelberger, Harold P. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Case of the Velvet Claws"

(Warners)

Hollywood, May 13.—This latest in the Perry Mason series is weaker in story than its predecessors, relying on comedy to sustain the interest. Warren William, as a detective, is literally dragged from home on his wedding night with Claire Dodd to work on a blackmail case involving Winifred Shaw, Kenneth Harlan, Joseph King and Addison Richards.

When King is murdered, Shaw and William try to pin the guilt on each other and after a maze of false clews has been introduced William finally discovers Gordon Elliott is the culprit.

The comedy mainly concerns unsuccessful attempts by William to rejoin his bride. A sneezing epidemic is inserted for laughs.

Eddie Acuff, as William's assistant, and Olin Howland, as the coroner, give the best performances in support. The screen play is by Tom Reed, from Erle Stanley Gardner's story. William Clemens directed under the supervision of Bryan Foy.

The selling campaign may best be concentrated on the names in the cast.

Stereoscopic Films Shown to the SMPE

Stereoscopic pictures in both black and white and color were demonstrated last night before the final spring meeting of the S. M. P. E. at the Hotel Pennsylvania. In connection with the demonstration George Wheelwright of the Land-Wheelwright Laboratories, Boston, one of the inventors, read a paper explaining the principle of the invention.

Spectators are required to use glasses. The difference between these and previous efforts along this line is that they are not red and green glasses, but are colorless. The polarization of the light so that the vibrations are horizontal on one eye and vertical on the other give the effect of depth.

In making the films two cameras are used, Wheelwright explained, and the films are projected one over the other. The fact that the spectators' glasses are without color makes it possible to project third-dimension color films for the first time, Wheelwright said. He predicted that a simplified apparatus for making the films would be available soon.

The Polaroid, as the glass is called, is made by laminating sheets of transparent material between panes of glass. In these sheets the crystals "comb out" the light vibrations so that they all go in one direction.

Irwin in Suit Over "Ghost Goes West"

Wallace Irwin, author and playwright, has filed suit in Federal district court to enjoin further showings of "The Ghost Goes West," and seeking an accounting and restitution, alleging plagiarism of his story, "The Transplanted Ghost," which he claims was written and copyrighted prior to 1910.

Defendants are London Film Prod. Ltd., which made the film; United Artists, distributor, and Robert E. Sherwood, author of the film story. Irwin contends his story was published in Everybody's Magazine and later was included in a volume, "Humorous Ghost Stories."

Bronx Stay Sought On Cocalis Theatre

Injunction proceedings have been instituted in the Bronx Supreme Court by John Bolte and Matty Kutinsky seeking to prevent Sam Cocalis from operating the Melba, Bronx, in an alleged violation of partnership agreements. Milton Hart is representing Bolte and Morris Wolff is attorney for Kutinsky.

According to the partnership pact with Kutinsky, Cocalis is supposed to have made Kutinsky a partner in the Melba, or any theatre in the vicinity of Kutinsky's houses. Cocalis is said to have refused to include him in the Melba situation. The Bolte agreement is said to provide that Cocalis cannot take a theatre a mile from the Wakefield, Laconia and Burke.

Cocalis yesterday stated: "Anyone can sue. They haven't a leg to stand on. The Melba is out of the mile zone."

Yeager Takes Over Nine More Theatres

Denver, May 13.—Nine theatres have been added to the string of C. U. Yeager, Bank Night owner, as a result of a partnership with Charles Klein of Deadwood, S. D. The Klein theatres are operated by the Deadwood Amusement Co. Yeager already operates seven Colorado houses, is in partnership in two Denver houses, and so now has interests in 18 in this territory, Fox Intermountain being the only group with a larger number.

Klein's theatres include seven in South Dakota: the Majestic at Sturgis; Belle at Belle Fourche; Deadwood and Isis at Deadwood; Elk and Rex, Rapid City; the Hot Springs at Hot Springs, and two Nebraska houses, the Pace at Gordon and the Pace at Chadron.

The three episodes in the new iss of the "March of Time," No. 5 1936, combine the significant in wo and U. Paramount Drops Its A, B Classification

Hollywood, May 14—Paramount will immediately drop the policy of classifying its product as A or B, William LeBaron stated today. The studio, he said, needs a more elastic policy to avoid the difficulties which result when so-called B pictures prove to be superior to some A product.

LeBaron added, however, that production costs will continue to be based upon the merits of the story, director and cast but that the personnel will not suffer what he feels to be a preliminary letdown by having its picture put in the B classification as in the past.

Studio officials are of the opinion that the distribution department may continue to label the product but that

Lasky Discusses Success; Ampa Gathering Enthralled

By J. M. JERAULD

Some of the emotions, the hopes and ambitions, the triumphs and disappointments, the pursuit of rainbow ends that make this business what it is were revealed yesterday to an enthralled audience of Ampa members and guests. Jesse L. Lasky drew aside the curtain from a lifetime of impulses while discussing "The Real Meaning of Success."

If he had continued all afternoon, probably nobody would have noticed the passage of time as a man who can retain a boyish charm and enthusiasm for a fresh start after making and losing millions displayed the courage to stand and to sketch in public a word picture of his ups and downs.

When Sousa's band went to San Jose, Cal., in the days before films were known, Lasky had already learned to play a cornet and wanted above everything to join the band—not as a mere cornetist, but as a soloist.

His home was on the main street opposite the theatre where the concert was given. He knew Sousa and Arthur Pryor and all the other famous figures in that historic group

Battle Looms Among Circuit Independents

Cocalis and Stein in New Partnership

With the formation of the new Cocalis-Stein partnership for the purpose of acquiring and building a number of new theatres, a battle looms among local independent theatre men, it was indicated yesterday.

Turning down offers to join two major circuits to continue independently, Sam D. Cocalis has lined up with Dr. Emil Stein and his son, Monroe, a lawyer, in organizing the Cocalis-Stein circuit. The aim of the new combination is to build or acquire theatres of the de luxe type, Cocalis said yesterday. The first move will be the construction of a 1,170-seat house at Ogden Ave. and 166th St. in the Bronx. Two other houses will be built before Jan. 1, Cocalis stated. One of them, it is understood, will be erected in Greenwich Village. It is expected that the first structure will be ready for opening around the middle of October.

One of the two offers Cocalis is said to have rejected was to turn three of his Bronx theatres over to Loew's for operation. In addition, the independent was to join the circuit as supervisor of 11 "C" houses. The deal, it is understood, did not involve Cocalis' 18 other theatres in New Jersey and New York.

Spyros Skouras is reported to have made the second offer. This arrange-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE excitement launched itself early and with a bang yesterday. There was Jimmy Grainger on the telephone a few minutes after nine, which continues to be a most unseemly hour, insisting The Daily's story reporting Universal had promised to eliminate score charges was contrary to the facts. The telephones were busy for a time thereafter, talking to Ed Kuykendall to Grainger to Kuykendall and again to Grainger. Out of it developed a couple of statements which, of course, get their full say. . . .

Here is Grainger's:

> In your issue of Thursday, May 14, an article appears stating, "U promises score charge elimination" and further states that Universal has agreed to eliminate score charges from its new season's contracts.
> For your information, a committee from the M.P.T.O.A., headed by Ed Kuykendall, president, called on me on Wednesday, May 13.
> As Universal during the past three years has not collected any score charges in the sale of its product to theatres throughout the country, there is nothing for me to discuss so far as Universal is concerned and I refused to discuss this subject in any way whatsoever, although L. C. Griffith, one of the committee, asked my opinion on score charges.
> Ed Kuykendall agreed that I should not be called upon to express my opinion on this subject.
> Will you therefore please correct the statement appearing in your issue of May 14, and give the correction as much prominence as you gave the article mentioned.

And this is Kuykendall's:

> When we came to the part of our 10 point program concerning the score charge Mr. Grainger stated Universal had no score charge, therefore he would make no statement as to this. The M.P.T.O.A. committee, naturally, assumed that, as there had been no score charge in the past, there would not be any in the coming year. In trying to discuss the merits of the score charge Mr. Grainger declined to enter into this discussion stating that, inasmuch as Universal was not involved, not having a score charge, that he did not care to enter into a discussion as to the merits of it.
> I make this statement in justice to Mr. Grainger and in justice to the committee.

That clarifies matters and, important to our reportorial integrity, makes yesterday's story hold up. . . .

Rowland V. Lee, interviewed by Eileen Creelman in The Sun, speaks of his experiences, current and past. He also thinks what follows:

> International, it's got to be international. You can't ignore that international market now; it's 41 per cent of your total.
> That should be remembered all the time. If I hear a story that Hollywood will like, or New York will like, I forget it. The kind I want is the kind that can be simplified down to a parable, that can be understood in a sort of international language.
> Sometimes there are dialect plays or localized pictures that make New York say "marvelous," and Chicago say "great" and Hollywood say "swell." That's no good for me. They've got to be understood everywhere. It's fun to make pictures for your friends, but it's awfully expensive.

Lee is one Hollywood director, at least, who displays knowledge of his market. We have always had a genuine respect for his approach to his job. For years and with an occasional defection, Lee saw to it that he took on only enough jobs on the coast to permit time out for a jaunt across the ocean every year. Whereas, many producers and directors in Hollywood have only vague suspicions that a lot of country spreads out from the other side of the San Bernardino Mountains, Lee has been aware not only of that, but of the fact films sell internationally and that a broad viewpoint might be a pretty good thing for a director making entertainment for a whole, wide world to have. Our hope, more forlorn than otherwise, is that more like Lee were around. . . .

The extent to which abuse of passes may reach is almost without limit. A sales manager, however, comes along now with a topper. It concerns a theatre operated by three partners. One was a brewer and handed out the Oakleys to promote the sale of his lager. Another was an alderman; he kept his political fences constantly mended. The third had connections at the city hall and saw to it everything was serene in that direction. The sales manager was playing the house on percentage. Therefore, his burnup. . . .

Unfair to presidents observation: The other Sunday Leo Spitz went to his office in the RKO Building for a bit of Sabbath stint. Nobody recognized him. Nobody would let him in. The janitor came along finally to save the day. If that had happened in Hollywood, the janitor, by this time, would have been a supervisor. You know, reward for recognizing talent. . . .

Metro Convention Brought to Close

A sensational performance by "The Country Doctor" star!
Don Ameche's screen debut stamps him as the season's find!

20th CENTURY FOX

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

THE Hollywood REPORTER

"Here is a magnificent performance that will literally tear your heart. It is a picture that once seen will never be forgotten. RECORDS SHOW THAT HEART DRAMAS OF A SIMILAR NATURE HAVE SCORED TREMENDOUS SUCCESSES, to name but a few—'HUMORESQUE,' 'SORRELL AND SON,' 'STELLA DALLAS.' 'SINS OF MAN' is every bit as good as any of these names! Performance of Jean Hersholt is unquestionably the triumph of his career. Don Ameche makes a really auspicious screen debut."

"Under Flags" Only Grosser In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, May 14.—Early May heat knocked the bottom out of business here last week, and only the Penn, with "Under Two Flags," was able to show anything approximating a profit. It did around $16,000, ordinarily enough to win the picture a second downtown week at the Warner, but not in the face of stifling weather.

Elsewhere, all was deep gloom. At the Stanley, "The Moon's Our Home" and a stage show headed by Little Jack Little dropped that house to its lowest take in some time, about $14,000, while at the Alvin, "Rhodes" couldn't even last out the full week and was yanked after six days to an unusually weak $3,750. The Warner had a struggle collecting $3,800 with "The Walking Dead" and "The Farmer in the Dell" and the Casino sank to a pitiful $1,150 with "Frankie and Johnnie."

"The Great Ziegfeld," in the second week of its roadshow engagement at the Nixon, was also affected by the heat, dropping off several thousand to around $8,500.

Total first run grosses were $38,700. Average is $43,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending May 7:

"RHODES" (G. B.)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $3,750. (Average, for 7 days, $5,500)
"FRANKIE AND JOHNNIE" (Republic)
CASINO—(1,800), 20c-25c, 7 days. Gross: $1,150. (Average, $2,000)
"THE GREAT ZIEGFELD" (MGM)
NIXON—(2,100), 55c-$1.65, 14 performances, 2nd week. Gross: $8,500
"UNDER TWO FLAGS" (20th-Fox)
PENN—3,300), 25c-40c, 6 days. Gross: $16,000. (Average, $12,000)
"THE MOON'S OUR HOME" (Para.)
STANLEY — (3,600), 25c-55c, 7 days. Stage: Little Jack Little and his band, Three Wiere Brothers, Lyda Sue. Gross: $14,000. (Average, $18,500)
"THE WALKING DEAD" (W. B.)
"FARMER IN THE DELL" (Radio)
WARNER—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $3,800. Average, $5,000)

Paramount Drops Its A, B Classification

the practice of carrying the classification all the way back to the inception of production is unnecessarily harmful. It is their desire that each picture will establish its own level at the box office and not by preconceived limitations. To this end, the efforts expended on pictures of less importance will be just as intensive as the attention given to the bigger films.

"SONS O'GUNS" IS MUSICAL COMEDY KNOCKOUT RICH FOR B. O. HILARIOUS SITUATIONS, SWELL CAST.

Joe E. Brown's comedy riot is a knockout for laughs. The Jerry Wald and Julius J. Epstein screenplay from the Fred Thompson and Jack Donahue play is loaded with hilarious situations, a wealth of gags, and dialogue that is brisk and clever. Directed by Lloyd Bacon, everything possible is obtained from the laugh situations and the piece moves rapidly. The material allows Brown to run the gamut of his many abilities, among them being singing, dancing and control of a funny English and "Dutch" dialect, all being outstandingly funny. He has been surrounded with an especially competent cast, in which Joan Blondell and Eric Blore stand out. Joan sings and dances, besides furnishing the main romantic interest in a very appealing French manner. Blore, in a style that only Blore can handle, furnishes a wad of laughs. Harry Warren and Al Dubin's music is very catchy and fits the story well.

"Petticoat Fever" did well at the Roosevelt by getting $12,600, over the line by $1,600. "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" held up to $5,900 in its second week at the Apollo, but elsewhere there was nothing to get excited about, due to the heat.

Exhibitors are expected to lift the price range all along the line following the lead set by Lannan. He said he had set "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" for a five-day run at a 40-cent top for evening, and 25 cents for matinees with children 10 cents. With the apparent return of more prosperous times and with promising crops, exhibitors have wanted to raise admissions, but none has had the courage heretofore to take the chance.

Radio to Do "Zeppelin"

HOLLYWOOD, May 14. — Radio will rush production of a story to be called "Zeppelin" to take advantage of the current publicity on the Hindenburg. The story will be based on an incident of the crossing of the Graf-Zeppelin in 1928, when Dr. Hugo Eckener ordered motors started, though it meant the possible killing of his son. John Beal will play the son, and the studio is trying to borrow Lionel Barrymore for the role of Dr. Eckener. No writer has been assigned to develop the idea as yet.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The King Steps Out"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—Presenting Grace Moore in a story constructed in the best comic opera tradition, this picture offers opportunities which its star utilizes fully, giving a performance of great charm. Josef Von Sternberg has turned out a picture in a delicate mood, making for entertainment of wide mass, as well as class, appeal.

The story concerns court intrigue in the neighboring monarchies of Austria and Bavaria. Franchot Tone, the Austrian monarch, is betrothed to Frieda Inescourt, his cousin and Miss Moore's sister. The match has been arranged by Elisabeth Risdon and Nana Bryant, their respective mothers, and is opposed by Walter Connolly, Miss Moore's father, as well as by the principals, who have never met. To prevent the consummation of the marriage, Miss Moore and Connolly travel to the Austrian summer palace. Here Miss Moore wins Tone in the guise of a dressmaker, making him desert the court for a night of revelry as a commoner. The situations are cleared when Miss Moore is jailed for exploit and Connolly dons his state uniform to tell of the scheming mothers, one his sister-in-law and the other his wife.

The situations are expanded to permit Miss Moore opportunities to sing and permit the comedian, Herman Bing, a chance for his explosive comedy resulting from an inability to recognize royalty in its various disguises. The musical numbers are well spotted and enter the plot pleasingly although the tunes by Fritz Kreisler do not seem destined for smash popularity.

Sydney Buchman wrote the screen play from a story by Gustav Holm, Ernst Decsey Hubert and Ernst Marischka. The photography is of unusual beauty, several closeups standing out as gems of composition with the camera work credited to Lucien Ballard. Dorothy Fields' lyrics are acceptable and credit for the showmanlike production is due William Perlberg, the associate producer.

"Bullets or Ballots"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—Something new in suspense-laden, melodramatic, racketeer-gangster-cop entertainment is unfolded here. Different, vivid and punchy, it holds much to engage attention while providing numerous fresh angles in personnel, story and production values for commercial exploitation. Based on a meaty, topical story by Martin Mooney, contemporary reporter of the racket nemesis and Seton I. Miller, with the screen play by Miller, the show is narrated with vigorous, convincing realism.

In it the work of Edward G. Robinson is a fine job and that of Barton MacLane, Humphrey Bogart, Joseph King, George E. Stone and Joseph Crehan is fully worthy of the standard set by the star. So directed by William Keighley that the basic melodrama is continually stressed, the meager comedy and romantic contrasts are interpolated with skillful dexterity.

Swapping his gangster role for that of a tough cop, Robinson is the feared foe of all mugs. A plethora of modern rackets wreaks havoc with the city and leads to the assassination of a crusading editor, Henry O'Neill. Staging a public brawl with Commissioner King, Robinson is accepted wholeheartedly by MacLane and suspiciously by Bogart as a law-and-order enemy. With his objective the nabbing of the high toned brains and money behind the rackets, he first breaks up a bunch of minor grafts and creates a tense situation between himself, MacLane and Bogart.

The wrecking of Bogart's pet produce racket leads to his killing of MacLane. Gradually drawing the web tighter, Robinson and Bogart vie for leadership with the former winning. About to nab the higher-ups, the cop and gangster meet in a gun battle, and, as Bogart is killed, Robinson is mortally wounded. With his life ebbing fast, he leads King and the police to the headquarters of Henry Kolker, who controls the rackets.

Through all the melodrama there is a slight romantic thread involving Robinson and Joan Blondell which gives the latter a small, but effective, opportunity to demonstrate her dramatic abilities.

Worthy of a spot on any program, the picture is gripping audience entertainment that places in the hands of exhibitors countless formula and novel exploitation leads with which to sell it to far above average business.

Short Subjects

"The Clutching Hand"

(Stage & Screen Prod.)

A suitable thriller for children's trade, this serial has what it takes to put it over with them. Arthur B. Reeve's story has been transferred to celluloid adequately and Jack Mulhall in the Craig Kennedy role will be welcomed.

The story centers around a formula for synthetic gold discovered by Robert Frazer, a scientist, and the possession of which is desired by a variety of unscrupulous characters. When Frazer is kidnapped, Mulhall takes the case, assisted by William Farnum, a Federal man. They pick up the trail of their old arch enemy, "The Clutching Hand," soon become enmeshed in many exciting events around which pseudo-scientific apparatus is introduced, and carry on with much exciting chase, fighting, shooting, escapes and the other requisites of this type of film. The action is played against picturesque and convincing backgrounds. The sets are well done.

The cast includes Mae Busch, Marion Schilling, Yakima Canutt, Bryant Washburn, Rex Lease, Gaston Glass, Bull Montana, Ruth Mix and a host of others who acquit themselves well. Albert Herman directed. The screen play is by Leon Dusseau and Dallas Fitzgerald.

Production Code Seals, Nos. 2,066-7, first two chapters. Running time, 35 and 25 mins. respectively. "G."

"Let It Be Me"

(Vitaphone)

Emilie Chicken runs off to the city with "Bingo," a crooner, and is thrown aside by him when he becomes infatuated with a French singer at a night club. Her true love still cares and, hearing the crooner on the radio goes to the studio, beats up the idol and goes in search of Emilie. He finds her on a snow-swept corner selling violets and takes her back. Later they raise a brood of chicks and one takes after Emilie's former love for which he gets a book thrown at him. It is fairly good cartoon stuff. Production Code Seal, No. 2,048. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Irons in the Fire"

(Vitaphone)

In this number of the "Our Own United States" series there is a collection of obscure and not so obscure occupations which thrive quite profitably. In the 11 minutes the manufacture of wooden shoes, wooden stirrups, decoy ducks, raising mushrooms and goldfish breeding are shown in succession and provide an educational "inside" on the little known. Production Code Seal, No. 0891. "G."

"Westward Whoa"

(Vitaphone)

The "Looney Tunes" characters are in this cartoon, a covered wagon satire, which will be found excellent entertainment. With clever invention the "Cry Wolf" gag is worked by the "Twins" as they scare the outfit by impersonating Indian war cries. The expected happens and a grand battle with much comic relief takes place. Production Code Seal, No. 2,122. Running time 7 mins. "G."

In the course of time he reached n Francisco again and organized first musical act with his sister. e reached Tony Pastor's in New rk in the days when only the sec- d rate acts played three times a day. ne night Pastor told him he could y there three or four times a year twice a day. Success at last!

More success when he became a udeville producer; a new height of hievement when he opened his first ght club; a new depth of disappoint- nt when it closed two weeks later. e was broke with a wife and young n to support.

He saw a sign Mission Coffee, an a for an operetta. William de ille's mother wouldn't see him. illiam was busy, too. They ushered n into Cecil B. DeMille's office.

"I had never heard of him and ln't want to see him," Lasky con- led.

DeMille was enthusiastic. They ganized their units and began to go aces—the highroad to fame at last! Lasky began to hear of motion pic- res. He confided to Pat Casey that wanted to produce. Casey was the astmaster yesterday. He looked up d grinned.

"Casey told me not to put a nickel it," Lasky said, "unless I had a leasing arrangement for my pic- res. He told me to go upstairs in e Putnam Bldg. and see Adolph ukor. Forty-eight hours later we d made a deal.

"I kept on producing vaudeville acts, ough; I wanted to be sure of myself. still think my greatest ambition is to oduce a stage play. At that time wanted above everything else to buy ess Than the Dust' from Charles rohman. I couldn't get beyond Al ayman. He was tough."

"Was he!" interjected Casey with s well known Irish emphasis. "The ughest of 'em all."

Lasky continued: "One day Zukor came to me and told me that he had bought the Frohman company." He waited for the laughs to die down.

"Zukor insisted that as vice-president in charge of production I had to take over the Frohman management. We were making 52 Paramount pictures a year, 48 Realart, and 32 Artcraft. I was busy. Hayman called me up. He had a number of problems to be decided.

"There I was — Hayman on one side of the desk, myself on the other. I thought it was success.

"I watched my few thousands grow to a million, to two million, three, six. Then came 1929. I was loyal to Paramount; I didn't sell. The powers that be decided that perhaps I wasn't a good executive after all. Somebody had to be the goat, I suppose. I was on the verge of bankruptcy without a job.

"Within 48 hours Sidney Kent had offered me a place with Fox. That was a high spot in my life.

"In my new connection with Mary Pickford I am happy again. Ten days ago when we opened 'One Rainy Afternoon' in Hollywood it seemed to me a new success had come.

"Today I have a new understanding of success. Surrounded here by old friends—many pioneers in this industry, some of you newcomers of a new generation, I have a new thrill, a new feeling of achievement. Success, it seems to me, lies in making and keeping friends."

Lasky sat down and wiped his glasses. The applause jarred the ornate decorations of the old east ballroom walls of the Astor.

On either side of him were men who had lived through most of the story—Casey, Morris Gest, Charles C. Pettijohn, John C. Flinn, Herbert J. Yates, J. J. Murdock, Arthur Friend, Nathan Burkan, Terry Ramsaye, Martin Quigley, Dennis F. O'Brien. Others whose rise came later were also there —Walt Disney, Rowland Lee, Louis Nizer, Ed Kuykendall, Sol Rosenblatt, Arthur Kelly, Carl Milliken, Harry Buckley, Jack Alicoate.

Lasky's talk was preceded by short laudatory addresses by Pettijohn, Quigley and Rosenblatt. But it was Lasky's day and story.

India, Japan Native Films More Popular

Although American films are still the most popular in the Far East, native product in some instances is offering increasingly strong competition to pictures from the United States, yesterday declared J. B. Albeck, Columbia's sales representative in the Far East. Here for new product conferences with J. H. Seidelman, foreign manager, Albeck plans to remain until May 23. He will stop off for a few days in Hollywood on his return.

Especially in India and Japan the native films are gaining in popularity with audiences, Albeck said. Japanese producers turned out 150 features last season and will make more than that total next season, he pointed out. They have entirely discontinued production of silent films. In India, English product and native Indian films offer serious competition to the films from this country. There has been considerable building in Japan during the past year, he said, and a good season is in prospect for next year, as is true of India. But business in general is weak in China, Albeck indicated, by reason of widespread unsettled conditions.

Parent-Teachers End Censorship Support

MILWAUKEE, May 14.—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers has voted to rescind its 1935 indorsement of a Federal censorship board and limit its legislative campaign to support of the Neely-Pettengill bill.

Many members argued that a Federal censorship board might too easily be controlled by political interests and that local influence over exhibitors will accomplish the desired end.

ment did not carry with it a change in management of Cocalis' houses. Skouras is said to have wanted his fellow countryman to sit in on film buys, both in New York and on the coast.

Cocalis is believed to have vetoed the first bid because he did not want to part with any of his theatres. The second offer was dropped, it is said, because Cocalis wanted to devote all his time to his own interests and could not make trips west.

With excavation now under way on the first project, the theatre, when completed, will be in opposition to the Ogden, one of the Consolidated Amusement Enterprises. While no definite information is available on the other two sites, it is believed that when they are announced one of the larger independent circuits will find new competition.

Several months ago Harry Brandt, Jack W. Springer and Consolidated issued a joint statement warning Cocalis not to invade their territories. The first theatre is said to be in violation of an agreement with Consolidated. At this circuit's headquarters it was stated that there will be no watching from the sidelines as Cocalis continues his theatre campaign.

Opposition of Long Standing

Brandt and Cocalis have been engaged in a nip and tuck contest in acquiring new units in each other's territories for several months. Springer, who has a joint interest in 22 houses with Cocalis in the Springer & Cocalis circuit, has a few deals on which are expected to enter the Cocalis domain.

John Bolte and Matty Kutinsky, partners in a number of Bronx theatres with the S. & C. group, are claiming a violation of an agreement by Cocalis in connection with the latter's purchase of the Melba. Mr. Bolte claims that Cocalis made a deal not to take a house within the mile zone of the Wakefield, Burke and Laconia. Kutinsky alleges that he had an agreement providing for an interest in any theatre Spring & Cocalis added in the mile area of his houses. Cocalis denies that the Melba is in the mile zone and states both he and Springer checked the radius before closing the contract.

Dr. Stein several years ago was in partnership with Si Fabian in a number of New Jersey theatres. He has put $250,000 into the new circuit in which his son will be active in the management and as legal adviser.

Cocalis yesterday asserted he never will rejoin Springer in partnership.

Meanwhile, independents are assuming a watchful waiting attitude. It is reported that Brandt and Consolidated and possibly Springer may form a buying pool to offset Cocalis' threatened power.

Randforce, which has been experiencing a little excitement with Cocalis, isn't committing itself, but Sam Rinzler and Louis Frisch hold that when the time comes they will act "to protect" their interests.

"Secret Agent"

(G.B.)

London, May 6.—Based on the W. Somerset Maugham novel, "Ashenden," this story of espionage during the World War combines mystery, romance and action in what is for the most part an intriguing film.

For the exhibitor in the United States there are three leading cast names which to a certain extent should simplify the job of selling, which is further aided by the fact that Maugham was the author of the original novel, and the pull which lies in the nature of the story. The three players are Peter Lorre, Madeleine Carroll and Robert Young.

The work of Lorre as the extremely eccentric, strange-looking operative who will do any job of murder, in the interests of the country for which he is working at the moment, is the high spot. Young is competent, as the mysterious personage who turns out to be the key to the situation, and Miss Carroll is at least satisfactory.

An English author in 1916 is publicly reported killed in action and under an assumed name is sent to Switzerland to track and dispose of a German agent. The success of the mission is vital to the future of England's campaign in the East. Lorre accompanies the author. There the latter finds Miss Carroll, who poses as his wife to quiet suspicion, and is revealed as an English girl seeking a thrill, rather than being an accomplished spy. She meets and is taken with Young, apparently an American traveler. When Lorre and the author cause the death of what turns out to be the wrong man, Miss Carroll insists the author resign. At that moment Lorre finds a new clue, which leads to Young. They pursue him, Miss Carroll having gone with him in anger at the Englishman. The matter is finished for them when the train is bombed and wrecked, Young dying at Lorre's hand, and Miss Carroll and her "husband" making the fiction of their marriage real. Alfred Hitchcock directed from the screen play by Charles Bennett.

Running time, 85 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Three of a Kind"

(Invincible)

A number of laughs and several good performances make this independent picture entertaining fare, which should serve excellently on dual bills and perhaps be able to stand alone in the smaller situations. A yarn of a headstrong daughter of wealth, a young man who has his own ideas of how to get "into the money," and three amusing crooks, this is an entertaining series of complications, mistaken identities and romance.

The best performance, in one of the gentle "con man" roles he does so well is that of Berton Churchill. The cast is headed by Evalyn Knapp and Chick Chandler, with Bradley Page in a chief supporting role.

Arthur T. Homan's story and screenplay has Miss Knapp, daughter of a wealthy laundry owner, in love with and seeking her father's consent to help Page, crook, after what he can get. Chandler, driver for the laundry, quits his job when he is awarded $1,000 for his work and goes off to the big hotel and a bigger bluff. There, waiting for suckers, are Churchill and his daughter. An amusing situation develops as Page, Chandler and Churchill, each bluffing and taking the others for suckers, tries to work what he thinks is a good thing.

Complications further develop when Miss Knapp's father arrives, mistakes the identities of Page and Chandler, and hires Page to take Miss Knapp from Chandler, thinking the latter is the man after her money. When an inquisitive detective recognizes Churchill and Page, the situation is straightened out, with Chandler the winner all the way. Phil Rosen directed.

Atlantic City, May 14.—The new 2,000-foot reel will be recognized on the same basis as the 1,000-foot reel under a report to the National Fire Protection Ass'n. at its annual meeting here.

The committee on hazardous chemicals and explosives made this recommendation, "subject only to the standard limitations as to total weight of nitrocellulose film permissible in certain situations. Otherwise the double length does not increase the fire hazard."

The report, by A. H. Nuckolls, chemical engineer of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Chicago, also recommends revising the regulations on photographic and X-ray nitrocellulose films and on the storage, handling and use of pyroxylin plastic in factories.

Demand for SMPE Reels

Standard test reels developed by the S.M.P.E. for the purpose of improving the quality of sound projection are in demand, the engineers say. The reels are run off for the purpose of providing an exact precision checkup on quality of the sound.

Sylvan Harris, editor-manager of the society, says two of the reels, one for sound and the other for visual tests, are being distributed in 21 countries. In this country 167 prints are in circulation for sound and 52 for the visual test.

Booking Bill Move Delayed By Wrangling

Sub-Committee Members Unable to Agree

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Sidetracking of block booking legislation for the session is indicated by wrangling among members of the Pettengill subcommittee. They appear to have made no progress in preparing a bill to report to the whole Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The group will meet again next week. Asked as to progress, Chairman Pettengill said merely that while there was a great deal of opposition to the measure there also was a great deal of support for it.

The Indiana congressman this week joined the ranks of authors with publication of his book, "Hot Oil," a review of Congressional investigations of the oil industry in which he participated, and the attempt at Federal control.

Opposition to Government control of industry is indicated in a discussion of the struggle between Federal control and states rights in which is posed the question: "Will bureaucracy in destroying liberty also destroy the efficiency in production and distribution of wealth which alone makes security possible?"

Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. Specific concessions from the distributor, however, await further discussion between Levy

Expect Skouras-Fox Suit Postponement

An injunction action brought by Skouras to restrain the RKO 81st Street from playing Twentieth Century-Fox product day and date with competing Skouras houses in the neighborhood will be adjourned to June 26 when it is reached on the N. Y. Supreme Court calendar on Monday.

Efforts to agree on an out of court adjustment of the suit will be made on the return here of John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox general sales manager, and of Sidney R. Kent, president, it was learned. Clark is in Hollywood and Kent in Europe.

The Skouras action alleges that the day and date playing of the RKO 81st Street is in violation of a franchise the Skouras houses hold for Fox Film product and if permitted would result in serious losses for the plaintiff's theatres.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Fatal Lady"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, May 15.—Music of an operatic flavor, mystery and occasional flashes of melodramatic action are combined in this picture in such fashion as to make it intriguing entertainment. The fact that these several elements are component parts of the story should open the way for selling which will appeal to varied types of audiences. An outstanding factor which should not be overlooked is the singing of Mary Ellis, revealing an unusually well trained and accomplished voice.

In supporting roles are Walter Pidgeon, Norman Foster, Allan Mowbray, John Halliday, and for a touch of incidental comedy, Edgar Kennedy and Ruth Donnelly. The story, and its complications, therefore, appear to offer the best selling attack. The story is set against a background which moves from New York to Brazil to Paris, and has been produced elaborately throughout. Emil Ludwig's direction for the most part has imparted to the film a swift pace which is only occasionally slowed, and helped by what might be termed a change of pace.

The interesting title conveys the story's basic theme. Miss Ellis, on the threshold of an operatic career in New York, is questioned by police in connection with the murder of a man she had once known. The shock causes her to fail at her debut. She goes to South America with Kennedy and Miss Donnelly, and Guy Bates Post, her concert master. Foster, who with his brother Pidgeon, owns a coffee plantation, is in love with her. From that moment in New York, murder and death dog her footsteps. Mowbray, wealthy Brazilian, is killed while she is with him. In Paris, Foster is murdered and Pidgeon, his brother, who has been trying to keep his brother from her, seeks to find the culprit. Suspected is Halliday, friend of Mowbray. Eventually, in an action-filled climactic sequence, the entirely unsuspected killer is revealed as Post, who sought to save Miss Ellis from marriage, so that she might continue her musical career. Her intense dislike of Pidgeon turns to love at the conclusion.

The screen play was the work of Sam Ornitz. Boris Morros prepared the excellent musical score.

Futter Again Sues Keene

Los Angeles, May 15. — Walter Futter, through his attorneys, Golden & Kaufman, has filed an action in Federal court to enjoin Tom Keene from accepting other employment, and asking $100,000 damages in the event that such injunctive relief is not granted. Though a similar action was dismissed several weeks ago for want of equity, a ruling on the damages petition has not yet been made. Keene's counter suit to have his contract with Futter terminated has been transferred from Superior to Federal court and will be argued at the same time.

Rothacker Holds Party

Douglas D. Rothacker entertained yesterday afternoon at a cocktail party celebrating his company's 26th year as a producer and distributor of industrial and educational pictures. The party served at the same time as a house warming for the firm's new and larger quarters on the fourth floor at 729 7th Ave.

Echoes from Leo's Lair

Chicago, May 15.—Bob Workman, in presenting the platinum diamond-studded cuff links to Eddie Saunders at the banquet which closed the M-G-M convention at the Palmer House here, made his presentation remarks by singing, "I Love You Truly." Workman once studied opera in Europe.

A parade of 50 colored Palmer House waiters around the banquet room prior to the serving of the dessert was a high point. Carved ice images of Leo, the lion and ice cream molds in the shape of a globe were the pieces de resistance.

Plenty of the lads spent the late hours in the Empire Room tripping the light fantastic.

Word was passed around that all meetings would be canceled yesterday afternoon so that all could attend the ballgame. The rib was that the announcement was made after the game had been cancelled on account of cold weather.

The dance performed by Howard Dietz, Joe Vogel and Si Seadler with the help of the Abbott dancers of the Palmer House was a classic.

Gus Van's comment that the orderly reception given all the acts pointed up the courtesy of the M-G-M personnel was graciously accepted and commented upon by Bill Rodgers. Van acted as master-of-ceremonies and did a swell job.

The Texas group in 12 gallon hats made a colorful entry. Their light summer suits were packed away yesterday when the thermometer took a dive from 88 to 47 degrees.

Frank Drew's presentation speech when the luggage was presented to Rodgers, was a high point of the final evening's entertainment.

C. B. Fogle said the convention was the best he ever attended. Said he was too busy to realize it until the sessions were over.

Most of the gang pulled out for home yesterday. The ones residing nearest Chicago were the last to leave.

Carl Mock and Jack ReVille of Memphis were glad to be in attendance but also felt they missed a great time in the home town as the annual "Cotton Carnival" was in session with Paul Whiteman, Allan Jones and a host of others providing the fun.

Al Lichtman told the banqueteers that with Sam Katz in the Metro "zoo" it would not be unlikely that the Balabans would be out there one of these days. He said Metro would enjoy having Balaban and Katz represented at the studio.

the trustees' actions but has never been subpoenaed. His appearance as a witness yesterday was as a result of an agreement approved by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe that the producer would not be served while here. His court appearance was a brief one and confined almost entirely to the identification of papers involved in the suits.

Indications at this time are that the trustees' suits cannot be brought to trial in N. Y. Supreme Court before the fall term. Lasky plans to return to Hollywood tomorrow.

from continuing an alleged conspiracy, the effect of which will damage holders of first mortgage 6½ per cent serial gold bonds of the Capital Theatre Co., Morrow charges. The request for an examination also states that the complainant asks for damages sustained by bondholders who hold bonds valued at $330,000.

Morrow explained that the suit is brought with the approval of a bondholders' protective committee.

Cost Problem Seen Television Hurdle

June 15 for the purpose of getting information for the development of a long range program of regulation.

Little chance for motion picture broadcasts on a commercial basis is seen at present. Commission men point out that a feature would cost at least $200,000 and that the cost of a wire hookup for a two-hour broadcast might be another $100,000, to say nothing of the expense to which the scanners would be put in buying receivers.

The commission expects early television to be confined to outdoor sports and similar events.

that when Harry Brandt, president, read in the trade papers that trade practice conferences were contemplated he contacted those involved and was referred to Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. head. The I. T. O. A. wanted to sit in on the conferences, the statement goes on to explain.

Kuykendall, the statement reads, informed Brandt that only M. P. T. O. A. men would be permitted to participate "and if the rest of the exhibitors did not like what the M. P. T. O. A. agreed upon, they did not have to accept the same."

"The I. T. O. A. wanted to sit in at these conferences for the purpose of helping independent exhibitors to get a square deal," the statement goes on, "but as we do not foresee such a fair deal forthcoming, we are therefore warning independent exhibitors to protest vigorously against any move to be made in these unfair trade practice conferences.

Indies' "Thunder Stolen"

"The I. T. O. A. does not believe that there is any exhibitor element throughout the entire industry that needs to be convinced and shown that Mr. Kuykendall and his crowd can never speak for and truly represent the independent unaffiliated exhibitors of the country, but in reality his group is and always has been supported by the affiliated group of exhibitors and producers as well as the Hays organization. The M. P. T. O. A. is attempting in a subtle but unconvincing fashion to steal the thunder and sincere purpose of independent exhibitors.

"This procedure of the M. P. T. O. A. in calling upon the distributor big-wigs of the majors is a hollow mockery. The best that can be achieved is to have distributors throw the exhibitors a bone in the form of small concessions on cancellations and other such relatively unimportant tidbits which are counted on to keep theatre owners quiet for another year.

"Their strategy is designed as a gesture to fool the Government and persuade Washington that the industry is going to clean house and that there is no need for outside regulation.

"They will fail in this attempt. Not one genuine independent and responsible exhibitor representative has been placed on the 'packed' committee or invited to the M. P. T. O. A. conferences.

"The Kuykendall committee represents no one but themselves and the distributors—their investigations are merely futile motions of investigating themselves."

Kuykendall Derisive

Asked if he had any reply to make to the statement issued by the I. T. O. A. yesterday, Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, and chairman of the exhibitor organization's trade practice committee, said: "What is there to reply to? Every charge against us in that statement has been made time and time again—and in better English—by envious, rival organizations. The answers are too well known to responsible, thinking exhibitors to bear repeating now."

Fox Midwest Denies ITO Charges in K.C.

KANSAS CITY, May 17.—Fox Midwest has filed an answer in the conspiracy suit of Emanuel Rolsky and other independents against it and major distributors in which it is charged the plaintiffs are all members of the I.T.O. and are attempting to restore the practice customary seven or eight years ago of basing clearances on admission price alone.

It is contended this would throttle competition between exhibitors in purchasing and exhibiting pictures. The plaintiffs, the reply asserts, have conspired to force distributors to deal with them in this way and have concertedly refused to buy on any other basis, except where in urgent need of films. It is contended this is in restraint of interstate commerce and also a restraint of intrastate trade.

The answer denies concerted action

New National Theatre Group Being Talked

Sponsors Hope to Have It Started by Autumn

Plans for a third national exhibitor organization are being revived again by a number of local independent theatre operators. Dormant for some time, the sponsors are bringing the subject to the fore with hopes of forming a nucleus of the proposed association by the fall.

Under the proposed setup, units will be formed in each state with delegates to a national board to conform to Congressional districts. The affiliated units will be limited only to independents.

Some months ago Charles L. O'Reilly suggested the plan, and although he received responses from a number of groups, he could not give the proposed organization sufficient time to see it through. While O'Reilly remains in the background, it is understood he is taking an active part in trying to get the move started. His candy vending business will not permit him time to become the guilding figure, it is said.

A prominent exhibitor in the local area with political affiliations is understood being primed for the presidency. He has been contacted and while he has not definitely committed himself, it is believed he will accept as soon as

Warners Plan Radio Child Talent Quest

Warners has inaugurated a plan in conjunction with Paul Whiteman and his Woodbury Soap radio program for a national radio quest of talented children, the most promising of whom will be given screen tests. The new plan was announced last night over WJZ.

Youngsters all over America will be invited to appear. Warners will make one test a week for the most talented child, the test to be under the supervision of Sam Sax at the Brooklyn Vitaphone studios. Coincidentally, Warners will produce a number of shorts with casts composed entirely of children.

The new plan does not neglect the parents, but provides for instructions to be given them concerning the best method of preparing children for a professional career.

Warners will have the exclusive rights to the use of any of the children whom they wish to cast in pictures.

Budd Rogers, general manager of Alliance, says he has six features for state right release. They are: "Hell's Cargo," "Radio Follies," "Jilted," "Give Her a Ring," "It's a Bet" and "Love at Second Sight."

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

WEEKEND brainstorm, some questions and no conclusions:

Louis B. Mayer and his very substantial interest in M-G-M, as you know, go beyond Leo. His son-in-law, Bill Goetz, is a ranking executive on the 20th Century-Fox lot and, according to that company's analysis of the holders of ten per cent and more of its stock on February 1, held 214,642⅝ shares of common, or 17.50 per cent. Considerable for a pleasant and young fellow like Billy to have amassed so early in his business life. And more than the 204,642⅝ shares, or 16.68 per cent, held by Joe Schenck and the 183,979½ shares, or 15 per cent, by Zanuck, whose assistant Goetz is.

Edwin C. Weisl is the personal attorney for Floyd B. Odlum who is head of Atlas, which with Lehman Brothers, is a big noise in Paramount and which holds, again with the Lehmans, fifty per cent of RKO and an option on the remaining half.

Certainly, there is no external connection or association of interests. Yet, why did Mayer and Weisl journey together to Washington in the last couple of days?

Mystery Visit

Washington, May 15.—Sol A. Rosenblatt, head of the amusement division of the late NRA, was a visitor to the White House today.

Rosenblatt was non-communicative, saying simply that his visit was "satisfactory" and that general matters were discussed with the President.

Down in the lower right corner of page one on Saturday, the above ran. What catches our eyes is Rosenblatt's one-word comment that his talk with the President was "satisfactory." As we interpret it and, let us say quickly and to the point that we have no idea what went on, the inference, nevertheless, becomes rather clear that specific and not the general matters Rosenblatt mentions further, were discussed.

It was Lewis J. Selznick in the days of National Picture Theatres who once tried to sell the industry that two plus two equalled six, or maybe it was eight. We're notoriously bad with mathematics and had a helluva time with trigonometry, while calculus simply drove us nuts. Maybe you can figure out what this is all about. . . .

The resignation of Percy Johnston of Chemical National from the Paramount directorate has been talked of and reported for months. Now, it is about to become a fact. The correspondence flowing back and forth between Johnston and Saul E. Rogers, however, is interesting. As a matter of fact, it is very interesting. Rogers' letter was written as a stockholder's inquiry as to company policies which the board may have in mind for the improvement of the corporation and its personnel in the immediate future and also asked an "accounting" of the acts of the board to date in the light of Johnston's testimony during the hearings on the Paramount reorganization plan. Johnston stated at that time the company's "depleted executive ranks would be strengthened by the addition of experienced film men," according to Rogers' letter. . . .

Rogers' initial communication said this, in part, for itself:

> "Your board of directors consists of bankers, stock brokers, promoters and men engaged in every conceivable walk of life except that of the manufacture or exhibition of motion pictures. It is my understanding that the members of the board no longer control or represent substantial security holders, yet they are controlling the policies and destinies of the company.
> "Cold, executive business ability standing by itself might be valuable in the administration of finances or as a qualification for membership on a finance committee, but should be confined exclusively to those channels of the business."

And Johnston's answer:

> "The motion picture industry is, as you say, a highly specialized business, differing from any other industry. Since I went on the board of the company it has become increasingly plain to me that I cannot hope to find time to give the company's problems the amount of study they should receive from an active director and also discharge my obligations to the institution of which I am chairman. Consequently, as I do not wish to be merely an inactive director, I have determined to retire from the board of the company when my term expires next month and have so informed the management. Under the circumstances, any discussion by me of what the company's business policies for the future should be would hardly be appropriate."

[Johnston's term does not expire next month. He was elected for a three-year term.]

Then, Rogers' second letter:

> "The mere fact that you have decided now to relieve yourself of the responsibility originally assumed by you is no reason why a proper accounting should not be made to those who relied on promises and assurances made by you under oath."

He adds that Johnston should have determined at the beginning of his term which of his obligations was the more important, "instead of permitting Paramount to suffer as a result of your inactivity as a director."

Legion Approves 13 Of 15 New Pictures

The National Legion of Decency, in its list of new pictures reviewed and classified for the current week, approved 13 of the 15 new films considered as unobjectionable for general patronage or for adults. preciable losses to film companies. Efforts have been made to stop them by enforcement of the copyright provisions, but without avail. All of the distributors now have printed on posters, photographs and lobby cards the sentence "this is not sold but leased."

Even these instructions have been disregarded by exhibitors who have been selling the material to the renting companies for half of the cost price. After many discussions, Paramount officials felt that the only way to bring the practice to an end is to buy back its own material after it has been used.

No reduction in the quantity of accessories is contemplated by the distributor, it was stated on Saturday. Prices will remain unchanged, the rebates being made on the return of the material. Paramount doesn't expect to face any difficulty in the bookkeeping, although it is likely extra help may be added where needed.

Some time ago distributors discussed a plan to merge all poster houses and serve exhibitors from a central depot. The idea was to cut the operating expense of the accessory departments in the exchanges, but this was not found feasible. Various other plans have been talked over, but Paramount feels the one it has decided upon is the best proposed.

Columbia may go for the idea, according to Al Seligman, in charge of ad sales. He personally thinks the Paramount plan ideal, but will not make any statements as to the company's policy until he confers with distribution executives this week.

M-G-M will not adopt the policy, it was declared by a home office executive.

Universal has not decided on its stand. P. D. Cochrane stated he had not heard of the details of Paramount's offer, but he would most likely talk it over with Andy Sharick in a few days.

Lou Goudreau of RKO was out of town over the week-end and could not be reached for a statement. His secretary said she had heard a rumor about Paramount's plan, but nothing official. Goudreau will take the matter up with distribution heads either today or tomorrow.

Warners Ready?

Despite denials, Warners on Saturday were reported ready to adopt the Paramount policy on rental of accessories beginning June 2.

Harry D. Buckley of U.A. has no plans. He asserted he had not been apprised of the rental service, and while he will give it thought, the company will not change its present setup on June 1.

A. W. Schwalberg said Warners will not rent its accessories at this time. However, he will study the matter.

Lee Balsly of Twentieth Century-Fox stated the company definitely was against renting its own posters and photographs.

Paramount is preparing special contracts which will be offered exhibitors. Only those desiring the rental service will be asked to sign.

Losing no time, an executive emergency committee of the National Poster Service Ass'n., Inc., held a special meeting in New York Saturday to discuss the new development. Attending were Simon Libros, president; Al Blofson and Oscar Libros, from Philadelphia; Louis Weinzimmer, Harry Schlit and Harry Egert.

Libros charged the Paramount move was to "freeze out the poster renters," and that the renters' association was going to contact every independent exhibitor organization to act against the distributor's accessory policy.

"All Paramount wants to do is freeze us out and after that they will sell the posters outright on their own terms," Libros stated.

George P. Aarons, acting for the association, has dispatched wires to non-members of the association urging that they join in order to fight the move.

A Paramount executive admitted the purpose of the plan was to drive the renters out. "They have no business being in the business. The material is ours and they have no right to rent it out.

"If exhibitors begin complaining about our service what would they do if we decided not to make posters and stills?" the executive wondered.

In face of the decisions of other distributors not to follow suit, reports have it that within the next six months all major companies will be renting their advertising material.

age of the theatre's weekly gross receipts.

Hoffenstein is general manager of the organization, with David Hoffenstein, his brother, as sales manager. The plan has been in the process of formulation for the past two years, Hoffenstein said, and was put into preliminary operation about Jan. 1, this year. Thus far, he declared, approximately 40 theatres have contracted for the service. The rate to theatres has been determined at an approximate base one-half of one per cent of the average weekly gross, the cost to theatres being estimated at from $2 up each week, dependent upon the type of house involved. The rate, however, is subject to variation, Hoffenstein indicated, since circuits, for example, may undertake volume membership, which would lower the rate per theatre. Contracts are signed on a 52-week basis, the fee payable monthly.

The premiums, which include the products of several well known manufacturers, are entirely varied. The organization buys the premiums from the manufacturer and sells them to the exhibitor, as needed, and in whatever quantity required, at the wholesale price. Representatives are being named for various key cities. The theatres already signed are located in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas.

lines are definitely drawn for the new association.

No attempts will be made to bring in local organizations now affiliated with either the M. P. T. O. A. or Allied. The idea will be to set up new exhibitor units in each state with each state having as many delegates to the national body as there are congressmen. Independent theatre owners who are members of the two existing national bodies will be invited to join.

F. & M. Not to Shift St. Louis Personnel

ment Co., the Orpheum, Shubert-Rialto and Hi-Pointe, would make radical changes. Such rumors are denied by Arthur, who states that as soon as the papers, now being drawn, are signed and he gets possession of the theatres he will ask the personnel to continue as heretofore.

It is expected that F. & M. will take over the Warner St. Louis houses on June 1.

Madrid, May 17.—Jacques Edelstein, M-G-M manager here, has closed a contract for the exclusive showing of M-G-M product second run at the Alcazar Theatre here. The house has been for years one of the outstanding theatres in the city.

THANKS TO EVERYBODY!

How is it possible to thank everybody for "Show Boat"?

Starting with Jerome Kern and Arthur Hammerstein, who adapted Edna Ferber's deathless story—then starting all over again with James Whale, who directed the picture, and Irene Dunne and Allan Jones and Paul Robeson and Charlie Winninger and Helen Morgan and the superb cast who actually made it—with even these two starts we have only begun to start.

How about the critics who reviewed it and showered it with such reckless praise?

How about the theatre owners who started to buy this picture nearly two years ago and yet are perfectly willing to give Universal better terms than their contracts call for?

How can we thank them enough?

The answer is that we can't!

We are simply overwhelmed with gratitude, and words seem flat.

If we have given the picture business the box office spur which it needed, we have already been more than repaid in your acknowledgment of that fact.

And "Show Boat" is only one of the many things which the new Universal hopes to contribute toward the success of the whole entertainment world, as well as toward its own success.

We take a bow, first to all of you and then on behalf of Universal.

Thanks to everybody.

UNIVERSAL PICTURES

R. H. COCHRANE, President

P.S.—We are days behind in acknowledging telegrams and letters of congratulation and support. But we'll catch up as soon as we can. Just now we are a little bit overwhelmed.

"Deeds" Has Big Holdover In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 17.—"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," playing its second week downtown, continued to hold first place. It grossed $8,250 at the Allen, following a tremendous first week at Warners' Hippodrome. This was more than double the average house business. It was held a third week.

"Under Two Flags" was the big success of the week's new attractions. It grossed $17,000 at Loew's State, where $12,000 is tops. It was moved over to the Stillman for a continued run.

Bill Robinson, as the stage headliner, was the real reason the RKO Palace, showing "The Song and Dance Man" on the screen, chalked up a $21,000 gross against a $15,000 average.

"I Married a Doctor" came through with an average of $8,000 at Warners' Hippodrome and "Too May Parents" at Loew's Stillman, dropped down to $2,000 or 50 per cent off the usual take.

"The Great Ziegfeld" had a good second week at the Hanna with a reported gross of $13,000. It, also, was held a third week.

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—"Under Two Flags" was a smash hit at the Rialto, sending the gross to $14,000, over the line by $9,500. It was held over. A heavy exploitation campaign, and expensive lobby display helped.

Other first runs felt the opposition. Loew's State couldn't climb over $4,500, with "Robin Hood of El Dorado" and "Don't Gamble With Love," while the Strand nosedived with "'Till We Meet Again" and "The Sky Parade," getting only $2,400. "Special Investigator" at the Brown could not get better than $1,800, and "Times Square Playboy" at the Mary Anderson was a disappointment, taking only $1,900.

"Under Two Flags" went to the Aladdin for a third week after getting $6,000 at the Paramount, following a week at the Denver.

Harmon-Ising Plan Personnel Increase

Gordon Wilson, general manager for Harmon-Ising, producers of cartoons for M-G-M release, will take with him to the coast when he returns a number of people who will be added to the production staff. The increase in personnel was made necessary by the company's expansion, Wilson said, with Harmon-Ising scheduled to make 18 cartoons for M-G-M in 1936-37, which is a 40 per cent increase over the current season, when 13 were made. Several former employes of Van Beuren, which has disbanded its cartoon unit, may accompany Wilson.

All next season's productions will be in three-color Technicolor, Wilson said, with the use of 12 or 15 main characters, instead of the usual focussing on one or two. The idea of a cartoon cast of characters has been in work for about six months, he said. No cartoons longer than one reel are planned, but one two-reeler, on which the studio has been working for some time, may be released next season. Wilson will leave for the coast on May 25, at the conclusion of current conferences with M-G-M home office executives.

"The little kerchief you see about the young lady's comely larynx is just one of the thousands of attractions to be found in Paramount's carnival of splendor and joy . . . 'POPPY'."

Short Subjects

"Changing of the Guard"

(Vitaphone)

Built around a sentimental plot this short in Technicolor, featuring Sybil Jason, Halliwell Hobbes, Sidney Bracey and a precision dancing chorus makes a delightful bit of entertainment. On New Year's Eve Sybil comes down and has her grandfather, Hobbes, tell her about his army life. As he proceeds to do so the scene changes and there follows a retirement ceremony which is impressive with the skirling of bagpipes and a male chorus singing "Annie Laurie." After this Sybil childishly states that she will join the service. This develops into the precision dance routine which is quite the best part of the film. The finish has the three principals singing in the new year. The color, directed by Natalie Kalmus, is superb. Production Code Seal, No. 2,101. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 21"

(Universal)

There is general entertainment and a touch of humor in this number of the series, which pictures the bicycle fire department of a California town, the railroad switchman who achieves amazing effects working with colored sand in bottles, the quaint sewing machine which dates from 1849 and is still serviceable; the ink spring in the San Andrea Mountains, the San Francisco man who makes remarkable miniature furniture, and the community circus of Gainesville, Tex., where the townspeople are the performers, and good ones.

Production Code Seal, No. 0976. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Barnyard Five"

(Universal)

An average cartoon in the Oswald group, wherein Mrs. Duck hatches quintuplets, while Mr. Duck has the usual bad half-hour. When Oswald invites the family to dinner, the quins make life extremely miserable for him, and have a few uncomfortable moments themselves. Rates as ordinary cartoon material.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra"

(Vitaphone)

The orchestra plays with tuneful perfection and the acts rounding out the piece include a torch singer, novelty whistling, a rhumba by Holland and Hart and a song by a bandsman. It is well done and elaborate. The nimble Lopez fingers on the piano open and close the piece. Production Code Seal, No. 0841. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Here's Howe"

(Vitaphone)

More adventures of Joe Palooka. Palooka, Knobby and "Punchy" are installed in a farmhouse at which Palooka is training. Nearby lives Ann Howe who comes over to watch the champ do his stuff. "Punchy" puts on a pantomimic exhibition that will be one of the highs in humor this season. Sweet charity brings Palooka into the ring in a bout with Jim Perry, Miss Howe's fiance, and after the usual business he wins. Interwoven in the story are some clever lowbrow but humorous situations which will go over big with an audience. The "Punchy" character will be in demand after he has been seen. Production Code Seal, No. 0820. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 20"

(Universal)

The highlight of this series of oddities picked up by the camera is the old general store in Coulterville, Cal., which stands today as it did in its heyday—the gold rush era of '49—and still with much of the original stock on the shelves. The founder's sons, 86 and 74, "operate" the store. Other bits in this generally interesting subject are a woman bullfighter, the $100 judgment of 1897 which with interest is today equal to trillions of dollars, the woman who clothes her family with wool from her own sheep, the spray gun which coats with a fine mist of metal.

Production Code Seal, No. 0857. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Fun House"

(Universal)

When Oswald and his girl go cartoon-fashion to the amusement park, their dog is refused admission. As they rush through the various stunts, by compulsion, the dog burrows his way into the park, comes up in a shooting gallery, and has a series of adventures not calculated to add to his comfort. Eventually the dog and the couple leave the place, in a hurry. A fairly amusing cartoon.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Green Pastures"

(Warners)

Hollywood, May 17.—"The Green Pastures" is something new under the motion picture sun. It has had no predecessor; nothing heretofore produced is even vaguely similar. It is a fable. It tells a story that is spiritual and ethereal, also a story that is gay comedy and stark tragedy.

Sensibly produced, some slight changes having been made in the original play from which it was adapted, it is of a quality sure to make a deep impression upon audiences.

Literally, the fable the picture narrates is that of God's trials and tribulations, His joys and sorrows when He created the world and made mankind. Actually it is the primitive, modern Louisiana negro's concept of God, heaven and man's experiences on earth and with God as described in the Old Testament.

Played entirely by negroes, the picture is of that character of simplicity that is commonly attributed to negroes to whom religion is a subject close to heart and spirit.

A Sunday school class of negro children listens to, and questions its instructor who tells the Bible story. Heaven is described and pictured, black angels having a good time, "De Lawd" creates the world and makes Adam and Eve. Cain kills Abel and "De Lawd" is mortified. The world goes to pot until Noah comes along. Then the flood and a hoped for better start. "De Lawd" commissions Moses to deliver his chosen people from bondage in Egypt and, despite his high hope, humanity sinks into the cesspool of Babylonian iniquity. A tired "Lawd" talks with Hesdrel and learns that probably He was wrong. He had been a just God in his own estimation but a God of vengeance, giving and expecting much. Hesdrel tells Him the people are frail and need a merciful God. The tragedy of Calvary is made evident by illusion and Gabriel's dialogue convinces "De Lawd" that Hesdrel was right.

Played with a dignity that bespeaks sincerity, the picture is crammed with incidents and events in action, dialogue and characterization that provoke hearty laughter. In contradistinction, it follows a sincere and believable dramatic trend that is profoundly impressive. At all times it is entertainment and never a preachment. Never seeking to point a moral, rather continually giving a vivid and colorful picturization of a simple people's belief and willingness to believe, it looms as a valuable contribution in the progress of production.

With the exception of Rex Ingram, none of the players is familiar to screen fans. It is not necessary for any purpose that they should be. Personally they may mean little, but as Adam and Eve, Gabriel, Moses, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Aaron, Pharaoh, Hesdrel, Joshua and the king of Babylon they contribute performances that will leave an indelible memory.

The picture, as supervised by Henry Blanke and codirected by Marc Connelly, who produced it originally as a stage play, and William Keighley, is a tribute to brainy, intelligent craftsmanship in making available a radically different form of film fare. Since there is no precedent for this type of attraction, its box-office future, as mere entertainment, is not determinable.

Production Code Seal, No. 1,915. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Scheduled for hearing in Special Sessions, Bronx, on May 22, are the complaints against the Ward, Rosedale and Allerton. As a matter of record there are two complaints up Friday against the Ward.

Last week, the Momart, Brooklyn, playing Lucky, ran afoul of the police. A hearing is scheduled this week in the Magistrate's Court, Brooklyn.

S. & C. officials say they are in a quandary on the game situation. If they are found illegal, Screeno and other games will be dropped. It is hoped that the Session Sessions' hearing Friday will put an end to the arrests and determine the legality, or illegality, of the games.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Last Outlaw"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—Cleverly conceived and produced, this has all the earmarks of a "sleeper." It has all the requirements of an outdoor picture plus action, dialogue, comedy and it builds steadily with situations topping each other until the finish.

The story starts with the release from prison of Harry Carey, who has finished a 25-year stretch for bank robbery. Returning to his home, Carey finds Henry B. Walthall, the sheriff who captured him, now serving as deputy to Russell Hopton, an advocate of the new theory of criminology. When the town bank is held up again, Carey and Walthall, with the assistance of Hoot Gibson, pursue the robbers, who have taken Margaret Callahan, Carey's daughter, with them as a hostage.

Carey's knowledge of the hideouts in the district enables the trio to capture the bandits despite the efforts of Hopton, who tried pinning the crime on Carey. For the finish, the romance, cleverly built, allows Miss Callahan and Gibson to unite.

Christy Cabanne's direction milks all the situations in the commendable script by Jack Townley and John Trist, written from a story by John Ford and Murray Campbell. The Robert Sisk production sparkles with good showmanship.

Properly sold from its many selling angles this should please.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,208. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Private Number"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

LONG BEACH, Cal., May 17.—This is typical Hollywood fare, as Loretta Young makes the most of her long eyelashes and tremulous smile in the role of an inexperienced lady's maid in the house of Winfield.

Robert Taylor, as Richard Winfield, the scion of the family, provides the romance with Miss Young. Their romance is handicapped by the machinations of Basil Rathbone, as the domineering butler, but it flourishes at the summer home in the Maine woods. The boy goes back to college and the maid discovers she is going to have a baby.

The family throws her out and starts annulment proceedings, but to protect the baby's name she fights the case in court. The courtroom scene is calculated to draw audience tears, and concludes with a surprise punch. The happiness of the couple closes the film in the expected fashion.

Miss Young is as appealing as ever. Taylor is less boyish than usual and offers a more finished performance. Patsy Kelly as the assistant maid is good and brings many laughs. Joe Lewis, Marjorie Gateson, Paul Harvey, Jane Darwell, Paul Stanton and John Miljan have minor roles. Entertainment is provided in the appearance of Hamlet, a Great Dane.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,249. Running time, 90 minutes (uncut). "A."

Newark House Uses Vivid Exploitation

Unusual exploitation is being employed in Newark by Robert Ungerfeld, manager of the RKO Terminal there, in his campaign on "The Revolt of the Zombies" which opened at the house on Saturday. A feature of the selling is a parade of three men and a woman, dressed and acting like the film's central characters, in the grotesque appearance of the "living dead."

In addition, considerable use has been made of fireworks displays in front of the house, with red flares chiefly employed. An automaton stands before the theatre. This material is combined with the usual newspaper display space, one sheets and stickers posted in the area.

Foley Drops Games Drive In the Bronx

Theatre Men Are Warned To Observe the Law

Summoning leading independent circuit heads to his office for a special meeting, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx yesterday announced he would no longer prosecute chance games in theatres, provided they were played according to the law.

Within the past few months, District Attorney Foley has waged a campaign to eliminate all games from theatres in his borough. A number of cases before various magistrates have been thrown out. Several complaints are scheduled for hearing in Special Sessions.

Prior to the session with the exhibitors, Foley conferred with his assistants. The district attorney told the theatre men that he has been accused of being a "persecutor" because of his drive against games. He added he didn't want this impression to prevail, as he was a prosecutor doing his duty.

Foley said that as long as exhibitors did not charge an admission to anyone desiring to participate in the games, such procedure was in consonance with a decision handed down recently by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, New York, on

Court Refuses New Move in FWC Case

Los Angeles, May 18.—Judge James Alger Fee in U. S. District Court today refused permission to Attorney William H. Neblett to file an amended complaint on behalf of T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corp. for reopening of the Fox West Coast bankruptcy. The court ruled the only change in the complaint was one restoring the same charges of conspiracy against the court that were retracted at the first hearing.

Judge Fee said: "The original retraction is binding upon counsel and

Preference in Sale Tax Case To Be Sought

U. A. Anxious for Quick Ruling on Dispute

A preference on the calendar of the Appellate Division of the state court will be sought by United Artists today when T. Newman Lawler, of counsel for the company, will ask the court to set June 15 as the hearing date for the company's appeal from the city ruling that film rentals are subject to the two per cent city sales tax.

The motion for the preference will be returnable May 29. Indications are that the city will not oppose the petition for the preference as the comptroller's office is reported to be equally anxious for a ruling on the taxability of the film rentals. Final briefs and the appeal record of the hearings conducted by the city comptroller's office will also be filed with the Appellate Division today by Lawler.

Supreme Court Will Hear Appeal by Fox

Washington, May 18.—The U. S. Supreme Court today consented to hear argument of William Fox on the jurisdiction of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in refusing to consider his appeal from an order of the District Court in New York imposing a penalty for contempt of $235,082 which represented the unpaid balance of a judgment against him of $297,412 in favor of the Capital Co., and ordering him to pay $10,000 costs of Capital Co. attorneys.

The judgment was entered by confession in the District Court July 10 last and a subpoena was served on Fox in Pennsylvania. Upon his failure to appear he was charged with contempt, later making the defense that the court had no jurisdiction by reason

Three former southwestern distribution executives have joined the Griffith Bros. circuit organization to direct its future expansion activities, L. C. Griffith, head of the circuit, who is here from Oklahoma City for the current M. P. T. O. A. conferences with distributors on national sales policies, said yesterday.

The men are E. R. Slocum, formerly Oklahoma City branch manager for Warners; F. L. Stocker, former Dallas branch manager for Columbia, and R. I. Payne, former Dallas branch manager for Universal. The three have been placed in charge of the newly organized Griffith Realty Co., which was formed to buy and build new theatres for the Griffith operating companies. The operating companies now have 129 houses in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

G. T. E. Assets Bring $4,039,367 at Sale

Wilmington, May 18.—Assets of the receivership estate of General Theatres Equipment Co., Inc., were sold for $4,039,367.72 at public auction in Public Building here today. Robert G. Starr, New York attorney, bought in the assets for the reorganization committee. There was very little spirited bidding. The sale was one of the early major steps in the reorganization of the company which has been in the hands of receiver U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware since 1932.

Memorandum of sale will be made to Chancellor Josiah P. Wolcott in Chancery Court on May 20.

Two of the larger items to go under the hammer were 18,536¼ shares, preferred stock of Twentieth Century-Fox which brought $644,134.69 and 9,268⅛ shares of the same company's common which brought $231,703.13.

The reorganization committee proposes to issue shares of capital stock in the new company and option warrants for shares of capital stock of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. in exchange for secured and unsecured and debentures of G. T. E.

The reorganization committee consists of Arthur W. Loasby, chairman; Edward C. Delafield, Harry S. Durand, Lloyd S. Gilmour, Arthur Peck, Conrad H. Poppenhusen, Seton Porter and Ray W. Stephenson.

Films Vocal Cords

Kansas City, May 18.—Dr. Joel J. Pressman of Los Angeles, husband of Claudette Colbert, does a few things with films himself. Here this week for the American Medical Ass'n. convention, Dr. Pressman showed to his colleagues the first motion pictures of the vocal cords during speech.

Dr. Pressman experimented a long while before he evolved an apparatus that would take the pictures. To get enough light he attached a four-watt bulb to the ordinary laryngoscope. To get focus so close to the object, he inserted a metal ring between the camera and lens.

Television Held No Competitor as Yet

Hollywood, May 18.—Technical progress in television broadcasts is predicted by the Academy Research Council in 1937, but not much progress is foreseen for it outside of home entertainment in urban areas for 1938, and a limited field for it is predicted thereafter until costs are reduced.

In contrast with the skepticism of the industry which preceded the commercial success of sound pictures, the council points out there is "excessive credulity" regarding television. It says there is no prospect of the industry being caught by surprise, as it was with sound, because of the existence of a trained technical personnel.

Because of the necessity for immense investments in cables and stations and the fact that receivers for small pictures will cost $300 or more, even when manufactured on a commercial scale, the council does not consider it a serious competitor for pictures in the near future. All information is being kept up to date, the council says.

The report of the scientific committee is signed by Carl Dreher, chairman; Gordon Chambers, L. E. Clark, J. G. Frayne, N. W. LaPorte, Wesley C. Miller, Hollis Moyse and William Mueller.

Grace Rosenfield is now in charge of the New York office, which has been without an official head since Joe Rivkin left for the coast last year.

V. A. Sanitarium. Theatres throughout the country will participate in the drive, either through direct contribution to the memorial commission, or by soliciting contributions from patrons.

Plans are underway for the expansion of the hospital's facilities, which will administer to ill and needy members of the professions of the stage and screen. The campaign was organized at the suggestion of Will Hays by Major Leslie E. Thompson. The governors of 44 states are serving as state chairmen during the week.

Short Subjects

"To The Rescue"

(American Red Cross)

The recent floods in the eastern part of the country are graphically depicted and the work of the Red Cross in the rescue of the victims is shown in an appeal for new funds. The film has authenticity and is built up intelligently. Alois Havrilla delivers the narrative. The picture is being distributed free from Red Cross division headquarters. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Farming Fools"

(Universal)

There are a few laughs in this animated cartoon, in which three monkey hitch-hikers steal Oswald's pies. He forces them to work on the farm, and things are under control until they attempt to brand a bull. The bull doesn't like the idea, and the result is as anticipated. It will do for a light spot on the program.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,056. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Marine Follies"

(Mentone-Universal)

With Jackson, Irving & Reeve supplying a background of comedy which is only occasionally amusing, this subject presents an entertaining group of turns. Included are Dolores and Pedro, clever eccentric dancers; Rachel Carley, singing with a French accent and good results; Rosamond, who plays the accordion brilliantly; Dick and Edith Barstow, toe-tap dancing with amazing skill, and Selden and Endler, with amusing and effective "drunken" acrobatics.

Production Code Seal, No. 0960. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

No Duty Increases, U. S.-Finland Agree

Washington, May 18.—A guarantee against increase in the present rate of duty on American films is given by Finland in the reciprocal trade agreement with that country announced tonight by the State Dep't.

In making public details of the agreement, the department explained that most American films are supplied to Finland through exchanges operated in Europe by American companies and that statistics consequently do not show the relative importance of our films in that market.

"However," the department stated, "it is estimated that over 75 per cent of all the films imported into Finland in 1935 were of American make. Binding of the duty of 34 cents per pound carried with it also safeguards against the imposition of quantitative import restrictions during the life of this agreement."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Trouble for Two"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, May 18.—Plenty of talent in this with Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen, David Holt and Virginia Weidler in the cast. They do good jobs, but the story with which they have to work—a complicated combination of comedy, romance, melodrama and mystery—is hardly worthy of their prestige and abilities.

Fantastic, but after its opening sequences, rather gruesome dialogue dominates the action in the narration. It's a mythical kingdom, prince, princess yarn that has for its motivation the efforts on the part of the princess to ascertin whether the prince has all the nerve he boasts. As kids, prince Montgomery and princess Miss Russell, are bound to a political, loveless marriage. The sequences featuring young Holt and Miss Weidler in the juvenile roles are full of action and humor. Years later the incognito prince again meets Miss Russell and does not recognize her, but she is aware of his identity. To test his nerve both join a suicide club, an organization presided over by Owen which provides an easy way out for those tired of it all.

Miss Russell is selected to effect Montgomery's doom via an entrance into a lion's cage. Love has dawned for the pair and she reneges. But Owen, who turns out to be an exiled, anarchistic expatriate of Montgomery's country, is not so easily satisfied. Foiled several times in putting him on the spot, he finally gets embroiled in a rapier duel with Montgomery which is disastrous to himself. The finale is a formula state wedding.

The picture, based on "The Suicide Club," by Robert Louis Stevenson, is adapted by Manuel Seff and Edward Paramore, and directed by J. Walten Ruben with an eye toward providing modernized thrill-action but everything is so evident to audiences that the comedy atmosphere is the dominating factor.

Despite the names, the picture will require plenty of selling.

Production Code Seal, No. 2237. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Ticket Levy Passed By Kentucky Senate

Louisville, May 18.—Despite the efforts of film and other amusement interests, the Kentucky legislature has passed the amusement tax. The Senate followed the lead of the lower house, which passed the tax measure about three weeks ago.

Under the terms of the bill, admissions up to and including 10 cents will be exempt. From 11 to 19 cents, the tax is one cent; from 20 to 29 cents, two cents; from 30 to 39 cents, three cents, and continues in multiples of 10 up to a 10 per cent tax on admissions of $1 and over. A special daily license tax was placed on race tracks in addition to the admission tax, ranging from $500 a day for small town tracks to $2,500 a day at Louisville.

Spanish Films Gain In Central America

Spanish product, produced in Mexico, Spain and Argentina, looms more seriously than ever before as competition to be reckoned with in the Central American market, in the opinion of Harold Sugarman, United Artists manager in that territory. Sugarman is in New York for conferences on sales policies and new product. With headquarters in Cristobal, C.Z., Sugarman has supervision over the north and west coasts of South America, and all of Central America.

As a result of generally improved business conditions throughout the world, theatre business in the territory has had a good season, and he looks forward to a better one next year, since practically all of the activity of the area is connected with the export business. American product still dominates the market, Sugarman declared, but pointed out that an improvement in Spanish films, and the use of the right stories for the native audiences, has brought a considerable interest in that product. Contrary to the general belief, Sugarman said that these audiences prefer heavy drama on the screen—the heavier the better.

The use of dubbing in American films in the market is coming back, he said. For some years they have been unacceptable to native audiences, and superimposed titles have been used on the original versions.

Sugarman will remain in town for about a week. He expects to leave on May 23, and may stop off in Hollywood on his return to Panama.

Essaness circuit, headed by Emil Stern, will join with Allied in fighting the dual feature plan to be adopted by B. & K. shortly. He said he had no particular purpose of being in town other than to work on the Allied meet. Saperstein said while here he would "scout around a little." The Allied men expect to remain several days.

Chicago, May 18.—Emil Stern, head of Essaness, would neither confirm nor deny reports that the circuit would line up with Allied in a united fight against the dual feature return planned by B. & K.

Nebraska Action Is Delayed to June 1

Lincoln, Neb., May 18.—Trial of the action of Independent Theatres against major companies, charging collusion and conspiracy, has been definitely set to start June 1, after having been called for today. The Federal court ordered the delay until the criminal case docket is cleared. Damages of $1,353,000 are asked from J. H. Cooper, Lincoln Theatres Corp., Robert Livingston, Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal, M-G-M, Radio, Warners, Paramount and United Artists.

Chances of an out of court settlement are considered slight, unless an attempt is made as the case goes to trial. The charge is based on the alleged control of 90 per cent of the films in the city by the defendants, who control only half the theatres. The plaintiffs have declared frequently that they want the suit tried.

Mary Minter Files Suit

Los Angeles, May 18.—Mary Miles Minter, former screen star, today filed suit here for $750,000 against Blyth & Co., brokerage house, and its predecessor, Blyth, Wittmer & Co. Defense attorneys indicated they would contend the firm was not involved in the defalcations.

client for all time unless reversed by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, or the U. S. Supreme Court."

Judge Fee stated that though the new complaint is said to be based on new evidence he felt the court must continue to expugn the same and could not assume jurisdiction to set the matter for trial.

Answering the court's opinion that the charges were impertinent, Neblett assured the court no disrespect was intended by a reiteration of the charges and said they were withdrawn at the first hearing because they had not been presented strongly enough.

Neblett said he would file an appeal with the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals before May 28.

The court held the subpoena had been properly served and that Fox was in contempt, issuing the order requiring payment of the judgment and attorneys' costs and directing the issuance of a warrant of imprisonment until the money was paid or Fox submitted to examination.

Fox again appealed to the Circuit Court, where the Capital Co. argued against consideration on the ground that the District Court order was final and therefore could not be appealed.

Brooklyn Paramount Deal on Percentage

Details of the sale or leasing by Allied Owners of six theatres to Paramount and Loew's were made public yesterday with the filing of a confirmation report on the transactions in U. S. District Court at Brooklyn by the retiring trustees of Allied Owners Corp. in connection with the latter's reorganization.

The Brooklyn Paramount is leased to Paramount Pictures, Inc., for 20 years at a guaranteed minimum annual rental of $100,000, plus a percentage of weekly gross receipts. If the house is operated on a straight film policy, Allied Owners is to receive 12½ per cent of the gross up to $15,000 weekly, 15 per cent of the next $5,000 and 20 per cent of any gross in excess of $20,000. If operated on a stage show policy or on a combination film and stage show policy, Allied Owners is to receive 12½ per cent of the gross up to $20,000; 15 per cent of the next $5,000 and 20 per cent of everything in excess of $25,000.

Office space in the building is not included in the lease; the operation of that phase of the building to remain with Allied Owners. The report discloses that an offer to purchase the theatre for $150,000 cash and a first mortgage of $1,575,000 was received from Si Fabian and was rejected some months ago although it was the best of several purchase offers received.

The Brooklyn Paramount has incurred a total net loss of $1,573,000 since its opening, the report states.

Allied Owners has sold outright the Kings, Pitkin and Valencia to Loew's for an aggregate of $12,875,000 for the three theatres, payable in monthly installments over a period of 25 years, the report discloses. The Alabama at Birmingham was purchased by Paramount for $100,000 cash and a $900,000 purchase money mortgage. The Paramount at Glens Falls, N. Y., is leased to Paramount for 20 years at an aggregate guaranteed minimum rental of $240,000, payable out of a percentage of gross receipts. The Paramount at Fremont, O., is leased to Paramount for 20 years at an aggregate, guaranteed minimum rent of $300,000, with provisions for further rent participation if gross receipts exceed certain amounts.

Accessory Credits in Para. Plan

Paramount's plan for renting accessories, effective June 1, will be set upon credit allowance basis, it was stated by Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, in outlining the details. Theatre owners will be charged a certain amount for each item. Credit allowances will be made following return of the material.

Posters, lobby displays and photographs returned in usable condition will be credited at a higher scale than damaged material, it was said. There will be a list of new prices for advertising material.

Meanwhile, a special emergency committee of the National Poster Service Ass'n., met again yesterday to discuss Paramount's move.

Looking 'Em Over

"Frankie and Johnnie"

(Republic)

From the long-famous ballad of Frankie and Johnnie, which, told with weighty vocalization the story of Frankie's meeting with Johnnie, the manner in which he "done her wrong," and how she made him pay the price, has been made a film which, after having passed through successive processes of renovation with an eye on the production code, emerges as ineffectual fare. The film was produced about two years ago at and by the Biograph Studio in New York, under the direction of Chester Erskin.

With Helen Morgan and Chester Morris as Frankie and Johnnie, respectively, and the veteran, Florence Reed, as the befriending Lou, the story is set against a background of the St. Louis of 1870, and the dance hall run by Lou. The bare facts of the story indicated above tell the whole thing, the only addition being the manner in which William Harrigan, in love with Frankie, stands by her through her fight to hold the love of the gambling, two-timing Johnnie, and offers her his loyal affection after she kills Johnnie.

For the most part the film somehow lacks the pace it might have been expected to possess, moving at a laggard rate, only gaining a bit of speed as it nears the conclusion, when Frankie, finally convinced against her will of the duplicity of her man, finds a gun and goes in search of Johnnie. Miss Morgan, it would seem, has not been given sufficient opportunity to exercise the talent for a special style of singing which she unquestionably possesses, and in some fashion her voice throughout registers poorly.

Moss Hart did the screen play from a story by Jack Kirkland. It appears that the film's story origin offers the best selling opening.

Production Code Seal, No. 851. Running time, 67 minutes. "A."

"Feud of the Range"

(Futter-Diversion)

An old feud between two die-hard cattlemen and the intrusion of Hoot Gibson into their quarrels when he captures all the prizes at a rodeo give the star of the piece a good opportunity to show his congenial smile and portray an excellent serio-comic role.

Gibson sides with both ranches to track down the man responsible for the constant fighting. A horse auction brings him into contact with Joan Barclay and the romance is worked in at a point when he finally squares himself, gets the culprit, sends Bozz Barton home to Wyoming and ends the piece happily.

Theatre cowpunchers will appreciate this one. Harry Frazer directed from the screen play by Russell A. Barkson, which weaves action and plenty of movement into the narrative.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,138. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

Grand Jury to Study Houston Bank Night

HOUSTON, May 18.—A grand jury investigation of Bank Night in Houston theatres has been asked by Assistant District Attorney Allie Peyton. Two months ago this request was made by the district attorney's office, but dropped without action. The investigation, it is said, will determine whether Bank Night falls under the Texas lottery laws.

R. J. O'Donnell, general manager of Interstate Theatres, Inc., which holds the Bank Night franchise here, said he would welcome a test case. Meanwhile, the chance games continue at the Kirby, Metropolitan, Majestic, Delman and Tower.

Cite Two in Game Fraud

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 18.—Warrants were issued for the arrest of Snowden and Woodrow Stewart, cousins, following a court inquiry into an alleged fraud in connection with Bank Night drawings in three houses of the Phoenix Amusement Co. County Judge W. E. Nichols, who conducted the investigation, declared the circuit was an entirely innocent victim of the deception.

Court Deals Blow to Virginia's Blue Law

RICHMOND, May 18.—Virginia's ancient "blue laws" received a setback here today when a jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Charles A. Somma, of the Byrd, who had been fined $5 in police Court for operating on a Sunday.

Following the announcement of the verdict Attorney T. Gray Haddon construed the decision as meaning that all film houses here may remain open on Sundays. Such a development would undoubtedly result in the Sunday operation of theatres throughout the state.

Heat Knocks Pittsburgh's Grosses Down

Pittsburgh, May 18.—Heat again threw business for a terrific loss and grosses plunged. Hit hardest was "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" at the Penn, which took only $9,000, below par by $3,000.

At the Stanley, with Johnny Green's band to punch up "I Married A Doctor" on the screen, things weren't much better at $13,500, while the Alvin decided to yank "Captain January" after three days of the second week during which it had barely registered $2,000.

The Casino finished up the season in the hole, doing only around $1,300 with "The Leathernecks Have Landed" and "Laughing Irish Eyes," and the Warner, also with two features, "Till We Meet Again" and "Timothy's Quest," dipped to $3,600. The heat played no favorites, also cutting into the third and last week of "The Great Ziegfeld's" roadshow engagement at the Nixon. There was only around $6,000 in the till for the last 14 showings which, however, gave the spectacle close to $30,000 on the run.

Total grosses in five regular first-run houses were $29,400. Average is $42,500.

A bang-up exploitation campaign was handled by Fred Bartow for M-G-M and Richard A. Pierson for Theatre Managers, Inc.

Other first runs found the takings rather light. Loew's State with the dual, "Dancing Lady" and "The Big House," pulled only $4,500, under normal by $1,000. "Under Two Flags" at the Rialto for a second week took $4,200, a dip of $300.

The National was able to hit a gross of $3,200 with "It's A Great Life." A stageshow, in for four days, was headed by Reis and Dunn. The gross was $3,100, just $400 under the mark.

Opposition has been heavy from the races at Churchill Downs and a Roller Derby at the State Fair Grounds.

Hot Spell Cuts Takes in Spite of Outstanding Hits

First touches of summer weather with the resulting outdoor competition sent grosses skidding in 17 of the 29 key cities reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY for the week ending May 8-15. As a result, the total was $1,565,050.

This was $18,915 under the previous week, and was the continuance of a spring decline which followed a pickup for the week ending April 16-17, in spite of the fact that several big pictures—"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Under Two Flags," "The Great Ziegfeld" and "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford" — are rolling up huge grosses right across the country.

The decline for the week ending May 8-15 was widely scattered, being reported from Boston, Cincinnati, Detroit, Houston, Kansas City, Lincoln, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Montreal, New Haven, New York, Omaha, Pittsburgh, Providence, St. Louis and Washington.

Balancing these to some extent were slight gains in Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Indianapolis, Louisville, Oklahoma City, Philadelphia, Portland, San Francisco and Seattle. [Comparative tabulation will be found on page 8.]

Report a $50,000 Offer for Allied

Allied States would receive $50,000 from Chesterfield and Invincible in return for a guarantee of 3,000 playdates for the companies' new season output under a proposal discussed with Allied leaders at the Warwick yesterday.

George Batcheller, Chesterfield president, and Edward Golden, sales representative for the company, could not be reached for comment. An Allied official described the report as "premature."

Allied States' leaders will wind up their meeting here today with the completion of final arrangements for the organization's national convention, to be held at the Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland, June 3 to 5.

Warners Deny Plan For Poster Rentals

A. W. Schwalberg, head of exchange operations for Warners, yesterday denied reports the company would offer its advertising material on a rental basis, starting June 2.

Following a meeting of its emergency committee, the National Poster Service Ass'n. has decided to hold a second convention this year. The first was held April 18 in Chicago. The second is tentatively set for Cleveland on June 2-3 at a hotel to be designated later. With 44 members in the organization, it is planned to admit new units which will bring the total to around 70.

The Cleveland session is being timed to take place with Allied's convention. Allied's support to fight the Paramount rental plan will be solicited, it was stated yesterday by an executive

See June Hearing In Sale Tax Case

Indications are that the Appellate Division will hear the United Artists appeal from the city's ruling holding film rentals to be subject to the two per cent city sales tax within three weeks. Attorneys for the distributor who had planned to ask that the hearing be set for June 15 in making a motion for a preference for the case on the court's calendar, decided yesterday to advance the date and will probably ask that it be set for June 8. The motion for a preference is returnable May 29.

Final briefs on the appeal and the record of the hearings conducted by the city last winter were filed with the Appellate Division yesterday.

20th-Fox to Pace in World Market—Kent

LONDON, May 9.—Speaking at the Savoy Hotel banquet which concluded the Twentieth Century-Fox sales convention, Sidney R. Kent declared that only one company in the business was doing a greater volume of world business and that he expected Twentieth Century-Fox to pass it within 18 months. He did not specify the other.

Saying that Twentieth Century-Fox was in "a very fine financial condition," Kent said the fact that it was back on a dividend-paying basis was due to the work of Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck.

Under production arrangements being discussed, said Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox would have nine British pictures in the next year, each costing between £50,000 and £100,000.

MPTOA Group Assured Company Cooperation

Assurances of Columbia's cooperation in drafting new season sales policies which will be as nearly in accord as possible with the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program were given the exhibitor organization's committee yesterday.

The meeting with Columbia was the fourth to be held by the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee with a national distributor. Meetings are scheduled for this morning with Republic and for this afternoon with M-G-M. The next meeting will probably be with United Artists and may be held tomorrow or Friday.

The exhibitor committee consisting of O. C. Lam, L. C. Griffith, Charles E. Williams, Lewen Pizor and Ed Kuykendall issued a statement following yesterday's meeting which said that despite the fact that "no definite

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

Comment upon published comment, mostly, but not entirely, anti:

Frank S. Nugent, alert film critic and commentator in The New York Times:

> "Sometimes we wonder just how important the movie stars are. Offhand, there does not seem to be any denying their hold on producer, exhibitor and spectator. . . . The more you contemplate the Hollywood firmament, the more you sense that the leading stars are held in their place by the slender, almost invisible strings of featured players. There are few, indeed, of the luminaries who are capable of carrying a picture alone; there are half a dozen others who can pull it along with the aid of a co-star. But the majority depend even more, perhaps, than they realize upon the efficiency of the great unsung whose names rarely appear on the marquees and seldom above fourth or fifth place on the casting sheets."

We can supply Nugent with some data. We can tell him, for instance, that his wonder may cease, for the stars—we mean the real ones—as a group are the industry's richest asset. The reason for it is simple enough: they furnish the lure that sells the tickets that return the profits that keep producer, distributor and exhibitor in business and thus give fellows like Nugent and us, if The Times has no objection, something to write about. With all of the tyranny their power permits them to impose, recognizing the almost complete subservience of the producer to their demands, acknowledging the drain inflicted by the pseudo-stars who profit, parasite-like, by the star system of which they are the far less illustrious part—the personality boys and girls, nevertheless, make this business swing merrily on its orbit. This is a trade made up of personalities, developed, nursed and fawned upon by the public, and the producer is merely the guy who delivers what's ordered. . . .

Featured players, of course, support the starring institution and often, indeed, make suckers of it. But for Nugent to declare that the leading stars are "held in their place by the slender, almost invisible strings of featured players" seems to be stretching an idea far beyond the confines of the facts. Garbo has been doing very well and that goes for Laughton, Shearer, Shirley Temple, Freddie March, Claudette Colbert and a few others. Few luminaries are capable of carrying a picture alone, it is true; others do need co-stars, while still others lean on their support. What Nugent did not mention was the fact that, once "the great unsung whose names rarely appear on the marquee" find themselves sung about they join the company of those same stars they have been supporting. There isn't a producer in Hollywood who won't jump at half a star to make him a full one. . . .

Joe Schenck, in a London press interview:

> "Big hits are not made by design. With a good story and a good producer and cast you can ensure a good picture, but you cannot definitely say it is going to be a hit."

How true, how true! A quick appraisal of any given year in Hollywood—you name it—demonstrates the point to those who may have their doubts.

More from Schenck:

> "The chief trouble is a good story. Stories don't grow on trees. I am reminded of the story of a man who wanted an evening at cards. A friend told him there was only one gambling house and that was crooked. 'Well,' he said, 'if that's the only one, I'll have to go there.'
> "If the top stories aren't there, you have to use what you can get."

That is, if you have to gamble or if you have to meet a certain commitment in number of pictures. But suppose you don't have to gamble or don't have to make as many pictures as all major producers are told they have to by their sales managers? The story might then be different. . . .

John McManus, manager of Loew's Midland, Kansas City, to Landon Laird, photoplay editor of that city's Star:

> "They would come in the front door and, if the door to Aisle Two was open, they could see the picture ["Small Town Girl"] on the screen from a point well out in the lobby. If [Robert] Taylor was acting, the girls, particularly those around the high school or college age, would gasp, flutter, put their hands to their throat and go through performances such as I never saw before in my life. I couldn't take it."

To that, McManus further remarked he had seen nothing like such feminine swooning since the first Gable frenzy sent American womanhood sighing several years ago.

One of these minutes, detail of the Kansas City phenomena will reach Hollywood, then Taylor's agent who will, no doubt, tell Taylor about it; thereafter, the time will be short ere it filters into the M-G-M studio.

This is a first-class instance of how $5,000-a-week contracts are born. . . .

Daniel Frohman, dean of Broadway's theatrical producers, on the status of the drama:

> "Shakespeare wrote long soliloquies and speeches in his plays for a good reason. There were about 9,000,000 people in Great Britain then and many of them could not read. They had to see the play and to hear the beauty of the poet's lines spoken. Now we can all read and in the plays we see we want action, movement and not the story."

Mr. Frohman, perhaps. But certainly he is not speaking for some millions, including us, who continue to believe the play's—and the story's—the thing. Action and movement is it? To what end either or both without reason, which is another way of saying the story? . . .

General Theatre Equipment, Inc., once had a potential value hitting close to $300,000,000. In receivership, its assets were sold in Wilmington on Monday for $4,039,367 and the sale did not even engage the attention of those whose business took them through the corridors of the Delaware courthouse that day. Ten thousand shares of the Ashcraft Automatic Arc Co. went under the hammer for $1.40.

The typewriter accidentally slipped a second ago and pounded out:

The gory that once was.

decision as to the extent of cancellations" which would be allowed by Columbia under new season contracts, the committee felt "assured that it would get the fullest cooperation" from that company. The exhibitor program proposes a 20 per cent cancellation privilege.

Abe Montague, Columbia sales manager, told the committee that the company was working on what was described as a "decentralization of policies," under which division and branch managers were being given more latitude for action on problems involving the company's product which arise locally. This policy is taken as an indication that Columbia is prepared to support the exhibitor-distributor proposal for the formation of local conciliation boards to hear and treat trade practice problems in each exchange center. The effectiveness of these boards is said to depend to a large extent upon local representatives of the distributors being authorized to act for their companies when complaints involving them are presented for conciliation.

In addition to Montague, Columbia was represented at the meeting by Rube Jackter and Joseph McConville.

Jack Miller, a sixth member of the exhibitor committee, arrived from Chicago last night to be on hand for today's meetings.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Fury"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, May 19.—With mass hysteria as its main theme, this film emerges as a heavy drama, too grim for acceptance by most audiences as entertainment. Though presented with unquestioned sincerity and an effort to treat all angles fairly, the story will hardly appeal to shoppers for a pleasant evening.

Spencer Tracy, while journeying to meet his fiancee, Sylvia Sidney, is picked up by Edward Ellis, a sheriff, on suspicion of being a kidnapper. When the town learns the reason for the prisoner's detention, Bruce Cabot and others organize a mob, storm the jail and set it afire when they are unable to unlock Tracy's cell. After hours of torture, Tracy, believed dead, escapes, rejoining his brothers, Frank Albertson and George Walcott, intent on securing vengeance against his torturers. Through Albertson and Walcott he manages to have 20 of the mob indicted for his murder. District Attorney Walter Abel has built a strong case against the defendants and is about to secure convictions when Miss Sidney, learning Tracy still lives, persuades him to appear and end the matter.

Fritz Lang's direction of these incidents ranges from forceful to indifferent. His screen play, written in collaboration with Bartlett Cormack from Norman Krasna's story, is too superficial to serve as effective propaganda.

All the cast performances are excellent, with Walter Brennan, Howard Hickman and Morgan Wallace best supplementing the sterling work of the top members. The Joseph Mankiewicz production is good.

Exhibitors should play this one with a light supporting program.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,229. Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Cloistered"

(Best Film Co.)

Produced in France by Pathe Cinema, this is strictly a documentary film, a record of the life of the women in a cloistered convent, and pretends to be nothing more. However, in its very simplicity, its stark sincerity, it presents to the eye of the layman an amazing story, detailing the manner in which these hundreds of women give themselves utterly to the church, completely renouncing the outside life, hearing nothing of it, and never seeing it.

The film was made with the cooperation and necessary permission of the authorities of the Catholic Church and is said to be the first picture so made. Obviously complete camera and sound crews entered the precincts of the convent, and there filmed the entire life of the inhabitants. The picture was made in the Motherhouse of Good Shepherd Cloistered Convent at Angers, France. The meaning of the word "cloistered" in relation to a convent refers to the completely segregated life of the group.

The value of the film from the standpoint of exhibition is necessarily problematical. For Catholic audiences it should be of unquestioned interest, as well as for all enlightened and intelligent patrons, who herein are given an opportunity to see behind the walls of a form of religious fervor and faith which seems hardly possible in the light of modern civilized activity. The general average theatre use of the film is still another question.

The picture, which was directed by Robert Alexandre, and contains an explanatory narration in English by Rev. Father Matthew Kelly, opens with the application of a girl for admission to the convent. From that point is told in pictures of the work and prayer which occupy the women, nuns, penitents and Magdalene Sisters, three separate groups which never see each other. Of almost dramatic intensity are the scenes of investiture in the chapel.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Demurrer Overruled In Kansas Tax Suit

KANSAS CITY, May 19.—The Kansas Supreme Court has sustained an order of the Shawnee County (Topeka) District Court in which the latter overruled a demurrer by the Ohio Casualty Co. to the petition of the Kansas Amusement Co.

The amusement concern, which owns the State building at Topeka, a Fox Midwest property, wrote a check to J. A. Eddy, Shawnee County treasurer, in December, 1931, in payment of taxes on the building.

The International Mortgage Trust Co., Topeka, on which the check was drawn, went into bankruptcy in Feb., 1932. Eddy had not cashed the check and in order to prevent the sale of the building for taxes, the Kansas Amusement Co. later had to pay the $1,732 a second time.

The amusement company then sued Eddy and Ohio Casualty, which carried the bond on Eddy, to recover the amount, charging Eddy with negligence in not cashing the check in more than two months. Eddy claimed he came to the check in the ordinary routine of business.

Ohio Casualty demurred to the petion on grounds it did not show sufficient cause for action and that no such action could be brought because of the statute of limitations.

The State has been dark for some time.

FAME

THE MARCH OF TIME in your theater each month adds to your bill one of the best known names in the United States today. Mass appeal? Note that Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey this season added a new MARCH OF TIME clown act. That radio's biggest personalities—Benny, Allen, Bernie and Boake Carter—continuously parody the characteristic MARCH OF TIME tempo and phraseology. International Harvester, Hammermill Paper capitalize on its importance with the public in their extensive advertising in national publications. In Congress "Time Marches On" titles a speech, is reprinted, distributed to thousands of voters.

From civic pageants to clothing stores "Time Marches On" (sometimes in a manner not as dignified or appropriate as we should like*). Today it has become a byword with millions. In your theatre it thrills your audience, makes them think, feel, and talk about your show. Be sure that THE MARCH OF TIME—the most inexpensive Big Name you can buy—appears on your marquee once each month.

exhaustion by the end of a day of handshaking and general excitement.

They came, they saw, and they were conquered by displays which ranged from a well-bronzed Tarzan swinging from the "limb" of a "tree" to a bathing beauty in blonde tresses and bathing suit, all wrapped up in a slicker which looked like cellophane, and perhaps it was. When the rain started to beat against the windows of the 30th floor of the RKO Bldg., headquarters of Quigley Publications and of the Show of Showmanship, it was an open question for a while as to who would be able to persuade the girl to part with the slicker just long enough to permit someone to go out for lunch without getting any wetter than he deserved. When the skies cleared, she still had her slicker, which is reported just by way of keeping the record straight.

A "Kiltie" on Hand

For an idea of how to sell "Mary of Scotland" RKO came into sight in the afternoon with an elderly Scotchman. He must have been, since he wore the traditional kilts and spats and socks and beribboned cap, and other things which completely pass the New York ken.

During the morning Martin Quigley presented honorable mention certificates for campaigns submitted in the Round Table exploitation contest for April. The recipients of the sheepskins—and a few well-chosen words, were: Paul Binstock, of the Republic in Brooklyn, for his campaign on "Follow the Fleet"; Louis Fishkin, of the Commodore in Brooklyn, of the Randforce unit, for his job on "Modern Times," and Al Weiss, manager, and Carl Fishman, publicity man, of Loew's Oriental, also of Brooklyn, for their exploitation of "Robin Hood of El Dorado."

It was the greatest day Brooklyn has had since it joined the rest of New York City and began to elect aldermen.

Whole Zoo from M-G-M

Most of the crowd which moved in and out all day—to disturb the complacency of the RKO Bldg. elevator operators—gave considerable attention to the M-G-M display, the temporary home of the chimp, which, by the way, wore pink bloomers, the latest type of chimpanzee negligee. M-G-M had a well-stuffed set of animals, including Tarzan out on a limb again, consisting of Leo, the lion, a tiger, three chimps which refused to pay any attention to their living model, and considerable foliage. Everything in the display, including Tarzan, was in restless animation.

This display was under the general direction of its big boss, Capt. Volney Phifer, to whom the Show of Showmanship was merely a four-night stand, prior to a tour of the country in behalf of the new Tarzan series. Other displays, in addition to the United Artists slicker girl and a miniature merry-go-round on U. A. present and planned product, plus the Radio Scotchman, were drawing attention to the films of Columbia Twentieth Century-Fox and Educational, March of Time, Loew's, Paramount, G. B., RKO Theatres, Universal, Warner Pictures and Warner Theatres and Republic.

On tables about the room reposed the (by afternoon) well-thumbed campaigns of the winners of the 1935-36 monthly Quigley Awards, which included the work of showmen from al parts of this country, and from Canada, England, France, India, the Philippines, South Africa, Italy, Spain South America and all points west.

The selling forces began to arrive early, even before the debris of hecti hours of preparation had been completely swept away. Reports vary, bu it was quite definitely ascertained tha A-Mike Vogel caught very little sleep Monday night, and Gertrude Merriam, his constantly active assistant caught even less. That they did a good job was the general consensu of opinion.

Almost the first to arrive was a group of managers from the Randforce circuit, en masse, and all from Brooklyn. Throughout the day to advertising and publicity executive appeared, while the register of managers from the metropolitan area became filled to overflowing.

Kuykendall Attends

He would not admit it, but it wa rumored Earl Carroll came over t find out how it should be done. Whe Ed Kuykendall, president of th M.P.T.O.A., arrived in the afternoon having taken a respite from trad practice discussions, he had a bit o difficulty making up his mind whethe to go first to the Show of Showmanship or visit around. He finally decided on the show, since that closed for the day at 6 o'clock.

With Kuykendall was L. C. Griffith head of the Griffith Bros. circuit, wh was down from his headquarters i Oklahoma City. Present and accounted for at various times in the day—and some may not be accounted fo—were: Joe Vogel and Oscar Doo of Loew's, Y. Frank Freeman, hea of Paramount theatres; S. Barre McCormick of RKO; Nate Blumberg RKO theatre operator, and Domini F. Barreca, Loew's Brooklyn divisio manager.

Among others were: Monroe Greenthal, director of United Artists advertising and publicity; Charles McCarthy, Twentieth Century-Fo director of advertising, publicity an exploitation; Arch Reeve, advertisin manager for Twentieth Century-Fox Sam Dembow, Morton Van Praag and George Dembow, of Nationa Screen Service; Fred McConnell c

World's End

The world practically came to an end along about midnight Monday, during the feverish hours of preparation for the Show of Showmanship, which opened yesterday morning. When Al Sindlinger, exploitation director of the March of Time, arrived with his display, he discovered to his dismay that the large-sized globe would not fit through the door. The best brains were brought into action, with the result that the "world" was taken apart to make it fit.

James A. Fitzpatrick talks over production matters with Sinclair Manson, his new production assistant, at the Tavern. Paul Greenhalgh, Herb Miller, Floyd Stone and Charles Mersereau grouped at a table which has all the earmarks of a Jay Emanuel conclave. Al Friedlander and William Fitelson in a serious conversation. The Brandts, Harry and William at one of the far end tables with Edward Rugoff. Harry Thomas, Budd Rogers and Jack Hoffberg discussing the independent field. Jack Cohn, Abe Montague, Lou Jackter and Lou Weinberg trying to map out the Columbia convention date, Montague insisting he hasn't decided yet. All indications point to a coast conclave unless Harry Cohn vetoes the plan. Ed Moray and Robert Cobb, Republic men from Boston, getting the lowdown from J. J. Milstein, E. H. Goldstein and Edward Schnitzer. Harry Arthur is surrounded by Nate J. Blumberg and John O'Connor and when Cohn gets through with his repast he moves over to Arthur and engages him in a protracted confab. Ed Kuykendall leaves L. C. Griffith and Lewen Pizor for an appointment. Jack Schlaifer and John Nolan are hidden away at one of the rear tables. Al Hovel, Edward Goldstein and Mitchell Klupt occupy the Drifters' Table and are later joined by Thomas. Charles Moses enters late, but has a lot of fun without eating. Charles Reagan and Harry Ross pore over figures at one of the side tables. Irving Mills and William McCaffery discuss music. The meetings start breaking up at around 2:15, following which "Toots" Shor gives a sigh of relief and talks about the new ticker which is being installed.

Walter Gould tries to find room at the table where Emanuel Silverstone is seated with Morris Kinzler and Sam Rinzler, but it's no go and he sits at an adjoining spot. Charles Rosenzweig meets some of his friends and Dave Miller, assistant to Pete Smith, brings in two guests and parks in one of the booths. Harry Rathner comes in late and is lucky to get a table by the window where he can enjoy the rain.

Michigan Giveaway Fight May Be Ended

Detroit, May 19.—The campaign to prevent the use of Screeno, Bank Night and other cash giveaways, which has been waged by Allied of Michigan, will be dropped, it was reported following a meeting of the board of directors. It is said that several members felt they needed to use the games to combat the buying power of Co-Operative and the hold which circuits, chiefly United Detroit Theatres, are gaining on the neighborhood situations.

There is a belief that Allied still frowns on the use of the games, but will not take an active part in preventing their use as it has in the past, notably in the case of the injunctions which were obtained against the Jacob Schreiber houses using them.

Schreiber's appeal on local court rulings against the use of cash prizes is still pending before the State Supreme Court and a ruling is expected soon.

Many exhibitors who have hesitated about using the games during the active Allied campaign against them are said to be getting ready to start them.

ITOA to Take Its Grievances Before U. S. Attorney General

Irked over alleged malpractices reported in the local territory and getting no favorable response to its offers to the M. P. T. O. A. to sit in on the trade practice conferences now being held with major distributors, the I. T. O. A. yesterday named a committee of four to go to Washington and register a complaint with Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

The committee appointed comprises Harry Brandt, president of the unit; Jack Hattem, John Benas and Maurice Fleischman. No date has been set for the capital trip.

Pointed out at the session at the Hotel Astor yesterday was the grievance of one exhibitor, operating a 300-seat house, who was asked to pay $500 for film. A number of other instances were cited where the small theatre owner cannot get product, it was stated.

Although a resolution was passed condemning Paramount's plan to rent advertising material, the members did not take it seriously, it was said after the meeting. Reports on the Joseph law and labor also were made.

French Trend to Socialism Is Threat to Film Industry

The possibility that films may come under the direct control of the Government in France as a result of the Leftist landslide in the recent elections for the Chamber of Deputies, is seen by Paul Faure, general secretary of the Socialist Party, Motion Picture Herald will say today in an article from Pierre Autre, Paris correspondent.

In an interview in the fan magazine, Cinemonde, Faure declared it is the aim of the party to make a national institution of the film industry. The Socialist program calls for the management by the state of all industry. Faure was quoted as saying, "It is impossible for a Government which wants to induct a new kind of policy to leave a medium of propaganda as strong as the cinema in the hands of groups which may have interests contrary to those of the Government."

He pointed out that although the Government under such circumstances

Allied Closes Chesterfield Playdate Deal

Pact Set by Golden and Exhibitor Leaders

Playing time support in an estimated 4,000 independent theatres is to be given to Chesterfield-Invincible pictures next season under an agreement completed by those companies yesterday with Allied States, national independent exhibitor organization.

Completion of the arrangements by Edward Golden, sales representative for the two companies, and an Allied arrangements committee at the Warwick Hotel, confirms Motion Picture Daily's exclusive report yesterday of the producer-exhibitor alliance.

A joint announcement of the plan indicates a partnership basis in back of it, as it is described by Nathan Yamins, Allied president, as "the introduction into the field of a ninth major company." The joint statement, however, adds that "it is not prompted by any desire to make money out of production. Rather, it is the desire to give to the exhibitor more product of a quality that he can with pride present to his public."

The statement sets forth that the move is regarded by the organizations

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Love Begins at Twenty"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, May 20.—A succession of domestic comedy situations which furnishes good family type of entertainment. The story is principally Hugh Herbert's, giving him the opportunity to indulge in a quick-paced series of his familiar character antics.

Herbert, a hard-working, small town citizen, lives in constant terror of his domineering wife, Dorothy Vaughn, and his hard-boiled boss, Clarence Wilson. His one ambition is the successful promotion of the love affair between his daughter, Patricia Ellis, and Warren Hull.

In the course of events Herbert is robbed of some bonds by stick-up man Robert Gleckler, whereupon the henpecked, dishwashing victim imbibes freely of firewater provided by Hull. Attending a lodge meeting he again comes face to face with Gleckler, whose pal, Henry Otto, slips their loot in Herbert's pocket just as the cops raid the meeting looking for the crooks. They, and Herbert, are clapped in jail.

Herbert, placed in the same cell with Gleckler, goes to work on him and gives him a beating up. Gleckler confesses that he is a former sweetheart of Miss Vaughn—a man who has always been held up to Herbert as a model. About this point, Miss Vaughn experiences a change of heart and permits the marriage of Hull and Miss Ellis.

The film closes with a worm-turning finale in which Herbert is welcomed home as a hero and made a partner in Wilson's business.

The story is based on a play by Martin Flavin. Dalton Trumbo and Tom Reed did a script that is a catchy combination of laugh-provoking action and dialogue. The Frank McDonald direction establishes fun as the dominating quality and also permits nice contributions to the merriment by the minor characters: Hobart Cavanaugh, Arthur Aylesworth and Mary Treen. The show should click well in smaller houses.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,160. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

"Educating Father"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, May 20.—This second offering in the Jones family series is a pleasing comedy and should sustain interest despite its slight plot.

The action starts when Jed Prouty, head of the tribe, insists that his eldest son, Kenneth Howell, follow him in the drug business and abandon his own ideas to become a flier. When the boy disobeys and gets into trouble while flying the matter is made a serious issue. Howell promises to remain on the ground, but breaks his pledge to get Prouty back from a fishing trip in time to save the drug store lease.

Director James Tinling seems most interested in getting over the character portrayals and succeeds with the help of good performances from Shirley Deane, Spring Byington and Florence Roberts as the senior members of the family, and June Carlson, George Ernest and William Mahan as the juniors. Dixie Dunbar is effective as a sub-deb.

The screen play is an original by Katherine Kavanaugh, Edward T. Lowe and John Patrick. The Max Golden production is entirely suitable for smaller communities and neighborhoods at which the picture is aimed.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,233. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

GTE Reorganization Approved by Court

WILMINGTON, Del., May 20.—Chancellor Josiah P. Wolcott in Chancery Court today approved the sale of assets of the receivership estate of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., which were sold to the reorganization committee on Monday for $4,039,367 and several other proposals at the same time.

These included a certificate of incorporation, the bylaws and transfer of assets to the new company; a trust indenture between the new company and the Commercial National Bank and Trust Co. of New York relating to $2,000,000 in five-year, five per cent convertible debentures which were proposed in the original reorganization plan; a $2,000,000 loan to the new company by Chase National Bank, which thus will participate in the reorganization, and the proposed escrow between the Chase institution, the new company and City Bank Farmers Trust Co., New York, escrow agents for the new company, relating to issuance of option warrants to be issued in the reorganization.

"Zombies" Campaign Reported Newark Hit

NEWARK, May 20.—The high-pressure campaign put on by Bob Ungerfeld for the run of "The Return of the Zombies" at the RKO Terminal clicked, the theatre management reported tonight. The local dailies went for some of the stunts which aroused public curiosity and, continued the theatre, reflected in the gross.

He left in the afternoon for Chicago, his home town. Meanwhile, the west is without a division head. Latest report is that one of the branch managers will be given the job next week. Max Roth, garbed in an aquamarine shirt and tie combination, is feting E. C. Grainger. Hopper states he'll return to the coast in a few days, while Doane has no idea when he'll be seeing Hollywood again. Walter Futter and Jack D. Al Hovel and Mitchell Klupt reminiscing, the latter recalling how he was a sports writer many years ago, and former Judge Hovel brings back his experiences as a baker's delivery boy. A. H. Schwartz, who comes over from Dinty Moore's, brags about his two-hour jockey feat in the morning at Cedarhurst, declaring he felt like a 16-year-old youngster. He also scotches the report that has him taking over operation of the Skouras houses in Long Island with the brief query "How can you stop reports from getting around?" Gregory Dickson and Ken O'Brien pay their weekly visit. Becoming more of a daily visiting team are Harry C. Arthur, Marco Wolff, Jack Partington, Irving Lesser and Hal Horne. No one can understand what Horne is trying to say. Joe Seidelman is around with a guest at one of the side tables. The red tie is a sure sign of a close summer. William German, Richard Brady and Al Friedman convene at one of the front tables, the usual meeting spot for this group. Al Friedlander shows up with "cheaters"—glasses to Klupt. Harry Thomas and Budd Rogers are talking and eating together until Jack Miller of Chicago breezes in and sits at their table. Jack Barnstyn is alone. Alec Moss' tan is so dark one can hardly recognize him under the amber lights. Nat Saland and William Hackel are kidding again. L. C. Griffith, William Fitelson are among the others. would not use the films especially for propaganda purposes, "sometimes we could make some pictures showing our social ideas."

Nationalization of the industry, Autre declares, virtually means nothing but seizure by two principal companies, supported and managed by the state, of the complete activity of the business. It is generally reported that it is because of this possible nationalization move that the French Tribunal of Trade has postponed its decision on the receivership of Gaumont-Franco Film-Aubert, as well as Pathe Cinema. It is expected that the Government will group these two major companies as the foundation of the so-called National Cinema.

The French trade press is urging strongly the complete cooperation of all branches of the industry in a working organization to protect its interests and protest against any nationalization plans.

FROM NOW ON THE NEWSREEL YOU SHOW SHOULD BE INDEPENDENT!

The Universal Newsreel is utterly independent of everything except your audience!

It has no candidate for political preference.

It does not care a rap about wets or drys.

It is not currying favor with peace advocates or war-seekers.

From now until election time (and forever after) it is smart for you to watch your newsreel—and watch your step.

Don't let your screen be used to pull irons out of the fire for any political party or candidate.

Don't let your screen be used for propaganda by anyone or any interest.

Run the newsreel which entertains, thrills, and furnishes laughs.

Run the newsreel which is edited by newspaper men who are as cool and as independent as a hog on ice.

Don't let your own political leanings influence your show. Most of all, don't sponsor any newsreel which has any axe to grind.

The Universal Newsreel is happy and free. It is the best newsreel in the world.

identified with it as their solution "of the monopoly they allege exists in the motion picture business" which "can only be relieved by more product." The statement says that Chesterfield-Invincible will deliver 18 pictures next season "as the start of an ambitious program looking toward the eventual delivery of 52 pictures a year."

The arrangement between the producer-distributors and Allied was consummated after a study of the independent field, the statement relates, and resulted in a promise from Chesterfield-Invincible that "if independent support could go behind them, they would scrap their present plans in favor of better pictures in view of the possibility of wide distribution. Estimates place it," the Chesterfield-Invincible-Allied statement declares, "at 4,000 theatres as being set through independent support."

Considered at Cleveland

The statement relates that the subject was discussed at a special meeting of Allied heads two weeks ago in Cleveland "at a secret meeting called for that purpose" and that those who attended the meeting and approved the plan pending final negotiations were Martin G. Smith, P. J. Wood, George Erdman, M. B. Horwitz, Henry Greenberger, John Kalafat and several other Ohio exhibitors; H. M. Richey, Detroit, Nathan Yamins, Fall River, Mass.; Sidney Samuelson, New Jersey; William Davis and Fred Herrington, Pittsburgh; Aaron Saperstein, Chicago; Roy Bair, Indiana; Frank Hornig, Maryland; A. C. Gutenberg, Milwaukee, and E. A. Peaslee, Minneapolis.

The meeting appointed Saperstein, Samuelson, Richey and Yamins to prepare a contract, and this was completed yesterday. George Batcheller, president of Chesterfield, and Maury M. Cohen, president of Invincible, represented the companies. The two will concentrate on production and leave for the coast at an early date to prepare the first release, which is scheduled for delivery Aug. 15. The schedule calls for one release every three weeks thereafter.

Edward Golden will handle distribution and sales and leaves on a country-wide trip at once to select local distributors for the product. Plans are being made, it was said, to make it possible for the exhibitor supporters of the venture to have a voice in the selection of story material and casting of the pictures.

Kuykendall Attacks Deal

Commenting on what he described as the "reported 'partnership' deal" between Allied and Chesterfield and Invincible, Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., in a statement issued last night said, in part:

"Much heat and hatred have been promoted by Allied against what is vaguely dubbed as 'affiliated exhibitors.' Just what status do Allied's own members now assume? Does this official affiliation with a 'producer' make the Allied members all affiliated exhibitors and make it inevitable that they all be classified as tools of the producers in industry affairs from now on? As partners of the producers, do they propose to sell their own pictures in blocks or separately? After bringing in the W. C. T. U., the M. P. Research Council and such organizations to bitterly denounce the movies for selling (and buying) pictures in blocks, how can they consistently sell pictures other than one at a time? And what about blind selling? Will each picture be completed and screened before each exhibitor is asked to buy it, so he can know exactly what he is going to get?"

"Not in Allied Yet," Says Stern

CHICAGO, May 20.—Discussing recent reports his circuit would join Allied in a protest against B. & K.'s plan to reinstate duals in the local territory, Emil Stern, head of Essaness, today stated:

"We have not joined Allied as yet, but are contemplating doing so. Negotiations have not been definitely consummated and our reasons for this are we are independent theatre men. We have no affiliation with producers such as B. & K. with Paramount and Warners with the Warner circuit.

"If we join Allied we will not sit on the board, nor will we be on the staff of officers," Stern said. A final decision on the matter will be made in a few days.

Harvey Gibson on Paramount Board finished negatives were pledged by Paramount as security for the new credit under an arrangement attacked later by the bankruptcy trustees of the company who contended it constituted a pledging of the company's assets so as to result in giving the banks a preferential position over other Paramount creditors. The trustees' suit was withdrawn, however, under a settlement provision in the Paramount reorganization plan which allowed the banks' claims against the company in full and with interest.

An official statement from Paramount announcing Gibson's election to the board yesterday said that Manufacturers' Trust Co. is "substantially interested in the company today."

The Paramount board meeting also elected Stanton Griffis to the company's executive committee to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Gerald Brooks. Griffis is associated with the investment firm of Hemphill, Noyes and was elected to the board several months ago to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Frank A. Vanderlip.

Sten's Latest

London, May 20.—"A Woman Alone," Anna Sten's latest film, just previewed here, is a highly colorful production with Russian atmosphere and spectacular singing and dancing. It is a story of a peasant girl's love for an officer. Jealous, her soldier fiance strikes the officer, is court martialed, and to save him, the girl confesses to an affair with the officer which she did not have. Finally she marries the officer.

Miss Sten's performance is outstanding, as are those of Henry Wilcoxon as the officer and Esme Percy as the general who victimizes the soldier. With no earmarks of British production, the film is up to Hollywood standard.

Miller and Lewen Pizor. Another meeting with the M-G-M sales heads will be held at a later date.

The committee was assured of the complete cooperation of Republic Pictures in achieving its 10-point trade practice program at a morning meeting yesterday with Jack J. Milstein, Republic sales manager. The committee was assured by Milstein, Kuykendall said, that Republic is in complete accord with the exhibitors' program and would grant a 20 per cent cancellation, the maximum sought by the M. P. T. O. A., in every case in which the company's complete program was bought. Republic also stated a policy against the collection of the score charge, according to the exhibitor committee's statement.

The committee hopes to conclude its meetings tomorrow if sessions can be arranged with Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists. Meetings with these two distributors have been delayed because of the absence from the city of John D. Clark, sales manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, and George J. Schaefer, vice-president of United Artists, both of whom have been in Hollywood but are expected back daily. Kuykendall said that the committee, which is composed entirely of out of town men, would remain here over the weekend if a meeting could be arranged for Monday but otherwise all would leave Friday night or Saturday even though meetings with the remaining distributors had not been held. In this event the committee would gather here again early in June to revisit companies with whom it has already met and to complete its schedule of meetings with the others.

The committee may meet with G. B. today. A wire asking Warner sales officials to meet the committee Friday has been sent to that company.

No Portal Deal as Kent, Schenck Sail

Schenck declared the nine films to be made here for Twentieth Century-Fox under the supervision of Robert T. Kane will be made with a view to suitability for American as well as English distribution. Kane will be permitted to draw on Hollywood for star names for the nine films, Schenck said.

Twentieth Century-Fox has purchased from Alexander Korda the rights to "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "Under the Red Robe." Both will be produced by Kane here for world distribution. The company also obtained the screen rights to the play "The Old Folks at Home," which ran for a year here with Sybil Thorndike and Marie Tempest in the cast.

Schenck and Kent yesterday saw an uncut version of "As You Like It," which Twentieth Century-Fox will release. Seen in more than 11,000 feet, the film will be cut to 8,500 feet. Schenck was enthusiastic over the performance of Elisabeth Bergner.

New Score Charge Policy Next Season Is Foreseen

H. M. Warner, As Reporter Interviews His Son-in-Law

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Harry M. Warner developed his reportorial penchant one step further yesterday, taking his pad and pencil in hand to interview Mervyn LeRoy, his son-in-law, upon the latter's arrival on the Conte di Savoia. Warner, it will be remembered, returned about 10 days ago from a vacation abroad and the germ of an idea apparently took root when he tried to interview a Motion Picture Daily reporter who met the boat for the same purpose.

Spurred on by Sam E. Morris and Harry Charnas, who, likewise, had a couple of questions to ask, Warner was momentarily lost for a name of a paper he could say he represented. He turned to Motion Picture Daily's ship news sleuth for a suggestion. Warner was given a fictitious name and he proceeded to use one.

The first question the Warner president asked was: "What will the next baby be, a boy or a girl?"

"Say, be careful," LeRoy replied,

The Music Hall was opened Dec. 27, 1932.

Report Miller to Quit Chicago Unit

Chicago, May 21.—Jack Miller is planning an immediate resignation from the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, which he has headed for 12 years, it is understood here. Miller, a member of the M.P.T.O.A. trade practices committee, has been in New York engaging in discussions with major distributors. He is en route here, expected to arrive tomorrow.

Miller's contemplated resignation from the exhibitor group is said to be based on the withdrawal of Essaness from the Miller organization to join Allied in protest against the plan of B. & K. to reinstate duals in the territory, and the jeopardizing of the income from his own theatres as a result of the extra week's clearance which is to be granted to B. & K. houses.

It is understood Miller's interests

Entire "U" Lineup To Fox West Coast

Universal yesterday closed a deal for the showing of its entire new season lineup in the 435 Fox West Coast theatres. J. R. Grainger, general sales manager, acted in the negotiations for Universal, while for the circuit were Spyros and Charles Skouras, A. M. Bowles, L. J. McCarthy and George Balsdon.

Five Distributors Agree To Modifications in MPTOA Talks

Definite indications that the score charge will be well on its way out of existence next season are apparent in distribution quarters since the meetings of six national distributors with the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee during the past two weeks.

Indications are that at least five national distributors will either eliminate the charge entirely next season or will so modify and liberalize their policy in connection with it that it can no longer be referred to fairly in exhibitor circles as a "distributor racket." The belief is, that wherever the charge is not eliminated outright it will remain only as a "profit insurance" on accounts which otherwise would cost the distributor more to sell than he could realize on them.

With as much progress in this direction as is indicated for next season, many representative figures in exhibition and distribution believe that the score charge will be a thing of the past by the season following.

The M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee may complete its current meeting with a session with United Artists today. This is dependent upon the arrival from the coast of George J. Schaefer. If Schaefer is delayed, the meeting will not be held until early

Too Many Films in South America—Day

With approximately 500 features released annually, the greatest problem of the film industry in South America is "too many pictures," John L. Day, Jr., general manager for Paramount for the past 21 years in that territory, stated yesterday. There are a limited number of first runs in the various key cities and because of the great supply of output it is difficult to get playing time, he said.

In Buenos Aires there are 18 first runs and in Rio de Janeiro there are about five. If a picture is held over a second week, another attraction, usually from the same exhibitor, is sacrificed, according to Day. Preference in the Latin American countries is for American pictures with superimposed titles. Dubbed films receive mild response. About 15 pictures are produced in the Argentine yearly, the Paramount representative stated.

New theatre building continues all the time, Day said. Three to four structures are now being erected in Rio de Janeiro and a 1,000-seat house is in the final stages of construction at Buenos Aires. M-G-M is building four theatres in South America which are expected to be ready for opening in September.

Approximately 95 per cent of the Paramount product released in America is handled in South America, Day stated. He plans to be here about two weeks. In a few days he will leave for Chicago to visit his father.

Consolidated to Put Games Back in Bronx

Consolidated Amusements next week will reinstate games in several of its Bronx theatres, Laurence Bolognino stated yesterday. The specific houses and the type of game have not been set. The move was made as a result of District Attorney Samuel J. Foley's edict earlier in the week not to bother theatres playing games within the law.

Gilbert Josephson, general manager for the circuit, has resigned. No successor has been appointed, it was said.

New Supply Dealer Unit Sets Meeting

The Associated Theatre Supply Dealers, Inc., in the process of formation by George de Kruif, former executive of National Theatre Supply Co., has definitely set its initial meeting for June 8 and 9 at the Medinah Club in Chicago. The convention will be attended by at least 20 dealers, according to Rudolph Eisenberg, who will be general counsel of the organization. The dealers are located in various parts of the country, he said. In addition, there will be present representatives of 70 equipment manufacturers.

No exhibits or displays are planned for this first meeting, which will concern itself exclusively with the formulation of methods of operation of the organization. It is expected that the new group will begin to function actively during the summer. De Kruif, who has been in Chicago for several weeks, will preside at the two-day session. Any further meetings will be decided upon at that time.

The convention coincides in point of time with the annual convention of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n., headed by J. E. Robin, which will be held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago, June 4-8.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Early to Bed"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, May 21.—This is surely a tonic for every depressive ailment. As an effective laugh-getter it surpasses all the Mary Boland-Charlie Ruggles farce comedies thus far. The situations and the supporting dialogue are aimed carefully and craftily at the solar plexus and succeed hilariously in hitting the mark.

Ruggles does a naturally funny characterization as a clerk who sees promotion after 26 years on the same job in the employ of Robert McWade, a ruthless manufacturer. His courtship of Miss Boland finally takes, after 20 years of romantic association. Married, he combines business with his moneymoon by taking Miss Boland to a health resort love nest where he plans to make an office coup by selling big merchant George Barbier several million glass eyes.

Things begin to happen faster and funnier when it is discovered that Ruggles is a sleep-walker, for which reason he had not married Miss Boland earlier in life. There is a subsequent theft and murder, with Ruggles suspected because of his sleep-walking activities. A hilarious climax finds Ruggles on one of his usual nocturnal walks followed by the entire resort patronage. He suddenly awakens, captures the resort menace and wins a good job.

Miss Boland as the tittering wife trying to keep Ruggles chained to the bed, gives another of her characteristically fine performances, as does the entire cast. Norman McLeod's direction is first rate, while Arthur Kober has done a riotously funny adaptation from the original by Lucien Littlefield and Chandler Sprague. Henry Sharp's photography is excellent. The film is top notch for any box office in all spots.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,187. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

"Bunker Bean"

(Radio)

Hollywood, May 21.—Light entertainment is offered in this new version of the Harry Leon Wilson novel and the Lee Wilson Dodd play. Owen Davis, Jr., makes Bunker Bean a likable character, establishing himself as a potential future favorite.

Davis is the sycophant secretary to Robert McWade, air tycoon, until he inherits stabilizer patents that yield him $5,000 in cash. Investing one-fifth of the inheritance with phony seers, Davis is told that he is the reincarnation of an early Egyptian king and is given the mummy of his ancestor to spur his courage. Inspired, he sells the stabilizer to McWade for a high figure and wins Louise Latimer, McWade's daughter, assuring himself a bright future.

Davis underplays the role effectively, managing the transition of the character expertly. Good support is contributed by Jessie Ralph, Berton Churchill, Hedda Hopper and Russell Hicks. Co-directors William Hamilton and Edward Killy timed the action nicely for laughs. Edmund North, James Gow and Dorothy Yost did the screen play. William Sistrom produced.

The picture should please as a comedy offering.

and A. P. Waxman, advertising counsel.

Weeks said yesterday that in addition to his force of managers and salesmen, 12 new members recently added in the field, would be at the convention. These men are: Tom Jennings, Boston; Robert Winnig, Des Moines; Donald Conley, Minneapolis; Ed Brichette, Cincinnati; James Nash, Pittsburgh; Olive Waxman, Detroit; George Blumenthal, San Francisco; Amos Leonard and Jules Jasper, Buffalo; Walter Kofeldt, Los Angeles; George Davidson, Cleveland, and Reuben Rosenblatt, Milwaukee.

Following the Saturday session, the conventioneers will be guests at a dinner arranged in their honor at the Paradise, Broadway hot spot.

A trailer, almost feature-length, presenting shots from the new season's product either completed or now in production, will be a feature of the confab. At the suggestion of Waxman, the studios have been supplying scenes shot from day to day, and the trailer, designed by National Screen Service, presents a complete picture of G.B. studio activities.

G. B. Hits Production Peak

London, May 21. — Shepherd's Bush, studio headquarters for G.B., reports a new production high with 10 features either completed or in various stages of production.

Completed are "Secret Agent," co-starring Peter Lorre, Madeleine Carroll, Robert Young and John Gielgud; "The Man Who Lived Again," starring Boris Karloff, and "East Meets West," starring George Arliss. Also completed is "Nine Days a Queen," historical drama, featuring Cedric Hardwicke, John Mills, Nova Pilbeam and Sybil Thorndyke.

The following are in the final process of editing: "Everything Is Thunder," based on the novel by Jocelyn Lee Hardy, in which Constance Bennett heads a cast including Douglass Montgomery and Oscar Homolka; "Doomed Cargo," co-starring Edmund Lowe and Constance Cummings; "The Two of Us," a comedy with music, starring Jack Hulbert; "Where There's A Will," co-starring Will Hay and Gina Malo.

Shooting on "The Great Barrier," with Richard Arlen, Barry Mackay and Lilli Palmer, is now in progress in British Columbia where exteriors are being made for this story of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Preparations are under way for production on "The Hidden Power," based on a novel by Joseph Conrad, and for which Sylvia Sidney, Robert Donat were signed. Alfred Hitchcock, who was at the directorial helm of "Secret Agent," is to direct.

G. B. List to Dickinson

Kansas City, May 21.—Glenn W. Dickinson has completed a deal with Russ Borg, G.B. exchange manager, to take next season's G.B. product 100 per cent for 20 theatres in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa.

"Love Again" Score on Air

The entire music score of "It's Love Again" will go over the air Sunday on the "America Dances" program. The hookup will be via Columbia and cover the United States and Canada. Station WABC will be the New York outlet.

They Say at G. B.—

Judging from his broad smiles, George W. Weeks, genial G. B. general sales manager, seems as proud of his boys as Papa Dionne of his Quins.

Joe Kaliski, Washington, seemed very unhappy until he discovered a bagatelle machine at a drugstore not too far from the Warwick. Joe, who has been champion bagatelle player at the Variety Club, is willing to take anyone on for high score.

Special Representative Reg Wilson is renewing acquaintanceship with his family at Cos Cob. His son wanted to know who that strange man was.

Ben Rogers of the Boston Rogers lost no time rounding up a foursome for a fast game of contract.

Arthur (Dynamite) Greenblatt walks around looking like the cat who just ate the canary. It's been good business for Art, and he's all pepped up over the new season's potentialities.

Carl Goe, G. B.'s official Beau Brummell, is getting serious sartorial competition this year. The boys have gone in for Technicolor effects in a big way. The convention hall looked like the Rainbow Room, with Paul de Outo blazing forth in a maroon shirt, John Scully sporting a nifty azure affair, and Reg Wilson flagrantly offering a Kelly green.

Herb Given's pep certainly gives the lie to the constant reference to Philadelphia as the sleepy city.

Mark Goldman, clean from Pittsburgh (oh, oh) said he was going to take a walk around the reservoir in Central Park. No doubt to keep him from getting too lonesome for his water-marked city.

George Rosenbaum, Buffalo, is complaining of the upkeep on the wrist watch he won as Weeks' personal prize for last year's playdate contest. George, who apparently thinks he makes his sales talk more potent by banging the table with his fist, has already bought 20 crystals for the watch.

John Scully, whose voice matches his size, has been presented with a telephone silencer, accompanied by the request that he use it whenever possible.

Freddie Wagoner, Indianapolis, says he has to wear two sets of everything (socks, ties, etc.) to use up all the prizes he won in the "Big Push" race.

Practically every member of the feminine contingent at the G. B. home office misses a couple of heartbeats every time Irving Jacobs breezes in, not excepting Peggy Goldberg.

Empire Films Group Here on Sale Meets

Branch managers and the sales staff of Empire Films, Ltd., headed by O. R. Hanson, president, and Alf W. Perry, general manager, reached New York yesterday for conferences with producers whose pictures are distributed by the company in Canada. The entire group is stopping at the Warwick.

Today and tomorrow the group will attend the G. B. sales convention, and on Monday they will be present at the Republic convention. The return trip to Canada will take place early next week.

In the group, in addition to Hanson and Perry, are: Paul Nathanson, vice-president; Archie Laurie, Toronto branch manager; W. A. Marriott, publicity director, and Frank Fisher, Walter Kennedy and Norman Brooke, Toronto salesmen; Gerry Hoyt, St. John branch manager; I. H. Allen, Montreal branch manager; L. Coval, Winnipeg; J. Palensky, Calgary, and J. Archer, Vancouver.

The dispute, although not believed to involve a serious difference, threatens complications if it is not cleared up before the guild membership meeting on Monday, which has been called to ratify the revised basic agreement, after two and one-half months of quibbling.

The managers contend that the provision gives the guild the right to establish a basic royalty in making such contracts, and fears that their use might frighten film money from the producing field, according to report.

Burroughs-Tarzan Lists Total of 16

Burroughs-Tarzan Pictures has adopted a new policy on campaign books for its releases. It will have two—one for each eight features. The first has just been issued by James J. Goldberg.

It is novel in appearance, the cover being of paper resembling hammered copper, with the edges of the pages cut back so that each shows a different color for each feature.

Of the first eight subjects listed, the first four are complete and are being cut. They are: "The Drag-Net," "Phantom of Santa Fe," "Tundra" and "Three Wise Monks."

M. H. Baseball Leader

In recent games of the M. P. Baseball League, which includes nine teams, Consolidated Film Industries beat Paramount, 11-8; NBC trimmed Skouras, 8-0; United Artists was beaten by Paramount, 2-1, and the Music Hall beat Skouras, 9-3. The Music Hall team is leading the league. Each team will play 16 games. Other teams in the group are Columbia, Loew-Metro and RKO.

Score Charge Modification Now Foreseen

in June when the committee plans to reconvene for additional sessions with those already visited and for first meetings with the four remaining companies with which it has not met. These are, in addition to United Artists, Twentieth Century-Fox, G.B. and Warners. The latter had not replied up to late yesterday to the committee's request for a meeting today.

Companies with which meetings have been held are Paramount, Universal, RKO, Columbia, Republic and M-G-M. Assurances of definite concessions from each were received by the committee. Little doubt remains that an unqualified cancellation privilege, in some instances amounting to more than the present 10 per cent, will result from the meetings and be as direct a boon to exhibitors as the more liberal policies indicated for the score charge. It is also apparent that a sufficient number of national distributors are in favor of the setting up of local conciliation boards to make that project possible. Through these boards it is hoped to conciliate many local trade differences, especially those arising from overbuying and unfair clearance.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, and O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga., leave for their homes tomorrow morning. Kuykendall plans to attend the convention of the M.P.T.O. of Virginia, June 1 and 2, at Virginia Beach, and return here immediately afterward to resume the trade practice meetings. L. C. Griffith of Oklahoma City and Charles E. Williams of Omaha, other committee members, plan to leave tonight. Jack Miller of Chicago and Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia left yesterday.

Allied Men Seeking Washington Speaker

Allied States is reported to be currying Washington in an effort to line up an impressive Government name for its speakers' list at the organization's convention to be held at the Hollenden, Cleveland, June 3 to 5.

Congressman Pettengill of Indiana, author of the block booking bill before the House, has been sought for some time as the "surprise" speaker for the convention, but the uncertainty of an adjournment of Congress by the date of the convention will make it impossible to announce his acceptance in time to reap any benefit in the way of attendance which might be attracted by the name. The uncertainty of receiving a definite acceptance from Pettengill has sent Allied searching for a name draw in another direction, reported to be the Attorney General's office. Nothing definite has developed in that direction, either, up to now.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hot Money"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—Farce comedy-drama keyed to a speedy tempo with the entire cast contributing engaging performances, this is pleasant amusement, geared to appeal to general audiences. The picture is not pretentious. It concentrates on substantial entertainment and has elements in story content, dialogue, action and situations that should satisfy audiences.

The story is built on a smart promoter's get-rich-quick idea at the expense of suckers. It has a full quota of laughs contrasted by enough light drama and romance to hold the interest.

Ross Alexander, as a high pressure stock salesman, is front for Andrew Tombes, a promoter. Joseph Cawthorne, a capitalist, gets in dutch when Paul Gratz, an inventor, disappears. As a gasoline substitute fails to work, investors yell for the return of their money and the Better Business Bureau steps in. As the excitement runs high, Beverly Roberts, who shares the romantic interest with Alexander, gives the menacing buyers, Cy Kendall and Harry Burns, a jug supposed to contain cider. When they put it in their gas tank it proves to be a super fuel.

As the police descend upon Alexander and things look bad, Kendall and Burns come rushing back enthusiastically acclaiming the power of the product. This guarantees millions for the inventor, promoters and investors.

The story by Abem Kandel, screen play by William Jacobs and added dialogue by Harry Seymour, make for snappy action. In handling the story material and players Director William McGann has displayed good craftsmanship. There are many angles for interesting selling campaigns.

Production Code Seal, No. 2.259. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Secret Patrol"

(Columbia)

Action fare set in the Northwest and concerning the activities of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, this picture should be satisfactory entertainment on a dual program or on the week-end bill when action is the requirement.

Starred is Charles Starrett, with the support of Finis Barton, Henry Mollison and J. P. McGowan in particular. With the familiar background of the north woods, and the familiar basic plot structure, the film has its quota of action and excitement, and self-sacrificing romance.

Starrett and Mollison, who is a son of the commandant of the post, are in love with Miss Barton, the commandant's ward. She chooses Mollison, and Starrett, when offered a dangerous assignment which may mean promotion, insists that Mollison take it, since the promotion will be of value to him. The assignment is the investigation of mysterious "accidents" in a lumber camp. The pace moves rapidly as Mollison is imprisoned by the gang, Starrett goes to find him, and Mollison is killed in a final battle with the gang, which leaves the way open for the expected completion of the romance between Starrett and Miss Barton. David Silman directed.

Berle, Gleason at Local 306 Benefit

A preview of a picture and film shorts will also be a part of the program.

Harry Warner Interrogates Mervyn LeRoy

"the boys will think something is doing."

"Well, I'm going to be the grandfather and I ought to know in advance," Warner stated.

The customs inspectors began to get busy. The trade paper men became restive, getting nowhere while the hustle and bustle of checking the baggage got under way. Mrs. LeRoy stood on the sidelines and was joined by her father, mother and friends. In a few minutes the business of clearing the customs was over and LeRoy was free to answer questions.

"I'm definitely going to produce for myself," he replied to reports about forming his own unit. "I'm going to make four to six pictures a year with my own company. It will most likely be known as Mervyn LeRoy Prod., Inc., but I haven't decided on the name yet," he said.

All indications point to the producer continuing with Warners. LeRoy asserted he expected to close a deal for this arrangement before he leaves for the coast.

Charnas then rejoined the interviewers and asked LeRoy about color, to which the producer responded.

"I expect pictures to be made in natural colors in two to three years," LeRoy declared. "The same film that is now being used will be employed, but the colors will be picked up in the soup," he said. "Eastman Kodak is now using the process with 16mm films, but can only make one print. However, they are developing the process awfully fast and I expect it will be ready for 35 mm film in about two years."

Lubitsch Also Aboard

LeRoy purchased two stories while abroad and has options on four others. He has under consideration one player whose name he would not mention. While abroad, LeRoy visited France, Wales, Italy and England. He was away two and a half months.

Ernst Lubitsch and his wife were passengers on the same liner. They spent three months touring England, Austria, Hungary, Poland, Italy, Russia and France.

Queried about his status at Paramount, Lubitsch said: "I'm glad I'll be responsible for my own pictures instead of everybody else's. I'm going to have a unit of my own and produce three to four a year. Marlene Dietrich will be in one of the groups."

Lubitsch added he did not know what would be his first picture when he returns to the Paramount lot. He did not sign anyone while abroad. Asked if he had bought any stories, Lubitsch replied:

"I have a trunk full of stories. I read a number of them. Some of them were bad and some were pretty good."

He expects to leave for Hollywood Monday or Tuesday, probably the first date, he said.

Just as he was about to leave, Mrs. Warner produced a recent picture of the LeRoy baby on a kiddie car. "That's the boy," the father recalled enthusiastically.

Warner plans to go to the coast next month.

20th-Fox, Warners Close 3-Year Deal

Twentieth Century-Fox, with the various theatre division heads.

Howard Waugh, southern head, will arrive Monday from Memphis to work on the setup for his theatres. Ben Kalmenson is due later in the week from Pittsburgh. Other theatre executives who will visit Bond include Ted Schlanger and Lester Kreiger, Philadelphia; John J. Payette, Washington; Nat Wolff, Cleveland; Lou Halper, Los Angeles. No two groups will be in New York at the same time. Halper is scheduled to make the eastern trip in July.

For the 1936-37 season, the distributor will have 56 features.

All Warner Product Is Taken by F. W. C.

All Warner and First National product for next season will be shown in Fox West Coast theatres under a deal closed between Spyros Skouras, representing F.W.C. and Gradwell Sears, western and southern division sales head for the distributor. Sitting in on the negotiations for the circuit were Charles Skouras, Arch Bowles, William T. Powers and Edward Zabel.

Warner-Fox Deal Reported

MILWAUKEE, May 21.—Bookings are being traded by Fox and Warners in the Green Bay and Sheboygan territories, it is reported. In the former spot, Warners control the Bay, while Fox operates the Orpheum and Strand and the latter is reported doing the booking for the Bay in addition to its own houses. Warners have control in Sheboygan, where they operate the Majestic, Rex and Sheboygan, and are reported booking for Fox's Van der Vaart as well.

Indications that this is the case are also apparent here, where Fox has been booking pictures from the Warner as extended first runs into its Strand, downtown house recently acquired. James Keefe, formerly with Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., has been placed in charge of Fox advertising and publicity, succeeding Charles Lowenberg, who has been named supervisor for the circuit's Wisconsin and upper Michigan houses.

An application was made yesterday before Supreme Court Justice George H. Furman in Brooklyn to examine Fox and his wife before the trial and for an inspection of his books to determine whether he was solvent or insolvent at the time of the alleged transfer.

Justice Furman reserved decision in the matter.

Circuses Hit Bridgeport

BRIDGEPORT, May 21.—Theatre managers in this area are having competition from three circuses in the four weeks starting yesterday. Ringling Barnum and Bailey show is among the three booked into the city during that period.

Ampa Meetings for Tuesday Discussed

Ampa may change its meeting days from Thursday to Tuesday. The proposal is being considered by the membership. The organization's board of directors has discussed the matter and has reached an agreement that Tuesdays are preferable to a number of members and newspaper representatives.

Various opinions were voiced yesterday at the meeting and it was finally decided to send out questionnaires to members. It was pointed out by Paul Benjamin that for 18 years Ampa has met on Thursdays.

Because metal casts were not ready, awards for the best advertising copy designed for the trade and public, the most practical press sheet and the best poster will not be made next Thursday as planned, but on June 4.

Efforts are being made to set up quarters at a hotel to be known as the permanent home of Ampa. John C. Flinn thanked the organization for its splendid turnout at the Jesse Lasky testimonial on May 21.

Greeks Prefer Action

WASHINGTON, May 21.—American western, mystery, detective, and action pictures in general enjoy great popularity among the poorer classes of the population in Greece, reports Commercial Attache K. L. Rankin from Athens to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce. These pictures form a regular part of the programs of the so-called "popular" theatres, which attract large audiences.

New York, who declared: "There could not possibly be a more fitting memorial to his name and I urge all of our citizens to join in this tribute."

The Memorial Hospital will be maintained as a retreat for the ill and needy of the stage and screen professions.

Theatres are participating in the drive under either one of two plans. About half of the total number which are joining in the drive are conducting collections among the audiences, taken in conjunction with a 20-minute trailer, which features Bing Crosby singing "Home on the Range," a Rogers favorite, and containing tributes and appeals from Lowell Thomas, Irvin S. Cobb and May Robson.

The alternative plan, to which approximately 2,500 houses have subscribed, entails membership by the theatre and the promise to contribute a fixed amount, ranging from $10 for seating capacity up to 500 to $25 for capacity above 2,000. It provides also for the use of a short trailer announcing the theatre's participation and urging patron contributions, to be left at the box-office.

New Writers Group Votes Constitution

Arbitration Sought As Settlement Basis

Hollywood, May 22.—Screen Playwrights, Inc., new organization of screen writers, formed in opposition to the Screen Writers' Guild, met at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel last night to approve a constitution and bylaws and officially induct the directors.

A copy of the constitution is to be filed for incorporation at Sacramento within a few days. The 11 members appointed to the board are: Rupert Hughes, Bess Meredyth, William Slavens McNutt, Kubec Glasmon, William Conselman, Sonia Levien, Grover Jones, Frank Butler, Gerald Geraghty, Waldemar Young and Tom Reed. McNutt was named as temporary secretary.

In an explanation of the purpose of the organization it was pointed out that the new group was formed to develop amicable relations, for the arbitration of any dispute arising between producers and screen writers, and to protect themselves from the activities of radically-minded writers and organizations which are seen as

Sidney Kent Sets English Product Deal

British National, Portal Firm, to Produce

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, May 22.—The arrangement for production here between Twentieth Century-Fox and the interests headed by Lord Portal and J. Arthur Rank, reported on several occasions recently, was officially revealed here today. Confirmation of the reports published in Motion Picture Daily came in the form of a statement from British National Films that a contract had been signed by John Corfield, managing director of British National, and Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, immediately prior to the latter's departure for New York.

During their visit here, Kent and Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the Twentieth Century-Fox board, denied that the company was seeking to acquire complete control of Gaumont British.

Under the British National deal the company will make four pictures a year at the Pinewood Studios for

Hearst Soviet Propaganda Charge Stirs Reel Protest

William Randolph Hearst's New York American published a page-wide editorial yesterday morning in bold, black type—and stirred a hornets' nest of sharp and angry protest and denial on the part of newsreel executives of charges made therein.

The sparkplug of the Hearst newspaper group declared, in part: "Our American picture-producing companies must agree to the humiliating condition that the sound-strip speaker, in showing Russian shots, shall not say anything derogatory to Russia, Communism or the Five-Year Plan." The greater part of the foregoing was set in caps.

The editorial went on to say that the "orders" to include Communist propaganda in American newsreels are "a part of the agreement which every American motion picture corporation must sign when it buys Russian matter either from Amkino, the American distributing company for

G. B. Never to Be Sold, Says Bernerd Here

Producer Is Emphatic At Sales Session

"G. B. will never be sold."

These are Jeffrey Bernerd's own words in answer to rumors going the rounds and the highlight of his talk before 125 G. B. executives, branch managers and salesmen convened yesterday at the Warwick for the annual sales convention which is to extend for three days.

"It will always remain G. B. Pictures Corp.," he stated with emphasis.

"I want to take you into confidence to ease any doubt in your minds that G. B. is on the verge of selling to someone else. I am giving you this absolutely official. G. B. has never lost confidence in the men who have built this great organization."

To bring home his point, Bernerd outlined the financial structure and the various interests of the company, declaring G. B. has a capital of $75,000,000. This should show our finances and security. "In England, we feel we are the tops," he said.

" G. B. has 350 of the most modern and largest theatres in England, and in addition controls 250 cafes, several hotels and the most powerful broadcasting station in Europe."

Approximately 15,000 people are on

Among the visitors during the closing day were: J. M. Addison, Loew's division manager, Boston; H. J. Under the terms of the agreement, the entire resources of the Scout organization will be placed at the disposal of M-G-M. Scout executives will collaborate with M-G-M writers in the preparation of stories. The agreement will run for a term of years, and provides that the films will be publicized by inter-organization announcements and through the national Scout publications. M-G-M is now preparing the script on the first of the series, which will be produced on the coast for fall release.

Public Fights Tax After Houses Shut

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 22.—Petitions said to carry more than 8,000 signatures of individuals and business firms have been presented to the City Councilmen here in an effort to bring about the repeal of the recently adopted amusement levy which resulted in the closing of the Saenger and Isis on May 6. The houses are still dark.

The current protest of the general public against the tax follows closely similar resolutions passed by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1194, and the Central Labor Union. All protests thus far have been futile, Mayor H. Clay Armstrong declaring that the tax argument appeared to be a "closed incident."

Reserves Decision On Warners' Claim

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—John A. Hope, referee in bankruptcy, has reserved decision on the claim of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., against the bankrupt estate of Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Inc., for $111,605, which has been contested. Warners' claim is based on the balance due for funds they advanced to the Skouras firm between July, 1930, and September, 1933.

Nelson Cunliff, Federal trustee for the bankrupt company, opposed the claim on the ground that Skouras Bros. Enterprises was controlled and dominated by Warners, and that therefore the claim did not represent an actual indebtedness, since the acts of Skouras in their dealings with Warners were not their own acts.

Philadelphia ITO Attacks Clearance

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Resolutions condemning the present clearance setup here were adopted today by the I.T.O. board of governors. The present arrangement was described as discriminatory and in need of legal action to show that a conspiracy exists between distributors and affiliated theatres.

Paramount's proposed competition with poster renters also was condemned on the ground that it would be the prelude to similar moves by other distributors.

Sentiment in favor of joining Allied was voiced.

Cut RKO Fees

An application by Irving Trust Co. for interim allowances of $65,000 for services as trustee of RKO was reduced to $15,000 by Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday. The application of Donovan, Newton, Leisure & Lumbard, counsel to the trustee, for an interim allowance of $80,000 was reduced to $30,000. Disbursements of $388 were allowed to counsel.

the weekly payroll, he stated. Two newspapers, one of which has the largest circulation in London, are owned by G. B., he added. The company has two modern equipped studios, owns a film laboratory, gets out its own newsreel and has one of the greatest libraries of educational films, he said. Out of the 4,000 English theatres, 1,700 show the newsreel.

"My idea is to give you a picture of the vast octopus of which you in America are a part," he said. "When you go out to sell the new program you can feel you are representing one of the greatest picture enterprises in the whole world.

"We have been battling rumors of a pending sale and I know no one could buy our company. We want too much and they haven't enough money to buy," he declared.

Bernerd praised Arthur Lee, general manager; George W. Weeks, A. P. Waxman and Clinton White for the work they have done. He also read cables from Mark Ostrer, Michael Balcon, Alfred Hitchcock, Jessie Matthews, and Robert Donat.

He concluded by reciting an incident which took place on his recent trip to Hollywood, saying that on the coast producers look upon Balcon as the "Darryl F. Zanuck of England."

Get 20 Weeks at Roxy

Having played 18 of the company's pictures for 23 weeks during the past two years, the Roxy has guaranteed G.B. 20 weeks' playing time next season, Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the theatre, yesterday told the distributor's sales force at a convention luncheon at the Warwick.

Not one of these pictures has shown a loss, Cullman asserted, and "I challenge the record of any other theatre."

Cullman lauded A. P. Waxman's efforts, humorously stating he ran out of ideas at Warners and began using them all over again at G.B. He also told of an incident, which he modestly claimed to be true, where two men in a restaurant were overheard discussing the meaning of G.B.

The two men apparently were advised that G.B. was a film company and one of them remarked that the initials stood for "Got Brains."

"No, it can't mean that," the other replied. "They make English pictures." Another suggestion was made to the effect that the letters indicated "Great Box-Office." This solution was ignored until one of the two puzzled alphabeticians decided that it must mean "Good Bictures."

Nate J. Blumberg, John J. O'Connor and Max Fellerman of RKO were introduced to the gethering by George W. Weeks, who acted as host.

Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., was the next speaker. He said he enjoyed the lunch because food is 90 per cent of his overhead. He talked about cooperation between exhibitors and the support the M.P.T.O.A. is giving the industry.

"I am unalterably opposed to governmental regulation of the industry," he said, "as this industry is not run like a sausage factory where the same type of food is manufactured without change."

Paul Nathanson, son of N. L., was the final speaker. He acted as spokesman for his father and conveyed an expression to the sales force which was brief and to the point.

In addition to the speakers, on the dais were: Arthur Lee, Jeffrey Bernerd, Oscar Hanson and James Campbell, the latter head of G.B.'s music division. Ralph Poucher of Consolidated dropped in during lunch for a round of handshakes.

George W. Trendle, president of United Detroit Theatres, says he will either institute court action or appeal to Mayor Frank Couzens to revoke the licenses of all theatres using the games. Another possibility is that Trendle will attempt to have a city ordinance passed against their usage.

Bank Night, Screeno and other such games are not lotteries in the opinion of members of the Attorney General's staff. Vance G. Ingalls, assistant corporation counsel, points out that the city charter gives the Mayor power to revoke any theatre's license "for good and satisfactory reasons."

world distribution by Twentieth Century-Fox. An important aspect of the arrangement is the plan by which the American company will loan writers and directors to British National, and train the latter company's personnel in Hollywood, which is taken as a definite indication that the films are to be designed for American distribution.

The pictures to be made by British National will be in addition to those from New World Prod., formed here by Twentieth Century-Fox for the production of four films within the next year for world distribution, under the supervision of Robert T. Kane, director general of Twentieth Century-Fox production in England.

Included in the arrangement is a 10-year management contract, by which Capt. Richard Norton, a B. & D. director, will be managing director of the Pinewood Studios, and all the B. & D. directors will be added to the directorate of Pinewood. The studio will increase its capital to £300,000 and is raising a loan of £600,000. These proposals will be acted upon at a special meeting of the B. & D. board of directors on May 26.

Hearst Propaganda Charge Protested

the state-controlled pictures made in Russia, or from the Russian Government itself."

Specifically cited are Paramount News, Fox Movietone News and Universal Newsreel.

Yesterday afternoon Charles E. Ford, managing director of the Universal reel, addressed a registered letter to the managing director of the New York American, "written in protest against your untrue editorial."

Ford's sentiments were echoed by Truman Talley, general manager of Fox Movietone News, who addressed a telegram of protest to Hearst in the west.

The most emphatic corroboration of this answer to the charges came from Amkino itself, which, through one of its leading executives, yesterday told the writer that the charges are untrue, declaring: "We definitely state that Amkino has never signed any agreement with any American newsreel company with reference to what they might or might not say in connection with Russian material."

Paramount newsreel executives were not available last night for comment on the editorial.

French Decree Held Move for World Censors

Films Shown Elsewhere May Bring Import Ban

Details of what appears to be an attempt by the French Government to establish a world-wide censorship over films it considers detrimental to its interests have just reached this country and distributors are amazed.

A Cabinet decree was put into effect May 7 by the new Government. Copies reached this country on the last trip of the Hindenburg. What to do about it is now the subject of home office discussion.

Leading newsreels have already been stopped while filming an annual beauty contest in Paris and have been informed that any attempt to smuggle films out of France will be met by a complete ban on importations by their companies.

A new Government bureau is set up in the decree for censorship of films with the cost assessed against distributors. All films released in France will be under the control of the Minister of National Education, who will

U. A. Will Have 26 to 30 Next Season, Says Schaefer

United Artists will have from 26 to 30 features next season, numerically the greatest number in any one season for the company, George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager, stated Saturday.

With the signing of the Walter Wanger deal, that producer will contribute six. Samuel Goldwyn will have seven, Pickford-Lasky, five; Selznick International, five; Pioneer, four, all in Technicolor; and Alexander Korda four or five.

Although no definite date has been set, Schaefer said the annual sales convention will be held on the coast the second or third week in June. District and branch managers, but not salesmen, will attend.

Producers Active With 39 in Work

HOLLYWOOD, May 24.—Feature production dropped off only one from the previous week's total last week, while short subject activity moved ahead. There were 39 features and five shorts in work. The previous week's schedules showed 40 features before the cameras, and only one short.

Pictures in preparation and scheduled for shooting within two weeks numbered 17, with 47 of the current season's product in the cutting rooms. Many organizations had companies working on location to take advantage of early summer weather.

Paramount moved up another notch to take first place among the majors, having nine films in work. Twentieth Century-Fox ran a close second with eight. Columbia had two features shooting, two in preparation and six editing. M-G-M had five, one and 12; Paramount, nine, three and seven;

Para. Theatre Policy Hinges On Ford Ideas

Centering Study Upon Partnership Deals

Paramount's future theatre policy may be influenced by the report on partnership operations now being prepared for the company's board of directors by John J. Ford, New England theatre operator, who was named by Joseph P. Kennedy to cover the theatre phase of the company survey now being concluded.

Ford, who holds a half interest in Maine & New Hampshire Theatres, a Paramount subsidiary, has been focusing his study of the company's theatre operations on the present and future advisability of the decentralized partnership operating policy now in force at Paramount. While the report is not expected to upset the actual policy of decentralized operation, it is believed that it will have an immediate bearing on the continuation of specific theatre partnerships and the arrangements on which they are now based. Ford recently returned from observation of Paramount theatre operations in the South.

Actual recommendations may be in-

Bronx Lottery Case Hearings Postponed

Hearing on charges of violating the lottery laws in the playing of Screeno at the Ward, Rosedale, Allerton, Pelham and Yorke, all Springer & Cocalis theatres has been postponed until June 16, when the cases came up in Bronx Special Sessions.

In accordance with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley's instructions, these houses are playing games so that non-patrons can participate. No summonses have been handed out during the past week as a result.

Approval Expected On Dramatist Pact

Ratification of the revised basic agreement between producing managers and the Dramatists' Guild by the membership of the latter organization at its meeting today appears a certainty as a result of the overruling of final objections on the part of the producers to entering into the new five-year agreement.

The revised pact has already been approved by the guild's council, which, in the past, has been tantamount to organizational acceptance. After spirited discord between the managers and the guild since the expiration of the old agreement last March 1, the producers two weeks ago pledged their signatures for the revised pact and then raised objections to a clause which has been a part of the guild's constitution for the past 10 years. At a meeting of the League of N. Y. Theatres late last week, however, the objections were overruled and power of attorney was voted to the league to permit it to sign the new agreement on behalf of managers. The new pact retains the guild's provision for a 60-40 split of the proceeds from the sale of film rights to stage plays in the author's favor.

Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Jailbreak," "The Law in Her Hands," "Scandals of Paris," "Sins of Man." Class B, Objectionable in Part—"It's Love Again," "Daredevils of the Earth."

F. P. Canadian Takes Entire Warner List

services to the Music Hall. The payment was to be made out of initial operating profits of the house. This payment has been eliminated from the new agreement.

Subsequent participations in profits under the original agreement, made Sept. 1, 1934, provided for a rent payment of $1,050,000 to Rockefeller Center after the service payment of $500 per week. Next, a joint payment of $36,000 per year was to be made to RCA and RKO for the retirement of RCA's advances of working capital to the Music Hall during 1933 when it was still being operated by RKO. Thereafter, Rockefeller Center became entitled to an additional $150,000 and if profits remained after these participations a first $300,000 was to be split 60 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 40 per cent jointly to RCA and RKO, and a second $300,000 would be split 50 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 50 per cent to RCA and RKO.

No division of profits under these terms has been made and, consequently, the participations of each were increased proportionately under two extensions of the agreement. The last extension expired April 30 and the revised agreement has been in negotiation since. When signed by the parties involved and approved by the Federal court here, it will be effective to Aug. 1.

A supplemental agreement was made last December between Rockefeller Center and RKO Service Corp. which runs to Aug. 31. Under this agreement Service Corp. receives approximately $1,500 per month for advisory services to the Music Hall, the fee being based on a percentage of the average weekly gross receipts of the house.

Standardizing Data On Sound Track Use

Hollywood, May 24.—The first step towards the standardization of the various new types of sound tracks, developed by studios with new recording methods during the past year, has been taken by the Academy Research Council. Preliminary standards for dimension, position on film, and nomenclature for various classes of single and push-pull sound track as drawn up by the council's sound recording committee are being sent to all studio sound departments, sound equipment manufacturers and the New York S. M. P. E. committee.

The council committee is headed by E. R. Hansen of Twentieth Century-Fox, and the S. M. P. E. committee is headed by Porter Evans of Warners. Standardization of sound track methods, it was pointed out, will result in great economy to the industry, due to the fact that all organizations will be guided by whatever preliminary standards may be finally adopted, with the subsequent use of the sound tracks on any equipment without modification.

Demonstration Planned

Hollywood, May 24.—The Academy Technicians' Branch will meet with the Pacific coast section of the S.M.P.E. Tuesday at M-G-M to witness a demonstration by Douglas Shearer, studio sound director, of a group of new sound recording and reproducing equipments.

At the same time M-G-M's new control system for cameras and sound recording machines, which received the scientific or technical achievement award from the Academy this year will be demonstrated publicly for the first time.

Arrangements for the meeting are under the direction of Gerald F. Rackett, chairman of the local section of S.M.P.E. and Sidney J. Twining, chairman of the Technicians' Branch.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Palm Springs"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, May 24.—Judicious use of a trio of songs, plus a series of good personal performances, endow this picture with entertainment qualities far above the worth of the plot motivation. Three numbers, "I Don't Want to Make History," "I Want to Make Love" and "Will I Ever Know?" sung by Frances Langford, and "Hills of Wyoming" by Smith Ballew, with Miss Langford in a duet, are potential hits likely to have audiences humming. They are the framework for the show.

Miss Langford, sophisticated modern maid, believes her father, Guy Standing, wealthy, but discovers him working as a Palm Springs gambling croupier. Adopting an English title, she encourages a loveless romance with David Nevin, a socialite. Ballew, a horse wrangler, waits and wishes. To save the girl from unhappiness and direct love in its true course, Standing denounces his daughter, although she is a child of true nobility.

The finale has Miss Langford and Ballew crooning a love song on a mountain top.

Several alterations have been made in Miles Connolly's original by Joseph Fields, who did the screenplay. Humphrey Pearson adapted it, and it was directed intelligently by Aubrey Scotto. Ralph Rainger and Mack Gordon did the lyrics, and the music is by Leo Robin and Harry Revel.

Standing, Ernest Cossart, David Nevin and Spring Byington deliver standard performances. The picture introduces Ballew and is a step forward in Miss Langford's career, although E. E. Clive almost steals the show in one sequence.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,002. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Nobody's Fool"

(Universal)

Hollywood, May 24.—Tailor made for Everett Horton followers, the film deals with a small town economic optimist who reforms two warring gangster factions by making them apartment house owners. It is certain to garner an extra share of audience laughs in all spots. Exhibitors can bank upon it as reliable comedy.

When Horton prematurely discards his waiter's apron for the speakers' table at a small town real estate pep meeting and subsequently is gently invited to leave town his career proceeds by leaps and bounds.

Arriving in New York, Horton humorously walks into a lecture hall where he gives an impromptu speech and is immediately thereafter spotted as a lowly impersonator. Glenda Farrell, a member of a real estate racketeering mob, whisks him out of a jam into more trouble. He immediately gets up to his ears in gang warfare with mobs headed by Cesar Romero and Frank Conroy. In typical Horton style disputes are unraveled with the hero wistfully succumbing to Miss Farrell's smiles at the fadeout, while the gangsters, bewildered, are transformed into good citizens.

The performances of Horton, Miss Farrell and Romero stand out, with the supporting cast doing creditable work. Arthur Greville Collins' direction has drained all the situations for a maximum of laughs. Ralph Block and Ben Markson's screenplay packed plenty of chuckles which were not lost in Jerry Sackheim's adaptation.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,165. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

K. C. Ad Ban Removed

Kansas City, May 24.—Exhibitors here, may again carry outside advertising on Bank Night and other money giveaways, providing, however, that the advertising reads, "If Present."

Some months ago City Manager H. F. McElroy ordered the police to take down marquee and other outside signs on giveaways.

Wurtzel to Start "Aisle"

Hollywood, May 24.—Sol Wurtzel will start production of "Across the Aisle," final picture on his 1935-36 schedule, on June 1. Michael Whalen and Gloria Stewart will have the leading roles. The screen play is by Lew Breslow.

Wond Chinese Producer

Hollywood, May 24.—Bruce Wond, who is now supervising Chinese extras in "Chinese Gold," at Paramount, is the director-producer of a Chinese film called "Sun Yun." Wai Kim Fung, star of that picture, is now en route to China where she will make personal appearances when it is released. Later, Wond plans an American showing of the film with English sub-titles. The production was financed by San Francisco and Los Angeles Chinese merchants.

"Show Boat" Is N. O. Hit

New Orleans, May 24.—"Show Boat" at the Saenger is doing practically an S.R.O. business.

Short Subjects

"Going Places No. 21"

(Universal)

With Lowell Thomas supplementing verbally what the screen depicts, this interesting subject is a detailed account of Aden, at the mouth of the Red Sea, a naturally rocky and formidable British fortress, companion piece to Gibraltar. In the midst of the volcanic mass of rock is a sleepy town, supplied from the outside, since Aden produces nothing of its own. Its only industry is the making of cloth. Little is seen, however, of the fortifications themselves.

Production Code Seal, No. 0995. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Along the Life Line of the British Empire"

(Harold Auten)

For audiences that demand good travel shorts this is a requisite. The atmosphere of travel is always evident as the film begins on a ship entering the Suez Canal, stops, takes in Port Said, continues on to Malta and finally to Gibraltar. Some parts of the film have been photographed from still pictures but on the whole the interesting and informative is well presented. British forts, warships and the army are evident. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Heart of Paris"

(Harold Auten)

In a different manner this film takes in the highlights of the French city. The narrative is informative and much is condensed into 11 minutes. The camera takes the audience into the Louvre, up to the towers of Notre Dame, along the principal thoroughfares, to civic centers, shopping districts, parks and many other places, all of which are effectively and sometimes excellently photographed. It will entertain. Reviewed without production code seal. "G."

"Colonial Williamsburg"

(Harold Auten)

The historical Virginia city is presented in this tastefully executed short of the "Screen Traveler" series. The camera rambles around the town catching all the interesting buildings, places of interest, customs and other details which are well photographed and never boring. It holds the charm of the old colonial atmosphere and should prove entertaining. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Radio Has New Series

Hollywood, May 24.—Radio has started production of a new series of two-reel comedies to be known as the Smart Set series. Lee Marcus will produce, and Bert Gilroy will act as associate producer. Jean Yarborough, who wrote the script of the first in collaboration with Charles Roberts, is directing. The picture has not been titled as yet. The cast includes Lucille Ball, Bud Jamison, Loren Raker and Constance Bergin.

function through a Commission of Cinematographic Control of the Administration of the Beaux-Arts. Visas will be issued for films approved.

"Before granting this visa," the decree reads, "this commission shall take into consideration the ensemble of national interests in question and particularly the interest of the defense of good morals and respect for national traditions.

"The visa can be refused to films imported from abroad even when the film itself is of such a character that it should be approved, in the event that it is established that the person demanding the visa, or the producer, has participated in the public exhibition outside of French territory of films contrary to French national interest."

The censorship commission will include a small army of officials. It will include two representatives of the Presidency of Council, three representatives of the Minister of the Interior, three representatives of the Minister of National Education, one representative each from the Dep'ts of Foreign Affairs, Justice, War, Marine, Air, and functionaries representing various branches of the French industry, as well as a representative of the ministry charged with the affairs of Alsace and Lorraine, each time the film is in the German language.

"Whenever, by reason of the nature of the film," the decree continues, "the President deems it necessary, he may include in the commission, temporily and with advisory votes, representatives of public administrations other than those enumerated in Paragraph 2 of the present Article."

The Director-General of Beaux-Arts, the Director-General of the State Police, the Chief of the Dep't of Music and Theatrical Representations will be ex-officio members, and all these officials must have passes to all theatres.

The same type of censorship visas is required for all films to be exported.

This latter provision not only hits newsreels, but all film processed in France. Paris is a center for dubbing, printing and re-titling films shown in continental Europe.

Newsreels operating in Paris have designated a representative to contact the Government and receive instructions.

The agitation is believed to date back to the assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia when English and American newsreels smuggled negative out of France, and newspapers both inside and outside of France attacked the Government because they considered the reels showed inadequate police protection for the visiting monarch.

Some discussion has already been held on the possibility of barring all French newsreel shots in this country, on the theory that this will avoid any chance of irritating French sensibilities.

Plan Burlesque Party

The Burlesque Artists' Ass'n., national organization of burlesque performers affiliated with the A. F. of L., will hold its first annual dance and entertainment June 14 at the Manhattan Opera House. The proceeds will be used for a benevolent fund.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hearts in Bondage"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, May 24.—The drama of the historic battle between the Monitor and Merrimac is the theme of this. James Dunn, discharged from the U. S. Navy before the Civil War for refusing to sink the Merrimac when left in charge, returns on the Monitor, built by his uncle, Fritz Lieber, as Ericsson, and destroys the ship after the Confederates have transformed it into an ironclad.

In the plot are incidents which show the individual feelings of the participants in the war and a love theme which has Dunn court Mae Clarke, whose brother, David Manners, is fighting for the south.

The picture unreels an interesting document and events are kept moving by the direction of Lew Ayres. The supporting cast includes Charlotte Henry, Henry B. Walthall, Irving Pichel and Frank McGlynn, Sr., as Lincoln. Dunn seems at home in the role and convinces in a part unusual for him. The screenplay is by Bernard Schubert and Oliver Cooper from Wallace MacDonald's original. It is a Colbert Clark production. A musical score by Hugo Riesenfeld aids in telling the story. Exploitation should stress the love interest as well as the historical nature of the picture.

Overseas Preview

"She Knew What She Wanted"

(Rialto-Associated British)

LONDON, May 14.—Indicating a change in production policy at B.I.P. studios, this Rialto feature is made by a special unit in which Thomas Bentley is both producer and director. From the stage musical comedy "Funny Face," it has been written for the screen by Frank Miller from a treatment by Tom Geraghty and the music is by Gershwin.

A strong team of British comedians has been put behind a frankly farcical story of an English schoolgirl, Betty Ann Davies, with an instinctive and prodigious gift of lying, which she uses to involve a famous dance band conductor, Fred Conyngham, in an attempt to rifle a safe. Two comedy crooks, W. H. Berry and Ben Welden, and the eccentric manager of the conductor, Albert Burdon, have the same object and the laughs depend upon the extent to which American audiences can understand their distinctly British idiom. It is a second feature in any case.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

corporated in the report on the advisability of continuing the partnership deals with Wilby-Kincey, Lucas & Jenkins and Hoblitzelle circuits, all three of which expire July 1. The agreements now in force incorporate provisions under which Paramount is privileged to buy back the stock interests of the partners in these theatre operations. The Paramount board in the past has evidenced considerable indecision over the advisability of extending theatre partnership agreements or in exercising the buy-back options.

Kennedy's own report on studio operations is understood to be ready now for submission to the Paramount board either at its monthly meeting scheduled for next Thursday or at a special meeting of the board which might be called for tomorrow or Wednesday. Kennedy is expected here from the coast late today or some time tomorrow. His report, it is said, will deal primarily with production financial problems, morale of studio personnel and may incorporate suggestions for strengthening studio executive ranks and bolstering production resources.

However, actual recommendations for improving situations which present themselves to Kennedy as vital problems may not be made to the board until after he has itemized for that body the matters he believes require correcting, it is said. This is on the theory that the board, or some part of it, may not agree that corrective action is required for some of the situations which Kennedy may regard as "problems."

Fight Against French Decree Planned Here

First Protest May Be on Export Features

How to combat the French move or control of world showings of films regarded by that Government as inimical to its interests will be the subject of distributor conferences this week.

First protests, it is expected, will be directed to that portion of the May 7 censorship decree which permits the Government to inspect and disapprove all films taken into France for processing and reshipment to other countries.

Enforcement of this provision would make it possible for France to control all showings of American films in continental Europe, it is pointed out, because France is a center for printing, titling and dubbing.

Distributors here say the regulations are far more drastic than any imposed by Germany, Russia or Italy.

American film men admit freely that France has the right to impose censorship on all films shown within its territories, but are resentful over the broad terms of the decree which permit the censors to refuse visas to any picture, because the individual or company offering it for approval, has

Say No Film Money For Stage in Future

Despite a declaration from film producers that no motion picture money would go into Broadway stage productions under the new and amended minimum basic agreement for dramatists and producing managers, a membership meeting of the Dramatists Guild approved the amended agreement by a two to one vote yesterday.

The film producers' ultimatum was delivered to Sidney Howard, president of the Guild, during the meeting. It was in the form of a letter from J. Robert Rubin of M-G-M, who

Synopsis Section Dropped; Pettengill Bill Reported

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Eliminating the blind selling provisions of the Pettengill block booking bill, the subcommittee in charge of the legislation today made a favorable report on the measure to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The blind selling provisions were eliminated on a motion by Representative Peyser of New York. Under them, it would have been necessary for a distributor to accompany every contract offered with a "complete and true synopsis" of the film, and if the completed picture deviated from the synopsis in any substantial manner the exhibitor could cancel without liability for breach of contract and recover any damages suffered by reason of such difference, or could retain the lease and recover damages as for a breach of warranty.

"The majority of the committee," it was explained by Representative Pettengill following the reporting of the bill, "felt that with compulsory block booking forbidden the alleged faults of blind selling would tend to correct themselves. The effective date of the bill would be 18 months from the date of its enactment to give the industry ample opportunity to adjust itself to the bill."

A similar measure, introduced by Senator Neeley of West Virginia, was favorably reported by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee this month.

Otterson a Witness In FCC Sound Probe

Early sound film developments when he was president of Erpi were described by John E. Otterson yesterday before A. G. Patterson, director of the telephone division of the Federal Communications Commission now investigating A. T. & T.

Much of the questioning centered about contracts with Vitaphone Corp.

Full of Nays

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the Twentieth Century-Fox board, returned on the Normandie yesterday in a denying mood. He denied:

1. That the company's 49 per cent interest in G. B. would be sold to a syndicate headed by Lord Portal.

2. That the company would purchase G. B.'s 49 per cent interest in G. B.

3. That the company was interested in taking over the Roxy.

On inquiry, Schenck said that Twentieth Century-Fox would have 26 "A" pictures on its lineup next season. He leaves for Chicago Friday to attend the sales convention.

Para Sets 65; May Have More For Next Year

Paramount will have 65 features next season and perhaps more. Definitely set as the result of the trip west of Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, and Robert M. Gillham, head of the advertising and publicity department who have returned to New York, is the decision to release 40 in the first six months of the 1936-37 season.

The company this year will not include branch managers and salesmen at its Chicago convention, set for June 5-6 at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. Home office executives will attend and only district managers from the field. Later, district managers either will hold meetings of that portion of the sales force which they

Kennedy Held On Coast; Will Depart Today

Ford's Theatres Study Is Progressing

With Joseph P. Kennedy delaying his departure from the coast until today, earlier expectations that his report on the Paramount studio situation might be presented to the company's regular board meeting on Thursday were considerably lessened.

According to present plans, Kennedy leaves the coast this morning by train, accompanied by his assistants, A. B. Poole and C. P. Scollard. This means that no special meeting of the board will be called today or tomorrow to receive the report and that there is little likelihood of a formal report being ready for the regular monthly meeting Thursday. It is believed, however, that if Kennedy arrives in time for the latter session he may make an advance oral report to the board on the high spots of his studio survey. The final report, in this case, probably would go before a special meeting some time next week and would be consolidated by the company later for possible presentation to the annual meeting of Paramount stockholders on June 16.

The final report would incorporate the observations and recommendations

Actors Equity Holds 23rd Annual Meeting

A proposal of the council of Actors' Equity Ass'n., to amend the constitution regarding the qualifications of junior members for senior membership was defeated at the 23rd annual meeting yesterday. Although the proposal received a majority of the votes of the 700 members present, a two-thirds vote is necessary to amend the constitution. The meeting was held at the Astor.

The proposal called for stricter qualifications, replacing the automatic promotion to senior membership at the end of two years, with a requirement of 50 weeks actual performance within the two-year period. Lacking that, an additional two-year period must be served by the junior member before being admitted to senior membership. The vote for 14 members of the council, 10 of them regular terms and four replacements, will not be announced until late today. A nominating committee slate and an independent group were candidates. The council recommended the establishment of a minimum wage of $40 per week for all classes of members. Junior members now get a minimum of $25 weekly.

William A. Brady made a plea for an end to the internal quarrels, which was causing the organization to lose the opportunity of half a century, the veteran producer said.

Carl Laemmle will be guest of honor at a dinner to be tendered him at the Waldorf Astoria on June 22 under the auspices of the amusement division of the United Palestine Appeal. Probably it will be the final function signalizing his retirement from general activity in the industry.

First Reports Good On the Rogers Fund

Scattered reports on the first results of the nationwide drive on behalf of the Will Rogers Memorial Fund are excellent, declared Major Leslie E. Thompson, chairman of the committee in charge, yesterday. He expressed confidence that the final tally, which will not be available for a couple of weeks, will be satisfactory.

Approximately $20,000 was collected in memberships before the drive got under way, he added. At an average of $10 per theatre, this, he said represents 2,000 houses.

Preliminary reports from a number of leading houses indicated that the totals would be twice to three times as great as was collected during the last similar drive, for the N. V. A., in 1934. For the three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the Music Hall in New York collected $2,820. The Coliseum in uptown Manhattan collected $716, compared with $268 for the corresponding three days during the N. V. A. drive. Other three-day figures included: Paradise, Bronx, $827; RKO Flushing, $654; Albee, Brooklyn, $801. The Golden Gate in San Francisco took in $534 during the first day of the drive.

"White Horse" Show On Big Scale Here

Between $280,000 and $300,000 will be spent on production of "White Horse Inn," which is to open at the Center on Sept. 5, according to Erik Charell, producer, who arrived yesterday on the Normandie with his brother, Ludwig, and Hans Muller, author, to prepare the settings and line up the cast.

The entire population of the village of Marquetstein, about 40 to be exact, in the Tyrol, will be brought over to appear in the play, Charell stated. They will arrive in July. In addition, Charell will reproduce a hotel in St. Wolfgang, Austria, in the interior of the Center and plans to have brought over products of the Tyrol which are to be sold in the theatre.

There will be 200 people in the cast and three different orchestras; one from the Tyrol with native instruments; the second a symphony orchestra and the third a jazz band. Charell expects to have the three play simultaneously during one sequence. Professors M. Stern and Max Rivers will assist in the decorations and costumes.

Warners are participating in the financing, but Rowland Stebbins' company, known as Lawrence Rivers, owns the play. After the Center run, the play will be sent on the road, winding up in Hollywood where Warners will produce it in picture form.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Song of China"

(Douglas MacLean)

HOLLYWOOD, May 25.—This picture, made in China, with a native cast, may hold interest as a novelty in metropolitan centers.

The story is told in pantomime with the aid of Chinese and English subtitles and unfolds as a naive saga of filial devotion. Covering family life for four generations, it shows the second and fourth sons devoted to the Chinese tradition of parental respect, with the third son a prodigal who goes to the city for a period of riotous living, but returns repentant at the end.

A musical background accompanies the action which will please some Western ears but grate on others. The photography is surprisingly good and the acting and direction have a strong professional flavor.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Overseas Preview

"Love in Exile"

(Capitol Films-G.B.)

LONDON, May 14.—This is a comedy-romance based on Gene Markey's "His Majesty's Pajamas" It deals with the embarrassments, financial and feminine, of a Nuritanian King, who abdicates in the first scene at the behest of scheming concession-owners and triumphantly returns to the throne in the last, carrying in his arms the beautiful countess whose love for him, misrepresented by enemies, helped to bring about the original disaster.

The story seems to invite a musical background and a franker atmosphere of satire, but although it might cause reflections as to what Lubitsch and Chevalier would have made of the material, the film as it stands has the appeal attaching to romantic and good-looking royalty in exile plus a really good ending when the king, surrounded by his courtiers and soldiers, wrestles his lady-love to the palace balcony to share with him the plaudits of the overjoyed populace.

It drags in the middle and right through suffers from too much conversation. Clive Brook is the king, Helen Vinson the countess. Ronald Squire as the royal valet and Cecil Ramage as concession hunter number one are bright spots in the cast.

Mary Carlisle gives a very highly colored picture of an American celebrity hunter who descends on the king's bedroom balcony on a rope of sheets. Backgrounds include Geneva, Paris, and a yacht on which the concession hunter plans to double-cross the king after persuading him to attempt a counter-revolution. Alfred L. Werker directed.

After editing it should please the Brook fans.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A." ALLAN

on Paramount theatre operations resulting from the survey recently completed by John J. Ford, head of the Maine & New Hampshire circuit, in which Paramount, through its subsidiary, Olympia Theatres, is interested. Ford was drafted by Kennedy for the theatre survey, and his report, which will not be completed for another week, at least, will relate to the company's decentralized theatre operations and, specifically, to partnership agreements expiring in the near future. The latter include the Lucas & Jenkins, Wilby-Kincey and Hoblitzelle deals, all of which expire July 1. His report is expected to have a direct bearing on the extension of these partnerships and may influence any changes in the terms of the agreements which might be made under renewals.

High Court Blocks St. Louis Appeal

ground that to allow appeals from decrees other than those disposing of the merits of a case "would thwart the very purpose" of the law covering appeals.

In their appeal, the producers charged that the Government could use motions to dismiss as a means of continually harassing businesses and declared that, having been acquitted in the criminal suit, the Government should not adopt a series of civil suits in which, eventually, it was bound to secure a favorable verdict in some court, as a means of keeping the issue alive.

"If the Government," it was asserted, "is correct in its contention that its right to dismiss without prejudice is absolute, then it can continue the process of bringing suit, trying its case and then dismissing before it formally rests, thus indefinitely harassing and annoying the defendants with successive unsuccessful efforts to prove them guilty, first in one court and then in another, of a charge of which they have already been acquitted. By this ingenious procedure the Government is at liberty to inflict upon the innocent persons pecuniary loss and damage far in excess of the maximum $5,000 fine provided by Congress for those found guilty of violating the Sherman Act."

I. A. Rules on Independents

HOLLYWOOD, May 25.—Officials of the I. A. T. S. E. here have instructed members to demand of independent producers the same wage scale as is in effect at the major companies.

Wage scale negotiations between I. A. T. S. E. and independents which started several months ago failed to materialize and union officials state that confabs in the future are out of the question, saying that the independents must adhere to the present major studio wage rates.

It is understood here that negotiations are now in progress between the independents and I. B. E. W., with contracts likely to be signed momentarily. Al Speede, newly appointed Local 40 I. B. E. W. business agent, today refused comment on the subject.

stated that the decision was reached at a meeting of film company representatives yesterday morning.

In reply to the film companies' stand, Howard said, "I am mindful of Hollywood's protests against the contract and its decision not to invest money in the theatre if the contract is approved. However, I have disregarded these because film producers have already invested in plays under our contract and did so even before the contract was amended."

He added that he "could see no reason for prolonging the fight against the managers when the dramatists have a much better contract than they ever had before."

Producing managers have already pledged their signatures to the amended agreement, which makes it effective now.

The $2,930,000 of claims remaining is exclusive of RKO's secured debt in the principal amount of $13,768,500. Negotiation or investigation of the final eight claims is now under way. This includes, however, the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim which has been allowed by the special master but is now being contested in the Federal court.

The stipulations filed yesterday by Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel to Irving Trust Co. as trustee of RKO, represent reductions of about $27,000.

exhibited something elsewhere to which the French object.

Suggestions have already been advanced that American newsreels can bar all French scenes in retaliation and that producers can refuse to film French stories, but these have not advanced beyond the tentative stage.

The terms of the decree were not known in detail in this country until late last week, and company executives are discussing it in general terms before formulating any definite policy.

It is believed likely that the State Department will be asked to act.

Show Goes On

Red Oak, Ia., May 25.—Frank Good, manager of the Iowana, wouldn't have the biggest Sunday of the season ruined just because fire broke out and destroyed the seventh reel of "Wife vs. Secretary." The house was packed and the first show nearly finished when a reel was ignited.

As soon as the smoke cleared the show went on—minus a burned reel. The crowd beefed, but stayed. So did the crowds for subsequent shows, but Good was adamant. He wouldn't have his biggest Sunday wrecked just because one reel was missing from a full show.

"Show Boat" Cincy Hit; Gets $12,000

The RKO Family, playing a full instead of a split week, did $2,550 with "Silly Billies," compared with a $2,450 normal on the usual split week basis. MILWAUKEE, May 25.—"Show Boat," playing Fox's Palace on the first single feature program booked into the first runs here in months, grossed $6,500, just $1,500 above par, in an otherwise slow and spotty week. With the exception of "Doughnuts and Society" on the screen and Earl "Father" Hines' band on the Riverside stage, good for just $200 above the $5,000 average, business was off.

"The Great Ziegfeld" did fairly well for itself at the Davidson with a $5,100 take for 13 performances. First suburban roadshow engagement of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" May 22 at the Avalon, 1,675-seat south side neighborhood house, and the Egyptian, 1,500-seat north side spot, were less than $500 in each instance. "Dancing" as Re-Issue Big In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, May 25.—The arrival of slightly cooler weather, together with the fact that the downtown houses now have their cooling plants in operation for the first time since the flood, brought some improvement in business last week. "Dancing Lady," a reissue, on a double bill with "Special Investigator," proved the talk of the town. It gave the Fifth avenue house $7,000, the best gross this house has collected in almost a year.

At the Penn, "These Three" started slowly but picked up briskly on the strength of fine notices and excellent word-of-mouth and wound up close to $12,000, while at the Stanley "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and a stage show rang up a fair enough $17,000. The Alvin, however, had tough sledding with "A Message to Garcia" and had a long pull to get even a weak $4,000.

London Paramount's Bookings Cause Stir

London, May 15. — Use of the Paramount, Tottenham Court Road, as a pre-release house is causing controversy here. Situated a few hundred yards from the Dominion, run by Gaumont British as a second pre-release theatre, the Paramount has been doing big business with bookings putting it substantially on the same basis as the West End houses—Tivoli, Empire, Leicester Square, Pavilion, etc.

Exhibitors, who have a long-standing grievance against the West End run in any case, are alarmed at the possibility of the area—never conclusively defined—being indefinitely extended. With a lead from G. B., which has the power to withhold its circuit bookings from features playing pre-release at the Paramount, there will be an effort to force that theatre back to general release date.

Olympic to Import Films Salable Here

Olympic Pictures, headed by M. J. Kandel, will distribute in America as many of the 12 British Lion pictures as are suitable for this market, Sam Smith stated yesterday upon his arrival from London on the Normandie.

He plans to leave for Hollywood in a few days for a "checkup on production." On his way back he will stop off at Chicago for the Republic convention.

F. W. C. Men Shifted

Los Angeles, May 25.—The following managerial changes in F. W. C. houses have gone into effect: W. R. Roberts replaced George Barber at the Carlton, with Ernest Martin taking Roberts' old place at the Embassy; Lester Solberg took over the Sunkist, Pomona, from Stanley Kriner, who went to the Golden Gate, Riverside. W. T. Cunningham has been placed in charge of the West Coast, San Bernardino.

"U" After Robeson

Hollywood, May 25.—Paul Robeson, one of the stars of "Show Boat" is being considered for another starring role with Universal. Robeson has just completed "Song of Freedom" in England and has been signed by G. B. for "King Solomon's Mines."

"Pastures" for 2 Spots

Warners have decided upon two openings for "Green Pastures," one at the Ritz, Tulsa, and the other at the Miller, Wichita, June 13.

Announcement of the Tulsa showing was made at a meeting called by Mayor T. A. Penney for the purpose.

Set Coast "Adverse" Date

Hollywood, May 25.—"Anthony Adverse" will follow "The Great Ziegfeld" into the Carthay Circle. It is likely that the two-a-day current policy will be maintained for the Warner picture.

Jackson Rejoins "U"

Portland, May 25.—George E. Jackson, former Universal manager, who for the past seven years has been buyer for Woodlawn theatres here, has returned to Universal as a salesman.

Looking 'Em Over

"Cattle Thief"

(Columbia)

A western with enough novel twists to provide suitable diversion for outdoor fans. The plot limps along at times, but finishes coherently.

Ken Maynard plays an undercover representative of a cattlemen's association who is on the trail of a racketeering syndicate. In the guise of a wandering peddler he moves about the range with Tarzan installed in the interior of his wagon. From convenient spots he sallies forth and gets the required information playing two games until the time is ripe to strike and settle accounts. The action is suitably woven into the narrative and the characterization of Maynard as the peddler gives the piece some genuine humorous moments.

Geneva Mitchell, as a nurse, emotes opposite Maynard. Also in the cast are Ward Bond and Roy Williams, who give adequate support.

The screen play is by Nate Gatzler from an original by J. A. Duffy. Spencer Gordon Bennet directed. He brings all the entertainment possibilities out. Herbert Kirkpatrick's photography effectively projects the action and movement against picturesque backgrounds.

Production Code Seal, No. 1,940. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"Raggen-det ar Jag det"

(Scandinavian Pictures)

A Swedish film, with all-Swedish dialogue and no English subtitles, this appears a lively comedy, which should be sold with no difficulty by the exhibitor whose patronage numbers people understanding the language.

Chiefly by reason of the lack of subtitles, there is little in the film which should register an appeal with the average American audience, since the story presents nothing outstanding, and the performances, although definitely satisfactory, offer nothing which is unusual.

The story concerns a group of attractive girls who, headed by Raggen, eldest of many daughters of a college professor, form a pact under which they will not permit themselves to be kissed, and will not marry anyone. The moment the pact is completed, with spring in the air and romance hovering about, the girls proceed to break the agreement one after the other, with Raggen, the ringleader, succumbing, rushing to Paris to escape, and falling in love again.

S. Bauman directed from a novel by Gunnar Widegren.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Bullets and Ballots," which opens at the Strand today, was previewed from Hollywood May 15.

"The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," opening at the Rivoli tomorrow, likewise was covered from on the coast April 21.

Paramount Planning First Film in Spain

Barcelona, May 25. — Paramount will produce one experimental film in Spain, with production scheduled to get underway in September, according to John W. Hicks, Jr., vice-president of Paramount International Corp., and Frederick W. Lange, general foreign representative in Continental Europe for the company, who have just arrived here.

Presumably, if the initial production venture proves successful, Paramount will set plans for additional Spanish pictures to be made here.

Sets Radio Madrid Deal

Madrid, May 25.—Trillo has closed a deal, effective in September, for the showing of Radio products exclusively as second run at the Progreso Theatre here, following first run at the Avenida.

Joins Bay State Film

Boston, May 25.—Sylvia Finestein, who resigned a few days ago from the local Grand National exchange, has been appointed office manager of the Bay State Film Co. by Edward Kline.

Greek Houses Total 153; 135 Are Wired

Washington, May 25.—A total of 153 film theatres were in actual operation in Greece at the end of March, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't. of Commerce from Commercial Attache K. L. Rankin at Athens. Of the total, 135, or 88 per cent, are wired for sound. All are indoor houses which usually operate from October through May. During the summer months, a number of outdoor theatres are opened. The lack of air-conditioning equipment or adequate ventilating apparatus makes operation impossible during the summer.

Outside of Athens, Salonika, Patras and a few other cities, the film facilities are virtually primitive. No new houses were built during 1935. Two large theatres now under construction at Athens will not be ready for another year.

Named Salem Manager

Salem, Mass., May 25.—Christopher Beloff, former Publix manager in the territory, has been named manager of the local Rialto, which has been taken over from Charles Goldreyer by local business men.

Providence Suit to Be Heard Next Month

Boston, May 25.—The anti-trust suit brought by A. & W. Amusement Co. against major distributors for alleged conspiracy in withholding product from the now closed Metropolitan in Providence, will have a June hearing in Federal Court here, according to Joseph W. Walsh, vice-president of the company.

Although Walsh and Louis J. Anger have an option to renew the lease of the 3,000-seat house if product is obtained, it is considered doubtful that they would re-enter the field with the new competition of the Modern there. George J. Ryan is attorney for the corporation, while Jacob Kaplan represents the defendants.

HechtandMacArthur Paramount Deal Off

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur will not produce two pictures in Astoria for Paramount after all, the contract between the parties having been settled with the understanding that the authors write a script for Ernst Lubitsch, which they are now doing.

As a result of the settlement, "The Monster" will not be made for Paramount. Negotiations are under way to produce it for G.B. Lee Garmes, cameraman, who was brought over from England to photograph "The Monster," plans to sail either June 20 or June 24 for London, where he will work on a picture for British National.

Brazil Approves 171

Washington, May 25.—Of the 184 films submitted to the censorship board in Brazil during March, 171 were approved without qualification, five were listed as improper for children, one improper for minors, and one was rejected. Six were noted as educational material. The figures were incorporated in a report to the U. S. Dep't. of Commerce from Trade Commissioner J. Windsor Ives. Of the total, 134 were American films, 38 Brazilian (all shorts), 9 German and two French.

Republic Gets Bartlett

Hollywood, May 25. — Michael Bartlett has been signed by Republic to play opposite Marion Talley in her initial picture, "Follow Your Heart." Aubrey Scotto will direct with production scheduled to start June 1. Victor Schertzinger will write the musical score. Nat Levine bought Bartlett's contract from Columbia.

Pittsburgh Branch Wins

$15,000,000 for 34 Films in Three Years

President of four English producing companies and a director in a fifth, Major Henry A. Procter, a member of the Parliament, arrived on the Berengaria yesterday with details of plans whereby the five units will spend $15,000,000 in the next three years on 34 pictures. Space at the new studios at Denham have been leased for 36 months for the purpose, he said.

Radio Sponsors Battling For Coast's Film Talent

Programs Are Moving to The Film Capital in Growing Numbers

Hollywood, May 26.—The tussle for film names to take the air lanes will assume what is regarded as its most intensive form to date in the next couple of weeks with national advertisers, tied in with coast-to-coast hookups, out hammer and tongs for guest stars. Money is apparently no object.

Louella Parsons has her "Hollywood Hotel" program; Mary Pickford, her "Parties at Pickfair"; Bing Crosby, his Kraft Cheese program; Shell Chateau, its hour on Saturday and Dr. West's Toothbrushes, 30 minutes each Saturday night. On Monday, the Lux Radio Theatre transfers broadcasting from New York with a program headed by Clark Gable and Marlene Dietrich and with Cecil B. DeMille as narrator.

The Swift hour, with Sigmund Romberg, reaches New York for a half hour starting at 9:30 eastern daylight saving time, 5:30 coast time, Monday nights. John Barrymore, with Cora Sue Collins, has been master of ceremonies. He quit last Monday night and his successor has not been chosen.

Ben Bernie's regular program for American Can shifts here as the

Trans-Lux Move to Use British Television Seen Furber's Aim

London, May 26.—Percy N. Furber, chairman of the board of Trans-Lux Daylight Screen Corp. and Trans-Lux Movies Corp., is here, it is believed, for the purpose of resuming discussions started some time ago with Norman Hulbert of Capital and Provincial News Theatres on expansion moves. He is at the Carlton, but refuses to discuss his plans.

British Trans-Lux may also be considering expansion plans as part of the movement for television theatres.

Lord Beaverbrook is interested in a British company, of which his son, Peter Aitken, is a director. This is regarded as significant in view of Lord Beaverbrook's big television interests.

The British Broadcasting Corp. is planning store shows of television in the autumn and might tie in with Trans-Lux.

Court Victory for Erpi and A. T. & T.

Federal Judge John C. Knox has handed down a decision in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York granting the motion of the A. T. & T., Western Electric Co. and Erpi to dismiss the complaint of Bernard Gogel, who, as assignee of the Standard Sound Recording Corp., brought suit against these three companies for $3,000,000 damages alleging violation of the Sherman Law and the Clayton Anti-Trust Act.

The action was one of the 18 "treble damage" suits instituted by

20th-Fox-British Deal Is Unlimited

Twentieth Century-Fox's arrangement with British National for the production of four features a year in England is unlimited as to time and subject to cancellation by either side after three pictures are delivered, S. R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, declared upon his arrival on the Berengaria after five and a half weeks in England and France.

"We will cooperate with British National on casting and we have the veto power on all stories," Kent stated. "A minimum of $250,000 will be spent on some of the pictures and

FCC Quiz of Otterson on Para. Reveals Little New

Further probe by the Federal Communications Commission into the part played by Erpi in the reorganization of Paramount yesterday brought little to light which had not been known earlier.

John E. Otterson, Paramount president and former head of Erpi, testified. After declaring that Erpi had an unsecured creditor's claim of $1,800,000 against Paramount at the inception of the latter's financial difficulties which resulted in a voluntary application for receivership early in 1933, Otterson denied, in reply to a question by Samuel Becker, attorney for the committee, that Erpi had at any time suggested a receiver for Paramount. It was shown through direct testimony and by correspondence subpoenaed from Erpi's files that the company had supported Charles E. Richardson's appointment as a trustee in bankruptcy of Paramount and, in further activities in connection with the company's rehabilitation proceedings, had sought support of other Paramount creditors to maintain Adolph Zukor as the head of the company when it should emerge from bankruptcy. Otterson also identified a slate of nine industry figures as representing a panel

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS probably will answer nothing and yet the facts are incontrovertible. Whoever it once was who suggested "marrying the girl" where radio and films were concerned might have another story to sing in the light of what has happened and is slated to happen in the next few weeks and months in Hollywood. Long second fiddle to New York as a point of radio program origin, national advertisers and the two national broadcasting chains are descending on the coast colony with a whoop, a vengeance and a war cry for scalps which are very apt to be the exhibitors'. . . .

Hiring in rather desultory fashion well-known film names for broadcasting is not a new gadget, of course. But what is new is the decision to get more and bigger talent by the very obvious and simple expedient of taking the mountain to the celluloid Mohammeds. In other words, making Hollywood the program point of origin as against New York. That's taking place now in wholesale manner and with final conclusions only the wind knows and won't tell. . . .

Set or about to start already are Monday, one hour and a half in two programs; Tuesday, one hour divided over two programs; Thursday, two hours and two programs; Friday, one hour and Saturday one hour and a half, split into two shows. All of these are coast-to-coast hookups, using either Columbia or National Broadcasting, paid for and sponsored by national advertisers who very definitely are in the market for film names that click. Moreover, the designated broadcasting time, while early and in some cases in the afternoon what with the four hour difference—daylight — between Hollywood and New York, nevertheless is astutely devised to reach the Middle West and the East when picture business is presumably at its peak. . . .

The detail of these major events is on the reverse side and elsewhere in this morning's edition. But a highlight or two, selected to indicate how the drift goes: On Monday, Lux Radio Theatre headquarters go to the coast. Its opening starring battery will be Clark Gable and Marlene Dietrich. Cecil B. DeMille, signed on a six month contract, will be the narrator. Other top names will be sought and, no doubt, hired at fantastic figures. In September, Fred Astaire becomes master of ceremonies of a new series sponsored by Packard. Significant in that setup, is a $5,000 budget beyond Astaire and for a guest star on each succeeding week's program. . . .

What will be the immediate consequences? It takes no crystal gazer to imagine the effect on theatre grosses. Only the strong in films will be able to withstand the seven hours spread over every evening but the Wednesday in each week with Eddie Cantor still around the ether lanes, Astaire coming up in September and who knows what else not yet known. You might figure that it is in the star contracts with their chief employer, the producer, that matters outside of films, such as radio, should be taken care of. If you want to theorize, this may furnish a likely answer. You must, however, take into consideration that when Radio, for instance, has only one Astaire and Metro one Gable and Paramount one Dietrich, to which you must perforce add the hold which stars have on their employers anyway, the chance to tell them nay is a pretty slim one. We strike this generally pessimistic note about box-offices and radio because we know of no other kind of note to strike. Built by the producer and the public, here comes radio, paying its way handsomely, it is true, to cash in on a personality product born, almost entirely, of and in motion pictures. And about it there appears to be nothing to do except to take the rocks and socks on the chin with as much grace as may be around with no place to go. . . .

Mervyn Le Roy, commenting at large on story buys:

> "I am convinced, thoroughly convinced, that the properties which mechanical story departments turn down are among those which the public most wants to see. Everyone rejected 'I Am a Fugitive'; nobody could see a thing in it. We bought 'Little Caesar' for $3,000 after it had been kicked around; again nobody could see a thing in it. With story departments, it is too often a case of eyes that read, but don't know what they read."

We suggested that he organize a company to pick up options on all plays, stories, scripts and ideas the mechanically-minded turn down flat on his theory there must be plenty of opportunity overlooked, with which idea, if it carries any weight, we agree.

"It's a good idea. Maybe I'll do it," was Mervyn's reply. . . .

Le Roy, by the way, is determined to proceed in business for himself at the rate of four a year. He has submitted a proposition to Warners, but is understood to have several other deals under way. It's a case of the highest bidder on the best terms, family or no family. . . .

48 from Radio

Radio is expected to adhere to its traditional 48 features for 1936-37, according to Ned E. Depinet who stated yesterday the number may be slightly increased.

Plans for the sales convention to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria beginning June 15 are practically completed.

ITOA Men Talk Over Trip to Washington

Harry Brandt, Jack Hattem, John Benas and Maurice Fleischman, the committee appointed by the I.T.O.A. last week to go to Washington to protest malpractices reputedly engaged in by distributors in the local area, will meet today with the organization's board of directors to decide on the departure date for the Capital.

One of the board's members who brought up the complaint of an exhibitor with a theatre seating 300, for which distributors are said to be asking film rentals as high as $500, is expected to reveal the theatre owner's name today, or prior to the committee's departure.

Rodgers Testimonial To Draw Full House

With seating capacity for 100, reservations up to yesterday afternoon totaling 104, and the management planning to enlarge the seating capacity to 110, the Cinema Club testimonial luncheon today to William F. Rodgers, new general sales manager of M-G-M, takes on the aspect of a major problem.

Late yesterday members were being asked to limit the number of guests at the luncheon. Charles C. Pettijohn will be toastmaster, and numerous top home office executives are slated to be among those present, in addition to a virtually complete rollcall of Loew's-M-G-M executives.

Poster Men to Meet

Directors of National Poster Service Assn. will convene today at the Lincoln to discuss plans for the coming convention, scheduled for June 2-4 in Cleveland. Attending will be Simon Libros, George P. Aarons and Al Blofson, from Philadelphia, and Louis Weinzimmer, Harry Egert, Harry Schlit and M. Berhens, of New York.

Warner Lineup to Circuit

A. W. Smith, Jr., Warners' eastern and Canadian sales manager, has closed with Ed Beatty, of the Butterfield circuit of Michigan, for the entire Warner and Cosmopolitan lineup including Vitaphone shorts and trailers for the 1936-37 season. The deal involves 34 towns in Michigan.

The LeRoys and the Lubitsches leave for the coast this afternoon. Likewise Bloom, who enters production via Columbia, leaving the local Music Row with pleasant memories including a dinner by his associates at Irving Berlin, Inc., and a wrist watch from Berlin.

Quip of the Day

"Hello, Mr. Lubitsch, this is the Ampa calling," said a voice to the director as he rested at Mt. Kisco over the weekend. "We're checking to see if you're coming to our luncheon. You know, we are having a curtain of fame—all the leading people in show business will be there and we want you."

"Well, I don't know anything about it," replied Lubitsch, stalling for time.

"Yes, you do. Al Wilkie at Paramount said you'd be there and now what are we going to do with the hole in the curtain reserved for your head. You can't disappoint the boys that way."

"Well," sparred Lubitsch who didn't know a thing about it, "I didn't tell Wilkie positively."

By this time, Mervyn Le Roy had grabbed the phone from Bob Goldstein and the gag was out.

"I'll burn your house down when I get back to Hollywood," yelled Ernst to Mervyn.

Wlliam Wyler, director, and Ruth Chatterton and Walter Huston, stars of Samuel Goldwyn's "Dodsworth," will fly east and board the Queen Mary at Quarantine on her maiden voyage to America. They will film scenes to be used in the picture. Permission is being sought to record statements of Captain Sir Edgar Britten, commander of the new super-liner.

Empire Men Confer On Educ'l Product

Harvey Day of TerryToons, Jack Skirball of Educational and William J. Clarke of Twentieth Century-Fox met yesterday with Oscar Hanson, president; Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire Films, Ltd., of Canada, and the various branch managers of the Canadian company for informal discussions of next season's product.

The Canadian group left for Toronto last night, accompanied by Sam Smith of British Lion and James Campbell. The latter will work on G.B. music matters. After a brief visit, Smith will leave for the Republic studios in Hollywood and from there go to Chicago to attend the Republic convention. Hanson will leave Toronto over the week-end for Jacksonville, Ill., to visit his family prior to attending the Republic sessions.

When Smith returns to England, he will be accompanied by Paul Nathanson, son of N. L., who will work with Smith on production.

Employes of Madrid Capitol in Walkout

Madrid, May 26.—Striking employes of the Capitol here have demanded that the administrative staffs of the theatre and of M-G-M's Spanish distributing unit be ousted. The managers of 40 other houses are rotating in substituting for the strikers, who gradually are being replaced by volunteers from the M-G-M office.

Operators are closing six other houses showing M-G-M product, and the Government has ordered their arrest. The Madrid exhibitors' organization is supporting the management of the Capitol, headed by Caesar Alba.

B. & D. Stockholders Favor Pinewood Plan

London, May 26.—British & Dominion stockholders today approved the proposed 10-year contract by which Capt. Richard Norton, a B. & D. director, will become managing director of the Pinewood studios.

This is a part of the arrangement for the production of New World films here by Robert Kane for Twentieth Century-Fox. The studio will increase its capital and float a loan for expansion purposes.

Ethiopian Rioting, Conquest Screened

Paramount gave trade paper and daily newspaper men a private screening yesterday of nearly 5,000 feet of film of the rioting at Addis Ababa before the arrival of Italian troops, the final advance of the Italian forces, the flight of Haile Selassie and his arrival in Jerusalem. The Emperor makes a speech in French which is translated into English by his daughter.

It is exclusive stuff made by John Dored, the only cameraman to remain in Addis Ababa, it is claimed, and his assistant, who rode on the train to Djibouti upon which the Emperor fled.

The negative arrived Monday afternoon on the Normandie and 450 feet of film was shown at the Embassy that night. It was shipped all over the country during the night.

Hundreds of feet of film were made from a moving truck while the burning and shooting at Addis Ababa were in progress, with the dead still lying in the streets. The scenes made on the train and in Palestine were flown to France. All material shot by Dored after the arrival of the Italians and material made with the advancing army was flown to Rome to be censored and shipped by air from there to France to catch the Normandie.

Some of the photography made with the Italian army and the column which advanced to Lake Tsana is beautiful.

F. P. Canadian Wins Stockholder Action

Toronto, May 26.—Famous Players Canadian Corp., and the trustees in bankruptcy of Paramount, Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake and Charles E. Richardson, gained a legal victory here when the Ontario Court of Appeals dismissed the plea of H. W. Phelan of Toronto in behalf of himself and other shareholders of Famous Players to set aside the exchange of shares in the Canadian company for those of Paramount-Publix in 1930.

The decision, which is of considerable importance, came on an appeal by Phelan from the judgment of Justice MacKay in upholding the decision ot the master of the Supreme Court in dismissing the plaintiff's application. Phelan had asked for a declaration that the trustees of Paramount-Publix merely held the stock of Famous Players in trust for the plaintiffs and for an order that the share register of the Canadian corporation be amended accordingly. A decision in favor of plaintiff might have resulted in a claim for return of Famous Players' shares by hundreds of investors throughout Canada.

Ask "Chain" Theatre Tax

New Orleans, May 26.—A bill introduced in the legislature here today seeks to place a tax on affiliated, or "chain" theatres graded from $100 to $500. The measure is believed to be aimed at the United and Saenger circuits. Indies are not affected.

To Ask Theatre Aid On Detection Films

Trenton, May 26.—An appeal for nationwide exhibition of sound film criminal identifications through newsreel programs will be made tomorrow by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey state police, in the first public showing of new criminal detection films. Governor Hoffman has been invited to preside at the demonstration, to be held in the War Memorial Bldg., adjacent to the state capitol.

More than 600 police officials, legislators and film executives have been invited. Several films of New Jersey criminals will be shown. RCA officials, who developed the special police apparatus, will present data on cost and production. The new equipment, according to Schwarzkopf, can be operated efficiently by two men without technical experience. His proposal will be for the exhibition of the films by theatres in sections where criminals are thought to be hiding.

Radio Staging Hot Fight for Picture Names

orchestra leader fills an engagement at the Cocoanut Grove in the Hotel Ambassador. Rudy Vallee will make another picture for Warners and will broadcast his regular Fleischmann's Yeast hour from this end of the country. In September Fred Astaire will act as master of ceremonies and sing in a new series for Packard.

All of these programs either use or will use film names and all are prepared to put plenty on the line with the exception of the "Hollywood Hotel" program, for which Miss Parsons, film editor of the Hearst newspapers, gets paid, but not the talent. The program reproduces scenes from current pictures, usually with the players who appeared in them. The plan is regarded as national ballyhoo for those pictures.

As an indication of how it goes, the forthcoming Astaire program, aside from its principal star, includes a budget of $5,000 a week for a guest star. It will run 30 minutes over one of the national chains, but no time has been purchased as yet, although the broadcast will be on Sunday evenings.

So far, Wednesday is the only night in the week now open for nationwide program emanating from Hollywood or Los Angeles. The schedule of main events as it now stands follows:

Every Night But Wednesday

Monday—One hour beginning 5 P. M., Pacific time, over CBS. The Lux Radio Theatres, sponsored by the manufacturers of Lux soap. First program Monday night with Clark Gable and Marlene Dietrich as guest stars and Cecil B. DeMille as narrator.

Half hour, starting 5:30 Pacific time, NBC, with Sigmund Romberg and orchestra. Cora Sue Collins acting as mistress of ceremonies pending selection of John Barrymore's successor.

Tuesday—Half hour beginning at 5 P. M., Pacific time, over the National Broadcasting coast-to-coast hookup. Ben Bernie and his band, now at the Cocoanut Grove, Hotel Ambassador, will broadcast his regular program for American Can Co., while filling his hotel engagement. He will use guest stars.

"Parties at Pickfair," starring Mary Pickford and using guest stars. Half hour program from 6 to 6:30 P. M., Pacific time, over coast-to-coast CBS hookup. Program is sponsored by the Ice Industry of America and Canada, a trade association of ice manufacturers fighting electric and gas refrigerators.

Thursday—One hour, beginning at 4 P. M., Pacific time, over the National Broadcasting coast-to-coast hookup. The Rudy Vallee program for Fleischmann's Yeast. This is the regular Vallee hour, which transfers to the coast while the star makes a picture for Warners. It will use guest stars.

One hour, beginning 6 P. M., Pacific time, over a nationwide NBC chain. The Bing Crosby program for Kraft Cheese. This hour uses guest stars.

Friday—One hour, beginning 5 P. M., Pacific time, over a CBS hookup. The "Hollywood Hotel" program, conducted by Louella Parsons, sponsored by Campbell's Soups. This program does not pay for the services of the guest stars it uses. Scenes from new attractions are featured, the Parsons theory being this exploits the film to millions of potential customers.

Saturday—One hour, beginning 5:30 P. M., Pacific time, over a nationwide NBC chain. The Shell Chateau program sponsored by Shell Oil. This uses and pays for guest stars.

Thirty minutes, beginning 6:30 P. M., Pacific time, over NBC coast-to-coast hookup. Dr. West's Toothbrush program with George Olsen and Ethel Shutta. This will use guest stars.

Perfect Technique

Hollywood, May 26. — For several years Lew Smith has been employed as a soda jerker in the M-G-M studio commissary. On the side he has studied acting and has burned much midnight oil in his quest for histrionic perfection.

His big chance arrived. He was selected for a role in M-G-M's "Women are Trouble"—and, of all things—he portrays a soda jerker.

DeMille Has Six-Month Deal

Cecil B. DeMille's deal as narrator for the Lux Radio Theatre will run for six months, beginning Monday evening at the rate of one hourly broadcast a week. He will handle the first, drop out of the second while he attends the Paramount convention in Chicago and the Republican National Convention in Cleveland, and resume on the third. W. S. Van Dyke will handle the second hour while DeMille is away. Danny Danker, coast representative for the J. Walter Thompson agency, which handles Lux, is engaging talent in Hollywood. Frank Woodruff will produce the programs, while J. Savington Crampton, account executive handling the Lux account for the agency, goes west next week for a month to keep an eye on development of the programs.

It is expected that a representative of the Federal Housing Administration will tell exhibitors how to remodel their theatres with the financial aid of the Government.

Dave Palfreyman of the Hays organization will attend the sessions.

Two hundred room reservations have been received at the Hollenden and 100 Pontiacs have been chartered to meet the delegates at the railroad station.

Freidl, Ludwig Arrive

J. J. Freidl and L. J. Ludwig, Paramount theatre operators, finally got in yesterday from Minneapolis for home office product conferences with Y. Frank Freeman. A. H. Blank and Ralph Branton, who returned to Des Moines over the week-end, are scheduled to be back again in three weeks.

the others will cost around $400,000."

The first of four pictures Robert T. Kane will produce for New World Prod., Twentieth Century-Fox subsidiary, will be in Technicolor. No title has been set, according to Kent.

Two of the British National and all four New World films will be brought over for distribution in the American market, the Twentieth Century-Fox head asserted. With the six English pictures, but exclusive of the six westerns Sol Lesser will make and the one Elisabeth Bergner production, the company will release 60 features next season, Kent said.

"There is nothing to reports Lord Portal is dickering for our 49 per cent interest in G. B. Neither is there anything to the rumors Twentieth Century-Fox is after control of G. B. These stories crop up every year when I make a trip abroad," Kent added.

He also denied there was any truth to reports Twentieth Century-Fox was interested in acquiring the Roxy as its own Broadway show window.

"Conditions abroad are very good and the film business is growing," he stated. Kent leaves tomorrow for Chicago and the annual sales convention and may go to the coast from there.

Hutchinson to Far East

Returning from a five-month trip to 26 European countries, Walter J. Hutchinson, head of the Twentieth Century-Fox foreign division, is looking forward to a tour of the Far East in the fall, he said yesterday when he arrived on the Berengaria.

However, no reorganization is necessary there since all sales have been centralized some time ago with Delbert Goodman in charge. The trip will be for a general checkup.

Reorganization of the 26 foreign countries under the general management of Ben Miggins is working out satisfactorily, Hutchinson said. It's the first time that the company has had such a setup, he added.

Conditions are very encouraging, especially in England where there is a very definite amount of prosperity, Hutchinson declared. As for the Continent, "we can't complain." He will be one of the home office group leaving tomorrow for Chicago and the sales confab.

Big Coast Delegation

Darryl F. Zanuck, Sol Wurtzel, William Goetz, William Dover, Irving Berlin and Irving Caesar will leave Hollywood in a special chartered plane Friday for the Twentieth Century-Fox convention in Chicago, John D. Clark, general sales manager, stated yesterday. Joseph M. Schenck and S. R. Kent leave New York tomorrow with Clark and numerous home office executives and members of the sales forces.

Clark said the purpose of his latest trip to the coast was to get a lineup on product from Zanuck and Wurtzel. He said that in the fall, or later, all production will be combined under one studio.

No promotions will be made at the convention, the general sales manager asserted. Twentieth Century-Fox definitely will not adopt the poster rental plan to be inaugurated by Paramount on June 1, he added.

musicals. This constitutes group five and six.

The final batch of features embraces eight "Three Mesquiteers" westerns. Three characters will be featured.

No stars are given for the four serials.

Home office executives are scheduled to leave for Chicago next Tuesday for preliminary arrangements and conferences.

Parsons Moved Up

Grover Parsons, San Francisco branch manager for M-G-M for the past 17 years, has resigned to join Republic as western division sales manager. He will assume his new duties in about a month. The western division post has been vacant since J. J. Milstein was appointed general sales manager several weeks ago.

No successor to Parsons at the M-G-M San Francisco office has been named, it was stated yesterday by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager. A new man will be set in the post shortly, it was said.

Pennsylvania Gets Footage Tax Bill cents a foot on all film examined by the censors.

It is estimated this measure would yield $3,470,000 a year, as the Dep't. of Revenue has ascertained that 210,000,000 feet of film were examined last year. This was about 70,000,000 of original film and 140,000,000 reissues of patched and repaired film. The bill was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

Last year the Legislature imposed a tax of one cent on each 25 cents or fraction thereof on tickets to theatres and other amusements.

The present session is a special one called solely for the purpose of producing revenue for unemployment relief. While the Ominsky bill does not bear the official earmarks of the Administration, Assemblyman Ominsky is a Democrat and is said to share the confidence of Governor George H. Earle, 3rd., also a Democrat.

"We may come over to produce," Procter said. "We hope to contribute something in the development in motion picture art. We have learned a great deal from you people," he added.

Procter believes Max Schach is an outstanding foreign director. In addition to his film work, Schach is a director on the boards of most of the companies. Procter also holds out hopes for Carl Grune, another director.

All financing is privately arranged, Procter declared. He brought with him a print of "Love in Exile" with Helen Vinson and Clive Brook. Alfred Werker directed.

FCC Quiz of John Otterson Reveals Little approved by Erpi for membership on the board of the reorganized Paramount.

The slate included Karl Hoblitzelle, Barney Balaban, Martin Quigley, Watterson Rothacker, Richardson, George J. Schaefer, Zukor, Frank C. Walker and E. V. Richards.

Otterson denied that Erpi supported the designation of any candidates to positions of influence within Paramount in the hope that "friendly interests" would aid Erpi in obtaining renewals of its recording and reproducing licenses with Paramount.

A letter written by Otterson to Edgar S. Bloom, president of Western Electric, was read into the record, which emphasized the importance to Erpi of "friendly trusteeships" in maintaining or protecting the latter's theatre licensees. The letter disclosed that Otterson had been offered a post as a voting trustee in the receivership of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and cited a cut rate drive by RCA Photophone for some of the theatre sound equipment business controlled by Erpi. It stated that the RCA subsidiary had urged several large theatre circuits which were in receivership or bankruptcy to cancel their Erpi contracts for RCA licenses.

Asked by Becker if he did not think that it was "more likely" that Erpi's contracts with Paramount would be renewed if "a friendly trustee" was named for the company, Otterson declined to answer on the ground that the question pertained only to Richardson's character, which he believed to be above reproach.

Invited by Halsey, Stuart

Otterson said that he had also been urged by Halsey, Stuart to become a trustee of Paramount. He said that he had been brought into contact with Halsey, Stuart several years earlier through financial transactions which Erpi and its affiliates had had with Fox Film, with which Halsey, Stuart was also identified.

Otterson traced the formation of the Paramount merchandise creditors' committee, of which Erpi was a moving factor, touched upon the negotiations through which Erpi's $1,800,000 claim against Paramount was settled for $1,200,000 and new licensing agreements, and then related the events leading up to his own selection as president of the reorganized Paramount.

Otterson said that the merchandise creditors' committee eventually gave its support to the socalled "Fortington group" in the final stages of the reorganization. The group consisted of H. A. Fortington, representative of the Royal and Liverpool insurance companies; John Hertz of Lehman Bros., Floyd Odlum of Atlas Corp., Frank Altschul of Lazard Freres, Allied Owners Corp. and several bank creditors, in addition to the merchandise creditors' committee.

Asked if the group represented only about $8,000,000 of the $55,000,000 of creditors' claims against Paramount, Otterson replied that he thought it was "more than that."

Otterson testified that his own name had been advanced for a place on the board of the reorganized Paramount, but said that he "would not go on as director." Some time later, he said, Hertz first suggested to him the presidency of Paramount. Asked at this point if Lehman Bros. were "substantial holders" of Paramount securities, Otterson replied "I believe not."

He testified that he brought R. E. Anderson, former Erpi vice-president, into Paramount as treasurer at a salary of $700 weekly; that Herbert Wilcox came to Paramount as a statistician and engineer at $500 weekly; that Watterson Rothacker came from General Service Studio and was elected a vice-president of the Paramount production subsidiary, although the post was described as a "temporary" one and was concluded within the past two weeks. Keith Glennon was also drafted from Erpi ranks for a Paramount post, Otterson said. The Paramount president related that his five-year contract is at $3,000 weekly, and that his salary at Erpi was $50,000 a year.

Traces Early Sound Moves

In earlier testimony Otterson traced the organization and rise of Erpi as a medium for supplying sound equipment to the industry and outlined two separate plans for its development with producer participation between 1925 and 1927, neither of which materialized.

The commission's hearing here was to "fill in incomplete portions of the commission's record," Becker said following yesterday's adjournment. He said that the A. T. & T. hearings probably would be resumed on June 2 in Washington and that the commission might recess for the summer shortly thereafter.

A clash between Becker and Otterson's attorney, Arthur Schwartz of the Nathan Burkan office, occurred at the end of yesterday's hearing over the producing of certain correspondence from Otterson's and Erpi's files. The correspondence was identified as the "Beck Plan re British Quota" and included letters which passed between Otterson, Will H. Hays and James M. Beck, Jr., Hays office representative at London. Refusing to produce the letters, Schwartz declared them to be "irrelevant" to the purposes of the commission's investigation.

"Rainy" Has $12,700 For 2nd Week's Run

"One Rainy Afternoon," for the second week ending last night, took in about $12,700. Intake for the seventh week of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the Astor on a two-a-day policy was $17,000. Very few vacant seats are the order of the day at this house. The second week of "The Moon's Our Home" wound up with close to $20,000.

"Bullets and Ballots" opened to good business at the Strand yesterday. The Paramount this morning opens with "The Case Against Mrs. Ames." A gross of $32,000 is anticipated for the first week of "It's Love Again" at the Roxy. It's being held over. Following this G.B. film will be Jane Withers in "Little Miss Nobody."

At the Strand, six days of "Taxi" garnered around $8,000. "Sons o' Guns," the previous tenant, ended an 11-day run with $11,500. "Dracula's Daughter" at the Rialto was good for $9,500 and is now in its second stanza.

The Capitol registered its worst business in years and hit a new low with "Speed," which grossed approximately $7,500. A double feature at the Palace, "Champagne Charlie" and "Human Cargo," also hit the toboggan with less than $5,000 for the week.

Davis-Furber Talking News Theatre Plans

English Expansion Move Aims at Television

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, May 27.—Percy N. Furber is definitely talking to Jack Davis in connection with the latter's plans for a big expansion of news theatres on lines of his Monseigneur in Picadilly Circus. The plan is to open in London at Trafalgar Square, Marble Arch, Leicester Square and in Sheffield and Manchester, followed by other large cities.

Furber's rear projection system interests Davis and he does not deny the possibility of a commercial deal with Furber and his British associates in Trans-Lux, Will Evans and Lord Beaverbrook.

The Films Act in England, and conditions in Spain, Mexico and Japan are discussed in articles on page 10.

Davis will go to New York next month, via Canada. He is dickering with the British Broadcasting Corp. for exclusive rights on the screen to any news film made by it for television.

Bill Rodgers: Single Bill On % Establishes New High

By RED KANN

The humidity played its part, of course. But all of the flush that suffused Bill Rodgers' face yesterday at the Cinema Club was not traceable to the weather. The quiet, retiring new general sales manager of M-G-M, on his left and on his right was flanked by well known industry figures including Al Lichtman, David Bernstein, Martin Quigley, Howard Dietz, Charles C. Pettijohn, Louis B. Mayer, J. Robert Rubin, Arthur M. Loew and Jack Alicoate. There in front of him, packed in so tightly that 71 who sought to attend the luncheon for him could not find place, were approximately 110 film men representing a tidy and representative cross-section of the New York industry turned out in wholesale and in a spirit of camaraderie to formally recognize his promotion to his present high post.

The luncheon was keyed largely to a tempo of fun. There were interspersed, of course, more serious matters. Tribute to the memory of Felix F. Feist whose mantle Rodgers has inherited was paid by several speakers. There were words of praise for Rodgers, but there also was fun.

Charles C. Pettijohn was toastmaster. "I don't know what this is about, but as master of ceremonies I

Waiting Policy Is Adopted on France

A policy of watchful waiting has been adopted in connection with the new French decree which threatens world wide censorship for films through a system of barring visas for French exhibition to individuals and companies who have offended elsewhere.

Major Frederick L. Herron of the Hays office said vesterday the problem would probably be handled through representatives in Paris.

Circuits Are Making Bids For the Roxy

Schines, Cocalis, Brandt, Others File Plans

Several important independent circuit theatre operators are understood to have made bids within the past few months for reorganizing the Roxy. The proposals are said to have been filed with Carlos Israels, of White & Case, attorneys for the first mortgage bondholders' committee.

Among the bidders are Louis and Meyer Schine, who operate large group of theatres in Ohio and upstate New York; Sam Cocalis, who has 21 theatres of his own in Greater New York in addition to an interest in 22 other houses with Jack Springer; Haring & Blumenthal, prominent real estate and theatre operators, who run the French Casino, opposite the Roxy; Harry Brandt, whose circuit now totals 55 and continues to negotiate for a number of other small houses on the east side, and Mort Singer, head of the Singer circuit in the Midwest in which RKO has a partnership arrangement.

About a year ago the column was dropped for three or four days because of complaints from exhibitors.

Five Entertainers On Ampa List Today

Five and possibly six screen and stage players are on the Ampa entertainment list for the weekly luncheon at the Astor today. Joe Penner is an "if possible" starter, but he may be scratched before the soup is served. Definitely set are Hildegarde Halliday, comedienne of the Rudy Vallee show; Helen Ferguson, star of the silent screen; Alma Lloyd, Frank Lloyd's daughter, and Carol and Paula Stone, daughters of Fred Stone.

A drawing will be held to find the winner of the vacation credit at Grossinger's Country Club, and the results will be announced of the membership poll on the proposed change of the weekly meeting day from Thursday to Tuesday.

Columbia to Chicago

Columbia's annual sales convention will not be held on the coast after all. Chicago will be the city for the gathering, probably starting June 22.

THE PICTURE OF THE WEEK

In celebration of Decoration Day, Warners release their film version of a famous musical stage hit, hailed by the Literary Digest's critic as 'definitely Joe's best picture.' Beverly Roberts, Eric Blore, Winifred Shaw, Craig Reynolds, Joseph King and Robert Barrat head the regiment of roar recruits that marches this 'box-office bell ringer' right into the front line of the year's song-and-laugh shows. 'Sure-hit' Lloyd Bacon directed; Harry Warren and Al Dubin wrote the catchy tunes.

JOE E. BROWN in "SONS O'GUNS", with JOAN BLONDELL,

THE LIFE OF THE PARTY!

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from its very beginning has been the leader in that delightful habit of making Big Budget Pictures. Each year Leo has made more and more of them. And so we're going to SPECIALIZE even more next season on a flock of BIG ONES. There are THIRTY BIG BUDGET PRODUCTIONS actually in preparation NOW with many of them COMPLETED! The total number of M-G-M Feature Pictures next season will range between 44 and 52 and you'll agree with our descriptive slogan: "Glorifying The American Screen".

Short Subjects

"The Plow That Broke The Plains"

(Resettlement Administration)

Produced by the Resettlement Administration as part of the work of the Works Progress Administration, this three-reeler attempts to recount in pictures the effort of the R.A. to rehabilitate the Great Plains area of the United States and the people thereof, but the effort is amazingly inept from the standpoint of the motion picture. Pare Lorentz, film critic, is credited with the writing and direction of the subject, and Virgil Thomson with the composition of the musical score.

The intention obviously was of the best, and the idea worthwhile, but the manner in which it has been made is crude and ineffectual in the extreme. Discounting the poor facilities at the Women's Exposition of Arts and Industries at the Grand Central Palace, the result is still weak. The film darts about from sequence to sequence, generally with little apparent continuity, telling of the building of the Great Plains area, its devastation by drought, and the attempts of the R.A. to restore the vast territory. A major fault lies in the delaying until almost the last few minutes of the R.A. resettlement work.

"Colourful Cairo"

(Harold Auten)

The Egyptian city with its colorful moving life and the ancient history about its walls is shown with all the beauty of the buildings, thoroughfares, mosques, etc., brought out with fine photography. A sophisticated note is struck when the famous terrace of Shepheard's Hotel and the lurking guides and tourists are seen. The film ends following a trip to the Pyramids and the Sphinx. Very well done. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Damascus and Jerusalem"

(Harold Auten)

A scenic and architectural treat, combining the historically holy with the modern development of the Biblical center, this short will please the audience that appreciates a higher type of travel offering. The many interesting places about the two centers of religion are exceptionally well photographed and many camera studies of the inhabitants and bazaars make a distinctive, artistic offering. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Glimpses of Picturesque Java"

(Harold Auten)

This is an excellent travel film. The photography is remarkably clear and the subject matter along with the descriptive, spoken accompaniment is interesting. The big cities, Batavia and Surabaya, are well presented and the contrasts in customs, architecture and people with modern Dutch improvements should please. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Girl of the Ozarks"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, May 27.—Little Virginia Weidler does remarkably appealing work in her first star part and is sure to draw pleasing comment from family audiences for carrying the entire weight of this routine hill billy tale though the supporting cast is good.

The young star plays a poverty stricken problem child who is always in hot water through her romantic and gallant lies designed to save her self-respect and reassure her dying mother. The teacher of the country school, in desperation, threatens to send the child to the county home after one more exploit. Henrietta Crosman as the gun-toting grandma, steals a dress for the child to wear on graduation day which results in a tear-jerking scene when the harsh storekeeper claims his property in the midst of the exercises.

The story by Maurine Babb, John Bright and Robert Tasker is routine in plot and character with all the emphasis thrown to Miss Weidler. The screenplay by Stuart Anthony and Michael L. Simmons has bright, quaint dialogue. A. M. Botsford produced, Edward Cline supervised and William Shea directed.

Lief Erikson shows capacity to develop into a strong bet as a leading man. Good support is contributed by Elizabeth Russell, Russell Simpson, Louis Mason, Nora Cecil, Lois Kent, Arthur Aylesworth and Janet Young.

Emphasize the tribulations of the "quaint" baby going after the school board with her gun and her lying from love and lonesomeness.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,244. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Don Bosco"

(Nuovo Mondo)

Not entertainment in the accepted sense of the word, this latest Italian importation by Nuovo Mondo is rather a review of the highlights of the life of Don Bosco, a priest who lived and worked about the middle of the 19th Century, and was particularly noted for his efforts in the rehabilitation of wayward boys.

There are moments of dramatic strength in the picture, which carries the story from the early years of the small boy, John Bosco, the son of peasant widow, to his death in 1888, honored and revered throughout the country. In 1934 Pope Pius XI elevated him to sainthood.

Except for the fact of offering an interesting picturization of the life of a great humanitarian and educator, the film has little in it which will recommend it to the average American audience. Patrons of Italian descent, however, should find much in the film to interest them. There are a sufficient number of English subtitles to make for ready understanding.

The establishment by Don Bosco in later years of missionary groups to unenlightened countries was actually secondary to his most important work, the establishment of trade and agricultural schools in Italy, centering in Turin. At this time he propounded his theory based on a preventive system, fundamentally that boys usefully occupied would not become juvenile delinquents.

It is, on the whole, an interesting film of limited appeal.

"The King Steps Out," opening this morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was reviewed by wire from Hollywood on May 15.

"The Case Against Mrs. Ames," yesterday's opener at the Paramount, was reviewed on the coast on May 2.

Six Are Indicted in Bombing of Theatres

The Nassau County grand jury has returned four open and two secret John Doe indictments against six men in connection with the explosion of a mustard gas bomb in a Mineola, L. I., theatre on May 13. The four men named, members of the Nassau County local of the I.A.T.S.E., are: John E. Cubeard, president of the local; Thomas A. Watson, secretary and treasurer; Michael D'Angelo, business agent, and John Baptiste.

The police declared a panic, in which 15 persons were slightly injured, followed the explosion of the bomb. They charged the planting of the bomb was preceded by a demand that the theatre re-employ a stagehand who had been dismissed because new equipment made his services unnecessary.

Academy Plans New Fall Sound Courses

HOLLYWOOD, May 27.—The sound course committee of the Academy Research Council met here today to discuss arrangements for the educational courses to be conducted by the Research Council in the fall. J. G. Frayne, committee chairman, presided.

Plans are under way for two courses, both to start about Sept. 1, one to cover the fundamentals of sound recording, similar to the course recently concluded, and the other to treat of the more advanced details of recording equipment. Enrollment in both courses will be limited to technicians employed in the studio sound departments.

Referee Allows Big Skouras Bros. Claim

ST. LOUIS, May 27.—Referee in Bankruptcy Hope has allowed a $1,214,950 claim against the bankrupt estate of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc., based upon the unpaid balance of a $4,500,000 bond issue floated in 1925 which was guaranteed by the firm.

The claim was filed by William R. Orthwein, co-trustee, and Melvin L. Straus, original trustee under a deed of trust and chattel mortgage executed by Central Properties Corp., which issued the $4,500,000 in bonds. Central Properties was a subsidiary of Skouras Brothers Enterprises.

Rodgers on a Single Bill A Big % Draw

suppose the thing to do is to call on the dumb act, the roller skaters to get the show moving. Therefore, I call on Howard Dietz, chief exploiteer of M-G-M," was Pettijohn's opener.

Said Dietz:

"I understand only two or three fellows have been coming in here for lunch and so someone decided to throw a party. Bill Rodgers may be a topnotch sales executive to you. To me, he might be termed an associate, an associate of 16 years' standing as a matter of fact. Really, he is No. 282 on the inter-office telephone."

Lichtman "Fu-Manchu"

"We don't know any more about the reason for this party than we did before," complained Pettijohn. "I'm told that in my job today the thing to do between speakers is to make an announcement. Alright, I'll make one. There is to be a dinner for Carl Laemmle at the Waldorf on June 22, Louis Nizer informs me. Now, I'll call upon the mystery man at Metro. Nobody knows what he does there and it's about time he explained. Al Lichtman."

"If you don't know who I am, I'll tell," opened Lichtman. "I'm Fu-Manchu. Furthermore, the purpose of getting you here was not on account of Bill Rodgers, but to tell you about the dinner for Laemmle. Dietz and I exchanged that inter-office telephone gag, but when Pettijohn called on Howard first I gave it back to him."

Pettijohn then declared 71 men had been turned away because of lack of accommodations. "From now on, we play Rodgers on percentage only." Came Tom Connors sotto voce from the sidelines: "Yes and single feature, too."

Mayer Clarifies

Explaining that exhibitors cannot play duals unless someone makes the pictures, Pettijohn next turned to Louis B. Mayer. "Pettijohn can say what he likes because this is a Democratic day. However, another day is coming and when it does I won't forget Charlie. Nobody yet has explained what this function is all about, but I can and will. Besides, it always takes Hollywood to tell New York—in New York. When the company decided to elevate Rodgers, it was figured he had all the necessary qualifications except one. He was too timid. So we decided to give him a dinner—there are others coming—in order to put him up against the hammer and prepare him to meet the exhibitor. When he says he's had enough dinners, then we know the one missing qualification will have been met. Actually, I came here because I am a Republican and because I have had no other chance to make a speech."

Having heard from producer and distributor, Pettijohn then swung to exhibitors. "Mixed up as usual," he read a fake telegram addressed to Harry Hershfield, toastmaster of the Will Rogers Memorial luncheon which outlined I. M. Smart's nine-point program for next year. The nine ran something like this:

"2.—I will cut out the newsreels. The people in this country are learning too much about what is going on anyhow. The customers become 'intelligentsia' from them things.

"8.—I will believe all them stories about pictures breaking box-office records and taking in $30,000 last week in a house with a 500 seating capacity. If they can't arrest you for publishing it, they can't lock you up for believing it."

The why of the gathering appearing to continue in doubt, Pettijohn, smart young fellow, found the way out by turning to the trade papers. He called on Jack Alicoate, editor of The Film Daily who was in good form.

"'Timid' is a delightful word coming from Metro. Bill Rodgers, however, is a member of a fine and progressive organization. It is always seeking new things. I understand that since Louis Mayer arrived in town and what with 'Romeo and Juliet' coming up, he is insisting that inter-office correspondence be written in blank verse. Can you imagine Charlie Moskowitz communicating with Dave Bernstein in something like the following vein:

"'I bring you greetings, my dear Sir David, for I have passed a fearful night full of hysteria and miserable dreams, of union musicians who bring forth unholy sounds from flutes and lyres, of competitive showmen, who steal and plunder from our treasury of mind and of ushers and doormen who grin with glee. Here, dear David, to ask for doubloons, a satchel full of gold that I, melancholy malcontent, may don sword and helmet to go forth and do battle with our enemies. So 'elp me'."

The crowd roared.

The explanation finally was reaching the open. Martin Quigley, next to talk, spoke briefly and seriously and praised Rodgers' record as a distributor over the years. "I have watched his progress for years and I see the hand of Felix Feist as having played an important part in Rodgers' career."

J. Robert Rubin was also emphatic. "This is a proper luncheon for a proper man," he said. "For Rodgers is worthy. It takes an excellent man to succeed Felix Feist and to Bill I would say: Be as Felix was as you will be, I know."

Pettijohn proposed a rising, silent toast to the memory of Feist. It stirred the memories of the days that were. Then, finally came Rodgers.

"I am not one of those who regard distribution as a 'lost art.' It has progressed from the days of the 'locked reel' when one slipup wrecked the entire distribution system. I remember the days when special officers were necessary in the exchanges. They are no longer necessary; we have vice-presidents now. If the opportunity given me has allowed me to play a small part in that progress, I am gratified as I am proud that all of you have come here today on my behalf."

On his own summation that it was a "triple feature show in 29½ minutes," Pettijohn then called it a day.

Those present included, in part:

Sabath Probe On Today As Protest Fails will remain in the case is dependent upon any possible inconsistency or diversity of interest, which will be determined in the next few days."

John E. Otterson, Paramount president, and H. A. Fortington, chairman of the executive committee, may be the first witnesses called by the committee if today's hearing proceeds as scheduled.

When questioned about reports that he would withdraw from his position of counsel to the Sabath committee Steuer said that he "is considering the question of whether or not there is any inconsistency in his position," and added that he would reach a conclusion by tomorrow or Monday.

Steuer is of counsel for Kuhn, Loeb & Co., defendants in actions instituted by the Paramount trustees against former officers, directors and associates of Paramount to recover for the company under two causes of action. One relates to the participation of the defendants in the socalled Paramount employes' stock purchase plan, in effect prior to the company's bankruptcy. The suit alleges that the defendants wrongfully participated in acquiring Paramount stock at below market levels through the employes' plan and seeks to recover for the company the difference between the price of the stock when issued to the defendants and its market price at the time. The second cause of action relates to the redemption by Paramount of its own stock at guaranteed prices, when issued for theatre acquisitions.

Hearing Set Today In "Zombie" Action

Hearing on an application for an injunction to prevent the showing of "Revolt of the Zombies" will be held today in N. Y. Supreme Court before Justice Aaron J. Levy. The case was postponed yesterday when it came up. In the meantime the showing at the Rialto has been set back indefinitely.

Application for the injunction has been made by Amusement Securities Corp., which, through its vice-president, Sherman Krellberg, charges that the new picture damages the exhibition value of "White Zombie," which it bought from Halperin Prod., Inc., in 1932 and is still showing. The complaint charges Victor Halperin and Edward J. Halperin, producers of "Revolt of the Zombies," were officers of Halperin Prod., Inc., when that company sold "Revolt of the Zombies."

The plaintiff seeks $50,000 damages in addition to a stay. Defendants named are Midtown Theatre Corp., operator of the Rialto; Producers' Laboratories, Inc., Melbert Pictures, Inc., RKO Film Booking Corp. and Ameranglo Corp.

such requests for concessions. Television to theatre screens is impractical at present, as the maximum picture size is about six inches wide, with possible magnification to 12 inches. B. B. C. transmission will be strictly experimental from early July to September, with October as "dress rehearsal month."

Regular service with entertainment value is scheduled to begin in November, with three shows daily from 3 o'clock to 4 o'clock, 6:15 to 7:15, and 9:00 to 10:30. The plan is to have a half-hour cabaret or variety show, 10 minutes of news films, and the balance illustrated talks on "How to Play Golf" and other subjects. Transmission will be by Baird and E. M. I., each fortnightly in turn. Receivers will be dual, switching to either system.

Broadcasting will be limited to London at first, but perfection of a coaxial cable will permit later relays to provincial towns, each serving 30-mile areas. Birmingham will be the first of these.

Australian Quotas Expected to Spread

a five-year duration. The exhibitors' quota, which is closely paralleled by that for distributors, specifies that four per cent of his bookings must be of Australian origin during the first year of the quota, and increase annually up to 15 per cent in the fifth year. The law becomes effective for distributors in the two states next month and for exhibitors in October.

Thornley related that safeguards have been incorporated in the laws which eliminate many of the obnoxious features of quotas generally. An impartial board is set up to determine whether pictures offered by Australian producers measure up to an accepted production standard. Three of approximately seven Australian-made pictures submitted to this board have been rejected already. Thornley said provision is also made for appeals to an under-secretary from decisions by the impartial board that pictures measure up to the accepted standard. The appeal right is regarded as of benefit to independent de luxe houses which might find average program pictures approved by the board unsuitable for their policy. Australian theatres will be permitted to reject pictures contracted for from foreign distributors in order to take care of their quota playing time requirements.

Thornley said that Australian studios felt the need of technicians and writers. He plans to spend three or four weeks in New York on his return here next month before returning to Australia. He leaves for England tonight on the Berengaria.

The Capitol in Melbourne is operated under the Paramount distribution system for Australia, Thornley said, and is used primarily as a show window. No theatre expansion is planned by the company in Australia, he said.

Exhibitors in London Favor Booking Laws

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, May 18.—Exhibitors in the London area emphatically expressed themselves as in favor of retaining the present Films Act restrictions on block and blind booking, in replies to a questionnaire sent out by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n.

Of 275 theatres which replied to the queries, addressed to the London and Home Counties' Branch, 80 per cent answered in the negative on the question: "Would permission to block and blind booking be of any advantage to you?" The nature of the reply to this portion of the questionnaire is considered highly significant in view of the frequent suggestion that the booking restrictions section of the Act has served its purpose.

It is pointed out that if the same sentiment is expressed by exhibitors in other parts of the country, it cannot fail to influence the C.E.A. committee in favor of the continuance of this section of the Act. The section makes it illegal to book any film that has not been shown to the trade and imposes a booking time limit whereby exhibition dates may not be more than six months after the date of signing.

Opposes Dropping Quota

Arthur Taylor, secretary of the branch, made an analysis of the results of the questionnaire, which was for the purpose of determining the advisability of continuing or altering the Act. Since the three large circuits, Gaumont British, Associated British and Union Cinemas, did not reply, the answers are considered to offer a true cross-section of independent exhibitor opinion.

Other significant results indicated that 67 per cent of the exhibitors are opposed to the total abolition of the quota, 29 per cent think it should be applied to distributors only, and 49 per cent reported that they have serious difficulty in "profitably complying" with the present quota rules.

Of the last 49 per cent, 41 per cent ascribe their difficulty to a shortage of available product, and 22 per cent to audience dislike of British films. A total of 47 per cent suggested that the new quota basis should be 10 per cent for exhibitors and 20 per cent for distributors.

Urge Quota Increase

The English Association of Cine Technicians, which has a membership of 900 studio specialists of British nationality, is making representations to the Departmental Committee on the Films Act urging a minimum cost of £2 per foot for quota films, or a £6,000 minimum for features of 6,000 feet or over, excluding story costs.

Another suggestion which it will put forward is that the distributors' quota shall increase from 20 per cent to 25 per cent and that the quota on exhibitors shall be reduced to 12½ per cent.

Inclusion of "documentary" films in subjects ranking for quota is also urged by the A. C. T. and it is suggested that the preference given to British scenario writers under the existing act should be extended to other technicians.

At the annual meeting of the association it was claimed that, as a result of a deputation to the Ministry of Labor, there had been a tightening up of regulations governing the issue of labor permits to foreign technicians.

U. S. Picture Firms Urging Spanish Loan

By HARRY C. PLUMMER

Barcelona, May 15.—Reports are current and persistent in business and financial circles here and in Madrid that American motion picture and automobile interests in the United States are actively supporting a New York banking group which is negotiating with the Spanish Government a loan sufficient to meet a Spanish obligation of 350,000,000 pesetas, long overdue.

Under the terms asked by the U.S. group, the deposit of at least a portion of the heavy Spanish gold stocks in London is necessary. An inducement is the surprisingly low interest rate of 1½ per cent asked by the group.

The reason for the activity of the film and auto interests in the matter lies in the fact that conclusion of such a loan automatically would bring about the favorable termination of negotiations for the American-Spanish reciprocal trade agreement, which only awaits signatures. The chief obstacle to the signing of the treaty is the question of dollar export.

It is understood that negotiations with the Bank of France for a similar loan collapsed when the French asked a virtual monopoly of the Spanish and Spanish Moroccan market for French cars.

Twentieth Century-Fox pictures had impressive openings at two first run local houses last week. "Thanks a Million" had its premiere at the Fantasio, with many of the city's society figures in attendance. "It Had to Happen," with "Charley Chan's Secret," a dual bill, opened at the Capitol, following several successful films booked at the large downtown house recently by Hispano Fox Film, S.A.E.

"Gentlemen Are Born" played at the Cine Maryland to sufficient business to warrant holding it over for a second week. It is expected that the picture will be dubbed for second and subsequent runs throughout the country.

Joins Canadian Group

Toronto, May 27. — F. C. Badgley, director of the Canadian Government Film Bureau, Ottawa, was elected a director of the National Film Society of Canada at its second annual meeting. The society was established a year ago to promote the cultural factors of films and branches have been organized in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver. The society shortly will publish a report on pictures, the book to be financed by the Carnegie Foundation of New York.

Mexican Film Actors Fight Union's Dues

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, May 27. — Further evidence of the instability of the Mexican labor situation is apparent in the sharp dispute which has arisen here over wage assessments between screen players and the cinematographists' union. The union demands three per cent of all wages received by the players. The latter contend the rate is too high, since they need all the money they earn, production in Mexico being too irregular and too limited to permit them to earn very much.

The union, on the other hand, claims its demands are justified in view of the expenses of operating the organization for the protection of players rights. Several producing companies have been requested to enter the controversy in the capacity of arbitrators.

The first of a series of shorts being produced by the Ministry of Public Education for the sole purpose of stimulating the tourist traffic in Mexico is running at the Cine Palacio here. It is planned to show the film, and others of the series, in the United States and other foreign countries.

Xavier Davilla has in work a nine-reel film, "Marihuana," which deals with the methods of the Mexican police in fighting dope and its peddlers. Barry Norton, Jose Bohr and Lupita Tovar head the cast. Technical police details are being supervised by Ted Gonzales, fingerprint expert of the local department, who at one time was a New York detective. The picture, a departure for Mexican producers, is planned for the U. S. and general foreign distribution.

Business at local theatres has been cut approximately 25 per cent from the normal by the start of the rainy season here, which lasts until November. However, exhibitors are of the opinion that the weak business situation will prevail for only a few weeks, until the public becomes accustomed to the continued rain. After that business is expected to return to normal.

A new trend in film-stage policies here is the booking by the de luxe Cine-Teatro Alameda, new theatre, of the famous Ballet Espagnol of Madrid, a company of Spanish dancers for a two-week engagement in the fall. The show will come here from a run at the Guild Theatre in New York.

Among the most popular foreign films current in the leading local houses are "These Three," at the Cine-Teatro Alameda; "Sanders of the River," at the Cine Olimpia, and "Bonnie Scotland," at the Cine Iris.

Japan Circuit Expansion Is Slowing Down

By TETSUYA MORI

Tokyo, April 30.—Theatre circuit expansion has tapered off rapidly of late as a result of the discovery by large operators that mere numbers can be a burden where indiscriminate acquisition is carried on on a competitive basis. More careful selection is to be the rule in the future.

Some of the larger companies have been aiming at circuits of from 500 to 700 houses, with the idea of impressing the public as well as competitors. In the rush many unprofitable spots have been acquired.

At the end of March, Nikkatsu had 544 houses, with 229 operated from the head office and 315 from the Kansai branch. Of these, 25 were under direct control, 137 under percentage contract and 382 under special contract. Shochiku had 540 houses, with 212 operated from the head office and 328 from the Kansai branch. Of these, 13 were under direct control, 287 under percentage contract, and 240 under special contract. Shinko had 469 houses, with 186 operated by the head office and 283 by the Kansai branch. Of these, six were under direct control, 116 under percentage contract, and 347 under special contract. Daito had 120 houses, with 87 operated by the head office and 120 by the Kansai branch. Of these, 15 were under percentage contract, and 117 under special contract. Figures on Daito's other branches were not obtainable.

James A. FitzPatrick's Technicolor camera crew of seven men is having censor trouble. They want to film native dances either at Tokyo or Kyoto and must work outdoors. Such films must be censored, but there is no Technicolor laboratory in this country.

Officials are inclined to look favorably on the films on the theory that they are good advertising. Last year Mrs. FitzPatrick had the cooperation of the Board of Tourist Industry of the Japanese Government Railway. One suggestion advanced is that the censors accompany the cameramen while they are working.

There are now only 1,063 film theatre speakers in Tokyo as compared with 2,000 in 1926. This is due to the increasing number of wired houses, of which there are now 203, or 80 per cent of the total. The Metropolitan Police Board recently decided to abolish before long the system of giving licenses to new speakers.

Ichizo Kobayashi, owner of the Takarazuka circuit, just back from a six-month tour of America and Europe, says he has become a confirmed conservative on stage shows. They are decadent and obscene in Europe, he says, and he is now against social dancing and exotic revues. He has some new ideas in mind, he says.

The Takarazuka circuit has obtained police permission for construction of a three-story film house near the Shibuya station with a seating capacity of 2,000. It is planned to have it in operation about Oct. 1.

M-G-M Ends Harris Stage Backing Deal

Pioneer, last season financed Billy Rose's "Jumbo" to the extent of $250,000. M-G-M advanced $110,000 for the production of "Jubilee," which was staged by Harris and Gordon.

It is estimated in film circles that between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 was spent by picture companies in backing stage plays for the season just ending.

Just prior to sailing on the Normandie recently, Gordon told Motion Picture Daily he had renewed his deal with M-G-M and that he expected an amicable adjustment of the differences between the Dramatists' Guild and the film companies.

Warners Withdraw Financing

Hollywood, May 27.—Contradicting the statement attributed to Sidney Howard, president of the Dramatists' Guild, to the effect that film producers are not consistently fighting the guild program, it was learned here today that Warners have informed legitimate producers and affiliates that they will get no Warner financing under the present guild setup. Information to this effect has been sent to Brock Pemberton, Alexander Yokel and other stage producers whom the film company formerly backed.

"Little Egypt" Suit Ended

Attorneys for Mrs. Freida Syropoulos yesterday withdrew injunction proceedings against M-G-M in N. Y. Supreme Court in connection with the "Little Egypt" sequence in "The Great Ziegfeld."

The plaintiff claimed she was the original "Little Egypt," having performed under the name in the World's Fair in 1893. In the application for an injunction, Mrs. Syropoulos contended the term became associated with her when used. She also claimed an invasion of her rights because the distributor did not get her permission to use the appellation.

M-G-M in its answer, held that there were many people that employed the use of "Little Egypt."

For the three days ending on Sunday three Pittsburgh houses reported a total of $1,625: the Stanley, $750,; Alvin, $575; Penn, $300. In Cleveland, for the same three days, four Loew houses reported $1,200 and three RKO theatres collected $1,350.

prior to his departure from Hollywood for the monthly meeting of the Paramount board, which is being held today. The meeting, it was said, will be a routine one with nothing before it pertaining to the current advisory studies being conducted under Kennedy's supervision.

The possibility that Kennedy might make an oral report of the high spots of his studio study to a meeting of the executive committee tomorrow was admitted but described as "not expected" by Paramount officials. It was stated that the probability is that Kennedy will begin the compilation of his report on his arrival here tomorrow and that a special meeting of the board would be called to receive it on its expected completion within the next week or 10 days.

It was said that the report on Paramount theatre partnership agreements being prepared by John J. Ford will not be completed for several weeks. This report will deal directly with the extensions and terms of the partnership contracts with the Wilby-Kincey, Lucas & Jenkins and Hoblitzelle circuits, all of which expire July 1.

Kennedy is accompanied east by Arthur Poole and C. J. Scollard, who aided him in the Paramount studio survey.

The entire Twentieth Century-Fox lineup, which will be divulged to the assembled sales forces now converging on the Congress Hotel in Chicago for a three-day convention beginning tomorrow morning, will be sold under one name next year. This season, two—Twentieth Century and Fox—prevail.

After the merger of Twentieth Century with Fox, 12 pictures sold on franchise while the former company was distributing through United Artists remained for delivery. With the completion of the 1935-36 season, this obligation also runs out, thereby permitting Twentieth Century-Fox to proceed under the designation of one brand.

Brandt Seeking New Deal for the Roxy

His offer for a 21-year lease at an annual rental of $268,000 having been turned down, Harry Brandt is negotiating with the first mortgage bondholders of the Roxy for a management contract.

Brandt some time ago submitted the bid to lease in writing to Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the bondholders. It was rejected. Brandt then offered to enter into a deal whereby he would manage for them, but so far has not had a response.

Howard S. Cullman, trustee, has had a management contract with Artco, headed by Harry C. Arthur, for the past three years. It is understood that Cullman and Arthur jointly have made a proposition to the bondholders to take the theatre. As soon as the outstanding receiver's certificates amounting to $450,000 have been paid off, the Cullman-Arthur proffer may be accepted.

Kennedy in Without Comment on Studio

Joseph P. Kennedy, Paramount adviser, arrived in New York late last night, coming by plane from Chicago.

In the Midwest city yesterday Kennedy refused any comment regarding the investigation of Paramount studio affairs which he has just completed on the coast. He also declined to say whether his findings were favorable to the present studio operation or not.

"I will have nothing to say until the job is finished," he declared. "I will make my report within the next two weeks. Any comment at this time might prove harmful."

Campaign on Rogers Memorial Fund Ends

Para. Poster Rentals Face Complication

ITOA Said to Have 10-Year Contract Here

Paramount's poster rental plan may suffer a temporary setback in the local area when it goes into effect on June 1 as scheduled.

Although it is stated at the distributor's New York branch that several small accounts and one or two independent circuits already have signed the special contract for the new service, it was learned yesterday by Motion Picture Daily that the I. T. O. A. has a 10-year contract with all of the poster service renters whereby the organization receives 50 cents for every theatre which joins its membership and begins to do business with the renters. The pact was entered into last Jan. 1.

Some members of the I. T. O. A. are reported to have signed with Paramount and as a result injunction proceedings are expected to be started for breach of contract.

Paramount, RKO Set St. Paul Pool

Arrangements were completed late yesterday afternoon between RKO and Paramount executives for the pooling of five theatres in St. Paul. The deal is scheduled to become effective starting June 26.

Representing RKO was Nate J. Blumberg. Acting for Paramount were J. J. Freidl and L. J. Ludwig, operating heads for the circuit's Minnesota units.

Paramount has three first runs, the Paramount, Riveria and Tower, while RKO has the Orpheum and President.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

FROM his office with its tick-tack-toe wallpaper in the Rialto Theatre, Arthur L. Mayer the other day made columning easier for Thornton Delehanty of the New York Evening Post by clearing his chest of the problems of an independent exhibitor with no product source on which to lean. It went something like this, generously reproduced because making columning easier is a prerogative we resent going to Delehanty alone:

> I am already a ripe subject for Dr. Freud. First of all I am the smallest Broadway exhibitor. I am referring to my theatre's seating capacity and not to my own. Secondly, I am the most independent. I do not mean the most independent financially, spiritually or physically, but that the Rialto, in contrast to other first-run Broadway theatres, has no affiliations with any national producers or distributors.
> As a result of this independence I have to screen a dozen or so pictures a week in the effort to find unusual or striking productions which are not included in the mass purchases of my competitors. Some of the worthy reformers and less worthy exhibitors who inveigh against block booking should tackle my problem of trying to produce a picture a week. They would then be less convinced that the current method of distributing pictures by groups rather than individually is so unfair to the exhibitor and so unfortunate for the public.
> Some time ago one of my esteemed confreres in an address compared himself to a shoe merchant. This afforded an unkind representative of the press the opportunity of wisecracking that his pictures looked as if they had been selected for a shoe emporium. I am prepared to risk even fiercer barbs of critical humor by confessing that my situation is more unfortunate. I am a scavenger, a sad-eyed neurotic who haunts projection rooms and mulls over hidden shelves in the Film Center seeking to ferret out the discards and sloughs of his well fed competitors.
> The pursuit of product is arduous but the joys of accomplishment are commensurate. A theatre manager whose product is signed and sealed at the beginning of the season can never have the intense satisfaction of suddenly and unexpectedly coming across a "Revolt of the Zombies" or "Florida Special." (Free advertising for my next two pictures.) My ushers, cashiers, even stage hands share my excitement and enthusiasm.

Written largely with his tongue in cheek, there is more substance to Mayer's exposition of his situation, in which many other exhibitors find themselves, than might appear if you read too quickly or too lightly. This business is one of excitement and enthusiasm and those characteristics do not confine themselves to any particular branch. Those who watch Darryl Zanuck's operating technique, once they admit and dismiss his knowledge of stories and his photographic mind, generally agree that the snap injected into the Twentieth Century-Fox lot stems to Darryl's own enthusiasm for each new picture, plus his ability to pass it on to the organization beneath him. Excitement and enthusiasm reduce themselves to no adding machine tally, but the profits which might and do come from either or both run to incalculable totals. If some of the downtown boys who are in pictures chiefly for manipulation, not operation, could only understand, matters in some directions might be vastly different. . . .

About two months ago, Joe Bernhard walked into the lobby of the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel in Beverly Hills, that swanky suburb of Hollywood, with fire in his eyes. Fox West Coast or nobody on any coast was going to keep Warner product from getting its proper return. Again came the wheeze, so old you wouldn't think anyone would fall for it in the twentieth century, and we don't mean that it was not at one time foxy, about building theatres. A few days ago, Grad Sears closed a product deal with Charlie Skouras. Now there won't be any Warner construction on the Pacific Slope. Surprised? . . .

Claudette Colbert has, or will, sign a new contract with Paramount for seven pictures over a two year spread at $150,000 per picture. Claudette's agent must have made a bad deal; that was Zanuck's figure for "Under Two Flags." What, no increase?

This ought to be enough of an occasion to smoke up another Hearst editorial. You know, like that recent one about stars working under peon contracts in serf-like servitude of the producers. . . .

Ever hear of the case of Abbott versus Stern? The issue deals with personal service contracts, the way they hold and also how they may not. Certain members of the Paramount board appear much interested in the decision—to come—of the Court of Appeals at Albany. . . .

Stanton Griffis of Hemphill, Noyes and Co., downtown firm which means something, is now a member of the company's executive committee, succeeding the late Gerald Brooks. Keep the name up front in your mind when you think of Paramount. It's a perfect headline type of name, moreover. Very easy to handle. . . .

GTE Receiver Asks Fees of $140,000

WILMINGTON, May 28.—U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings, as receiver for General Theatres Equipment, Inc., which is in the process of reorganization, today petitioned Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott in Chancery Court for allowance of additional fees totaling $140,000. Chancellor Wolcott set June 17 as the date of hearing on the petition.

Senator Hastings seeks permission to pay himself $62,500 and the law firms of Marvel, Morfod, Ward and Logan, of this city, and Hughes, Schurman and Dwight of New York, his counsel, an aggregate of $77,500. This includes $25,000 as fees for counsel service in the case involving the receiver and All-Continent Corp. An additional $1,195 is asked for expenses incurred by the New York counsel.

General Theatres has been in receivership since February, 1932. Senator Hastings has already received $62,500 and the law firms an aggregate of $60,000. Senator Hastings also served the estate as ancillary receiver by appointment in the U. S. District Court of the Southern District of New York in May, 1932.

Date of Ampa Award Delayed to June 11

Because the plaques would not be ready in time, the Ampa again has postponed the date for the first awards for the best advertising copy designed for the trade and public, the most practical press sheet and the best poster. Instead of June 4, the presentations will be made at June 11, the last meeting of the season.

Huldegarde Halliday highlighted the entertainment lineup yesterday with three sketches. Henry Wilson, coast agent handling youngsters; Helen Ferguson, Jurell Kimball, Paula Stone, daughter of Fred, and Alma Lloyd, daughter of Frank Lloyd, the director, took bows. Miss Lloyd recently was signed by Warners.

Miss Stone drew the winner of the raffle for a due bill to Grossinger's, which was in payment for an ad appearing in the Naked Truth Dinner journal. The winner was Joan Ornstein, five-year-old daughter of Bill, a member of the MOTION PICTURE DAILY reportorial staff.

sustained a demurrer of the defendants.

Frels charged he was unable to get first run product for theatres at Victoria, El Campo, Yorktown, Bellville and Columbus. Frels sought $547,000 and counsel fees.

The court pointed out that there was "no attempt in the present case to complain of any fixing of prices, nor a refusal to sell. There is no sufficient basis alleged to show the deprivation of the public of any commodity controlled by the defendant. In truth, it clearly appears that the public had unusual advantages as to opportunity to view a variety of films."

The court also held the complaint contained "no specific statements of any agreement or conspiracy or monopoly. It is wholly immaterial to the public and is not sufficiently specific as to any injury to the plaintiff."

Frels has filed notice that he will appeal.

Bernie Mills, Republic franchise holder in Albany, accompanied by Charles Gordon, Utica exhibitor, get together at the Tavern to talk over a film deal. Both are in for the day and make the most of it, handshaking with friends scattered at various tables. Harry Thomas is one of them. He's giving an informal farewell party because he is to sail in the evening on the Statendam for a Bermuda vacation. He's due back Monday. Jack Springer, Harry Brandt, Harry Shiffman and Jack Shapiro, four important independent theatre men, group around one table to discuss business in general. When Brandt and Springer have something in particular to talk over, they leave the table for a few minutes and then return satisfied because another telephone conference has been eliminated.

Norton Ritchey brings along L. E. Kalker, just arrived from the British Isles. Lynn Farnol is coupled with Monroe Greenthal, but the session is sotto voce. Edward Schnitzer arrives ahead of time for a date with H. J. Yates, who strolls in by himself and is followed a few minutes later by Harry C. Arthur. The trio sit in the far end of the room to avoid the crowd, but Eddie Alperson passes by, stops a few minutes and prevents the conclave from getting under way. Later Alperson says he hasn't made up his mind when he'll leave for the coast and wants someone to make up his mind. Leonard Goldstein volunteers to do this, but it's no dice with Alperson. He seeks out Bill Powers, with whom he has an appointment, and finally sits.

Little Progress at Fire Rules Meeting

Little progress was made yesterday at a meeting in the Municipal Bldg. between industry representatives and a committee representing the fire commissioner of New York on proposed revisions of the fire rules relating to the storage and shipment of films at exchanges. Another meeting will be held, probably next Thursday, at which representatives of all branches of the industry will attempt to reach a decision on the revisions. Some time later another meeting will be held with the city committee.

At yesterday's meeting were J. P. Skelly of RKO, Knox Haddow of Paramount, and Arthur Dickinson of the M. P. P. D. A. The chief problem revolves about the clause providing that no film is to be allowed to remain on the floor of the shipping room of the exchange, but must be kept in the vault. The exchanges are seeking modification of the clause to permit the holding of film out of the vault for a certain number of hours.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"White Angel"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, May 28.—This is a worthy successor to "The Story of Louis Pasteur." It grippingly portrays the struggle of Florence Nightingale to overcome Victorian prejudices against freedom of women and scientific advancement. Kay Francis, cast in the title role, captures the indomitable courage of the character and gives a performance which stirs the emotions. It will appeal particularly to feminine audiences.

Attracted to nursing by hospital scandals unearthed by her father, Charles Croker King, superintendent of London institutions, Miss Francis studies abroad and is mocked when she returns intent upon a nursing career.

Later, when distressing conditions in military hospitals in the Crimea are reported, she is permitted to organize a unit for war service. At the front she is hampered by Donald Crisp, army commandant, who resents the intrusion of women. Miss Francis overcomes handicaps and changes the base hospital from a filthy hole to a sanitary refuge for the sick and wounded. Constantly battling Crisp, Miss Francis works tirelessly and wins public support and recognition from the Queen. The picture ends on this note.

Deep dramatic suspense is maintained throughout by this struggle of reactionary forces exemplified by Crisp at the front and Montague Love at home and the forces of progress led by Miss Francis with the support of Henry O'Neil, army doctor, and Ian Hunter, war correspondent. The direction by William Dieterle rings true and portrays events to the maximum advantage. The screen play by Mordaunt Shairp sounds no false notes and the production by Henry Blanke is definitely class.

A selling campaign similar to "Pasteur" seems indicated and should produce satisfactory results in all situations.

Warner Pacts Shown With Morris, Thomas

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Securities and Exchange Commission today made public contracts made by Warner Bros. with Sam E. Morris and Abel Cary Thomas. Both contracts expired last year. The company had asked that they be held confidential.

The agreement with Morris called for his services as general manager of distribution for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1931, at a salary of $2,000 a week but was accompanied by a statement that after October 16, 1933, he received and accepted $1,500 a week.

The pact with Thomas, which expired Sept. 17 last, called for his services "in any capacity" at a salary of $1,500 a week during the first year, $2,000 during the second and $2,500 for the third year. This was accompanied by a statement saying that Thomas had also taken a cut in 1933.

Century Adds 3 in Fall

Three new theatres will be added to the Century circuit in November when construction of two houses in Brooklyn and one in Manhasset, L. I., is completed. One of the Brooklyn houses will be located at Quentin Rd. and will seat 600. The second in this borough is set to go up at Ave. M and will have a seating capacity of 779. The Manhasset structure will have 599 seats.

"Boat" Gets $71,000

"Show Boat" in its second week at the Music Hall tallied $71,000. The Palace, with "Under Two Flags" and "First Baby," garnered about $7,000.

Injunction Denied On Use of "Zombie"

The petition of Amusement Securities Corp. for an injunction to restrain Academy Pictures Distributing Corp. and others from using the word "Zombie" in "Revolt of the Zombies" was denied yesterday by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel.

An affidavit submitted by Attorney H. William Fitelson for the defendant declared that the title of the defendant's picture, "Revolt of the Zombies," was entirely different and distinguishable from the title of the plaintiff's picture which is "White Zombie" and that there was no conflict in the two titles. He further asserted that zombie is a descriptive word and can be found in the dictionary and that on Feb. 10, 1932, a play entitled "Zombie" by Kenneth Webb was produced at the Biltmore which was prior to the production of "White Zombie." However, the plaintiff's suit for an accounting and damages was referred to a referee for hearing.

Fight Midtown House

Property owners in the vicinity of Madison Ave. and 62nd St., headed by Lawrence B. Elliman, are registering a vigorous protest against the plan of the Henry Phipps estate to obtain a permit for the erection of a theatre on that corner. Si Fabian, independent theatre operator, will operate the house if it is built. The case is now before the New York Supreme Court, where the estate is attempting to compel Commissioner of Licenses Paul Moss to approve the building permit. Elliman called the attempt "only the entering wedge to get the Broadway element on Madison Ave."

Georgia Court Rules Against Sunday Sho

ATLANTA, May 28.—The Georgia Court of Appeals ruled here yesterday that there is no justification in the eyes of the law for Sunday operation of film theatres for charity in the state. The ruling came in the affirmation of the recent conviction of F. J. Wood, manager of the Cordele, in Cordele, for Sunday law violation.

The decision served to reaffirm an earlier decision of the same court and a similar ruling by the Georgia Supreme Court.

J. W. Setze, Jr., financial secretary of the Scottish Rite Hospital, which operates Sunday shows here, expressed the opinion that Sunday films will still be available in this city, despite the Court of Appeals ruling on the Cordele, Ga., case, which he declared is not applicable to the situation here. All receipts from Sunday shows here are turned over to his organization, he said.

Set Virginia Test Case

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., May 28.—On the heels of the opening last Sunday of many theatres in the state for the first time in the history of Virginia, as a result of the acquittal in Richmond of Charles A. Somma on a charge of blue law violation, a court test here tomorrow is expected to attract statewide attention.

Police Chief Maurice Greaver here has requested R. E. Eason, manager of the Paramount, to appear in police court to answer a blue law charge. Sentiment in other cities appears to be divided, numerous managers declaring they will open on Sunday if the people want them to, and others fearing to cause dissension, when various interests in their communities are opposed to Sunday films.

Fight Dog Race Bill At a Hearing Monday

Film interests will appear at a hearing before Governor Lehman at Albany on Monday to oppose the signing of the Hall Bill, which, permitting dog racing and betting in New York State, slipped through both houses of the legislature on the last day of the session recently ended. The exhibitors of the state will be represented at the hearing by J. Henry Walters of RKO.

The bill, introduced by Assemblyman Hall, was a measure to amend the agricultural and marketing laws to provide for dog races at county fairs by agricultural societies, and would permit pari-mutuels and betting on dog racing.

The Chatter Side

In point of years of service, the veterans at Chicago will be JACK SICHELMAN, who has been an employe of the company for 20 years; IRVING MAAS, 20 years; I. J. SCHMERTZ, Cleveland, for 25 years.

Before leaving for Chicago, JOHN D. CLARK said this week was productive of the highest revenue the company has had since the last week in November when a new, all-time record was established.

Among those attending their first convention will be JOSEPH M. SCHENCK, DARRYL F. ZANUCK, WILLIAM GOETZ, ED SULLIVAN, JIMMY FIDLER and SOL LESSER.

Feature of the first day's session will be the presentation of the President S. R. Kent watches for outstanding district results during the last Kent Drive to HARRY G. BALLANCE, Southern district manager. A similar watch has already been forwarded to L. B. STEEDMAN, for best showing among the overseas branches.

JOSEPH PODOLOFF of Minneapolis attends the convention as the company's No. 1 salesman from the angle of individual who has turned in the most revenue from his zone since the first of the year. He broke all records for company zone revenue for a 21-week period.

SOL LESSER will present checks to Managers M. A. LEVY of Minneapolis, IRA H. COHN of Pittsburgh, CHARLES L. WALKER of Salt Lake City, BEN REINGOLD of St. Louis, RAY A. HIGDON of Oklahoma City, H. R. BEIERSDORF of Dallas and STANLEY J. MAYER of Des Moines, whose offices finished in that order in the 1935 sales race on the George O'Brien series.

Among former bookers attending as salesmen, being promoted during the past year, are J. SAM HINSON, of Charlotte; W. W. RUCKER, Dallas; NAT WYSE, Memphis; J. FELONEY, Boston; H. GOLD, Boston; BEN DARE, Albany, and E. NAEGEL, Cincinnati.

The delegate with the finest collection of multi-colored shirts is again JOE LEE.

These ex-ad sales managers, promoted during the past year, also attend their first meeting as film salesmen: GLENN NORRIS, Philadelphia; GEORGE PABST, New Orleans; LIONEL LESTER, Toronto, and ABE ESKIN, San Francisco.

JOE MOSKOWITZ planed to Chicago from the Coast with the studio delegation headed by DARRYL ZANUCK, WILLIAM GOETZ, HARRY BRAND and Col. JASON JOY. JOSEPH PINCUS, eastern talent scout, planed to Chicago from New York Wednesday night.

Beau Brummel is none other than that personification of sartorial perfection, HERMAN BEIDERSDORF, who, since being promoted to a branch managership, has managed to win a Kent Drive prize annually. Other bidders for Beau Brummel honors were JACK DILLON, EDDIE MCELHINNEY and ERNEST LANDAICHE.

As usual, the Movietone News delegation, headed by TRUMAN TALLEY, will keep open house on the special, en route to Chicago.

HARRY BUXBAUM, New York, went on a speculation spree. Ten minutes after the train pulled out of the Grand Central, he summoned EDGAR MOSS, TOM BAILEY, IRA COHN and MORRIS KURTZ, emptied his pockets of some 1,000 pennies and defiantly said: "Now, we'll have a real game of cards!" HARRY wears out at least one suit a year at the convention—carrying pennies!

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Poor Little Rich Girl"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, May 28.—As produced by B. G. De Sylva and directed by Irving Cummings, this follows the you-can't-give-them-too-much-Shirley-Temple legend. For entertainment and showmanship purposes, and with all due respect to the supporting players, who strive worthily to be effective, the little starlet is the whole show. Typically herself at all times, she sings, dances, acts and is a charming little lady in every way and in the manner which audiences have manifested they like to see her.

The story departs widely from the original. It is actually a light situation drama which gives Shirley ample opportunity to demonstrate her talents. A little bit fed up with being the pampered daughter of great wealth, this child of the rich widower soap manufacturer, Michael Whelan, takes a vacation on her own when nurse Sara Haden is injured en route to a summer camp. First joining up with organ grinder Henry Armetta, she comes to the notice of hoofers Alice Faye and Jack Haley. She joins them and the three are signed up by Gloria Stuart, Whelan's publicity director, for a radio program. Here one of the highspots of the picture is the thread of romance which springs up between Whelan and Miss Stuart and the manner in which Shirley sings her way into the heart of the crusty Gillingwater, Whelan's business rival.

Listening to the program with Miss Stuart, Whelan recognizes the voice of his child though he does not know at the time that she is missing. Kidnaping accusations follow; Haley knocks out John Wray and Whelan recovers his Shirley after which he effects two mergers, one with his rival, Gillingwater, and the other with Miss Stuart. There is a spirited Temple-Faye-Haley tap dance finale.

The song numbers are hardly up to the Temple standard, but are put over well by Shirley. The dance features are excellent and definitely of the applause-bringing variety. The love interest between Whelan and Miss Stuart provides neither with much opportunity, but Whelan is convincing as the child's father. The Temple-Gillingwater sequences run away with the show while Haley and Miss Faye account for most of the entertainment not provided by the first-named pair. A campaign concentrating on the inimitable Shirley looks like the best selling angle.

Sale Tax Case Given June 4 Hearing Date

The motion of the local United Artists exchange for a preference on the Appellate Division calendar for its appeal from the city's ruling that film rentals are subject to the two per cent city sales tax was granted last Friday and the case was set for hearing on June 4. Indications are that it will be reached not later than Friday.

The preference given the case makes possible a decision from the Appellate Division before the end of the month. At present, indications are that whichever way the decision goes an appeal will be taken to the Court of Appeals at Albany by either the city or the exchange in an effort to obtain a final ruling from the state's highest court.

The United Artists' appeal is in the nature of a test case for all local exchanges. Distribution offices in many other sections of the country where efforts have been made to assess local sales and emergency taxes against film rentals are also watching the local case with much interest for its value as legal precedent.

Kennedy's views on several pending production matters were solicited by the board during a three-hour session which began at noon and was hurried to an adjournment a little before three by unsatisfactory sandwich deliveries to the board room.

Kennedy is reported to favor the retention of Zukor as active head of the production company, the post he has held with full credentials from the subsidiary company's board since the beginning of his current coast stay. Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IGNORING his own by the well-worn expedient of forgetting to mention it and indirectly suggesting to his readers that they might draw their own conclusions on the basis of purported relative merit, the Hearst editorial policy, breaking loose again the other day, attacked Soviet propaganda in American newsreels. The forum on this occasion was half of the editorial page of The New York American with typography bouncing from upper and lower case to register emphasis and to caps to register fury. By agreement with Amkino, so went the claim, "our American picture-producing companies must agree to the humiliating condition that the sound-strip speaker, in showing these Russian shots SHALL NOT SAY ANYTHING DEROGATORY TO RUSSIA, COMMUNISM OR THE FIVE-YEAR PLAN." . . .

Specific criticism was directed at a clip in Paramount News No. 79 which showed Russia following the lead of other nations in establishing day nurseries for babies whose mothers have to work. The bleat is that nowhere does the narrator say:

> "I am forbidden by the Russian Government, who dictated the taking of this picture, from telling you that these babies are from the moment of their birth the CHATTEL PROPERTY of the Russian state and that they will be taught ATHEISTIC MATERIALISM AND HATRED of all classes, except the proletarian, as soon as their little minds begin to open." . . .

More specific criticism: Universal Newsreel of April 24 which picturized a Russian girl controlling 216 looms simultaneously as she introduces the Stakhanovite system of speeding up production. On this score, runs the editorial:

> "But again the AMERICAN announcer is prohibited by the RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT from pointing out that this girl, like millions of others, is being worked to death in this speed-up system at starvation wages and that she hasn't the freedom of an American convict on parole."

Since Hearst, arch loudspeaker of Americanism, presumably runs his newspapers of, for and by America, it seems more than passing strange that he should overlook adjustments in the socio-economic system which require slight attention on home ground. We can suggest a few. In fact, we will. He might check into the sharecroppers' situation in the South. He might find a thing or two close to New York that have an odor about them: conditions in the Pennsylvania and other coal fields; what's happened in West Virginia now that high-speed mining machinery has been introduced; the Ghetto only a couple of miles from the hotels he owns in the mid-town area; something of the working conditions for young girls in the mill towns. . . .

As long as he hits at newsreels on an arrangement which has been formally denied on all sides, his outraged sense of justice about matters abroad might induce some comment on the status quo in Germany under Hitler where men of God are being imprisoned, where an ancient race is being slowly and inhumanly starved out of existence, where Nazi doctrine as it pertains to the law now dictates that students must learn how to handle rifles and throw hand grenades as a corollary to their university training in torts and briefs, where the children are as much the chattel property of the state as in the Soviet. Or to Italy where the freedom of the press has been stifled, where Il Duce violates his treaties and conquers a peaceful Ethiopia, where women are urged to breed children for the machines of future wars. Pick on Russia, if he likes. We have no objection, but we fail to understand why his geography is so deliberately limited. "THE PROPAGANDA CONTINUES," screams the Hearst editorial. More quietly, we assert:

"And so does Mr. Hearst's." . . .

In France: A Cabinet decree hampering the business, which, of course, means American distributors not only there but in any other land if the subject matter is found objectionable to the traditions of the country. In effect, a world-wide censorship. This is an instance of what can happen when nationalist spirit runs high.

In the United States: French and all other foreign-made products enter the open door to capture whatever playdates merit and salesmanship can corral. Internally, the Government is pursuing a course which makes it difficult for the normal flow of business to continue and does little or nothing to protect the interests of its business fraternity abroad. This is an instance of what does happen when nationalist spirit runs low. . . .

The stories about the M. P. T. O. A. and its trade practice conferences are several. Heard has been the yarn that the concessions to come were set up in advance; that Ed Kuykendall and his committee pranced through the motions of a fight merely to make it all look completely genuine. The point is not even worth the argument. Take the score charge as a case in issue. Very irksome to exhibitors who have been buying sound pictures only to discover they are unable to get the sound, when it happens to be music, unless they cough up for a score charge, the indications now have it this will be out, or altered so radically recognition will be difficult. No matter how you approach it, no matter through what means the result comes about, it will be there ready for anyone's inspection. That seems to have been the objective in the first instance. . . .

Convention of Va. MPTO Starts Today

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., May 31.—Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., will deliver one of the principal addresses at the two-day summer convention of the M.P.T.O. of Virginia, which opens at the Cavalier Hotel here tomorrow. The number of delegates arriving within the past few days indicates a large attendance. Sidney Gates is chairman of the arrangements committee.

An address of welcome will be made by Mayor Roy Smith, to which Morton G. Thalheimer, M.P.T.O. president, will respond. Other speakers will include Winder R. Harris, managing editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, and Robert T. Barton, Jr., organization counsel. Officers of the exhibitor unit are: A. E. Lichtman, Benjamin T. Pitts, A. Frank O'Brien, R. C. Overby, Hunter Perry, William S. Wilder, vice-presidents; Harold Woods, secretary; Charles A. Somma, treasurer. The directors are: Mrs. Bertha Gordon, Otto Wells and the officers.

Delay Skouras-RKO Suit

Trial of the Skouras action against the RKO 81st St., scheduled for today in N. Y. supreme court, will be postponed again to afford time for further discussions of an out-of-court settlement. The action involves the sale of Twentieth Century-Fox product to the RKO house day and date with competing Skouras houses. The latter contends the product deal with RKO is in violation of its Fox franchise.

Field in New Posts

James Field, counsel and secretary of Keith-Albee-Orpheum, has been elected to the same posts in the B. F. Keith Corp. He will also be named to similar posts in RKO Proctor at a meeting of the board of that company in the near future.

20th-Fox Studios Humming

Hollywood, May 31.—Activity on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot is going ahead at high speed, despite the absence of leading studio executives who are attending the Chicago convention.

Three films, now in preparation, are being rushed through for early production. First of the crop schedule for shooting is "Across the Aisle," and will feature Michael Whalen and Gloria Stuart. W. R. Burnett penned the original story with Lou Breslow handling the screenplay. H. Bruce Humberstone will direct. "See America First" is next. James Tinling will direct from a screenplay by Katherine Kavanaugh. "Thank You, Jeeves" will follow these. Arthur Treacher will be starred. Joseph Hoffman and Harry Sauber wrote the screenplay from P. G. Wodehouse's original butler characterization. No cast has been set.

Finished and now in the cutting room for final editing is "High Tension." Brian Don Levy and Glenda Farrell have top spots in the cast. Allan Dwan directed. The yarn deals with the dangerous and romantic adventures of cable repairing at the bottom of the sea. Also in the process of cutting are "White Fang," featuring the dog, "Lightning," and "To Mary—With Love." A heavy publicity campaign is planned for the dog picture.

At the Westwood studios three films continue in work. They are "Sing, Baby, Sing," "Bowery Princess" and "Girls' Dormitory."

Administration Building Going Up

Hollywood, May 31.—Construction on the new administration building of Twentieth Century-Fox is being rushed to completion at the Westwood studios. The new structure will provide space equivalent to a 15-story office building and is expected to be ready by Sept. 1. It will contain 221 offices, a gymnasium and Turkish bath.

The new development is part of the $4,000,000 building program which will include eight sound stages as well as property structures and wardrobe buildings.

The Chatty Side

Chicago, May 31. — The largest group of studio executives ever to attend a 20th Century-Fox convention is at hand. Not only Darryl Zanuck and his executive assistant, William Goetz, and Studio Publicity Manager Harry Brand, but Col. Jason Joy, Sol Wurtzel, and William Dover came in for the sessions. Joe Moskowitz, who has been on the coast, flew in with the studio delegation, while Joe Pincus joined him in Chicago, planing it from New York Wednesday night. Irving Berlin, who will make two pictures, also was on hand, going there on the convention train, while Irving Caesar came on from the coast.

Just before boarding the train Harvey Day, Terrytoon representative and self-appointed choir master, appeared with a copy of a song book entitled: "Songs My Mother Sang." He hoped to lead a sextette including Charles E. McCarthy, Bill Kupper, Bill Sussman, Harry Buxbaum, Felix Jenkins and Roger Ferri. On the trip to Chicago for Clark's district managers' meeting last February this sextette, with Day leading, sang its way right up to breakfast at the Englewood station.

Harry Ballance, southern district manager, started something when he bought his own plane. Three years ago no one in the sales force would venture in a plane. Today seven district and branch managers and salesmen own their own planes. Practically all of the travel done by District Managers Ballance, Ward Scott, Tom Bailey, Edgar Moss, Herman Wobber,, George Roberts and Phil Longdon is now via airplanes.

Statistically inclined O'Loghlin, who still has his brogue although the nearest he ever got to Ireland, was the St. John branch, estimates that 37 nationalities and 11 dialects were represented on the convention train. Incidentally, O'Loghlin vied with Lew Lehr, Movietone News' funny man, in story-telling. Every once in a while Joe Lee stepped in with a story, but it proved an antique, so he finally gave it up.

Quite collegiate is the 20th Century-Fox crowd. Graduates of Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Virginia, Michigan, Illinois, Stanford, Colby, Brown, Duke and Georgia Tech. From "the college of hard knocks" there was a bigger delegation. There are 23 men at this convention who had rounded out 20 years service with the company, including Jack Sichelman, Irving Maas, I. J. Schmertz, and others.

In the ranks of those who attend the convention are many who enjoyed promotions during the past year, including Overseas Drive Leader C. V. Hake, who is assistant to Foreign Manager W. J. Hutchinson; Charlotte Manager Phil Longdon, Salesmen Feloney, Gold, Simons, Dare, Norris, Naegel, McClure, Pabst, and Wyse. They all were formerly bookers.

Domestic Kent Drive Leader William C. Gehring glad-handed at the drive headquarters at the Congress. Truman Talley staged an opposition hang-out on the floor above, with Ed Sullivan and Jimmy Fidler being introduced around. Incidentally, the first views of these two commentators' contributions to Movietone News were exhibited at the convention. Laurence Stallings, Ed Thorgerson and Lowell Thomas, other commentators, helped keep the boys up all night on the trip west.

Dan Houlihan, Albany; Matt Simons, Boston; Ira Sichelman, Washington; Art McManus, St. Louis; Ed Tucker, Atlanta; Mark Sheridan, Memphis; G. M. Westergren, San Francisco; Elmer Youngs, Los Angeles; Carl Blasius, Salt Lake City; Abe Blumstein, New York, Herschel Fox, Portland, and Al Truel, Philadelphia, are here on their first sales convention.

This is the third sales convention held within one month by 20th Century-Fox. Three weeks ago the first European convention the company ever held was staged at the George V Hotel in Paris. Two weeks ago the British organization held its confab in London. Both were attended by Joseph M. Schenck, Sidney R. Kent and Walter J. Hutchinson.

Proudest man on the train was Canadian District Manager, J. P. O'Loghlin. For the first time in the history of the company his Dominion division paced the rest of the organization in amount of revenue secured so far this season. Edgar Moss was made unhappy by this knowledge, for up until a few weeks ago his district was on top.

Every district and divisional head of theatres affiliates of the company is attending. Among them were Spyros Skouras, George Skouras, Charles Skouras, Arch Bowles, Harold J. Fitzgerald, Elmer Rhoden, Rick Ricketson, Ed Shanberg, Al Finkelstein, Leo McCarthy and H. E. Jameyson, as well as Lon Cox and H. A. McClure.

As the New York special stopped at Syracuse for 30 minutes, where the mayor, the fire department and city officials extended official greetings, Lew Lehr made a speech announcing his candidacy for President on the platform of the Dribblepuss Party. It amused the Syracuse town folks no end.

Joe Schenck and Sidney Kent arrived from New York Saturday; Darryl Zanuck from the coast, ditto Joe Moskowitz and Harry Brand, the new Dionne "quin" deal behind them, used the air lanes from Toronto.

Phil Longdon, Charlotte manager who was recently promoted to that post from a Florida salesmanship, is issuing a sweeping challenge for 1936-37, insisting that office will continue prize collections indefinitely and defying other branches "to stop us."

John D. Clark will distribute checks for prizes covering a number of competitions held during the 1935-36 season, including last year's Kent Drive. Bulk of the money is to go to Southern branches, who again came out as champions.

The heavyweight brigade came from Des Moines. The combined weight of Stanley Mayer's Des Moines delegation—Harold Gottlieb, Abe Riegelman, E. R. O'Neil, Eddie Canty and Gordon Halloran—1,128 pounds, an average of 188 pounds each.

Keith Goldsmith of Albany was another salesman who had been ailing for some time, but he, too, is his healthy self again, although he has lost poundage. Ben Dare doubled up in covering his and Goldsmith's zone for several months.

For years the home office boys have been trying to guess Nat Finkler's age. The other day he revealed the fact that he has been with the company about 25 years and since then the boys have started figuring all over again.

Walter H. Cree, San Francisco salesman, never looked better. He missed the last two conventions because of illness. However, he has thoroughly recovered and has resumed coverage of his zone.

Herndon Edmond, Seattle manager, came to Chicago from Baltimore. He spent several days in that latter city, his home, and former stamping ground when he was selling out of the Washington branch.

Buffalo Manager Sidney Samson joined the delegation at Syracuse, N. Y. last night. The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Toronto delegations went straight from those cities to Chicago.

Feminine workers are represented by Bookers Florence Patke of St. Louis and Mrs. Sarah Young of Washington and Hattie Gray Baker, censorship department head.

Ira Cohn, Pittsburgh, can claim a record. This season he sold contracts to all but one possibility in his entire territory. Lester Sturm's Detroit did the second best job.

George Stanton, passenger agent of the New York Central, accompanied the delegates on the special train to Chicago and will return with the delegation Tuesday.

Edgar Moss telling the world that he, too, is now a grandfather. The father is none other than J. Howard Smith, one of the Philadelphia bookers.

Sam Wheeler, Washington salesman, found Chicago much too hot last year—too hot to sport a mustache, so he shaved it off before entraining!

Most cosmopolitan personnel is at Eddie Callahan's Boston branch. No less than 12 different nationalities are represented on the Hub payroll.

The coast executives are believed to be planning a late Saturday departure for Hollywood.

Herman Wobber, coast district manager, zig-zagged his way across the country.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Road to Glory"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Hollywood, May 31.—While this is primarily concerned with the record of one French regiment in the World War, it also portrays vividly the personal story of several individuals, blending the whole into a drama of stark realism.

Fredric March, Warner Baxter, Lionel Barrymore, June Lang and Gregory Ratoff, while appearing constantly in the foreground, are nevertheless merely pawns, the main interest centering on the tragic plight of the entire 39th as it performs its day-after-day duty of holding down the hottest sector on the western front. March, as a replacement lieutenant, is first amazed at what he believes to be unnecessarily heavy casualties suffered by the troops under command of Baxter. When his own regiment moves up and he learns of the hazards which are encountered he apologizes to Baxter and settles down to steady soldiering.

Behind the lines, March and Baxter both fall in love with June Lang, a war nurse. Their separate suits and Miss Lang's return of March's affection are played with deep sincerity. The cross currents naturally result in conflict. Lionel Barrymore enters upon the scene as a private. He is the father of Baxter, who has tried unsuccessfully to send him to the rear. His presence in the group adds to the complications of the central characters. Eventually, both Barrymore and Baxter die heroically during a big drive and March is left to carry on the traditions of the regiment.

This, briefly, is the simple story which director Howard Hawks uses principally as a background for the battle scenes, which are superbly done. Some comedy creeps in occasionally, usually delivered by the antics of Ratoff, who, at the same time, gives an authoritative portrayal of a typical French poilu. John Qualen, Victor Killian and Theodore Von Eltz stand out in the supporting cast. The screen play of Joel Sayre and William Faulkner is potent and sympathetic. Nunnally Johnson's production is effectively, and tastefully, realistic in picturing the horrors of war.

With the current war interest to spur attention, this should show highly satisfactory returns.

William Fox Files Bankruptcy Action

cisco, in which a judgment of $210,000 is asked of the former film executive.

The Capital Co. won a judgment of $297,000 from Fox about a year ago and since has been engaged in considerable supplementary action in an effort to collect it. The judgment actions are based on Fox's guaranty of defaulted leases on the San Francisco theatre which were entered into in January, 1927, and run to Dec. 31, 1951, at an annual rental of $235,000. The total rent which will become due under the lease amounts to $6,250,000. The new action is for rent alleged to be due on the property from the time the first judgment was obtained up to the present.

Samuel B. Stewart, attorney for the Capital Co., said that his client's actions now would be transferred to the bankruptcy court at Camden and that proofs of claim on both the judgment already received and the unpaid rent sought in the new action would be filed with the bankruptcy trustee there at once.

the Paramount study of the committee.

Steuer said over the week-end that he expected to decide today whether or not there is any inconsistency in his position as counsel for the committee in its investigation of Paramount affairs while he is counsel for a defendant in an action brought by the Paramount Publix trustees against former officers, directors and financial associates of the company. There were advance indications within the committee, although not corroborated by Steuer, that he would remain as counsel to the committee without taking part in its investigation of Paramount.

Garsson said that Meyer Kraushaar, former attorney for the committee, would serve as its counsel if the resumed Paramount hearings got under way before Steuer had made a decision.

20th-Fox Has 52 Stories in Work--Zanuck

Tells Convention Studio Is Ahead of Schedule

CHICAGO, June 1.—That stories for 2 of the company's 69 features for next season have been bought and writers assigned to their screen treatment so they can be fitted into the production schedule was one of the acts revealed to the Twentieth Century-Fox sales forces by Darryl F. Zanuck, production head.

Zanuck also told the conventioneers hat seven features had been finished, r nearly so, and that the company was ahead of schedule. He was the irst speaker at the afternoon session yesterday. He admitted that the death of Will Rogers was a box-office loss as well as a personal loss, and hat he had been in a "tough spot."

"We are not an organization that lives or dies on one picture," he continued. "We are one of the two greatest companies in Hollywood."

In discussing the recent Screen Writers' Guild upheaval and its demands for a closed shop, he said that some of the writers had stuck with he company and that the guild is now a dead issue.

Zanuck tossed a bouquet in S. R. Kent's direction by saying: "I am amazed at the strength of our dis-

New Contract Form Is Asked By Kuykendall

Seeks Condensed Version Of 1932 NRA Pacts

A short form of standard exhibition contract, based entirely on the condensed optional standard license agreement of 1933 specified in the NRA code for the industry, was submitted to national distributors yesterday by the M. P. T. O. A. with a recommendation for its adoption for immediate use in deals with members of that organization and any other exhibitors preferring a simplified contract form.

Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, said in a letter accompanying copies of the short contract form, that the 1933 optional agreement was being recommended in response to requests from "several distributors" for a definite plan or proposal for such a contract form as sought in the M. P. T. O. A.'s current 10-point trade practice program. Kuykendall points out that "long and tedious" negotiations would be required to revise the contracts now in use, but that the pact suggested could be adopted and placed in use without delay.

His letter states that "in effect, this form of exhibition contract was approved by over 9,000 exhibitors who filed written assents to the code with the Code Authority." He adds that

FWC-Tally-Corbar Case to Be Reheard

Los Angeles, June 1.—The Fox West Coast bankruptcy case will be reopened under a judgment handed down today by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco granting to T. L. Philadelphia Spots Talk Sunday Closing Philadelphia, June 1.—A survey of the local field indicates that sentiment is favorable to Sunday closing for the summer among the smaller independent exhibitors. With the coming of warm weather grosses have fallen off in all spots except the most densely populated and many exhibitors believe that the extra playing day is not returning its share of the overhead.

Summer weather has started earlier than usual in this territory and most Sundays have been particularly favored by the temperature. The result is that the seashore resorts got off to a good start, but local theatre patronage has suffered.

There will probably be little change in the situation as far as the first runs are concerned. The Earle, a stage show house, has already stopped its Sunday shows. The others, however, probably will continue, depending on the out-of-town trade. The Aldine, dropped for the season by United Artists, is still continuing under straight Warner management, but may close later for the summer.

Roxy-G. B. Deal for Product Is Approved

Judge Caffey in Federal court yesterday signed an order approving an agreement made on May 26 between Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the Roxy, and G.B., whereby the latter agrees to supply the Roxy with 24 features during the year beginning Aug. 1, 1936, which Gaumont British, Ltd., of England authorizes for release in the United States.

The order noted that Cullman had agreed to spend at least $2,500 per week on the advertising of each of the G.B. features, which will be first runs in the New York metropolitan area.

Capitol Gets $7,000

"Three Wise Guys" at the Capitol garnered $7,000, a new low for the theatre.

"It's Love Again" last Saturday netted about $10,600 at the Roxy, the largest Saturday's gross under the present management. The first four days of "The King Steps Out" took in around $65,000 at the Music Hall and is being held a second week.

Film Cases Figure In High Court List

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, June 1.—Ruling on several cases of interest to the film industry, the U. S. Supreme Court today concluded its work for the 1935-36 term and adjourned until next October.

The court granted a petition of the Southeastern Express Co. for review of a decision of the South Carolina courts holding it liable to the Pastime Amusement Co., Charleston exhibitor, for failure to make prompt delivery of films, and will hear the case in the fall.

The case involves the liability of the carrier for damages resulting from the interruption of business due to the former's neglect to make prompt delivery of films entrusted to its care by distributors in Jacksonville. The films were sent to Charlotte, N. C., by mistake, leaving the theatre without product for several days, forcing it to close. The state courts had awarded damages of $1,500.

The court dismissed for want of jurisdiction the appeal of Thomas J. Parker, administrator, against James Grainger, Inc., and the Tanner Motor Livery for damages arising out of the death of Kenneth H. Hawks and others in a plane collision near Santa Monica in 1930 during the making of a Fox film.

Review of a decision of the N. Y. Supreme Court holding valid the imposition of the state income tax on income from patents and copyrights, sought by Elmer Rice, playwright, was refused by the court.

Personal Firms Hit In Senate Tax Bill

Washington, June 1.—Rates ranging up to 53 per cent are to be applied against personal holding companies under the draft of the tax bill prepared by the Senate Finance Committee, it was disclosed tonight as the committee prepared to submit the measure to the Senate for debate tomorrow.

The taxes would be in addition to the regular corporation taxes and would run from 13 per cent of the undistributed adjusted net income not in excess of $2,000 to 53 per cent of the amount in excess of $1,000,000.

Film and other corporations engaged in business would be subject to taxes ranging from 15½ per cent on incomes not in excess of $2,000 to 18 per cent on incomes in excess of $40,000, plus a surtax of seven per cent on undistributed net income.

GTE Hearing Wednesday

Wilmington, June 1.—An adjourned hearing on decree of the sale of assets of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., has been set down for Wednesday in Chancery Court here. Boettiger Coming Back Hollywood, June 1.—John Boettiger, who has been on assignment in the Hays office here, has completed his detail and will entrain for New York tomorrow morning.

Employment Pacts Upheld on Appeal

Albany, June 1.—The validity of executive employment contracts was upheld by the Court of Appeals in a decision handed down here today which has widespread significance in the film industry.

The state's high court held in the case of Abbott vs. Stern that while officers of a corporation holding employment contracts can be removed from their powers at will by the board of directors officers so removed have a cause of action for damages under their contracts. Three of the four judges concurred in the opinion.

The Court of Appeals decision on employment contracts is held by attorneys here to have a special significance at the moment in connection with the settlement of several employment contracts of former officers of Paramount, who filed claims against the company in its bankruptcy proceedings for the unexpired terms of their contracts. Among these was Sam Katz, whose claim for $265,000 was contested by counsel for the Paramount trustees on the ground that the board of directors had the right to terminate employment contracts at will.

Sam Spring, attorney for Katz, said that decision obligates the Federal courts, in which the claim was filed, to follow the state law in cases in kind.

tribution organization. I have been with three companies, but ours is the greatest. When I have asked for more money for pictures Joseph M. Schenck and Kent have upped the figures. They want product."

He introduced his assistants, William Dover, William Goetz, Jason Joy, and Sol Wurtzel. He also praised Nunnally Johnson, Raymond Griffith, Kenneth MacGowan, Buddy DeSylva and Gene Markey, and predicted that stars who would go places would be Simone Simon, Michael Whalen, Robert Kent and Sonja Henie. He told the salesmen that he had already been offered $50,000 for a loan of Don Ameche for one picture by another company, although Ameche has appeared in only one film for Twentieth Century-Fox. He said he expected great things next year from Warner Baxter, Alice Fay, Loretta Young, Jean Hersholt and Tyrone Power, Jr., and remarked jestingly that Schenck's talent for poker made it possible for the company to borrow big names from other studios.

Lauds Kent

Zanuck said that Kent had pushed through this year as no one else ever had. If all John D. Clark's sales force were like Herman Wobber, whom he knew best, be said, they were the tops.

Clark opened the convention with an address of welcome, and was followed by W. J. Hutchinson who talked on foreign sales and predicted that the British sales total would be higher than ever before.

Sol Lesser told about three Zane Grey and three Harold Bell Wright stories he will make next season.

William Sussman discussed the need of following through on contracts. Earle W. Hammons, Educational president; Jack Skirball, sales manager, and William Clark went into detail on short subject plans, both from the production and sales standpoints.

W. J. Kupper, western division manager, accepted the eastern division's challenge in the sales drive.

McCarthy Talks Advertising

Charley E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity, opened the morning meeting with a talk about plans in his department for the coming year. McCarthy revealed that the advertising budget for newspapers and trade papers would be materially increased and said that present production tendencies warranted this increase.

Following McCarthy's talk, Harry Brand, west coast publicity chief, talked to the members and told them what the studio press department had in store. Arch Reeve of the home office talked about a new form of press book material and Earl W. Wingart told of the plans for newspaper and magazine publicity service on coming productions. Lee Balsly also told of plans for advertising accessories.

Following this, Herman Wobber, west coast district manager, told the sales force of the fine work the studios were doing. He praised Zanuck and other members of production forces and said that the salesmen could rely on the production end to deliver good pictures.

William C. Gehring, in charge of the S. R. Kent sales drive, then announced the prize winners in the last contest. Gehring, incidentally, was elected to head the S. R. Kent drive for the coming year. This drive will start Aug. 1.

No changes in sales policy were promised by Jack Sichelman and Nat Finkler.

Spyros Skouras, who was scheduled to speak was not in attendance.

The Fox Movietonews gang took the rostrum. Truman H. Talley, Laurence Stallings, Lew Lehr, Jimmie Fidler, Ed Thorgersen, Ed Sullivan and Lowell Thomas addressed the delegates in turn. Each told intimate details of his particular phase of the work in making up the Fox Movietonews and how the news was gathered. Talley and Thomas gave the more serious talks and told the members of the way in which the newsreel was compiled.

The session then adjourned for 15 minutes.

After the intermission Schenck revealed the manner in which the new Twentieth Century-Fox company was formed. His signing of Darryl Zanuck and the progress the company had made under Zanuck's leadership were told. He gave the inside workings of the merger plans and how they were effected and what they meant.

Kent Talks at Length

After Schenck's address, Kent took the platform and behind guarded doors, gave a complete picture of the company and its workings. He stressed the importance of the relationship that should exist between the production and the distribution departments and said that he hoped the cooperation that had existed in the past would continue.

Kent paid particular attention to the foreign sales meeting in Paris several weeks ago. He said that the International aspect of the business was greater than ever before and that special attention should be paid to the company's foreign product. He told of the five foreign pictures which the company would release, which were, or would be, made abroad and told of their relative importance.

One highlight of his speech was his discussion of how the sales convention in Paris was handled.

Following Kent's address the convention was adjourned and except for screenings and sales group sessions the convention meetings were at an end.

The New York contingent will leave tomorrow afternoon.

Fire to Cause No Delay

Chicago, June 1.—There will be no delay in the production schedule as a result of the week-end fire in the studio administration building, S. R. Kent told the Twentieth Century-Fox sales force here.

The fire caused no serious loss he said and the damage was mostly from water and will not exceed $10,000. No important records were destroyed, he stated.

Cash Prizes Awarded

Chicago, June 1.—Charlotte won first place in the short subject division in the Third Sidney R. Kent Drive, prizes for which were one of the features of the Twentieth Century-Fox convention which closed here tonight.

In the short classification, the winners were:

1.—Charlotte: Phil Longdon, manager.

On the Chatty Side

Chicago, June 1.—Following the Sunday morning session, which lasted until the middle of the afternoon, the Hollywood contingent left for the coast by chartered plane. On board were Darryl Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck, Bill Dover, William Goetz, Sol Wurtzel and Sol Lesser.

Bill Sussman was up at 6 o'clock Saturday morning, not to celebrate Decoration day but to polish up his initial convention speech. He said he was a bit nervous early in the morning, but by the time it came to deliver the address he was all over his anxiety and spoke like a veteran. The gang almost wore his arm out with handshaking and congratulations.

The Fox Movietone News gang consisting of Truman Talley, Laurence Stallings, Lew Lehr, Ed Thorgerson, Jimmy Fidler and Lowell Thomas dropped over to the Palace theatre to see their co-worker, Ed Sullivan do his stuff on the stage.

Assisting Eckhardt in welcoming and playing host to the visitors, were: A. M. Van Dyke, E. P. Grohe, H. Loeb, H. Goodamote, F. Sliter, M. Simon, Jack Eckhardt, H. Wise, G. Benson, F. Wagner and Selma Hackman, all of the local office.

Original paintings used for posters on "Poor Little Rich Girl" and "The Road to Glory" were part of the display at the Gold Room entrance. Joseph Maturo, George Winfield, Fredric and Alec Luders made the originals.

Clark Rodenbach, film editor of the Chicago Daily News was a convention visitor. He renewed acquaintances with a number of the delegates he hadn't seen for many years.

Lowell Thomas said the radio audience was greater than that of the newsreel audience until Lew Lehr challenged him. The newsreel audience weekly is near the 40,000,000 mark, said Lehr.

All delegates present were glad to hear of the business "Private Number" is doing at the Chicago. The picture did a very heavy weekend business.

The news story which broke Saturday morning about William Fox filing suit for bankruptcy caused a great stir of interest among most of the delegates present.

Col. Jason Joy, filled with enthusiasm over plans for the coming season, revealed that stories for 1937-38 product for the most part had been bought already.

Sol Lesser's six action outdoor pictures will get a lot of contracts this coming season. Sol gave all the members of the sales staff a lapel watch and the boys are for him 100 per cent.

Those who arrived early either attended the races at Hawthorne or went to the ball game. The cold weather gave the horseraces the bigger draw.

Clyde Eckhardt attended his 21st convention. He missed one 22 years ago by joining the company three weeks after the meeting had been held.

Ed Sullivan attended the convention piecemeal. He is appearing at the RKO Palace with a stage revue and attended meetings between shows.

Charlie Blake, who wrote the story for "The Country Doctor" was a convention visitor. Charlie is on the Chicago American.

Laurence Stallings' story telling drew a packed house after screenings. The tales he told about Hollywood in the old days were gems.

No one was allowed to enter or leave the convention hall while Sidney Kent made his speech. Strict orders from the front.

Much enthusiasm was displayed over "The Sins of Man." How to sell this picture is what the boys are trying to figure out.

C. V. Hake of the foreign department was besieged by delegates who wanted to know all about the Japanese film business.

B. & K. carried ads in all dailies welcoming the conventioneers. They also gave the men passes to all B. & K. theatres.

Darryl Zanuck visited with his friend, Eddie Silverman of Essaness, until the wee small hours Friday night.

Col. Spaggett's fine work in charge of all hotel arrangements won the sincere praise of the conventioneers.

Herman Wobber made a hit with his peppy speech. He got rounds of applause several times.

Roger Ferri made the rounds greeting the personnel. He knew all by their first names.

Felix A. Jenkins made a tour of the hotel noon, renewing acquaintances.

Joe Pincus spent part of his time interviewing potential talent.

M-G-M Says Patent No Cause for Worry

Exhibitors throughout the country playing M-G-M product who have received letters from Ralph Gordon Fear, warning that the showing of this company's output constitutes an infringement of a patent developed by the engineer, have nothing to fear, according to J. Robert Rubin, head of M-G-M's legal department.

In his letters to theatre owners, Fear claims that the patent No. 1,891,225, dated Dec. 20, 1932, and dealing with an apparatus for driving film through projectors, is his. The notice orders exhibitors to cease exhibition of M-G-M films and make an accounting before June 8, 1938. Threats of action in Federal Courts are made as an alternative.

"M-G-M has a contract with Fear by which we have a right to use the machine," Rubin stated. "It was made at our studios." 2

"We believe the matter will be ironed out shortly," the head counsel of M-G-M declared. "I'm not greatly disturbed about it."

More Slogans

Even the Gay White Way uses colored lights.

Short Subject

"The Phantom Rider"

(Universal)

A serial that is definitely for the smaller houses that feature serials on week-ends for children's trade. The story is quite too far-fetched to merit any attention by their elders.

The first three chapters, reflecting on the excitement content of the remainder, are given to Buck Jones' adventures curtailing the activities of a gang which intends to drive the population of a small western community from its land holdings so the gang can take over and sell to railroad interests.

Much shooting and many runaways, death scenes, riding, stampeding cattle, dynamite laden wagons, all of which Jones heroically figures in as he pursues his duty as a state ranger in white-robed disguise, follows.

In the cast are Marla Shelton, the romantic interest; Diana Gibson, Joey Ray, Harry Woods, Eddie Gribbon, Frank LaRue, Charles King and Charles Regas running the gamut of roles from an Indian chief to a judge.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,171. Running time, each chapter approximately 20 mins. "G."

The big outdoor theatre, which will be located about 12 miles west of Denver, is expected to attract national stars of music and drama.

Three more circuits have signed for the entire Warner-First National and Cosmopolitan product for 1936-37. They are: M. & P. Circuit of New England; Durkee of Maryland, and the M. A. Shea circuit. A. W. Smith, Jr., acted for Warners in the negotiations.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Navy Born"

(Republic)

Hollywood, June 1.—Nicely balanced, with fine performances, direction and cutting, this is an excellent dual bill film packing an audience wallop from the first chuckle to the windup chase. The picture stands out as a fine example of low-budget product and should thoroughly satisfy the neighborhood patrons for which it is aimed.

The plot centers around three navy flyers playing nursemaid to a diapered baby. After the wife of Addison Randall, a flyer, dies in childbirth and Randall has a mishap which results in his death, William Gargan, another flyer, promises to act as guardian to the child. He and his fellow flyers, William Newell and Douglas Fowley, go into the diaper-changing business with a dramatic high point reached when Claire Dodd and Claudia Coleman, relatives of the dead flyer's wife, try to obtain custody of the child. Gargan and Miss Dodd soon go romantic, with the love interest jelling when the kidnaping of the baby from a hospital leads to a chase involving navy planes.

Nate Watt scores on his first directorial job, indicating a fine evaluation of story and box-office values and forecasting a future as a directorial asset. Excellent performances are contributed by Gargan, Miss Dodd, Fowley and Miss Coleman, also by George Irving as an admiral and Georgia Caine as the child's aunt. The screen play of Albert Demond and Olive Cooper successfully blends comedy and drama to advantage, while the adaptation of Maurice Goodrich from Mildred Cram's original is intelligently done. Dick Fantl edited.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,230. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

Overseas Preview

"Broken Blossoms"

(Twickenham Prod.)

London, May 26.—This sound edition of the famous D. W. Griffith-Lillian Gish-Barthelmess silent masterpiece is a thoroughly efficient and artistic piece of work. With a close general resemblance in form to the original as one of its virtues, undoubtedly it gains in dramatic force and in pathos from the addition of dialogue. Well directed by Hans Brahms, as his first picture, it is also well cast and technical qualities are good.

The tragedy of the Limehouse waif, brutally ill-used by her prize-fighter father, and finding refuge in the idealistic love of a young Chinaman, is one which depends almost entirely on good acting for its impressiveness as screen material. Definitely the work of Dolly Haas as the girl, Arthur Margetson as the villainous Battling Burrows and Emlyn Williams as the Chinaman is on an extremely high level.

Few exhibitors are unacquainted with the Thomas Burke story or with the fact that it offers an exceptional sob appeal in its picture of a slum child to whom a young Chinaman gives shelter, dressing and the respect due a princess. With a mob behind him, the father carries her back to the slum, leaving the Chinaman's house ablaze. In a sadistic fury, he beats her to death. The Chinaman, too late to save her, kills the father and carries the dead girl back to the burning house, himself dying in the flames.

There is an atmosphere of sincerity throughout this film which makes it very appealing and intensely moving. It is tragedy without qualification, but no one who appreciates good acting, dramatic realism and suspense developed to a painful degree can fail to appreciate. Twickenham has far surpassed the best of its previous work.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Allan.

Derby Filmed in Color

London, June 1.—Robert T. Kane and Glenn Tryon, producer and director of "Wings of the Morning," first British all-Technicolor feature, for Twentieth Century-Fox, took racing scenes in color throughout the four days of the Epsom meeting. The Derby, big event of the week, was a feature of the film. It had never previously been filmed in color. The Kane unit had two technicolor cameras on it.

Turley Is Reelected

Dallas, June 1.—Clarence M. Turley, who is associated with the Skouras Brothers in St. Louis, has been reelected president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers at the annual convention of the body held here. Weymouth Drive-In Theatre Is Opened Weymouth, Mass., June 1.—The Weymouth Drive-In Theatre, has been opened by Thomas DiMaura. It is an eight-acre affair accommodating some 500 automobiles on one of the busiest roads in Massachusetts.

The enterprise is said to be the largest of its kind. Seven ramps, running from 700 feet to 350 feet, furnish parking spaces for the machines. The staff of 20 ushers is mounted on bicycles. The ampitheatre slants upgrade. The projection room is subterranean. Sixteen loudspeakers, slanted at different angles, are used. The venture cost about $70,000. James Guarino is manager.

The management says that thunder and lightning storms may heighten the atmosphere of war pictures, but that fog will make it just too bad.

Lottery Bill Stirs New Orleans Smiles

New Orleans, June 1.—That bill to prohibit Bank Night as a lottery in this state has caused many a broad grin in some sections and a bit of half-suppressed anger in others.

Gambling isn't exactly prohibited here. On some portions of St. Charles and Royal Sts. passers-by are invited in to "buck the tiger." In other sections the system is more dignified. Customers walk in without an invitation. Policy slips are openly distributed all over the city.

To Use Screeno Daily

San Francisco, June 1.—"Screeno Every Night" is the catch-line under which the President will operate here when it opens on June 4. Rene T. LaMarre will manage the house for Lawrence Borg and Irving Ackerman.

Luebbers has set June 8 as the date upon which he will render a decision on the local Sweepstakes case, based on the briefs recently filed by Albert Weinstein, attorney for defendants, Thomas Reilly, owner of the Rialto; Nicholas Russo and Bert Leder, ushers, and Jack Pendleton, promotor. Inasmuch as this is a test case, it is being watched with interest by exhibitors.

Country Store Upheld

Portland, June 1.—"Country Stores" conducted in suburban theatres are not lotteries in the opinion of Judge Woodley, on the ground that the holders of the tickets do not pay a valuable consideration for a chance to win a prize. The defendant in the case was Mrs. Rose Moyer, Sellwood Theatre.

"On or about July 1, we shall give away the theatre."

Hearings Ordered on "Zombie" Film Title

Justice Wasservogel in the N. Y. Supreme Court has appointed Attorney Herman Hoffman to conduct hearings in the injunction and accounting proceedings brought by Amusement Securities Corp. against the Academy Pictures Distributing Corp. and others over the use of the word "zombie."

The order stated that the law firm of Krellberg & Fitzsimmons had withdrawn the motion for a temporary injunction with the consent of the attorneys for both sides and that the plaintiff may serve an amended complaint at any time prior to the commencement of the hearings by Referee Hoffman.

These hearings will be conducted just as if the case were actually being tried in the Supreme Court. At the conclusion Hoffman is to report to Justice Wasservogel. On Thursday Justice Wasservogel denied an injunction from the bench, but in making his ruling ordered that the matter proceed immediately to trial.

Wanger Predicts All Films in Color Soon

All pictures will be made in color in five years, Walter Wanger, new U.A. producer, stated prior to his sailing on the Rex for a five-week vacation in Italy and France.

The cost of all-color features will be about the same as black and white, Wanger asserted. He pointed out that the production budget of his first color film, "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," amounted to less than $750,000. About twice the amount of time for an ordinary black and white film was consumed in the making of "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," but with the developments being made it is anticipated that no additional time will be required for photographing all color pictures.

Presently, Wanger hasn't any color films lined up on his first year's schedule for U.A. This pact runs for 10 years and the producer hopes to make six annually.

However, the Orpheum's average gross is $8,500.

Grosses Off in K. C. Since Spring Chills

Kansas City, June 1. — Theatre business here hasn't recovered from the doldrums into which it was dragged by the two-month cold snap last winter, according to first and subsequent run exhibitors.

First runs, though doing nicely on occasional outstanding films, haven't been doing the level of business they should. The report from subsequent runs is that grosses are off from a year ago.

The slump doesn't affect outstate Kansas and Missouri theatres. Exhibitors there are feeling the effect of improved general conditions, which is due largely to rains and prospects for a bumper wheat crop.

Study "Dinsmore" Yarns

Hollywood, June 1. — Paramount will make a survey to determine whether or not the "Elsie Dinsmore" stories would be popular as screen material. The stories by Martha Stanley were considered juvenile classics early in the century. If made, the studio will star Virginia Weidler, child actress, in the series.

Melton-Keeler Paired

Hollywood, June 1.—Ruby Keeler has replaced Joan Blondell for the lead opposite James Melton in "Let's Pretend" for First National.

been drafted en masse to assist the committees in welcoming the guests and in caring for them after their arrival.

Unusual interest is being shown in the exhibit displays, space for which has been oversold to such an extent that some of the late arrivals will be placed in the convention room proper. There will be 30 units of display. Those who have bought space include National Carbon, National Theatre Supply Co., Independent Supply Co., National Screen Advertising, Revelation Pictures, Air Kure, Republic Pictures, Carrier Engineering Co., Alexander Film Co., International Projector Co., General Register Co., Oliver Theatre Supply Co., American Seating Co., Neon Electric Clock Co., Ticket Issuing Co., Hertner Electric Co., Emerling and Kahn Window Craft, Chesterfield Pictures and "Bonus Nite."

Leave for Cleveland

George R. Batcheller, president of Chesterfield; Maury Cohen, head of Invincible, and Edward Golden, general sales manager for both companies, have left for Cleveland to attend the three-day Allied convention which gets under way tomorrow.

Nathan Yamins, president of Allied, who was in New York with Max Levinson, Boston exhibitor, last week will leave today from Fall River, Mass., for the Ohio sessions.

Weeks, Wilson on Way

George W. Weeks, general sales manager of G.B., left for Cleveland yesterday where he will address the Allied convention tomorrow afternoon.

Reg Wilson, special sales representative, left last night for Cleveland and Pittsburgh. He will also look in on the Allied deliberations.

Postpone Sound Meeting

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.—The joint meeting of the Academy Technicians' Branch and the Pacific Coast Section of the S.M.P.E., originally scheduled for tomorrow night at the M-G-M studio, has been postponed to Thursday evening. Douglas Shearer, sound head at M-G-M, will preside.

Seek to Halt M-G-M Short on Bank Night

DENVER, June 1.—Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., owner of Bank Night, is negotiating to halt the showing of the two-reel Charles Chase comedy, "Neighborhood House," which was produced by Hal Roach and is scheduled for M-G-M release. The film concerns Bank Night, and Affiliated claims that the showing of it would cast "irreparable reflections" and do damage to the chance game plan.

According to Emmett Thurman, Affiliated attorney, the story of the film shows several attempts to defraud theatres using the plan, and might leave such ideas in the minds of theatre patrons. The film was originally titled "Bank Night," but was changed on the request of Affiliated, it is understood.

Missouri Test Aug. 31

KANSAS CITY, June 1.—Judge Waltner has set Aug. 31 as the date for the trial of R. W. McEwan, local Bank Night distributor, in connection with the sale of the promotion to the Ashland last year. The action is a test case to determine whether Bank Night is in violation of the Missouri lottery laws.

There will be no interference with the operation of Bank Night until after the determination of the action. No matter which side loses, the case will be appealed to the state Supreme Court, it was indicated.

Jay Emanuel Feted By 200 Exhibitors

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—Two hundred exhibitors and film men attended the luncheon to Jay Emanuel held today at the Hotel Warwick. Wires of greeting were received from Ned E. Depinet, George J. Schaefer, Jules Levy, William F. Rodgers and others.

"Accused" has been picked as the release title of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr's., Criterion film previously called "To You My Life."

May Revive Tax on Admission in N. J.

TRENTON, June 1.—Revival of the amusement tax appeared probable today as New Jersey legislators realized there is virtually no chance of either a general sales or income tax obtaining approval. The amusement levy, which passed the Assembly but was defeated twice in the Senate by three votes, exempts tickets up to 10 cents. A tax of one cent is imposed on admissions from 11 to 25 cents and one cent on each additional 25-cent bracket or fraction thereof.

For a time the amusement tax, with its bracketed cigarette and cosmetic levies, appeared dead. The anti-sales and income planks before the Republican and Democratic state conventions, however, brought a revival of the amusement levy.

May Drop Malden Plans

BOSTON, June 1.—Although the Loew circuit plans to build a new $250,000 theatre in Malden indications are that the venture may be abandoned.

Music Hall's Staff Holds Annual Party

Following the last show at the Music Hall last night, the theatre staff went to the roof, seven stories above the street, and gave the annual show which officially opens the recreation space.

The corps de ballet did "sister acts," the Rockettes a number of dramatic playlets and the symphony orchestra musicians bravely stood by listening to harmonica virtuosos. The place was gayly bedecked with lights, and comfortably scattered about were beach chairs, card tables, and the other trimmings, including six barrels of beer.

The playground was outfitted two years ago by W. G. Van Schmus, director of the theatre, to be used as a recreation place by the theatre employes.

Supply Men's Board To Fill Rizzo Post

Directors of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n., meeting at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, starting today, will elect a successor to the late Clem Rizzo, treasurer. The directors' session is preliminary to the annual convention which is to be held at the same hotel for three days, starting June 5.

When the general membership meeting gets under way on Friday, a tribute to the memory of Rizzo and E. E. Oliver will be paid by a two-minute silence during the morning.

Standardization of equipment in an effort to eliminate bootleg apparatus will highlight the general conclave.

New Contract Form Is Asked By Kuykendall

"after the discontinuance of the film code this form of contract continued to be generally used."

The 1933 optional contract embodies all of the important provisions of the longer contract form, as well as the terms and conditions agreed upon by bargaining which are ordinarily written into the schedule. The short form, however, does away with what Kuykendall describes in his letter as "the numerous provisions of the long contract that seldom need be referred to in the actual performance of the contract and which provide for remote contingencies and possibilities." Such provisions are covered in the short form by reference and, although just as much a part of the agreement as though they were printed therein, they avoid much of the phraseology that makes for a "clumsy and confusing form of contract."

"In other words," Kuykendall's letter concludes, "the active provisions are all in the short form, while standardized trade customs are set forth in the long form and made a part of the short one only by reference. The step is urged," he says, "as a beginning towards a simpler contract."

The short contract form is one of the 10 principal concessions being sought from distributors by the M. P. T. O. A. trade practice committee which has held meetings with six national distributors during the past two weeks. Kuykendall is scheduled to arrive here late this week to set meetings with four additional companies and define concessions already obtained from the others.

considers the new tax bill. No decision has been made as to whether the committee will function after Congress adjourns, but it is expected that little will be done during the campaign period.

Steuer, special counsel for the committee, is not expected to take an active part in the Paramount hearings in view of his position as counsel for defendants in a pending action instituted some time ago by the Paramount trustees. Steuer said yesterday he expected to make a decision tomorrow concerning his future activities with the committee.

Expect More Delay For Skouras Action

The Skouras product action against the RKO 81st St. was marked ready on the N. Y. Supreme Court trial calendar yesterday although a further postponement is anticipated before the case goes to trial, as efforts to settle the action out of court have not been abandoned.

The suit alleges a breach of the Fox Film franchise held by Skouras in the sale of that product to the 81st St., day and date with competing Skouras houses.

guarantee of a $1,000,000 indebtedness of Fox Theatres, given March 4. 1932, in connection with the issuance of a large block of Roxy Theatre stock to Herbert Lubin. Chicago Title & Trust Co. is Lubin's assignee. Stroock's report makes the provision that Fox Theatres Corp. does not become liable to Fox on the judgment against it until the former film executive has paid up the Chicago Title & Trust's judgment against him. The report also allows interest from March 4, 1932, and costs of litigation in recommending judgment liabilities against both Fox and Fox Theatres.

The referee's report, which must be confirmed by the state court before the judgments can be entered, dismisses counter actions in the claim litigation which were brought by Fox against Fox Film Corp., Chase National Bank, Chase Savings Corp. and others. The hearings before Stroock were begun more than a year ago. Fox Theatres is now in receivership.

Neely Bill Gets Favorable Report

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 2.—A favorable report on the Neely block booking bill was ordered today by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, despite the apparent impossibility of obtaining any action on the measure during what remains of the present session of Congress.

On the House side the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee met this morning to consider the Pettengill Bill and other measures, but found it impossible to obtain a quorum and adjourned without action. No date has been fixed for another meeting, and members of the committee tonight said it is unlikely that the group would meet again this year unless the session is prolonged.

Members of the House committee were little interested in the Senate committee's action, pointing out that

Store Television New British Plan

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, May 26, via the Queen Mary.—The British Broadcasting Corp. is considering a plan of breaking in the public to the idea of televised screen programs by means of demonstration sets in radio and other stores. It is expected that the previous plan, to open a television theatre in Broadcasting House in Portland Place here, will be abandoned.

It is seen as likely also that the B. B. C. may use for the new plan the Trans-Lux British theatres expected to be inaugurated during the current visit here of Percy N. Thurber, chairman of the board of Trans-Lux.

The programs are expected to start about July 15, with the transmission on an experimental basis for some time. The public will not have available receiving sets capable of taking the new service.

It is pointed out in connection with

City's Sales Tax Extended for Year

The city's two per cent sales tax and other emergency relief levies were extended for another year from July 1 by the Board of Estimate at a special meeting yesterday.

The city has ruled that the sales tax applies to film rentals received by New York exchanges, but the ruling is being contested in a test case brought by United Artists and scheduled for hearing tomorrow or Friday in the Appellate Division of the state court.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The Sabath bankruptcy committee will resume hearings here tomorrow, but it is not expected to take up the Paramount case until Thursday.

Seeks Data on Lineups, Better Deals, Theatre Aggression Check

By RED KANN

CLEVELAND, June 2.—Allied's powwow this year will be a buying convention. Its leaders want light thrown on what is being offered and plenty of it.

They also will seek a curb on producer aggression in the theatre field; the revision of selling terms which they charge are ruining hundreds of independent exhibitors. Individual leaders in the organization which starts its three-day convention at the Hollenden Wednesday go beyond and seek more.

There is, for instance, W. A. Steffes, regional vice-president for the Northwest whose voice in Allied conclaves has been slightly stilled in the last couple of years. He returns with something akin to a roar, tied to that hardy perennial, "Hays Must Go."

There is, also, Harry A. Cole, regional vice-president for the Southwest and president of Allied's Texas unit, who proposes that the organization abandon every other activity during the coming year for concentration on one or two basic court actions to go as high up the line as the Supreme Arrangements were closed recently under which Pathe granted an extension of the maturity on past due credits advanced to Van Beuren some time ago. The agreement calls for payments on the indebtedness at regular intervals. Indications at one time were that Pathe might ask the appointment of a conservator for the Van Beuren Corp., but the new agreement disposes of the possibility.

A film promotion campaign stressing the advent of new season product would do much to offset the indicated loss of patronage, it is believed. If successful this season, the cooperative, institutional campaign would be made an annual event.

Robert Gillham of Paramount, S. Charles Einfeld of Warners and Howard Dietz of M-G-M have been named to a committee charged with developing the idea. Alternates for the committee are Oscar Doob of Loew's and S. Barret McCormick of RKO.

Allied Meets In a Scrappy, Buyers' Mood

Court, if necessary, to demonstrate his charge that monopoly and trustification exist.

The various keynotes of the impending convention are sounded in Allied's official program. "Right now," declares the foreword, which is unsigned, "several of the producing companies are burning the midnight oil in some nearby city compounding the best arguments as to how to sell exhibitors to the best advantage—Nothing wrong in that, but—

"Isn't it time that exhibitors hold a buying convention, compare notes, get expert opinions as to what the various companies delivered last year, what they didn't, discuss the sales policies they are going to be asked to subscribe to, and get a line-up on what they are to be offered next year.

Producer Methods Recommended

"Producers are organized and talk over mutual problems. To Cleveland will be brought experts who will give the exhibitors assembled the same information. Plans must be made at Cleveland to fortify the position of the independent exhibitor—to make plans to help those who are being oppressed. You must take a part in that.

"Legislative destruction waits on every side. Exhibitors must ready themselves for any and all unfair taxation onslaughts."

In his pre-convention message, Nathan Yamins, of Fall River, Allied president, starts with a compliment to his Ohio unit which he describes as Allied's "most virulent organization" and asks:

"Are we to return to the days of '28 and '29, when with ruthless abandon producers forced hundreds of theatre owners out of business by building and threatening to build, by their ill-advised invasion into the exhibition field, or are we going to devise ways and means that will guarantee to independent theatre owners the right to stay in business, make a normal profit, and leave a small heritage to those dependent on them?

Immediate Action Asked

"Are we going to face another selling season blind as to what we are to buy and what we are to get? Are we going to sit idly by and accept sales terms that spell ruination for hundreds of us?

"Cleveland must sound the warning. Cleveland must find the solution. Cleveland will find the answer, if there are in Cleveland the scores of theatre owners expected, who come not alone to get away from home scenes for a while but come ready to take off their coats and make it the 'workingest' convention Allied has ever sponsored."

Hays's influence is "pernicious," states Steffes. It "has squeezed dollars out of the independents and enabled the accomplishment of throttling control of production, distribution and exhibition." He says:

"Chief among the tasks of the independent theatre owner, if he is to withstand the continued and insidious attempts being made to trustify the business and eliminate the little fellow, is the removal of Will H. Hays as head of the producer-distribution association."

At another point, he adds:

"It is no accident that monopoly suits have been instituted on many fronts by the Government which is making efforts to cut the tentacles of the Frankenstein the Hays association has become.

Calls Promises "Empty"

"Decent thinking men and women the country over have risen in protest against the calibre of pictures we are forced to show. Finding that Hays' promises meant nothing, various organizations, headed by the Legion of Decency organized to protect the nation's morality and forced a partial clean-up. In spite of this, pictures bearing the stamp of approval of Hays' censor committee have been forced upon us which brought down upon our heads the justified wrath of the decent people of our communities.

"Allied States Association has tried to work with Mr. Hays to effect industry reforms. The empty promises we received are history. The time, money and energy we spent was just so much waste, for Mr. Hays never intended to give us a square deal, for to do so he obviously believes would imperil his job."

Cole Tells of Allied Formation

Cole, dipping into Allied history, asserts:

"The basic reason for the formation of Allied eight or nine years ago, was that independent exhibitors were convinced that their major problems come from within the industry—not without. A man who is dying from cancer is not interested in a remedy for a wart on his neck. The exhibitor who can get no film—the exhibitor who knows he stands in the shadow of extinction—is not especially interested when his trade association saves him $50 on his insurance premium, or even a $5,000 admission tax. As an extreme example of that, one of my members demanded that I go before our Legislature and advocate a 10% admission tax, so bitter was he against those who were taking away from him his little living.

Court Plea Asked

"The MPTOA, when it was taken over by distributor-chain interests, and ever since that time, has pictured a united industry fighting its foes, legislative and economic, on the outside. These dangers we all recognize; but to the Independent exhibitor they sink into insignificance beside the one great threat to his existence that comes from within the industry itself—that would deprive him of product, or that would place such onerous conditions in the line of clearance, price fixing, etc., as would make it difficult or impossible for him to continue in business. I have one suggestion: perhaps it may be a first step toward that end. That suggestion is that Allied National abandon every other activity during the coming year and concentrate on one or two basic court actions to be carried up to the Supreme Court of the United States for final determination. We have cried our wrongs to the high heavens, and still our theatres are being black-jacked and taken away from us. We have protested that their whole system of protection is inequitable and illegal: their only contemptuous answer has been to make it worse. We have shouted monopoly and trust; but our only answer has been the feeble echo of our cry. Uncertainty of our legal rights is really worse than the situation itself: for every theatre that has been forced out of business, there are hundreds that have sold out through intimidation and fear. Let's get through with uncertainty. Let's find out if our claims of illegality are justified. Then, at least, if we go down, we'll go down fighting."

Myers on Arbitration

Abram F. Myers, general counsel and board chairman, maintains adjudication of exhibitor problems is not possible by negotiation. Citing the 5-5-5 conferences as proof, he describes efforts in the past as a "disillusioning experience."

"In the first place," avers Myers, "the autocrats of the industry will not negotiate in reference to the special privileges they enjoy and regard as rights unless the pressure of exhibitor agitation becomes too strong to resist and even then will not participate beyond the point where the danger has been averted or the exhibitors' solidarity has been dissipated.

Attacking Hays, he states:

"Mr. Hays has often stated that it is his function to put the oil where the squeak is. When he first entered the industry he appeared genuinely anxious to correct injustice and promote good feeling by dealing directly with the complaining parties. But flies soon gathered about the Great Emollient, flies whose purpose it was to create suspicion and unrest rather than allay it. Hays by virtue of his contract will be with us for many years, but the flies need not be.

Public Regulation a Possibility

"All of these maneuvers ignore the realities and merely provide additional ammunition to be used against the industry in the next encounter with public authority. It is all so palpable that nobody is being misled; on the contrary large bodies of interested citizens and persons exercising public authority are gazing on the proceedings with amazement. Unless the industry gets wise to itself, casts out the dead flies and deals with exhibitor problems seriously and in good faith, public regulation will be inevitable."

Members Arriving Rapidly

The delegates for whose benefit these statements of their leaders had been prepared, began to arrive during the afternoon with a fairly representative attendance on hand by late this evening. H. M. Richey, chairman of the national convention committee, flew in from Detroit Monday evening; Sydney Samuelson of New Jersey arrived during the day and made for the golf course. P. J. Wood, business manager of the I. T. O. A. of Ohio, checked in about noon and Abram F. Myers from Washington about the end of the day. H. A. Cole, president of Allied of Texas, and regional national vice-president, arrived early this evening.

By Wednesday morning the arrivals will reach their crest. Computing on the basis of reservations at the Hollenden late today, Richey predicted the heaviest attendance at any exhibitor convention held thus far. He said the hotel reported 235 reservations which do not include space for a delegation of 45 which he said western Pennsylvania is sending.

Members from Many Sections Attend Meet

He computed major delegations as follows: 34 from Michigan representing eight theatres, 12 from Philadelphia, 22 from New England, six from Texas, two from California, 14 from Minnesota, 20 from Wisconsin, 30 from Chicago, 20 from Indiana, 12 from New Jersey and 150 from Cleveland and neighboring Ohio cities.

Detroit Delegation Heavy

"Detroit registered 345 bona fide exhibitors. The Chicago convention went to 375. I predict between 400 and 450 here representing 1,500 independent theatres," he told MOTION PICTURE DAILY. Richey quoted Myers as stating the purpose of the presence of Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General of the U. S., who prosecuted the criminal and civil suits against Warners, Paramount and RKO in St. Louis was to listen to exhibitor complaints against unfair trade practices with the possible view of gathering material for an investigation by the Dep't of Justice and ultimate prosecution in the Federal courts. Paul Williams, one of Hardy's assistants, will also attend. Daniel Bertrand, who recently made a final NRA report on the industry in which he suggested Government control, will sound an interesting note, according to pre-convention word from Allied leaders already on the ground. While they were reluctant about forecasting the content of his address, which will be prepared and not delivered extemporaneously, one prediction from an Allied source in a position to know tonight was that Bertrand will urge independent exhibitors to strike for Federal intervention and control unless alleged malpractices on the part of distributors cease.

Theatre Loan Talk Set

James Caffrey of the Federal Housing Administration will speak on Government loans for the reconstruction of theatres and explain to the assembled exhibitors how they may arrange to get them.

All through the day M. B. Horwitz, chairman of the general convention committee, was busy whipping exhibits into shape. Thirty-one companies will be represented with 10 more seeking space to no avail.

Rangy, gangly Walter Stoeppleman, exhibitor from the Texas plains, who panicked the Atlanta convention last year with his dry and penetrating wit, arrived this afternoon holding out a promise of fun again being injected into the deliberations. Operating in such metropoli as Silsby, Wiergate, Kirbysville and Jasper, somewhere along the line he will expound theatre problems as seen through small town eyes.

IT'S THE BIG HOUSE DRAMA with THE POWERHOUSE PUNCH!

Largest Groups from East And Midwest to Convention

New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey will be heavily represented at the Allied convention, which gets underway today in Cleveland, while outside the east large delegations will be in attendance from Chicago, Milwaukee, Michigan, Indianapolis, Dallas, and other cities. A breakdown of the expected attendance from various sections is here listed.

N. O. Allied Men to Miss Annual Session

New Orleans, June 2.—This city and the state of Louisiana will not be represented at the Allied convention in Cleveland June 3-5. According to Henry Lazarus, representing Allied in this section, both he and exhibitors at large believe that, inasmuch as the legislature is in session at Baton Rouge, that it would be unwise to leave the gate unguarded at this time.

According to Lazarus no suggestions for legislation will be sent to the floor in Cleveland from Louisiana.

Group Due from Philadelphia

Philadelphia, June 2. — Philadelphians who will attend the Allied convention include Harry Freed, Morris Wax, Dave Milgrim, Ray Schwartz, Mo Wax and possibly Charles Segall.

Since there is no Allied unit in Philadelphia, there will be no formal delegation from any of the local organizations. The men are going "on their own" and have no particular plan or protest to submit, unless something develops during the convention.

N. J. Delegates in Force

Lee Newbury, president of Allied of New Jersey, has left for Cleveland and the Allied convention and will make several stopovers which may not bring him to the Ohio city until tomorrow, the opening day of the three-day meet.

Among other New Jersey theatremen attending the national conclave will be Harry Hecht, Passaic; Mrs. Helen Hildinger, Trenton; Simon Myers, Moorestown, all directors of the local unit; Jack Unger, Hillside, secretary, and Harry and Mrs. Kridel, Newark.

Herrington Heads Unit

Pittsburgh, June 2.—Fred J. Herrington of the M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania, an Allied affiliate, is heading a delegation from here to the Allied meeting in Cleveland.

No specific grievances will be carried to the floor of the convention by the local group, it has been indicated here.

St. Louis Not Interested

St. Louis, June 2. — Since Allied States has no unit in either southern Illinois or eastern Missouri, no delegates are expected to be present at the Allied convention from those territories.

A Blank From Tulsa

Tulsa, Okla., June 2.—No exhibitors from this city are expected to attend the Allied meeting. The majority of the theatremen in the city are members of the M.P.T.O.A.

None to Go From Albany

CHESTERFIELD AND INVINCIBLE

ACCEPT THE RESPONSIBILITY OF INDEPENDENT LEADERSHIP

● We stand firmly upon our record of years of accomplishment in that market.

Year in and year out, Chesterfield and Invincible have made promises of delivery, and, year after year, every promise has been fulfilled.

In the season of 1936-37, responsible Independent producers and distributors will again assume the position of respect and confidence that they so justly deserve.

Our plans for 1936-37 consist of 18 pictures, nine to be made by Chesterfield and nine to be made by Invincible.

We shall offer, through Independent exchanges, a program of feature pictures, planned and conceived with the Box Office as our sole objective.

Chesterfield and Invincible will offer action stories of living, virile characters; drama, and comedy, with a sprinkling of music.

● There are three important factors in the successful operation of Independent production and distribution:

First, a spirit of encouragement and support by exhibitors to the product of the Independent producer.

Second, a product of worth-while quality, produced by producers with an established record for regularity of delivery; producers with a financial responsibility that enables them to make good every promise; producers with a proved knowledge of sound showmanship principles in production; producers with a keen sense of integrity.

Third, Independent exchanges properly manned; exchanges with a full understanding of their responsibilities to exhibitors; exchanges with an appreciation of their obligations to the Independent producer.

We are now ready to negotiate for such distribution.

● Chesterfield and Invincible, in the future as in the past, shall continue to strive for the creation and fulfillment of confidence with all whom they serve in business.

Myers Opposes Change in Viewpoint and Urges Continued Action

By RED KANN

Cleveland, June 3.—Allied policy ostensibly took a walk from its united front today when Nathan Yamins, striking for an adjudication of independent exhibition problems by round table conference with industry leaders in New York found his view outwardly, at least, opposed by Abram F. Myers.

The suspicion was around late in the afternoon that this apparently startling schism in the ranks of Allied's upper councils might have been staged for convention ballyhoo purposes. By the time the festivities swung into high later in the evening at the Mayfair Casino, and caution dropped for frivolity, the suspicion began to assume factual forms, unless it was designed to cover up the on-the-surface break. "How'd you like the gag we staged this afternoon," one Allied leader asked.

Efforts were made subsequently by the president of Allied to reshape his point of view with that emphasized by its general counsel who stepped away from his prepared address long enough to say: "It would be a mistake for Allied to depart from its policies after all these years. The minute Allied becomes an organization of petition, one of talk and not one of action, it loses its distinguishing mark."

The difference of opinion presumably

Cobb and 20th-Fox Sued

A suit for an injunction, impounding of films and an accounting for damages has been filed against Irvin S. Cobb, author, and Twentieth Century-Fox in Federal court here by Ray Long and Richard R. Smith, Inc., who charge abrogation of an agreement giving them an interest in talking film rights to the stories incorporated in Cobb's book, "Down Yonder with Judge Priest and Irvin S. Cobb." The complaint charges that Cobb sold two of the stories, "A Tree Full of Hoot Owls" and "Br'er Fox and the Briar Patch" to the film company.

Sabath Washington Hearing Postponed

The Sabath Congressional committee's hearing on Paramount affairs which was scheduled to get underway in Washington today has been postponed indefinitely. A representative of the committee advised Paramount officials who had been subpoenaed to appear at the hearing that the committee would not reach Paramount during its current session. It is believed doubtful that the committee will hold hearings during the summer, which means that the chances of further study by it of Paramount affairs is remote.

Max D. Steuer, New York attorney who was associated with the committee as special counsel, said yesterday that he was doing nothing about the committee's activities "for the present."

WILMINGTON, June 3.—The adjourned hearing at which Senator Daniel O. Hastings, receiver for General Theatres Equipment, Inc., will present his report of the receivership, was continued today to June 10 by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott.

Senator Hastings and representatives of the reorganization committee of G. T. E. met here today to arrange for the transfer of the assets to purchasers and other details in the reorganization of the company. Recently the reorganization committee, a group representing about $24,000,000 in gold debentures of the company, purchased all of the assets for $4,029,000. The receivership, which has existed since February, 1932, is expected to be completed within a month.

New Delay Seen for Skouras Film Suit

The Skouras product suit against the RKO 81st St., which has been marked ready for trial on the N. Y. Indications are that a settlement of the action will be made in the meantime.

The Skouras suit alleges a breach of its Fox Film franchise in the sale of that company's product to the RKO 81st St. day and date with competing Skouras houses.

Yamins Urges Negotiation; Myers Opposes

failed to rest kindly with other Allied leaders and that difference may assert itself rather sharply Thursday afternoon when the second business session gets under way at the Hollenden.

It was reported tonight that W. A. Steffes, former Allied president and its quondam chief fire spouter, and Harry A. Cole, president of the Texas unit as well as a regional vice-president of national Allied, will take the floor tomorrow and pour icy water on Yamins' suggestion of adjudication by conference. Others in the Allied ranks offered by way of explanation a failure on Yamins' part to clearly express what was in his mind, although there appeared to be little room for any other interpretation of the language he used.

As a matter of fact, what he said at the close of the opening day's session was, in effect, what he said publicly earlier in the afternoon.

The Usual Welcoming

In a sequence of events, this was the day: The meeting opened at 2:15 with Martin G. Smith of Toledo in the chair. Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland did the usual sort of welcoming in the usual way and was followed by M. B. Horwitz, Cleveland, chairman of the general convention committee, whereupon the meeting was turned over to H. M. Richey of Detroit, chairman of the national convention committee. Among other statements, he thanked the trade papers for their cooperation in nationally publicizing the convention, welcomed any independent exhibitor to participate in the meetings and added that the official program had been mailed to 6,500 independent exhibitors in the country.

A telegram from William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, was read, expressing his inability to make the speech he had promised. He said he was needed in New York. "If some exhibitor in Boston didn't need an adjustment he would have been here," remarked Richey. "What happened I don't know, but the curtain was rung down. Maybe Rodgers, who, by the way, is a very fine gentleman, found himself in a meeting at the Hays office. At any rate, I know the circumstances must have been beyond his control."

"Dum" and "Salve"

Yamins, introduced by Richey as one who has "endeared himself to independent exhibitors for his ability to take it," was the next and first major speaker. Referring to the Latin inscriptions on the decorations over the rostrum, he said, "I see the word 'dum' and suppose that refers to those exhibitors who are not members of Allied. Then I see the word 'salve' which doesn't mean what you think it does. I promise you won't be handed any of it here."

Launching into the serious aspects of his address, which was not from prepared script, Yamins decried what he called an annual custom of taking inventory and noting progress or otherwise on the basis of the previous year's record.

"A year is too short a time to judge," he said. "Business analysts figure over a long period of years, and so we should compute not where we were a year ago, but by a period in the past." The analogy he drew went back to the Cleveland convention of 1920, as compared with this one. At that time, he said, major companies released between 600 and 800 features a year and today 350 is top from the majors and a couple of hundred from the independents.

"There were 15 or more producers then. Today they have been reduced to eight. There was competition then and it was a buyers' market. Today it is reversed. It is a sellers' market and exhibitors are competing among themselves for product. In 1920 exhibitors had problems but they didn't have to buy shorts to get features or newsreels to get features. Today they must take shorts for which they have no playing time and more newsreels than they can use. Then pictures were bought at a fair price. There was no problem of selective playing time.

Compares Past and Present

"Today the exhibitor has the distributor for a partner the best half of the week and takes the losses the poor half. Then there was no such thing as reallocation of product. If the pictures proved to be big, the exhibitor cashed in. Then there were no score charges, a racket that came in with the talkies and which reminds of the days of Capone in Chicago. The exhibitors didn't have to buy trailers from the distributors to get their product.

"Now there's a new one. Exhibitors have to take accessories from the distributors. Slowly the exhibitor is being crushed out of business."

He traced the growth of distributor participation in exhibition and charged distributors were exacting higher and higher rentals by threatening to acquire competitive houses if the exhibitor resists film rental demands.

"I do not defend the chiseling exhibitor. We have them in our ranks just as the distributor does, but the exhibitor should not be faced with destructive competition. This competition is not coming entirely from affiliated chains, but from independent circuits which threaten independents through their massed buying power. These conditions would not exist if this were a buyers' market. First National entered production and Marcus Loew did also to protect his theatres, but this, I think, is unfeasible for us. Our problem is not to make pictures, but to exhibit them. We can encourage independent producers in order to restore the balance between the distributor and the exhibitor."

It was here that Yamins first sounded his round table plan. He said that as a member of Campi he found a certain breadth of vision on the part of the real members, "not their third or sixth assistants."

"I don't think the real men in the industry want to operate their businesses by crushing the independent. I urge the formation of some committee to sit down with these real leaders to solve these problems."

Cites an Incident

Without specifying detail Yamins cited an incident as fresh as last Friday. He said a certain exhibitor had been threatened by a new theatre planned in his town.

"I went to New York and in two hours cleared it up. We realize that the distributor must be successful, if we are to be successful. It applies in reverse as well. With such a meeting of minds we can solve the problems. Moreover, I don't think they want outside interference. Personally, I don't think we do."

The unnamed incident is believed to refer to authentic reports from the east that Meyer Schine was planning a theatre in Fall River, which Yamins dominates today. In reply to an inquiry, Yamins said with what may have been a significant smile, that he had not been referring to himself and denied knowledge of such a plan on the part of the Schine interests.

In the corridors after the close of the session Schine also denied such a plan and dismissed it by declaring "I was in Gloversville all of last week, not in Fall River."

"No Place" for Radicals

Continuing his round table note, Yamins made the statement that "radicalism has no place in any exhibitor organization. If round table conferences cannot bring results, the exhibitor has the right to appeal to outside forces. But Allied should mobilize all its strength and display its interest in the constructive solution of the problems which confront it. These are my own ideas. They were not set down in writing. They were not shown to the board before I started to speak, and submitted to no censoring. If we can send leaders displaying no taint of radicalism to New York, if we can send leaders who have an investment in brick and mortar and be represented by real business leaders, we would be respected and get a hearing. If it fails, we have a legal remedy."

The conclusion of his speech was heralded by hearty applause.

After the introduction of former presidents, including Myers, Steffes, James Ritter of Michigan, and Sydney Samuelson of New Jersey, and the reading of a wire from Walter J. Littlefield, Massachusetts Allied leader who is honeymooning abroad, George W. Weeks, general sales manager of G. B., was called upon.

"I know prosperity is back by the Papers' Bouquet

Cleveland, June 3. — Bouquets for trade papers were handed out early at the Allied convention. A few minutes after proceedings started this morning, H. M. Richey, chairman of the general convention committee, formally voiced Allied's thanks for "the splendid job they have done in informing the exhibitors of the nation about this convention."

That wasn't all. A spacious table was provided for their needs as well as ice water. Then along came George Erdmann to inquire if everybody was comfortable. The reporters by this time began to look at each other in gratitude if not in some amazement.

Morris to Coast on British Film Plans

Committee Gets Bill On Child Admissions

The New York board of aldermen has referred to the committee on local laws a bill, sponsored by Murray W. Stand, to license theatres to admit children between the ages of eight and 15 unaccompanied by adults. The bill is in conformity with the Joseph law, recently passed by the state legislature, providing for local option on the admission of unaccompanied children under specific conditions.

The bill requires that unaccompanied children may be admitted only during hours when school is not in session, that they must be seated in a particular section of the theatre and that the theatre must provide a matron, licensed by the board of health, to care for the children. A fee of $10 for the child admission license would be required under the terms of the bill.

"Show Boat" Leads Louisville Again

LOUISVILLE, June 3.—"Show Boat" held up to $3,700 in its second week at the Strand and was the only attraction in town to show a profit in the face of a heat wave.

"The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," also in its second week, was good for $2,600, which was $200 under the first week par.

The first house to shutter for the summer was the National, which wound up a four-day booking on Monday, May 25. The house has been operating with vaude-film for four days, the remaining three days being turned over to straight pictures. Announcement has been made that the house will reopen in the early fall.

Fontaine Ferry Park, a summer spot on the Ohio River here, has opened for the season. This will provide opposition for the theatres. The dog races, which are in progress across the river from Louisville, in Jeffersonville, Ind., boat excursions and night baseball are also factors tending to reduce the attendance at the downtown houses.

Total first run business was $19,600. Average is $24,200.

Mississippi Shows Theatre Tax Gains

JACKSON, Miss., June 3.—As an evidence of "prosperity's return" to Mississippi, the State Tax Commission said it expected to collect approximately $1,000,000 this year in amusement taxes.

The state last year collected $837,988 in amusement taxes, with film houses paying $712,207 of the tax, and the yield this year is running nine per cent ahead of last year. Steve Burwell, amusement tax collector, said 10 new theatres have been opened in Mississippi since the first of the year, bringing the total now in operation to 150.

Cincy Closings Start

CINCINNATI, June 3.—The Mayfair, 400-seat downtown "intimate theatre," playing first run foreign product, has closed for the summer. The RKO Shubert is in its final week of stage shows and pictures, and will be relighted in the fall. The Empress, heretofore playing burlesque and pictures, has dropped the former, and will play pictures only for the summer.

way major circuits are out after theatres. Our problems are joint problems. Aside from political and sales difficulties and problems about admission prices, the real trouble with industry is the scarcity of fine pictures. There is the problem of dual bills also. Some producers encourage it by deliberately making cheaper pictures and so do some exhibitors by running twin bills. This won't solve anything because even bad duals won't bring them in. It will take all of the combined production brains in America and abroad to turn out enough films of quality.

"I forecast for you that this will be an international market by the end of the year," he continued. "Every boat is loaded with talent bound for England. Nearly every major producer is making pictures there and these will be offered to you. Forty to 50 per cent of American revenue comes from England and has helped exhibitors here because without that revenue American producers would not be able to turn out good pictures. The day is coming when no exhibitor will be able to take a stand against a picture because it is foreign. You must support good product no matter where it is made." Weeks said G. B. sold 16 last year and delivered 10 because "we made some mistakes." He left for New York tonight at 9:30 o'clock.

Paramount Scored

J. Don Alexander, head of Alexander Film, acknowledged the effectiveness of his company's partnership with Allied last year on sponsored reels and said that in the offing were better films and more revenue for theatres running his type of subject.

Currently he offers his advertisers circulation of 24 million weekly.

Pete Wood, business manager of the I. T. O. of Ohio, scored Paramount on its new accessory deal. He charged the proferred contract meant added, not lessened cost, and no cash refunds, but only credits on material returned and that even the credits dropped unless accessories are returned to the exchanges in five days after the close of the run.

"If Paramount is successful, others will go for it. That will mean an increase in accessory costs to the exhibitor of from $300 to $500 a year."

Wisconsin Status Traced

He recommended that Allied voice its objection to this "monopoly." By a hand vote it developed virtually every exhibitor in the room bought his accessories through poster renters, who, according to Wood, face extinction if the Paramount plan spreads nationally.

Ray Tesch, business manager of Allied's Wisconsin unit, traced the history of legislation in his state, holding designated playdates to be illegal. Distributors are fighting it in Wisconsin courts. Approaching the bill from the social angle, he declared that if the law holds and distributors are barred from designating playing time in Wisconsin, it is conceivable that they may not be so insistent about percentages. He envisioned as an ultimate possibility an extension of the same principle to exclude block and blind selling and urged all Allied units to seek a similar bill regardless of the time it takes to establish validity or lack of it.

Myers was the final speaker of the day. He stuck closely to his prepared address in which he cited Allied history as it pertained to its ineffectual attempts at settling problems amicably with the major companies, but interspersed additional remarks aside from the set content which is published in highlight elsewhere on this page.

"I have found that the best place to fight is in the other fellow's territory." He devoted much of his extemporaneous remarks to last winter's hearings on the Neely and Pettengill bills in Washington and said the other side has been unable to defend block and blind selling on its merits. He also has found, he added, that producer and distributor leaders had "no standing" with any of the important social groups in the nation, but that these groups had sought an industry contact through Allied as against the Hays association.

The Reply to Yamins

Making the flat statement that "a monopoly admittedly exists," Myers said the extent of Allied's legislative efforts in Washington could best be judged by the "consternation in the other camp which now takes the form of dealing with its own henchmen."

Much of his impromptu comment has already been covered in Allied bulletins, part of the text of which has appeared from time to time, as released, in the columns of Motion Picture Daily.

Then came his reply to Yamins, his sharp difference of opinion as to Allied's approach on a possible solution of the issues facing its constituency. At this point Yamins was out of the room. He did not hear Myers' comment, yet, upon resuming the chairmanship of the convention, he proceeded to answer Myers as if he had been in the audience.

"I am in harmony with Myers," began Yamins. "I never meant a letdown in our activities. I am ready to carry on with A. F. Myers' ideas. This is no qualification of what I have said, but I hope the minds of the dis-

Palfreyman There

Cleveland, June 3.—There was no way of telling how many spotted him there, but on his feet and using a National Screen Accessories lobby display as a back rest, at the first business session of Allied's convention today was David Palfreyman, theatre contact for the Hays organization. Nobody molested him. Indeed, apparently, nobody paid any attention to him.

When George W. Weeks, general sales manager for G. B., started his talk, Palfreyman and his cigar stepped out, but not before he and Al Steffes exchanged a brief but friendly smile. It was friendly from a long distance view, at any rate.

Myers Pleads For Stronger Indie Groups

Cleveland, June 3.—Solidification of independents through well-knit organizations, free from "producer-subsidized" groups for the preservation of their rights keynoted the address of Abram F. Myers, general counsel, at the opening session of the three-day Allied convention here today.

Outlining eight principles which make up the Allied program, Myers said:

"1.—The independent exhibitors have made a major contribution to the growth and development of the motion picture industry and are deserving of as much consideration as any other branch of the industry.

"2.—Since their interests frequently conflict with those of producers, distributors and producer-affiliated theatres, the independent exhibitors must maintain purely independent trade associations for the protection of their interests.

"A Legitimate Business"

"3.—While the independent exhibitors are willing to cooperate with organizations representing other branches of the industry in matters of common concern, such cooperation must be rendered through organizations and leaders of their own choosing and not through producer-subsidized organizations and leaders.

"4.—The motion picture business is a legitimate business and its affairs should be so conducted as to inspire confidence within the industry and command the respect of the public.

"5.—Realization of the ideal of the previous paragraph calls for the observance of ethical business principles as distinguished from the use of shady political methods in both internal and public relationships.

"6.—The operation of theatres is properly the function and responsibility of exhibitors who live in and are intimately acquainted with the communities they serve, and these exhibitors should be left unmolested in all matters calling for the exercise of discretion as to what is best suited for the needs and desires of such communities.

Hits Block Booking

"7.—Chief among the trade practices which interfere with the rendering by exhibitors of the maximum of service to the public and tend to vest control of operating policy in persons remote from such communities are:

"(a) Compulsory block booking and blind selling.

"(b) Unreasonable protection and clearance.

"(c) Favoritism in leasing and delivering films to affiliated theatres.

"(d) Compulsory designation of dates.

"(e) Regulation of admission prices of subsequent-run independent theatres in favor of prior-run affiliated theatres.

"8.—Independent exhibitors are warranted in employing all necessary legal means to carry the foregoing principles into effect including campaigns of legislation and litigation and the setting up or encouraging of additional sources of supply.

"While the principles of Allied are unchanging and unchangeable," Myers added, "it is the province and duty of the great body of exhibitors who make up the association, directly and through their representatives, to translate those principles into definite programs of action.

"The greatest value derived from national conventions is the crystallization of exhibitor opinion for the advice and guidance of the officers and directors during the year. The bad feature is that too many exhibitors having expressed themselves in this fashion, call it a day and leave it to the national officers to carry on without further encouragement or suppor from them."

Viewing litigation and legislation as recourse for relief for the independent exhibitor, Myers stated that "experience teaches us that nothing can be gained by petitioning the Big Eigh for reforms or redress. The only hope for relief is in the direction of legislation and litigation." He added that no group can get very far in this business unless the public is on its side.

Taking It Straight

Cleveland, June 3.—Above the rostrum in the convention room where Allied holds forth at the Hollenden are three triangular-shaped frescoes with cherubs and graceful scrolls in the decorative design.

There are also Latin inscriptions. For instance, on the left is "Dum vivimus vivamus." On the right, "Appetitus, rationi, pareat."

But in the middle is the solitary word "Salve." In Latin, it means one thing. To the exhibitors here, it reads as it looks and means what it reads.

ment of such protection with Amer can companies with Lloyd's.

The plan, as learned by Motio Picture Daily, would provide fc a blanket policy to Allied nationall and sub-master policies to state affil ates. The idea is reputedly credite to Arthur K. Howard, business mar ager of the New England unit, wh today was named as one of a commi tee of three by the Allied board wit the duty as officially explained t check into liability insurance rate with a view to making them cheape His committee mates are Martin Smith, Ohio, and J. B. Clinton, Mi nesota.

The committee will submit its r port to the convention Friday. It understood Nathan Yamins, Abram Myers, Sidney Samuelson and H. Richey are familiar with the pr posal. There may be complicatio mitigating against national adoptio however. In Michigan, for instanc Richey has had a blanket insuran deal for members for a number years. He says it is working sati factorily and indicates without de nitely committing himself there wou be little reason to change.

tributors are big enough to recognize our side. I continue to hope for round table conferences not by compromise but through amicable means. Personally I am skeptical of the efficaciousness of legislation. It is a long and hard road. Personally, after the failure of any round table discussions I am for a short cut to Daniel Bertrand's suggestions for Federal regulation.

"With my investment I am ready for the protection which is guaranteed public utilities. So there is no misunderstanding, I want you to know we Allied leaders are all together. Eventually we always agree on the means. I doubt if the Neely and Pettengill Bills pass that they will do much good for us. Chain theatres can buy pictures individually as well as in blocks. I want no compromise, but I am for peaceful means."

Richey declared toward the end of the day the official registration tallied 589.

"How many exhibitors?" he was asked.

"I can't tell and you can break it down any way you like, but I'll bet there are 500," he replied.

At a late hour, Thursday's session appeared headed toward fireworks principally on the part of Steffes and Cole. Russell Hardy, P. S. Harrison, Daniel Bertrand and Eddie Golden are slated to talk. In the morning there will be a golf tournament at the Beechmont Country Club and committee meetings. In the evening will be a banquet. Tonight the social side concentrated at the Mayfair Casino, where Abe Lyman and his orchestra are playing.

Hardy Will Receive Allied's Complaints

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Complaints from exhibitors will receive full consideration, it was said today at the Dep't of Justice in response to inquiries regarding statements attributed to Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General, that he was going to the Allied convention to gather complaints on which to base future suits.

Officials of the department refused, however, to admit that the Government was planning a series of prosecutions against persons or companies in the industry, and would not comment on the report concerning the purpose of Hardy's attendance at Cleveland.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Counterfeit"

(Schulberg-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, June 3.—Tapping a subject which has had but little picture attention, this unreels as an interesting melodrama with authentic flavor.

Lloyd Nolan, head of a counterfeiting ring, snatches Claude Gillingwater, an expert engraver, from the Government printing bureau, and compels him to make a set of bogus plates. Chester Morris enters the scene as a Government agent, ingratiating himself with the gang when he supposedly kills two policemen while protecting Margot Grahame, Nolan's accomplice, and Marian Marsh, Miss Grahame's innocent sister. Firmly intrenched with the gang, Morris' problem is to find the plates and avoid directing suspicion to himself. When the Government net finally closes, Morris saves Miss Marsh, whom he loves, but is unable to protect Miss Grahame, who dies in the battle.

Erle C. Kenton's direction builds constant excitement and has the audience frequently worried over the safety of Morris. The cast members give excellent portrayals, with George McKay and John Gallaudet best in the support. The William Rankin story with the screen play by Rankin and Bruce Manning is an education in the working of Government departments and seems accurately drawn. The Schulberg production is class and the photography by John Stumar is effective.

As an unusual action entertainment the offering should give general satisfaction.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,062. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Yellow Cargo"

(Grand National)

HOLLYWOOD, June 3.—A new twist in a smuggling story gives value to the first of a series of eight starring Conrad Nagel as a Government uncover man.

Chinese are smuggled in from an island off California by a gang masquerading as an independent movie company. Extras in Chinese makeup are shipped to the location and replaced by real orientals on the return trip. Nagel poses as an actor and runs down the gang with the aid of Eleanor Hunt, a persistent reporter, and Vince Barnett, a dumb news photographer. Jack LaRue plays the chief menace and Claudia Dell, Henry Strange, John Ivans, Vance Carroll and Lillian Messner carry the chief support under the direction of Crane Wilbur, who also supplied the fast-moving story and screen play.

George Hirliman, the producer, has made an excellent film in the low budget class.

The entire cast makes a smart showing and the film should build interest for the rest of the series. Emphasize the new angle in a smuggling melodrama.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Sunday Circus Bill Is Defeated in K. C.

KANSAS CITY, June 3.—The City Council has unanimously voted against an amendment to a city ordinance which would have permitted the Sunday showing of circuses, carnivals, medicine shows and the like. Ten days ago independent, circuit and first run theatre men appeared against the proposed amendment.

Exhibitors pointed out that as high as 40 per cent of their week's business is done on Sunday, and that whenever they play against circus or carnival competition, grosses suffer by as much as 40 to 50 per cent.

THEY'RE OFF!

This issue of Motion Picture Herald recording the simultaneous product announcements for the 1936-37 season from four great corporations presents a merchandise situation without precedent in the annals of the industry. Never before in a single week, in fact, by reason of the Herald's unified account, in a single day, has the production-distribution machine launched upon the market so vast an array of features at once, a total of 259.

The season now drawing to a close has been very much a sellers' market. Despite a flow of the best product that the screen has ever achieved, by reason of competitive exhibition situations, double billing and distribution methods calculated to swiftly cover the markets, the theatres have been picture hungry. The working life of pictures is now measured in weeks as compared with months in product circulation of an earlier day.

The tremendously accelerated rate of communication and the vehicles of fame, and publicity, by radio, by wire photo, extended press syndication, air transport, intensifies the motion picture merchandising reaction and shortens its duration. What was once a glow of success that swept across the land like the dawn has now become relatively a meteoric explosion.

Things are happening to Time. The speed-up is evidenced everywhere and in every operation, every device. Ordinary stock passenger cars do a hundred miles an hour. The biggest ships ever built can steam at forty miles an hour. A new target rifle, a mere 22 calibre, delivers the unbelievable velocity of 4,000 feet a second. New York to Hollywood 'phone service is as fast as from Times Square to Wall Street. Streamline trains are cutting days off the coast-to-coast traffic. Passenger planes are doing 200 miles an hour, and the airlines are talking about 300 as not very far off.

So the prospect that motion picture merchandising is becoming a more intensified, more rapid process, is only token of a generally accelerated tempo.

This year the exhibitor gets the product story substantially all at once, all of it in less than a month. This abrupt and sudden tide of promised product tends, for the moment at least, to create a buyers' market. Selling must be more competitive, trading more hectic.

One of the curious effects now manifest, however, is that much of the selling now under way partakes of the oldest of program methods, but with new, usually implied, elements of elasticity and adjustment.

And despite the large array of formal presentations of programs set and outlined, there is indication that the product of the coming season will be found to be adjusting itself more rapidly and precisely to developments, trends, discoveries, than ever before.

Will Seek Federal and State Laws to Bar Present Setup

By RED KANN

CLEVELAND, June 4.—Allied today by a unanimous resolution voted to embark on a legal campaign to divorce large production and distribution interests from exhibition and appointed a committee composed of W. A. Steffes, Minnesota; Sidney Samuelson, New Jersey, and Harry A. Cole, Texas, to work with Nathan Yamins, president, and Abram F. Myers, general counsel, toward this end.

"The general counsel is further authorized and directed to prepare drafts of bills for introduction into Congress and state legislatures having for their purpose the complete disassociation of the functions of production and distribution on the one hand and exhibition on the other," read the resolution.

Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General, who prosecuted the St. Louis case, earlier had told the convention nothing in the present law could compel producers to divorce themselves from exhibition, but new legislation could make that possible.

A summation of production performance prepared by P. S. Harrison, an address by Hardy, another by Daniel Bertrand, a vitriolic attack on Will H. Hays by Al Steffes and preliminary discussion and passage of resolutions comprised the second day's session at the Hollenden.

Harrison's analysis was read by H. M. Richey, who, together with Fred Herrington, threw many words of praise in the author's direction. The approximate 300 in attendance appeared considerably interested. On the basis of exhibitor questionnaires on technical points. G. C. Schaefer talked on exchange operation, while Edward Finney discussed the elaborate plans for press books, larger advertising campaigns and exploitation.

Joe Cooper, exploiteer from Seattle, spoke on individual exchange exploitation policy and suggested that the plan be adopted generally. William Saal gave the men a resume on exploitation and "Frankie and Johnnie."

The afternoon session was highlighted by an address by Nat Levine, production head, who said: "This is the biggest day in my life. I appreciate the opportunity that is mine to be your producer and you can be assured we will deliver pictures you will be proud to distribute.

"We have 17 stories in preparation today, two pictures shooting, and six to eight of the new season's product will be in exchanges by Sept. 1.

"Our production staff is hitting on high. We have everything we need, studio personnel and finances. We have been spending more on production than distributors have been bringing in, but our prospects are most excellent and our finance people have confidence in us.

In "Major" Class

"We are no longer considered an independent company. Our facilities and work are of major calibre. We have 21 players under contract and in the last 10 days we signed Olsen and Johnson, Eddie Quillan and Chic Sale. We have 42 on the writing staff, mostly on long term contracts."

Levine then went into detail on the new lineup, predicting that the biggest picture will be "Follow Your Heart" with Marion Talley and Michael Bartlett. It will be ready for delivery Aug. 1. Shooting starts next week. The address was enthusiastically received.

Siegel Talks on Production

M. J. Siegel, executive at the coast studio, spoke about the work of the production forces. Before the conclusion of today's session, a general discussion was held in which branch managers and salesmen considered methods of selling the program outlined by Levine.

The foreign market will be under consideration during the morning session tomorrow. Norton Ritchey, foreign department head, will discuss "Republic in the World Market." L. E. Kalker, Republic representative in Great Britain, will talk on company activity in his territory, and Sam Smith, managing director of British Lion, which has just completed a distribution deal with Republic, will follow Kalker. Both came to this country expressly to attend the convention.

A talk by Herman Gluckman, head of the New York and Pennsylvania exchanges, and a screening of "Hearts in Bondage," recently completed, will complete the morning session.

H. J. Yates also is taking an active part in the meetings.

Williams Covers Ground

HOLLYWOOD, June 4.—Guinn Williams is working in Republic's "The Vigilantes Are Coming" at Kernville, but he drove 200 miles Monday afternoon in order to play a part in the stage production "Bury the Dead" at the Belasco, returning the same night to Kernville. A substitute will take Williams' part in the stage show until next week when he will be finished in the film and will return to his stage role.

Newsreels were issued yesterday without trouble. The Eclair Journal was printed in Belgium. Fox Movietone and Paramount News are releasing.

A machinists' strike closed the 6,000-seat Gaumont Palace after the electricity had been cut. The manager and office staff are being kept in the theatre by the strikers. Spread of the strike to projectionists and ushers is feared on the Gaumont and Pathe circuits.

Theatre business is off everywhere. Newspapers are still being published, but spread of the shutdown is expected by bus and subway companies.

cost of making prints. The testimony brought out that the company spent $25,769 on nine films in 1926, and thereafter produced from three to nine a year, 1935 operations costing $33,119.

Associated companies in the past six years have spent $309,386 on pictures, including the production efforts of individual companies. Hamilton was questioned exhaustively by Samuel Becker, special commission counsel, on the methods employed by the company to get the films shown in theatres. Hamilton defended the films as showing telephone industry problems and acquainting the public with various phases of the activity, while Becker charged they were subtle and potent propaganda.

With the examination of Hamilton, Becker brought to a close the inquiry into the film activities of A. T. & T. for the present, postponing the investigation of the Erpi situation until next September.

theatre leases brought by the corporations against the Greater New York Vaudeville Theatre Corp., an RKO subsidiary. Steuer's client refused to pay the fee, stating that it was out of proportion with a judgment of only $45,000 which he obtained for them in their case.

Steuer contended that the $45,000 judgment was inconsequential because his services actually compelled the defendant in the suit to fulfill a contract amounting to $2,340,000 with his client.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hearts Divided"

(Cosmopolitan-First National)

Hollywood, June 4.—Frank Borzage, producer and director, has here taken the story of the Louisiana purchase and etched a cameo-like picture of considerable charm. Napoleon, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and other celebrities of the time pass on the screen, attracting greater interest than the central characters, though they are all incidental to the plot, with the exception of Napoleon—superbly played by Claude Rains.

Specifically, the story concerns the Patterson family of Baltimore. Henry Stephenson is the father, Marion Davies the daughter and Clara Blandick a spinster aunt. Stephenson, a leading figure in the movement for the purchase of Louisiana, is to act as host to Jerome Bonaparte, played by Dick Powell, special emissary of his brother, the Emperor of France. Powell, a playboy at heart, arrives incognito, wins Miss Davies in the guise of a tutor and takes her to France, where his identity is revealed. The Emperor convinces the girl that for reasons of state she should give up Powell. Heartbroken, she returns to America, but is followed soon thereafter by Powell and reunited for a happy finish.

The script by Laird Doyle and Casey Robinson from the Rida Johnson Young play introduces three comedy characters played by Charles Ruggles, Edward Everett Horton and Arthur Treacher, who, as rival Davies suitors, score repeated laughs, climaxing their work with a mock duel which is the picture's comedy highlight. The lavishness of the production may be judged from the fact that Hattie McDaniels, a sterling actress, appears only in a brief flash with other parts filled by such capable players as Halliwell Hobbes, Etienne Giradot and Beulah Bondi in small roles. Warren and Dubin contribute one musical number which, with two spiritual songs by the Hall Johnson Choir, is most effective. The picture is well up to the Davies standard.

Production Code Seal, No. 1,916. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Stories Determine Costs, Says Warner

Hollywood, June 4.—"Story value is the only legitimate excuse for extra budget expenditures on pictures," declared Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production for Warners, today.

His remarks were made in explanation of Warners' policy of never announcing a "million dollar picture."

"No picture budget can be intelligently set until the story has been settled upon, a screen treatment written, or at least tentatively adopted, and a preliminary study of the required cast and sets made. Story value is the only legitimate excuse for extra-budget pictures. We know that expense is not necessarily the vital thing behind a great screen success."

Maxwell Arnow a Dad

Hollywood, June 4.—Maxwell Arnow, Warners casting director, is the father of a nine pound boy. The boy was born at Cedars of Lebanon hospital. Mother and son are reported doing well.

Harry Joe Brown Busy

Hollywood, June 4.—Harry Joe Brown is back from his vacation in New York and preparing the following eight pictures on his coming schedule at Warners: "Panama Canal," "Mistress of Fashion," "The Sea Hawk," "The Head of the House of Coombe," "And It All Came True," "Another Dawn," "The Making of O'Malley," "The Changeling."

Harry Rosenquest, formerly assistant Vitaphone sales manager and recently made short subjects booker for Warner theatres, still loves the distributors, despite the fact that he is now an exhibitor. He meets with the boys every evening.

Morin Named Manager

Pittsburgh, June 4.—John Morin has been named manager of the Palace, which reverted to the Harris Amusement Co. last week after five years as a Warner house. Morin's former post as relief manager for the Harris circuit has been assigned to Ken Kenfield, who has been managing Duquesne Garden, a sports arena, for Harris, Charles Murray has resigned as assistant manager of the Warner, and has been replaced by Pat Nattarro, chief of service at the house.

Producer and Theatre Split Allied's Aim

Harrison's findings drew the conclusion that despite the statements of distributors that they operated under one national sales policy, this was not backed by facts. Breaking down the returns in a company-by-company report, he asserted that some exhibitors had bought shorts without features, or features without newsreels; that designated playing time was not always insisted upon; that some did and others did not pay score charges; that some theatremen had been successful in buying all the product of some companies flat.

It further stated that 70 per cent of the distributors had delivered what they promised, and 80 per cent had promised to deliver what they had sold, and that of the 367 pictures representing the majors, only 12 released so far fell into the classification of good box-office.

Myers Introduces Hardy

Hardy, introduced by Myers "with pride and pleasure" and as "my friend and very able colleague of many years," spoke for 43 minutes. He reviewed the St. Louis actions and, at large, dwelt upon the philosophy of the law as it might bear upon anti-trust activities and protection for minorities under those Federal statutes. The highlights of his address included these points:

1—That since his arrival in Cleveland he was more thoroughly impressed that the most important problem facing exhibitors was their inability to obtain a supply of product.

2—That the Government had scored a victory in the St. Louis situation because by the settlement it reached in New York F. & M. was assured of product for a period of years.

3—That the settlement of the case had prevented Warners, Paramount and RKO from using more coercive methods to injure F. & M. and, by implication, other exhibitors, as well.

4—That those who criticized Government interference on the ground that Washington was meddling and that St. Louis represented a situation to be handled privately by the parties involved, overlooked the function of the anti-trust laws.

He added that the defendants' assets outpowered F. & M. 3,000 to one, and that the cost of the injunction bond alone would have been costly enough to F. & M. to make private prosecution impossible. Hardy quoted defense counsel as having described the three distributors as "an irresistible economic force" and added that former Judge Thomas D. Thacher, as counsel for one of them, had described the three as "consolidated by combination."

The Dep't. of Justice official said the three companies controlled 1,900 theatres and 50 per cent of the product, and that they used each other's pictures, which were the backbone of the industry. He appeared concerned over "the ease by which they may conspire."

"It is easy for them," he said, referring to the eight major companies, "to make whatever arrangements about regulating the industry they may wish to make. They can well nigh overcome any factor unless the prestige and long arm of the Government is interposed to protect others from oppression."

He said that distributors entering into competition with their own customers was not unlawful, and producers under existing statutes cannot be prevented from entering exhibition. He cited railroads, oil and the packing industries as enterprises which

Just Golfers

Cleveland, June 4.—Friendly enemies become brothers under the skin when they reach the golf links. Interesting this morning was the foursome at Beechmont with David Palfreyman as Nathan Yamins' partner opposing Edward Ansin and Arthur K. Howard of Massachusetts. Yamins was admittedly off his game, but Palfreyman was not. They won, but not before the Allied president readily admitted Palfreyman was chiefly responsible.

From the Corridor Reporter

Cleveland, June 4.—The demand on exhibit space went beyond the space itself. Somewhere in the melee, the allotment for National Screen Accesories, latest off-shoot of National Screen Service in association with the American Display Corp., became slightly mixed. The result: more sample lobby than space. Morton Van Praag, coming down from Chicago, saw no reason why he couldn't have his exhibit set up in a corner of the convention room itself. It was done, one on the left as the delegates enter and a second on the right, also as they enter. Both are extremely effective.

"What can I do?" complained Moe Horwitz, Cleveland independent, who has been in general charge of the Allied work on home ground. "Possession is nine tenths—or is it points?—of the law."

Among the earliest arrivals were George Dembow, Ben Rosenberg and Chick Lewis. Herman Robbins arrived this morning from New York.

Jack Jossey and Nat Lefton had time to shake a few visiting exhibitor hands and left this afternoon for Republic's own convention in Chicago.

Fred Herrington, long business manager of the M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania which is an Allied affiliate despite its Kuykendall-like name, is here, of course, and slightly more on the paunchier side than in other years and at other conventions.

Abram F. Myers, who has done some flying in his time, was impressed with the speed of his trip here from Washington. The running schedule was two hours and a half, comparing with 12 hours by rail. It's the winding in and out of those Alleghanies that consumes the time.

Col. Harry A. Cole, president of Allied of Texas and a regional vice-president of national Allied, drove up from Dallas, as usual. This time he was accompanied by B. Legg, operator of the Superba, Dennison, and Homer Mulkey, whose house is the Pastime at Clarendon. Beef-eaters, all, they developed a hankering for a chicken dinner on the way. Like little Audrey, they tried and tried and tried without luck until they hit Springfield, O., Monday afternoon. Successful in locating their chicken dinner, they wished they had not. It was pediculous.

RCA Photophone, in keeping with its custom, has a delegation here and will demonstrate new horns and soundheads during the convention. The familiar Ed Auger, smiling and handclasping again, is very much around. James Mullin is another representing the sales department. The demonstrations will be handled by Russell Stier, Mike Yahr and M. Benham, all engineering men from Camden, N. J.

The open door policy started early enough. George Dembow, Van Praag and Ben Rosenberg, acting as hosts for National Screen, gave a cocktail party for all comers Monday evening. Present were H. A. Cole, B Legg, Homer Mulkey, Nat Barach, George Batcheller, Maury Cohen, Eddie Golden, H. M. Richey and others.

Barach is the local representative for National Screen which, incidentally, seems to be strolling through these notes with considerable frequency. He is an old-timer and dates to the days when Bill Fox had organized the Box-Office Attractions Corp. Sam Dembow, Nat Spitzer and Barach were among the selling crew in the field closing state right contracts when Fox determined to open his own exchanges. Again this trio hit the rails. Barach also was district manager for Warners in this area for five years.

Mrs. Pete Wood joined her husband today from Columbus and Mrs. Henderson M. Richey hers from Detroit.

While Jack is at the Republic convention in Chicago, Mrs. Jossey is a member of the committee appointed to entertain the women attending the Allied powwow here.

Harry Long, Loew district manager, is on vacation in Washington. The courtesy of the Loew houses, like all others here, has been extended to the visitors.

Richey has devised a neat gadget for the conventioneers. It is a combination plate for the name of delegates, attached to a key chain which carries a second plate giving its carrier the run of the city's first runs.

Parlor K is the dumping ground for grief. All complaints, squawks, et al, go there for distribution to their proper committees.

based upon definite recommendations that will remedy conditions in the company now subject to criticism."

At the same time the Congressman announced that investigators for the committee would keep "fully informed" as to any proposed plans or changes, adding that "many charges have been made that insiders of the company are wilfully and deliberately seeking to wreck it for the purpose of consummating a merger between Paramount and RKO." In addition, Murray Garsson, director of investigation for the committee, was ordered by Sabath to make a complete and thorough inquiry as to "who has grabbed the theatres in Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Louis and other cities."

In his wire to Sabath requesting postponement of the Paramount hearing Kennedy declared that "it is very evident to me from the investigation that I have just concluded for the company that a hearing at this time will confuse matters to a greater extent insofar as the bondholders and security holders are concerned. I, therefore, respectfully request that this hearing be postponed until at least after the stockholders' meeting."

"One of Finest Properties"

Kennedy referred to Paramount as "a company which I consider one of the finest properties in the motion picture industry," and said that he believed that "the sending of anonymous communications reflecting upon the purpose of the investigation by your committee is inspired by persons wishing to unnecessarily complicate the Paramount situation further. I am very anxious," Kennedy concluded, "to cooperate with your committee and I am endeavoring to do a constructive job for the ultimate good of the security holders, which I know is your viewpoint, too, and that purpose would best be served by adjourning this matter with an opportunity to work out their problem."

Numerous other requests that the investigation be held in abeyance have also been received, Sabath disclosed in suspending the hearing.

"While at this time we have decided to postpone hearings to afford the company's officials an opportunity to show that they actually desire to protect the interests of stockholders and bondholders," Sabath said, "the committee has received hundreds of appeals for a thorough investigation, not only of Paramount's present activities but also as to any proposed merger or reorganization."

Spending Road To Prosperity, Warner States

Urges U. S. Business to Follow Film Example

America would be a lot further along the road to prosperity if business would loosen its purse strings and keep its expansion paced with that of the film industry, declared H. M. Warner at a luncheon preceding the closing of the Warner convention at the Ritz Towers yesterday.

"We've seen good times and bad, years of prosperity and depression, but somehow the nation always comes through," he asserted.

"Remembering that, we should not be short-sighted and magnify our problems. Instead, we should be planning for the future, making this a period of progress rather than of stagnation. A gamble now on the future of America is the best gamble in the world.

"We practice what we preach," he continued, in describing the expansion of the Warner-First National studio. "The company has just finished one

ALLIED TO SEEK $250,000 FUND

It's New, Anyway

Cleveland, June 5.—Abe Lichtman, Washington circuit operator, declares business is good in the Capital city, but would be better if it were not for one reason.

"What is it?"

"Over employment," was his answer.

"What do you mean?"

"Exactly that. So many people are employed by the Government and work so late they haven't the time to go to pictures. At the peak in '29, the Government payroll listed 62,000 in Washington. Today, it is 112,000."

Aims at a Legislative Fight Upon Circuits Of Distributors

By RED KANN

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Allied will seek a fund of $250,000—$100,000 to be collected within the next 21 days—with which to conduct a legislative campaign to drive producer-distributors from exhibition.

The move, sponsored by W. A. Steffes, Minnesota, admittedly was Allied's "last stand" in its fight for the rights of independents. Commitments totaling $45,000 were made by five state unit leaders, while other affiliates joined the band wagon without stipulating the amounts.

The fund, it was promised, would be set apart from Allied's national treasury, placed in the hands of James C. Ritter, Michigan, as treasurer and employed to purchase expensive legal talent. A resolution passed by the convention demanded the retirement of Will H. Hays as head of the organized industry by petitioning stockholders, trustees and creditors of the M. P. P. D. A. member companies to so act.

"Fighting Al" Steffes, who had attacked Hays on Thursday, led the movement.

It became apparent as adjournment neared that behind the move seeking the creation of a fund was the inspiration imparted in Assistant U. S. Attorney General Russell Hardy's speech on Thursday in which he observed that legislation aimed to separate production and distribution from exhibition was possible. A plea for money also came from Steffes who basked in the floodlights of the short and final session.

Referring to the passage of the reso-

RKO Wins Contract Suits in Brooklyn

RKO yesterday was victorious in its three breach of contract suits against Harry Pincus of the Monterey, Brooklyn, when Judge Richardson in Municipal Court awarded the distributor a total of $695. The exhibitor also was assessed costs.

Charles R. Rubin, attorney for the respondent, claimed that RKO broke the contract when it refused to furnish pictures because of two "n.g." checks outstanding. The lawyer also held that the distributor couldn't sue for future deliveries, but only for pictures played.

Louis Nizer, representing RKO, claimed an anticipatory breach and that suit could be brought on the entire pact. The court upheld Nizer on this point.

Magistrate Sylvester Sabbatino in Flatbush Court, Brooklyn, yesterday dismissed the lottery complaint against Century circuit's Patio after Mitchell Klupt of Hovell, McChesney, Clarkson & Klupt argued for the defense.

The theatre on Thursday night awarded $1,000 to a patron as a result of a contest held in 11 of the circuit's houses. Albert Meyers, manager; Evelyn Wood, cashier; Harry King, ticket taker, and Lester Fein, assistant manager, were arrested after the award was made.

Revelation, Powers To Work in Harmony

Revelation Pictures, Inc., which has been incorporated in Delaware to produce and distribute sponsored advertising films in association with British interests, will have a working agreement with Celebrity Prod., which is headed by P. A. Powers, it was stated by a representative of the latter yesterday.

Stanley S. Neal, managing director of Revelation Pictures of London, will be an officer of the American company and together the concerns will offer international circulation for sponsored films. Celebrity, which has already made two advertising pictures for the London company, will produce for the American company. Color and black and white cartoons will be supplied, as well as short subjects.

The company expects to be able to offer advertisers 5,000 theatre accounts by fall, it was said, although no tieup with an exhibitor organization is anticipated and the exhibition contracts are expected to be made individually. No sponsors have been signed yet, but a deal with the maker of a chemical product is near closing, it was said.

Legislation is expected to be an important topic of discussion at the meeting, in view of the probable special session of the legislature in July. It is anticipated that the grievance board plan will be continued. The board includes Frank Cassil, A. J. Simmons and Tom Edwards.

Liggett Is Awarded $33,000 by a Jury

After a four-day trial by jury, Justice Julius Miller in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday awarded Sonny Liggett, a salesman in the local Universal exchange, $33,000 for the death of his wife's parents at Jones Beach in 1932.

The suit was filed against the city because an employe was using an automobile of the Dock Department when the accident occurred. Corporation Counsel Bryan was assisted by Fred Wallstein in trying the case for the city, while Louis Nizer of Phillips & Nizer presented the plaintiff's side of the issue.

Republic Men Told List Is Raised to 68

Denmark, Panama, Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatamala, South America, British West Indies, Jamaica and Mexico.

L. E. Kalker, Republic representative in Great Britain, analyzed conditions there, saying British Lion is concentrating on distribution through their national organizations, with headquarters in leading cities in England and the British Empire.

Levine took the dais to highlight production values in the balance of the 1935-36 program now in production, taking in "Navy Born," which is being shipped to exchanges; "Ticket to Paradise," cutting on which will be completed in 10 days, he said; "A Gentleman from Louisiana," now before the cameras with Eddie Quillan, Chic Sales, Charlotte Henry and John Miljan under the direction of Irving Pichel and "Sitting in the Moon," which is being built along light musical comedy lines and will go into production shortly.

Other speakers included Herman Gluckman, who compared his Republic franchise to an insurance policy that was bound to increase in value as time went on. Arthur C. Bromberg of Atlanta foresaw a bright future for Republic. Carl Floyd of Florida gave a sales analysis on general conditions. Floyd St. John of California discussed what he described as the tremendous strides made by the company since its inception.

Addresses by Divisional Men

Oscar Hanson, Canadian distribution head, dwelt on the strength of the company based on the friendly cooperation among its franchise holders. Nat Lefton of Ohio gave an analysis of Republic's serials. Edward N. Schnitzer, eastern division manager, reviewed the company's progress during its first year. Claude Ezell of Texas emphasized the value to the company of its "partnership" organization, declaring that its success is founded upon the success of the individual franchise holder.

Walter Vincent, chairman of the board, forecast unusual possibilities for Republic and predicted that its new product would command increased first run playing time. E. H. Goldstein, vice-president, emphasized the solidarity of the organization which he said had been realized through linking closely the exchanges with the home office.

A special dinner in honor of Nat Levine was held at the Drake tonight and was attended by the entire delegation. H. J. Yates of Consolidated Film closed the convention with a talk in which he assured the meeting that financing of the company's new season program was on hand.

Group sales meetings will be held on Saturday before the delegates return to their respective cities.

Cast "Before the Mast"

Hollywood, June 5.—"Two Years Before the Mast" is now being cast at Republic. Bob Livingston, Kay Hughes and Ray Corrigan are the first to be assigned by Bert Clark.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Poppy"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 5.—A liberal serving of W. C. Fields' gag, situation and conversation comedy, this is leavened by a thread of youthful romance and serio-drama, mainly involving Rochelle Hudson. As produced by William LeBaron and directed by Edward Sutherland there is definite evidence of an effort to divide audience interest in the adventures of both.

Adapted from the play by Dorothy Donnelly in which Fields scored a number of years ago, the screen play is jerky as it concentrates on the comedy and romantic and dramatic highlights.

Landing in a small town, Fields, carnival grifter, indulges in his typical comedy antics as Miss Hudson meets and falls in love with Richard Cromwell, son of the mayor. In collusion with Lynne Overman, a hick lawyer, Fields advances his daughter as an heiress to a rich estate which Catherine Doucet, a jittery old maid, thinks she has in the bag. Complications arising when Overman double-crosses Fields cause the romance of Miss Hudson and Cromwell to threaten to go on the rocks and Fields to leave town. Kindly Maude Eburne, however, recognizes the resemblance between Miss Hudson and the deceased owner of the estate to foil the plot of Overman and Miss Doucet and to bring about a happy ending for Miss Hudson, Cromwell and Fields.

Up to the standard of his best appearances, Fields gives an amusing performance which should provoke much laughter. The affair of Miss Hudson and Cromwell, while not completely convincing, is given an air of realism by the sincere way in which they go about their work.

The Ralph Rainger-Leo Robin song, "A Rendezvous With a Dream," sung by Miss Hudson and a chorus, aids the romantic contrast considerably. Adequate characterizations are presented by Miss Doucet, Overman, Miss Eburne and Granville Bates.

As summertime amusement the picture should please those liking Fields' comedy, counterbalanced by romance and light drama.

budget will be increased to include big billboard campaigns on "The General Dies at Dawn" and "Texas Ranger." He also divulged plans for extensive newspaper advertising on a cooperative basis.

Analysis of sales policy is expected to be taken up tomorrow. Cecil B. DeMille and Frank Lloyd arrived from the coast today to sit in on the discussions. DeMille, speaking of the page in Motion Picture Herald on the Lux advertisement, said:

"I am surprised at this form of criticism. I have never done anything I felt was harmful to the industry. I feel that the advertising for pictures far exceeds any harm which such broadcasts may do. This news about pictures reaches millions and helps create more interest in them, resulting in a wider box-office appeal."

DeMille is much chagrined over the incident. He feels that he has been treated unjustly.

District managers are expected to set dates for regional meetings with local branch managers and salesmen as soon as they return to their headquarters.

It is expected that salesmen will be told to make as many two-year deals as possible. Several already have been closed with major and independent circuits.

Lloyd and Lew Smith left for New York on the Century today.

Allied Seeks $250,000 for Circuit Fight

lution favoring the divorce of production-exhibition from theatre operation he said, "If you men didn't mean it, I urge you to repeal that resolution before you go home. To do what you determined upon yesterday will cost more than this organization has had collectively in its treasury since its inception. We'll need $250,000, at least. Allied alone has not the facilities. It means the employment of outstanding legal talent.

"I don't know but it may mean a Congressional investigation of how producers got their theatres in the first place. Legislation also will have to be introduced in the 48 state legislatures as well. Unless we can raise $100,000 in the next 14 to 21 days, your committee recommends dropping the plan. It occurs to me this is the last stand. From contacts I made last night and this morning around the convention hall I am impressed that some want this job done. Benny Bergnernof, Minnesota, personally told me he will contribute $5,000. I'll contribute $1,000 and can guarantee a minimum of $10,000 from Minnesota. If there are any excess funds when the job is done, they will be returned to those who make the contributions."

Pledges from Many Sections

Sidney Samuelson, another member of Steffes committee, also urged the need for action and money, ending with a pledge of support of an unnamed amount from New Jersey. Martin G. Smith of the I. T. O. of Ohio pledged between $10,000 and $15,000. Harry A. Cole, Texas, guaranteed $5,000, including $1,000 from himself. Yamins whispered to Ritchie who announced $5,000 from New England.

Speaking for his own state, Richey added that $10,000 was not improbable from Michigan. "Western Pennsylvania will go along," declared William B. Davis. "So will Washington, D. C.," added Charles H. Olive. E. F. Maertz, Wisconsin, delivered his unit for an unspecified amount, while Ritter stated $1,000 he would donate would pay for his bond as guardian of the fund, describing what he characterized as the necessity for the campaign. Cole told of conditions in Texas in 1919. He explained there were no affiliated houses in his state. Two years later there were 11. By 1933, four chains had 187, while today, he added, 290 of Texas' 700 houses in operation were chain controlled.

The convention passed a resolution thanking Hardy for his talk and petitioning Attorney General Cummings in Washington to take action promptly where circumstances indicate independent exhibitors need relief from trade malpractices.

Insertion of political propaganda in films was condemned in another resolution, as was the appearance of stars in national broadcasts competing with theatre business. The delegates in still another resolution frowned upon percentage pictures and designated playdates and urged members to avoid buying films on such terms "where possible." The committees on good-will and Legion of Decency activities submitted no report and merely recommended continuation of Allied's policy of cooperating with public and social groups in furtherance of clean pictures. Clearance and zoning were held by that committee to be a local problem.

Abram F. Myers, before the final gavel fell, reviewed the three-day session and declared himself as having been impressed with the "amazing solidarity and strength" shown. He urged members not to rest on trade paper headlines, but cautioned that the course plotted here must be carried on. He also intimated little action may be expected in the next couple of months because legislatures generally are not meeting and many courts are about to embark on their summer vacations.

As predicted, Allied voted for the national insurance plan developed with Lloyd's of London by Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors of New England, Inc.

Eddie Golden, sales manager for Chesterfield and Invincible, spoke on the playdate tieup with Allied and declared he viewed the potentialities of the deal as perhaps auguring the creation of a new major company.

James Caffrey of the Federal Housing Administration explained how exhibitors might arrange for loans from the Government, declaring that this was possible on anything which became real estate. He embraced in these classifications air conditioning and other types of equipment.

Dedicated to the memory of Frank J. Rembusch and the work he had done on behalf of the independent exhibitor was a resolution sponsored by R. R. Blair.

The chair expressed thanks to National Screen for its sympathy and cooperation, the bows for which were accepted by Morton Van Praag.

Allied's 1937 convention city was not designated, but will be determined by the board in January. Chicago already has entered its bid.

Late afternoon and early evening planes and trains were heavily booked with the departing delegations.

Lichtman Looks to N. C.

CLEVELAND, June 5.—With one theatre at Rocky Mount, N. C., as a jumping off place, A. E. Lichtman, Washington exhibitor, is carefully scanning North Carolina as a field for expansion. He has just taken over the Jefferson, at Newport News, Va.

expansion program and is starting on another. We have just finished five gigantic sound stages, a craft building that covers five acres, a new property building, truck sheds, scene docks, 20 acres of permanent street sets and smaller structures. We have also purchased a 500-acre tract near Calabassas, Cal.

"We have approved and given orders for a five-story office building, a new laboratory for developing film, a tremendous sound stage inside which will be a theatre seating 1,000 persons, new film vaults, projection and cutting rooms and 22 additional dressing rooms. Also, we shall re-build a sound stage and lift its roof from 40 to 90 feet."

Business judgment plus an absolute faith in the future led to the decision for the expansion program, Warner explained.

"We studied our problem, and learned that we could make better pictures, improve their entertainment value and work more efficiently with the added facilities," he said. "It was a business decision pure and simple."

The motion picture has assumed a new and important social and educational significance, he said.

"We could not have developed and grown without that occurring," he said. "It was an inevitable step, and one that we welcomed.

"We hear much talk today of the need for better international understanding, that it will lessen the chances for war, will make for increased trade. That undoubtedly is true. And, is there any better medium to accomplish this understanding than through the motion picture? I know of none.

"When we were children, all we knew about the people and life in other lands was what we got from our school books. We did not really know these people. They seemed too remote, too far away to permit of genuine understanding.

"But the child of today, through the motion picture, actually sees the people of other lands, what they look like, how they live. He knows them almost as well as his fellows, as the boy down the block. This, it seems to me, is the greatest possible spur to international understanding.

An afternoon session following the luncheon closed the three-day convention.

The convention delegates return today to their territories, where they will hold individual meetings with their sales forces on the Warner lineup for the forthcoming season.

The Eastern and Canadian district and branch managers who leave today are: Robert Smeltzer, Eastern district manager, with headquarters in Washington, and branch managers Ray S. Smith of Albany; Thomas B. Spry of Boston; Harry A. Seed of Buffalo; Nat Furst of New Haven; W. G. Mansell of Philadelphia; Charles Rich of Pittsburgh; Fred E. North, central district manager, with headquarters in Detroit, and branch managers Al Shmitken of Cincinnati; M. Mooney of Cleveland; Oscar Kuschner of Indianapolis; R. H. Haines, metropolitan district manager, and branch managers Harry Decker of New York and Brooklyn; and Harry Hummell of New Jersey; H. O. Paynter, Canadian district manager with headquarters in Toronto, and branch managers L. Geller of Calgary; M. J. Isman of Montreal; L. McKenzie of St. John; J. Plottel of Vancouver; W. Cohen of Winnipeg.

The Western and Southern sales convention will be held June 15 to 17, inclusive, at the Blackstone, Chicago, with Gradwell L. Sears, western and southern sales manager, presiding.

LONDON, May 28.—C. B. Cochran has signed with Max Schach of Capitol to produce a Technicolor feature, under the direction of Walter Forde, at Denham in the fall. General Film Distributors will release the film, which will be a revue, featuring old and new vaudeville stars.

M-G-M Not to Sell Star Units Next Season

Thirty of 44 to Be Big Features, Force Told

M-G-M will not sell next season's lineup in star series, as heretofore, it is learned. Salesmen will concentrate on the 44-52 figures rather than stress players tentatively listed, assuring exhibitors that of the minimum number of 44 there will be at least 30 big pictures.

For smaller circuits and individual theatre owners, the company is understood to have a policy whereby sales forces will ask a minimum of four pictures at 40 per cent. The next 12 will be sold on a flat rental, the figures to be based on the percentages received for the four 35 per cent features on this season's schedule. The next 14 pictures will be scaled at 70 per cent of the flat rental asked for the previous 12, it is said.

The balance of 14-22 will be subject to negotiations on a rental said to be along the lines of prices paid for

Talk Increases in Cincinnati Prices

Cincinnati, June 7.—According to reports current here, a price advance in neighborhood and suburban houses is due in the early fall, if not now.

"Prices in all other lines have advanced, and in many cases there have been sizable wage increases, so why shouldn't admissions be revised upward, at least by a small amount," an exhibitor spokesman is quoted as saying. In the majority of cases suburban houses, particularly in the outlying districts, are operating only in the evenings. Matinees, except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, have proved unprofitable. However, many suburban houses are being remodeled or improved in anticipation of a pickup in business based on better business conditions generally.

Agnew Ends Sales Meet of Paramount

Chicago, June 7.—Paramount sales executives closed their conference at the Edgewater Beach Hotel here yesterday with a company message from Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, and an outline by Cecil B. De Mille of his production plans for the new season.

Agnew completed a review of the product planned for next year and answered sales policy queries by the district managers. Agnew said he felt Paramount had a better lineup for next season than the company had had in years and that with the studio organization rapidly being strengthened the sales force could be confident of deliveries which matched the plans for the new season.

Discussing his plans for "The Plainsman," De Mille said shooting on the picture, which will star Gary Cooper, with Jean Arthur and George Bancroft, would start July 15. He said it was being planned on "super-special" lines.

Meeting Thursday on Sale of Film Rights

Contract committees of the Dramatists' Guild and the League of N. Y. Theatres will meet Thursday to work out rules for the sale of film rights to plays.

Film companies, led by M-G-M and Warners, assert that unless the rules which are drafted are made a part of the new contract just entered into by the dramatists and producing managers, no financial backing for new season stage plays will be forthcoming from them. The dramatists contend that the selling rules should be flexible and in a form to permit revision in accordance with possible changes in production conditions, which would be impossible if the rules were made a part of the new five-year contract.

Warners have already made arrangements for financing two productions by George Abbot and the production of "White Horse Inn" for next season.

Wide Changes In RCA's New 20th-Fox Pact

Free Installation and Parts; Fees Cut

Wide departures from the terms of sound recording licensing agreements in use heretofore are contained in a new 10-year agreement which RCA Photophone has just closed with Twentieth Century-Fox.

Outstanding innovations in the new contract, which constitutes the first extension of RCA service within major studio ranks in years, include free installation and wiring and the furnishing of spare and renewal parts without charge, a single fee for a picture recorded in this country and distributed throughout the world, no additional charge for the recording of trailers or for "dubbing" of sound in this country and the establishment of a charge of 50 per cent of the domestic recording fee for original foreign language versions made here.

Supply Group Hears Reports, Addresses

CHICAGO, June 7.—Reports from various committees today featured the convention of Independent Theatres Supply Dealers Ass'n. as it neared its close. The four-day session will wind up tomorrow.

Addresses by E. A. Williford of National Carbon Co., S. M. Zinner, Capt. John W. Gorby on "Standardization, Quality and the Value of a Testing Bureau," J. B. Kleckner on "Should the Independent Theatre Supply Dealer Remain in the Commercial Banking Business," highlighted Saturday's sessions.

A bigger attendance had been anticipated, but the Allied convention in Cleveland, which conflicted with the opening of the Supply Dealers' meeting, had an effect on the attendance.

Lloyd in New Para. Deal

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—Harold Lloyd yesterday signed an independent producing and releasing contract with Paramount for more than one picture annually, the exact number not being revealed.

Paramount also signed Fanchon to a long term contract to advise William LeBaron on the production of musicals. The contract provides for a producing post later.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

En Route to New York

IT was alright. Many of the boys wanted to get away from home anyway and this convention, like all the others whose spots have not changed down the years, offered the opportunity. Not only that. Railroad fares were down, allowing exhibitors to ride in and out of Cleveland in drawing rooms and bedrooms at so little money, relatively, that it became a cinch and practically no expense to travel in the style usually associated with plutocratic producers and distributors.

At five bucks, all inclusive, there was food. There was a party at a night club called the Mayfair Casino. There was a golf tournament. And a banquet with entertainment furnished by the affiliated chains Allied is always death on. The Vogue Room and the bar at the Hollenden did a right smart gross. The burleycue show around the corner did only a fairish business, but Wimpy's hamburger joint along about two and later each morning could have hung out the S.R.O. sign if the management owned one. Between the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Exide battery boys and the advance crowd of Republicans trying to go enthusiastic over Landon, it was sometimes hard to tell which convention was doing what. . . .

But business was transacted. Of course, after all these years, it is our own idea that Messrs. Myers, Yamins, Steffes, Richey, Samuelson, Cole and others of that limited group which fashions Allied's bullets ought to be slightly shame-faced and certainly should have done better by their constituency than reviving such old chestnuts for campaign issues and organizational ballyhoo. We propose taking you back over some of the ground for whatever fun we may have overlooked as the day-by-day dispatches were hurried over the wires. . . .

Chestnut Number One—Producer-distributor aggression in the theatre field must cease forthwith and even faster. We'll let the formal resolution have its say and then we'll pick up:

> WHEREAS, the operation of theatres by the producers and distributors tends directly toward monopoly, results in unfair practices and restraint of trade bringing about inevitably the complete destruction of independent theatres, deprives the public of freedom of choice on the matter of motion picture entertainment and is otherwise contrary to the public interests
> First—That Allied States Association embark on a campaign of vigorous action, employing all legal means at its disposal to retard and prevent the further expansion of the affiliated chains and to enjoin and restrain the unfair and oppressive methods by which they are enlarging and extending their monopoly.
> Second—That in carrying out this mandate the general counsel and the president of Allied, with the advice and consent of the special committee of three, is authorized and directed to cooperate with and assist independent exhibitors belonging to regional units of Allied in the institution and prosecution to final judgment such numbers of cases as may be necessary to obtain a judicial determination of the legal rights of such independents under existing laws in their struggle to remain in business.
> Third—That the general counsel is further authorized and directed to prepare suitable drafts of bills for introduction into the Federal Congress and the legislatures of the states having for their purpose the complete disassociation of the functions of production and distribution of motion pictures on the one hand and the exhibition of such pictures on the other with the recommendation that independent exhibitors, individually and through their association, strive for the enactment of such legislation.

There is a reason or two around to support the impression that Myers had a slant on the text of Russell Hardy's address. When the latter, who told us, but not the convention, that he was uncovering his personal views, declared he believed legislation divorcing production and distribution from exhibition was possible, although admittedly not illegal under present statutes, there followed the above resolution. It all dovetailed very neatly as was designed. The resolution marked the highlight of Thursday's session, made the headlines in the trade press which it was expected to make and got some of the Allied boys slightly steamed. That's how successful conventions are made. After eighteen years of 'em, we admit to the designation of expert. . . .

Everyone seemed perfectly willing to take it for granted that producers could be made to kiss their theatres goodbye. Nobody seemed interested enough to ask what the producers might think of the suggestion. Nowhere did we run across anyone who could or would deny the right of a manufacturer to enter the retail end of his own industry. You know, like Standard, Shell and the oil companies; Johnson and Murphy shoes, et al. . . .

Chestnut Number Two—The blasts and the tirades against Will Hays. That one came straight from the archives, as thoroughly dusty as all of the fake Napoleon brandy on the market. The stockholders, creditors and trustees of Hays-member companies are to be petitioned to give Hays his pink slip, or whatever color slip they use over on West 44th St. Nobody stopped to inquire how Allied would go about learning who the stockholders of Warners, Metro, Paramount, RKO, etc., were. The important holdings are on file with the S. E. C. in Washington, of course, but those blocks of securities are in the hands of the interests and the individuals who gave Hays his new five year contract some months back, well satisfied with his administration and the job he is turning out. . . .

But, we repeat, it was alright if you keep the objectives in mind. The cheers which greeted the Hays resolution tied in with the excitement of chain oppression and aggression. That, in turn, filled in the background for Al Steffes and his "war chest" drive. We have a respect for Al's technique. Either he has made a study of mob psychology or inherently understands what makes it tick. There were the Allied stalwarts, naturally, ready to back him up. For Minnesota, Steffes pledged a minimum of $10,000 toward the ultimate $250,000; Sid Samuelson harangued the boys into further action. Harry Cole had to look in his bankbook, said he, before taking the road to Cleveland, but he'd give $1,000 if he had to borrow it. Ohio, it developed, was good for $10,000; by stretching a point, perhaps $15,000. Benny Berger, just a small exhibitor from Minnesota, promised $5,000. Steffes said so. The tally ended at $45,000, arrived at almost as quickly as you can read this. We thought it was pretty good for a crowd of small exhibitors who didn't know where the next filet mignon was coming from. . . .

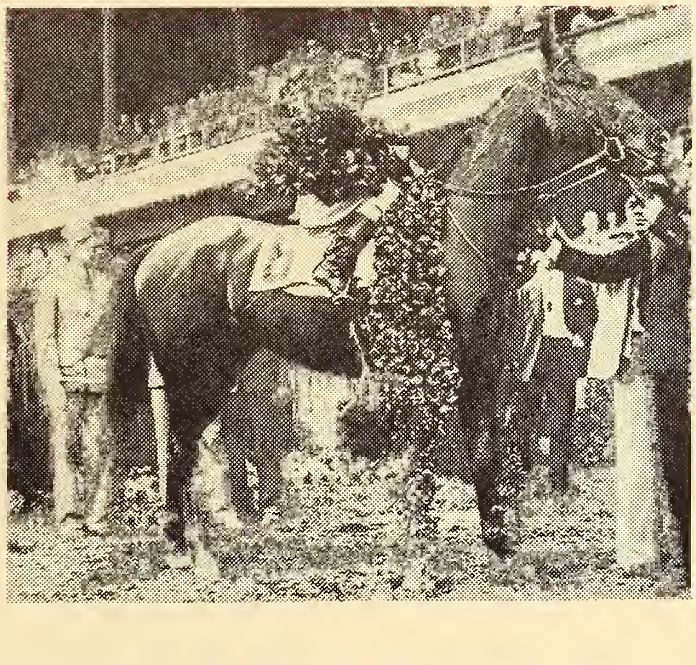
BOLD VENTURE

WINS!



It was a dark horse–but! . . . .

DARINGLY DIFFERENT TYPE OF SCREEN ATTRACTION SALUTED WITH THE GREATEST REVIEWS IN THE HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE PRESS!

"'The Green Pastures' is something new under the motion picture sun! It has had no predecessor; nothing heretofore produced is even vaguely similar. Sure to make a deep impression upon audiences, it looms as a valuable contribution in the progress of screen production. It is a tribute to brainy, intelligent craftsmanship," declares Motion Picture Daily. "To describe the utter charm of 'The Green Pastures' makes a review sound like some Warner publicity. And a week after 'Anthony Adverse' from the same lot, it sets an example difficult for any studio to follow! In every department it may be regarded as flawless. Undoubtedly one of the outstanding films of the decade!"-Douglas Churchill's syndicated review. "One of the screen's truly great dramatic recordings is Warners' production of 'The Green Pastures'. It will feed the pride of producers, directors, players and all who had a big or little share in the film translation. It will amply feed the tills of exhibitors in city and hamlet the world around, wherever folk can be moved by simple, majestic drama and beauty. Primarily it is mass entertainment—and should have a long, prosperous life on merit and novelty which will be widely broadcast", writes Variety Daily. Louella Parsons, popular motion picture columnist, calls this "One of the grandest pictures ever made!" "Marvelous—there never was a better or finer picture made!" agrees Harry Neimeyer of St. Louis Post-Dispatch. "It's a pip — most refreshing picture I've ever seen!" raves Dorothy Manners of Photoplay. "A magnificent motion picture!" says Literary Digest. And Jack Moffitt of the Kansas City Star names it "the greatest picture to come out of Hollywood"! "Laughter from the heart was the perfect tribute. Surely this is the most beautiful triumph of the screen for years to come!"—Richard Sheridan Ames of Chicago Mail. "Extraordinarily moving. If anything the congratulations showered on Jack Warner were more effusive than those following the preview of 'Anthony Adverse'!"—Harrison Carroll's syndicated flash. "'The Green Pastures' deserves a play date in every theatre throughout the whole wide world. It is grand entertainment! You will be able to look back upon its engagement at your theatre with pleasure—when you think of the receipts; and with pride—that your theatre was privileged to play it," is the opinion of Editor 'Chick' Lewis of Showmen's Trade Review. "An opinion can be best expressed by cheers. If you get the idea that I am very much excited about 'The Green Pastures', then you've got the right idea!" says Sidney Skolsky in his syndicated column. "Undoubtedly one of the most unusual and most entertaining motion pictures to reach the screen!" ex-claims Jimmy Starr of the L. A. Herald-Express. "A perfect marvel of entertainment!"—Lloyd Pantages. "An absolute artistic triumph!" reports Box-Office. "This is positively one of the finest films the screen has ever made—a film to see and cheer about", says William Boehnel in the N.Y. World-Telegram.

ment company's announcement. These oyalties vary in accordance with the ost of each production, it was said. "Substantial savings" will be effected by the producer in both the cost of the sound equipment and in the distribution charges of its product, RCA asserts. A number of the new recording systems are now en route to the Twentieth Century-Fox studios where detailed plans for its use are being worked out. The equipment is furnished complete and ready for operation in the studios and no charge is made for the recording apparatus tself, RCA states.

Royalty fees for sound recording will be based "on actual running time of a picture in the theatre, rather than on an arbitrary charge per reel recorded," the equipment manufacturer says. It makes available to the licensee immediately the newest RCA "high fidelity" recording methods and all new developments which have been perfected by the manufacturer's laboratories. In addition, RCA states that it "will undertake to incorporate new improvements and developments in sound into existing equipment as they become available during the life of the contract."

Erpi Officials Unavailable

While officials of Erpi could not be reached on Saturday for a statement, it is understood that that company's equipment, which has been used exclusively by Twentieth Century-Fox heretofore, is not being removed from the studio. The producer's license agreement with Erpi has not expired and the Erpi agreements call for a minimum recording royalty of approximately $100,000 a year. It is assumed, therefore, that the RCA equipment will be used by Twentieth Century-Fox for everything above the Erpi recording minimum.

The use of RCA equipment has been confined to RKO, Republic, Walt Disney, Van Beuren, Pathe News and industrial film producers. The new agreement with Twentieth Century-Fox is the first major extension of RCA licensing and was made possible, according to an RCA official, by negotiations concluded last winter by which Erpi liberalized its agreements to permit its licensees to use other than Erpi equipment on recording above the specified minimum amount. Negotiations between RCA and other major studios are in work and one or more licensing agreements may be closed in the near future, it was learned.

swell job of arrangements. The delegates got their fillip of excitement and Allied — maybe — will get a new bankroll. Even Hardy was given a great, big hand when he said the Department of Justice could be depended upon to fully probe all complaints and take action when the facts demanded. Nobody took time out to point out that this was stock stuff with the Department and its routine statement of policy available as many times a business day as anyone may care to inquire. Personally, we went through a letdown. In Atlanta last year, Walter Stoeppleman, a Texas exhibitor with a sense of humor, was great fun. In Cleveland, he was too quiet. Richey slipped there. . . .

similar attractions on the current program, it is understood.

M-G-M is reported asking major circuit buyers for 30 pictures on percentage and preferred playing time. It is said that the distributor is demanding 25 per cent of the gross up to the point where the circuit clears house expenses, and from that point on there are increases in units of 10. The balance of the product is understood subject to deliberation.

Twentieth Century-Fox is said to be out for a 15 per cent increase over the 1935-36 prices. The same groupings for the current season will most likely prevail, it is said.

G.B., which is striving for a reputation similar to M-G-M and will not stop until it reaches this goal, according to Jeffrey Bernerd, will offer its 24 features in three different groups. Pictures will be designated by home office executives as soon as they are completed. The three classifications are four "AA," eight "A," and 12 "B."

Paramount's policy will most likely continue to be flexible, as heretofore. Increases will be sought, it is said.

tures released through Republic this season.

Edward M. Schnitzer, eastern division sales head, stated that he expects 2,000 additional contracts on the current season's schedule and a wide increase on the new deals.

Oscar Hanson of Empire Films, Toronto, handling Republic's output in Canada, praised W. Ray Johnston, president of Republic, at the banquet tendered to Nat Levine, production head, on Friday night. He said Johnston's friendship and record with exhibitors paved the way for hundreds of new deals that otherwise would not have been available. The delegates stood up and cheered.

The convention broke up Saturday after J. J. Milstein and Schnitzer held meetings with the individual sales groups. Levine has gone back to the coast. Prior to his departure he said the sessions were highly successful. "They have given me everything I need, money, confidence and distribution."

Home office executives and all sales forces have returned to their respective headquarters.

Light Crust Boys Return

Hollywood, June 7.—After finishing scenes for the first of Republic's new series of musical westerns, The Light Crust Dough Boys have left for the Texas Centennial. Nat Levine will use a different radio troupe in each of the eight westerns in this group.

Hollywood, June 7. — Ben Lyon, Bebe Daniels and their baby, left for New York on Saturday. They sail for Great Britain on June 11 to make personal appearances in connection with Republic's "Down to the Sea."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"And Sudden Death"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 7.—Paramount jacked up a wildly exploited title and ran under it a routine melodrama and a lot of motor crashes with the result that the exhibitor will have enthusiastic support from traffic departments, pulpits, schools and the press, but he may have difficulty getting audiences in to see what is after all only a glorified lecture against careless driving.

Randolph Scott plays a police lieutenant in charge of traffic and rather than send Frances Drake, a wealthy chronic speeder to jail, he sentences her to a traffic school which also includes trips to the morgue to see the tragic results of criminal speed. She becomes a responsible driver, but takes the blame when her drunken brother, Tom Brown, crashes into a bus filled with children. Brown does outstanding work as the craven who allows his sister to serve a second degree murder term for his folly until his deathbed confession frees her to marry Scott.

Hair-raising motor crashes illustrate vividly the dreadful fact that one person is killed by a motor every 15 minutes in this country.

The good cast includes Billy Lee, Fuzzy Knight, Terry Walker, Porter Hall, Charles Quigley, Joseph Sawyer, Oscar Apfel, Maidel Turner, Charles Arnt, Jimmy Conlin, John Hyams, Herbert Evans, Don Rowan and Wilma Francis under the direction of Charles Barton. A. M. Botsford produced and William T. Lackey supervised. The story is by Theodore Reeves and Madeleine Ruthven. The screen play by Joseph Moncure March.

Exhibitors should not fail to take advantage of the ready made tieups.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,245. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Revolt of the Zombies"

(Academy)

There is a wealth of exploitation material in this picture. The story has weird angles and situations in good proportion to the drama. It builds dramatically to an exciting conclusion.

Dean Jagger in the World War shows an Allied commander the possibilities of having the invincible "living-dead" for soldiers. The authorities bear down on the idea and plans are made for a peace time expedition to Indo-China to eradicate the sinister knowledge at its source. When the expedition reaches the site of Angkor and work is progressing, Jagger falls in love with Dorothy Stone, daughter of the group's head. Miss Stone, however, turns her attention to Robert Noland and soon after Jagger loses his post and Miss Stone. Discouraged, Jagger uncovers the secret that can make men his slaves by a weird form of hypnotism and soon the entire camp, including the natives, is under his spell. He, master of them all, arranges for his marriage to Miss Stone. Married, they conflict and Miss Stone has him throw off the yoke from his "subjects." The natives revive and, led by Teru Shimada, revolt and kill Jagger.

Also in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, George Cleveland, Fred Warren, Carl Stockdale and William Crowell, all of whom acquit themselves well.

Victor Halperin directed from the screen play by himself, Howard Higgins and Rollo Lloyd.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,161. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

LONDON, June 1.—Following the presentation to the departmental committee on the Films Act of the statements of producers and the Ass'n of Technicians, comprising the pro-quota case, the exhibitors and distributors are to be heard next.

Producers already have asked a quota increase to 33 1/3 or 35 per cent, and the insertion of a £12,000 minimum cost clause.

The exhibitors, through the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, and the distributors, through the Kinematograph Renters' Society, will ask a modification of the quota rules instead of intensification. The C.E.A. policy suggests a 10 per cent exhibitor quota against a distributor quota of 15 or 20 per cent. The "margin of safety" is the chief point, but exhibitors also are seeking some measure which will eliminate "quickies."

The K.R.S. is expected to put for-

M-G-M Not to Sell Star Units Next Season

Thirty of 44 to Be Big Features, Force Told

M-G-M will not sell next season's lineup in star series, as heretofore, it is learned. Salesmen will concentrate on the 44-52 figures rather than stress players tentatively listed, assuring exhibitors that of the minimum number of 44 there will be at least 30 big pictures.

For smaller circuits and individual theatre owners, the company is understood to have a policy whereby sales forces will ask a minimum of four pictures at 40 per cent. The next 12 will be sold on a flat rental, the figures to be based on the percentages received for the four 35 per cent features on this season's schedule. The next 14 pictures will be scaled at 70 per cent of the flat rental asked for the previous 12, it is said.

The balance of 14-22 will be subject to negotiations on a rental said to be along the lines of prices paid for

Talk Increases in Cincinnati Prices

CINCINNATI, June 7.—According to reports current here, a price advance in neighborhood and suburban houses is due in the early fall, if not now.

"Prices in all other lines have advanced, and in many cases there have been sizable wage increases, so why shouldn't admissions be revised upward, at least by a small amount," an exhibitor spokesman is quoted as saying. In the majority of cases suburban houses, particularly in the outlying districts, are operating only in the evenings. Matinees, except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, have proved unprofitable. However, many suburban houses are being remodeled or improved in anticipation of a pickup in business based on better business conditions generally.

Chicago, June 7.—Are all theatres in England open? L. E. Kalker, Republic representative in the British Isles, was asked by an inquiring reporter from Motion Picture Daily.

"Yes, all but the flea pits."

"What are flea pits?"

"They're what you call dumps over here."

Agnew Ends Sales Meet of Paramount

CHICAGO, June 7.—Paramount sales executives closed their conference at the Edgewater Beach Hotel here yesterday with a company message from Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, and an outline by Cecil B. De Mille of his production plans for the new season.

Agnew completed a review of the product planned for next year and answered sales policy queries by the district managers. Agnew said he felt Paramount had a better lineup for next season than the company had had in years and that with the studio organization rapidly being strengthened the sales force could be confident of deliveries which matched the plans for the new season.

Discussing his plans for "The Plainsman," De Mille said shooting on the picture, which will star Gary Cooper, with Jean Arthur and George Bancroft, would start July 15. He said it was being planned on "super-special" lines.

William LeBaron, studio head, was scheduled to be here to address the Meeting Thursday on Sale of Film Rights

Contract committees of the Dramatists' Guild and the League of N. Y. Theatres will meet Thursday to work out rules for the sale of film rights to plays.

Film companies, led by M-G-M and Warners, assert that unless the rules which are drafted are made a part of the new contract just entered into by the dramatists and producing managers, no financial backing for new season stage plays will be forthcoming from them. The dramatists contend that the selling rules should be flexible and in a form to permit revision in accordance with possible changes in production conditions, which would be impossible if the rules were made a part of the new five-year contract.

Warners have already made arrangements for financing two productions by George Abbot and the production of "White Horse Inn" for next season.

Wide Changes In RCA's New 20th-Fox Pact

Free Installation and Parts; Fees Cut

Wide departures from the terms of sound recording licensing agreements in use heretofore are contained in a new 10-year agreement which RCA Photophone has just closed with Twentieth Century-Fox.

Outstanding innovations in the new contract, which constitutes the first extension of RCA service within major studio ranks in years, include free installation and wiring and the furnishing of spare and renewal parts without charge, a single fee for a picture recorded in this country and distributed throughout the world, no additional charge for the recording of trailers or for "dubbing" of sound in this country and the establishment of a charge of 50 per cent of the domestic recording fee for original foreign language versions made here.

The agreement specifies generally lower royalty fees for sound recording than Twentieth Century-Fox has ever paid before, according to the equip-

Warner Short List Increased to 136

Warners will have 136 shorts next season, an increase of six over the current schedule. At the same time, the single reel subjects will be increased and the two-reelers reduced in number.

Two new series will be featured on the 1936-37 lineup. One will be 13 Pictorial Reviews in color and sponsored by the Pictorial Review magazine. The other series will include 13 black and white cartoons to be produced by Leon Schlesinger, who will

CHICAGO, June 7.—Reports from various committees today featured the convention of Independent Theatres Supply Dealers Ass'n. as it neared its close. The four-day session will wind up tomorrow.

Addresses by E. A. Williford of National Carbon Co., S. M. Zinner, Capt. John W. Gorby on "Standardization, Quality and the Value of a Testing Bureau," J. B. Kleckner on "Should the Independent Theatre Supply Dealer Remain in the Commercial Banking Business," highlighted Saturday's sessions.

A bigger attendance had been anticipated, but the Allied convention in Cleveland, which conflicted with the opening of the Supply Dealers' meeting, had an effect on the attendance.

Lloyd in New Para. Deal

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—Harold Lloyd yesterday signed an independent producing and releasing contract with Paramount for more than one picture annually, the exact number not being revealed.

Paramount also signed Fanchon to a long term contract to advise William LeBaron on the production of musicals. The contract provides for a producing post later.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

En Route to New York

IT was alright. Many of the boys wanted to get away from home anyway and this convention, like all the others whose spots have not changed down the years, offered the opportunity. Not only that. Railroad fares were down, allowing exhibitors to ride in and out of Cleveland in drawing rooms and bedrooms at so little money, relatively, that it became a cinch and practically no expense to travel in the style usually associated with plutocratic producers and distributors.

At five bucks, all inclusive, there was food. There was a party at a night club called the Mayfair Casino. There was a golf tournament. And a banquet with entertainment furnished by the affiliated chains Allied is always death on. The Vogue Room and the bar at the Hollenden did a right smart gross. The burleycue show around the corner did only a fairish business, but Wimpy's hamburger joint along about two and later each morning could have hung out the S.R.O. sign if the management owned one. Between the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Exide battery boys and the advance crowd of Republicans trying to go enthusiastic over Landon, it was sometimes hard to tell which convention was doing what. . . .

But business was transacted. Of course, after all these years, it is our own idea that Messrs. Myers, Yamins, Steffes, Richey, Samuelson, Cole and others of that limited group which fashions Allied's bullets ought to be slightly shame-faced and certainly should have done better by their constituency than reviving such old chestnuts for campaign issues and organizational ballyhoo. We propose taking you back over some of the ground for whatever fun we may have overlooked as the day-by-day dispatches were hurried over the wires. . . .

Chestnut Number One—Producer-distributor aggression in the theatre field must cease forthwith and even faster. We'll let the formal resolution have its say and then we'll pick up:

> WHEREAS, the operation of theatres by the producers and distributors tends directly toward monopoly, results in unfair practices and restraint of trade bringing about inevitably the complete destruction of independent theatres, deprives the public of freedom of choice on the matter of motion picture entertainment and is otherwise contrary to the public interests
> First—That Allied States Association embark on a campaign of vigorous action, employing all legal means at its disposal to retard and prevent the further expansion of the affiliated chains and to enjoin and restrain the unfair and oppressive methods by which they are enlarging and extending their monopoly.
> Second—That in carrying out this mandate the general counsel and the president of Allied, with the advice and consent of the special committee of three, is authorized and directed to cooperate with and assist independent exhibitors belonging to regional units of Allied in the institution and prosecution to final judgment such numbers of cases as may be necessary to obtain a judicial determination of the legal rights of such independents under existing laws in their struggle to remain in business.
> Third—That the general counsel is further authorized and directed to prepare suitable drafts of bills for introduction into the Federal Congress and the legislatures of the states having for their purpose the complete disassociation of the functions of production and distribution of motion pictures on the one hand and the exhibition of such pictures on the other with the recommendation that independent exhibitors, individually and through their association, strive for the enactment of such legislation.

There is a reason or two around to support the impression that Myers had a slant on the text of Russell Hardy's address. When the latter, who told us, but not the convention, that he was uncovering his personal views, declared he believed legislation divorcing production and distribution from exhibition was possible, although admittedly not illegal under present statutes, there followed the above resolution. It all dovetailed very neatly as was designed. The resolution marked the highlight of Thursday's session, made the headlines in the trade press which it was expected to make and got some of the Allied boys slightly steamed. That's how successful conventions are made. After eighteen years of 'em, we admit to the designation of expert. . . .

Everyone seemed perfectly willing to take it for granted that producers could be made to kiss their theatres goodbye. Nobody seemed interested enough to ask what the producers might think of the suggestion. Nowhere did we run across anyone who could or would deny the right of a manufacturer to enter the retail end of his own industry. You know, like Standard, Shell and the oil companies; Johnson and Murphy shoes, et al. . . .

Chestnut Number Two—The blasts and the tirades against Will Hays. That one came straight from the archives, as thoroughly dusty as all of the fake Napoleon brandy on the market. The stockholders, creditors and trustees of Hays-member companies are to be petitioned to give Hays his pink slip, or whatever color slip they use over on West 44th St. Nobody stopped to inquire how Allied would go about learning who the stockholders of Warners, Metro, Paramount, RKO, etc., were. The important holdings are on file with the S. E. C. in Washington, of course, but those blocks of securities are in the hands of the interests and the individuals who gave Hays his new five year contract some months back, well satisfied with his administration and the job he is turning out. . . .

But, we repeat, it was alright if you keep the objectives in mind. The cheers which greeted the Hays resolution tied in with the excitement of chain oppression and aggression. That, in turn, filled in the background for Al Steffes and his "war chest" drive. We have a respect for Al's technique. Either he has made a study of mob psychology or inherently understands what makes it tick. There were the Allied stalwarts, naturally, ready to back him up. For Minnesota, Steffes pledged a minimum of $10,000 toward the ultimate $250,000; Sid Samuelson harangued the boys into further action. Harry Cole had to look in his bankbook, said he, before taking the road to Cleveland, but he'd give $1,000 if he had to borrow it. Ohio, it developed, was good for $10,000; by stretching a point, perhaps $15,000. Benny Berger, just a small exhibitor from Minnesota, promised $5,000. Steffes said so. The tally ended at $45,000, arrived at almost as quickly as you can read this. We thought it was pretty good for a crowd of small exhibitors who didn't know where the next filet mignon was coming from. . . .

It was a dark horse—but! . . . .

DARINGLY DIFFERENT TYPE OF SCREEN ATTRACTION SALUTED WITH THE GREATEST REVIEWS IN THE HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE PRESS!

"'The Green Pastures' is something new under the motion picture sun! It has had no predecessor; nothing heretofore produced is even vaguely similar. Sure to make a deep impression upon audiences, it looms as a valuable contribution in the progress of screen production. It is a tribute to brainy, intelligent craftsmanship," declares Motion Picture Daily. "To describe the utter charm of 'The Green Pastures' makes a review sound like some Warner publicity. And a week after 'Anthony Adverse' from the same lot, it sets an example difficult for any studio to follow! In every department it may be regarded as flawless. Undoubtedly one of the outstanding films of the decade!"-Douglas Churchill's syndicated review. "One of the screen's truly great dramatic recordings is Warners' production of 'The Green Pastures'. It will feed the pride of producers, directors, players and all who had a big or little share in the film translation. It will amply feed the tills of exhibitors in city and hamlet the world around, wherever folk can be moved by simple, majestic drama and beauty. Primarily it is mass entertainment—and should have a long, prosperous life on merit and novelty which will be widely broadcast", writes Variety Daily. Louella Parsons, popular motion picture columnist, calls this "One of the grandest pictures ever made!" "Marvelous—there never was a better or finer picture made!" agrees Harry Neimeyer of St. Louis Post-Dispatch. "It's a pip — most refreshing picture I've ever seen!" raves Dorothy Manners of Photoplay. "A magnificent motion picture!" says Literary Digest. And Jack Moffitt of the Kansas City Star names it "the greatest picture to come out of Hollywood"! "Laughter from the heart was the perfect tribute. Surely this is the most beautiful triumph of the screen for years to come!"—Richard Sheridan Ames of Chicago Mail. "Extraordinarily moving. If anything the congratulations showered on Jack Warner were more effusive than those following the preview of 'Anthony Adverse'!"—Harrison Carroll's syndicated flash. "'The Green Pastures' deserves a play date in every theatre throughout the whole wide world. It is grand entertainment! You will be able to look back upon its engagement at your theatre with pleasure — when you think of the receipts; and with pride—that your theatre was privileged to play it," is the opinion of Editor 'Chick' Lewis of Showmen's Trade Review. "An opinion can be best expressed by cheers. If you get the idea that I am very much excited about 'The Green Pastures', then you've got the right idea!" says Sidney Skolsky in his syndicated column. "Undoubtedly one of the most unusual and most entertaining motion pictures to reach the screen!" ex-claims Jimmy Starr of the L. A. Herald-Express. "A perfect marvel of entertainment!"–Lloyd Pantages. "An absolute artistic triumph!" reports Box-Office. "This is positively one of the finest films the screen has ever made–a film to see and cheer about", says William Boehnel in the N.Y. World-Telegram.

ent company's announcement. These oyalties vary in accordance with the ost of each production, it was said. Substantial savings" will be effected y the producer in both the cost of e sound equipment and in the distri-ution charges of its product, RCA sserts. A number of the new record-g systems are now en route to the wentieth Century-Fox studios where etailed plans for its use are being orked out. The equipment is fur-ished complete and ready for opera-ion in the studios and no charge is ade for the recording apparatus self, RCA states.

Royalty fees for sound recording ill be based "on actual running time f a picture in the theatre, rather than n an arbitrary charge per reel ecorded," the equipment manufacturer ays. It makes available to the licen-ee immediately the newest RCA "high idelity" recording methods and all ew developments which have been erfected by the manufacturer's labora-ories. In addition, RCA states that t "will undertake to incorporate new mprovements and developments in ound into existing equipment as they ecome available during the life of the ontract."

Erpi Officials Unavailable

While officials of Erpi could not be eached on Saturday for a statement, t is understood that that company's quipment, which has been used ex-lusively by Twentieth Century-Fox eretofore, is not being removed from he studio. The producer's license greement with Erpi has not expired nd the Erpi agreements call for a inimum recording royalty of ap-roximately $100,000 a year. It is ssumed, therefore, that the RCA quipment will be used by Twentieth Century-Fox for everything above the Erpi recording minimum.

The use of RCA equipment has een confined to RKO, Republic, Walt Disney, Van Beuren, Pathe News and ndustrial film producers. The new greement with Twentieth Century-Fox is the first major extension of RCA licensing and was made possible, according to an RCA official, by negotiations concluded last winter by which Erpi liberalized its agreements to permit its licensees to use other than Erpi equipment on recording above the specified minimum amount. Negotiations between RCA and other major studios are in work and one or more licensing agreements may be closed in the near future, it was learned.

swell job of arrangements. The delegates got their fillip of excitement and Allied — maybe — will get a new bankroll. Even Hardy was given a great, big hand when he said the Department of Justice could be depended upon to fully probe all complaints and take action when the facts demanded. Nobody took time out to point out that this was stock stuff with the Department and its routine statement of policy available as many times a business day as anyone may care to inquire. Personally, we went through a letdown. In Atlanta last year, Walter Stoeppleman, a Texas exhibitor with a sense of humor, was great fun. In Cleveland, he was too quiet. Richey slipped there. . . .

ward a suggestion that an obligation to spend a certain amount on British film should replace the requirement that a certain amount of footage of British film be handled. To meet objections that the freedom to put all the money into a few big pictures would reduce the number of British films and the demand for British studio space, the distributors have suggested that by means of an "average cost" clause they should be compelled to make a minimum number of films. These, however, could be individually budgeted at the discretion of the producers, it was said.

similar attractions on the current program, it is understood.

M-G-M is reported asking major circuit buyers for 30 pictures on percentage and preferred playing time. It is said that the distributor is demanding 25 per cent of the gross up to the point where the circuit clears house expenses, and from that point on there are increases in units of 10. The balance of the product is understood subject to deliberation.

Twentieth Century-Fox is said to be out for a 15 per cent increase over the 1935-36 prices. The same groupings for the current season will most likely prevail, it is said.

G.B., which is striving for a reputation similar to M-G-M and will not stop until it reaches this goal, according to Jeffrey Bernerd, will offer its 24 features in three different groups. Pictures will be designated by home office executives as soon as they are completed. The three classifications are four "AA," eight "A," and 12 "B."

Paramount's policy will most likely continue to be flexible, as heretofore. Increases will be sought, it is said.

Edward M. Schnitzer, eastern division sales head, stated that he expects 2,000 additional contracts on the current season's schedule and a wide increase on the new deals.

Oscar Hanson of Empire Films, Toronto, handling Republic's output in Canada, praised W. Ray Johnston, president of Republic, at the banquet tendered to Nat Levine, production head, on Friday night. He said Johnston's friendship and record with exhibitors paved the way for hundreds of new deals that otherwise would not have been available. The delegates stood up and cheered.

The convention broke up Saturday after J. J. Milstein and Schnitzer held meetings with the individual sales groups. Levine has gone back to the coast. Prior to his departure he said the sessions were highly successful. "They have given me everything I need, money, confidence and distribution."

Home office executives and all sales forces have returned to their respective headquarters.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"And Sudden Death"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 7.—Paramount jacked up a wildly exploited title and ran under it a routine melodrama and a lot of motor crashes with the result that the exhibitor will have enthusiastic support from traffic departments, pulpits, schools and the press, but he may have difficulty getting audiences in to see what is after all only a glorified lecture against careless driving.

Randolph Scott plays a police lieutenant in charge of traffic and rather than send Frances Drake, a wealthy chronic speeder to jail, he sentences her to a traffic school which also includes trips to the morgue to see the tragic results of criminal speed. She becomes a responsible driver, but takes the blame when her drunken brother, Tom Brown, crashes into a bus filled with children. Brown does outstanding work as the craven who allows his sister to serve a second degree murder term for his folly until his deathbed confession frees her to marry Scott.

Hair-raising motor crashes illustrate vividly the dreadful fact that one person is killed by a motor every 15 minutes in this country.

The good cast includes Billy Lee, Fuzzy Knight, Terry Walker, Porter Hall, Charles Quigley, Joseph Sawyer, Oscar Apfel, Maidel Turner, Charles Arnt, Jimmy Conlin, John Hyams, Herbert Evans, Don Rowan and Wilma Francis under the direction of Charles Barton. A. M. Botsford produced and William T. Lackey supervised. The story is by Theodore Reeves and Madeleine Ruthven. The screen play by Joseph Moncure March.

Exhibitors should not fail to take advantage of the ready made tieups. Production Code Seal, No. 2,245. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Revolt of the Zombies"

(Academy)

There is a wealth of exploitation material in this picture. The story has weird angles and situations in good proportion to the drama. It builds dramatically to an exciting conclusion.

Dean Jagger in the World War shows an Allied commander the possibilities of having the invincible "living-dead" for soldiers. The authorities bear down on the idea and plans are made for a peace time expedition to Indo-China to eradicate the sinister knowledge at its source. When the expedition reaches the site of Angkor and work is progressing, Jagger falls in love with Dorothy Stone, daughter of the group's head. Miss Stone, however, turns her attention to Robert Noland and soon after Jagger loses his post and Miss Stone. Discouraged, Jagger uncovers the secret that can make men his slaves by a weird form of hypnotism and soon the entire camp, including the natives, is under his spell. He, master of them all, arranges for his marriage to Miss Stone. Married, they conflict and Miss Stone has him throw off the yoke from his "subjects." The natives revive and, led by Teru Shimada, revolt and kill Jagger.

Also in the cast are Roy D'Arcy, George Cleveland, Fred Warren, Carl Stockdale and William Crowell, all of whom acquit themselves well.

Victor Halperin directed from the screen play by himself, Howard Higgins and Rollo Lloyd.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,161. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Proxy Contest For Paramount Session Seen

Expect Rival Ticket for Five Board Places

Intimations of a proxy contest for the first annual meeting of stockholders of reorganized Paramount on June 16 with a rival slate of candidates for the five vacancies on the board were had yesterday in company and financial circles.

The contest is reported being led by an influential director of the company and a former Paramount official both of whom are said to be seeking the support of downtown banks and investment houses known to hold large blocks of Paramount securities. No public solicitation of proxies is being made by this faction. The company's own proxy committee, named by its board of directors last week, asks for proxies in a form attached to notices of the annual meeting which went out to all Paramount stockholders over the week-end.

Paris Strike Gains, But Settlement Near

PARIS, June 8.—The stay-in strike spread over the week-end to include the M-G-M, Olympia, Warners' Apollo and the Cineac newsreel circuit and some district houses.

The Gaumont Palace and Rex and All Gaumont circuit houses have reopened as a result of the granting of the staff demands. The Olympia opened today at 6 P. M.

Laboratories are still closed, as are Osso and G.F.T.A., distributors.

An early settlement under official pressure is looked for with the granting of workers' demands for a 40-hour week and salary increases, with collective bargaining contracts, paid vacations and recognition of the unions.

Barrymore Amends Case

LOS ANGELES, June 8.—John Barrymore has filed an amended complaint in his $30,000 suit against Warners. The first complaint was ruled invalid on a technicality. The new action declares that six years ago the film company paid him $150,000 each for five pictures and promised him 10 per cent of the profits. The actor contends that $30,000 in percentage profits is now due him. At present Barrymore is in Santa Barbara Hospital.

Fred Wehrenberg, president of the exhibitor unit, presided.

Wehrenberg pointed out that unless the construction of "useless" film houses is discouraged, the result may be disastrous for the theatres now operating. He declared that many people without any knowledge of the industry are being promoted into theatre operation by real estate dealers, stock and bond dealers, film salesmen and others.

Callaghan Removal As Trustee Is Asked

The removal of former N. Y. He was charged with taking no action with regard to the sale of properties valued at $1,622,678 for $100,000 in cash. The removal of William T. Cowin, second of the three trustees, also was asked.

The accusation against the two was that they made it possible to rent two of the Prudence theatre buildings in Florida, mortgaged for $1,041,700 to Paramount Pictures, of which Callaghan is a director, for a "small percentage" of the theatres' receipts. The petition was filed with Federal Judge Moskowitz on behalf of Benjamin Sandel, who owned a guaranteed mortgage certificate of the Prudence Co. of $3,000 face value.

Overseas Previews

"The Marriage of Corbal"

(Capitol-General Film Distributors, London)

London, June 1.—Romantic melodrama against a vivid background of the French Revolution, and therefore essentially popular in its appeal, this adaptation of a Rafael Sabatini novel may find audiences in America despite some rather obvious crudities of situations and acting, which can be considerably lessened by editing. There is good crowd work, varied action and a colorful atmosphere to set against very stagey dialogue.

The story is concerned with the adventures of Cleonie, a beautiful girl aristocrat rescued from the Terror by Varennes, a Revolutionary officer, who disguises her as his nephew. The young Marquis of Corbal easily penetrates the disguise and falls in love with the young girl, finally giving her refuge in his chateau. Varenne's attempts to bring him to the guillotine are defeated by Corbal's popularity with the peasants. To protect Cleonie against a Revolutionary edict making immediate marriage of "aristos" to peasants compulsory, Corbal persuades her to marry him, though the penalty is death. Varennes, donning Corbal's coat, shoots himself. The lovers escape with Varenne's passport.

American names are Nils Asther as the "Red" Varennes and Noah Beery as a Republican soldier. Hazel Terry is a pretty heroine and Hugh Sinclair, very much the English gentleman, is Corbal. Critical audiences may laugh in wrong places, but there is heart interest in plenty for those less critical of fine shades.

Running time, 80 mins. "G."

"A Woman Alone"

(Garrett Klement Prod.)

London, June 1.—First production of Garrett Klement Pictures, Ltd., releasing here through General Film Distributors, Ltd. From an original by Fedor Otzep it was directed by Eugene Frenke, husband of the star, Anna Sten. Henry Wilcoxon is the other big name.

Story values are strong and of a popular type and backgrounds are colorful and original in a picture which shows no obvious signs of its British origin; technically it is up to Hollywood standards.

The popular "woman up against the world" theme is presented in a story of a Russian peasant girl, who attracts the attention of a Guards officer and, later becoming nursemaid to his child, is unjustly suspected of becoming his mistress. Her soldier-fiance strikes the officer and is court-martialed. The Secret Service attempts to represent him as a political agitator, but, at the trial, the girl saves him by stating, untruly, that she was the officer's mistress. Later, girl and officer, now divorced, come together.

A lot of the values in the picture are due to the authenticity of its atmosphere of Russia in Czarist days. Extraordinarily vivid picture of peasant fetes, with good folk-singing, and dancing by the Leon Woizikovsky ballet, are a feature. The court-martial scene is dramatic, with real suspense value.

This is audience material of a decidedly popular type, with plenty of action, novelty and variety of setting. The woman appeal should be strong.

Running time, 90 minutes. "A." Allan.

Variety Club

Kansas City

Kansas City, June 8.—Business and industry are confronted with a crisis, Harry Sharp, secretary of Associated Industries of Kansas, told members of Variety Club. If business and industry, including films, are not to suffer unjustly in the revolutionary period through which the country is going, such groups as Variety Club must exercise the influence they have, he said.

"The film business is intelligently and effectively represented at Topeka by Harry McClure, by R. R. Biechele, and others," Sharp said, but he urged film men to pay more attention to things affecting the business indirectly.

Kansas will have a special session, probably the latter part of July, and it will not be restricted as to the subjects it can take up. Admission and sales taxes are being discussed.

"Only those industries which are well organized can escape very burdensome taxes the next two or three years," he concluded.

Guests were A. C. Cooper, Ray McLain, Fox Granada, Emporia; and M. G. Shackelford, Republic-Midwest.

Columbia in Deal For New RCA Sound at this time, as it would be affected by production requirements from time to time in the future, the availablity of equipment at the studio and several other factors. He stated, however, that the new equipment would be used on all of several new stages constructed recently and that RCA Photophone reproducing equipment would be installed in new projection rooms being erected at the studio.

"The choice was made only after adequate tests which showed that we might expect an even higher quality of sound from the new equipment than we have ever had before," the Twentieth Century-Fox official said. "The idea of competition does not enter into this. We just decided to give a trial to something we believe to be good, and we are convinced that Photophone's new type of recorders are good. They have several valuable improvements, such as 'push-pull' attachments and we are convinced that their use is highly practical," he said.

At Columbia it was said that no definite estimate of the extent to which the new equipment would be used could be made at this time. It was indicated, however, that the initial usage would be limited to certain types of production, with more extensive use depending upon the results achieved and production requirements.

A Photophone official said that the terms of the Columbia licensing agreement were similar to those of the Twentieth Century-Fox contract and permit both licensees to pay "considerably lower sound royalty fees than in the past." He added that negotiations with other major studios were under way. The Twentieth Century-Fox and Columbia contracts represent the first extension of RCA licensing in major studio ranks since the inception of sound.

Looking 'Em Over

"Parole"

(Universal)

Patterned somewhat after the recent exposure of inadequate and politically duped parole boards, this film is a fast-moving melodrama, replete with good characterizations, excitement, new twists and new faces. It never lags and ends on a hopeful crusading note which attempts to solve the problem.

Henry Hunter, through the efforts of political racketeers headed by Alan Dinehart and his colleague, Alan Hale, is released from prison, leaving behind Grant Mitchell, his penmate, who is freed shortly afterward. Hunter goes to Dinehart for a job and is made assistant to an ex-convict collector in Dinehart's "insurance" racket. He soon sees himself heading back to jail and quits. Through Mitchell's daughter, Ann Preston, he obtains another position and is discharged when the boss finds he has a prison record. Challenging the boss, he reveals that other people in his employ have records and he unwittingly brings about their dismissal. A newspaper takes up his story and the expose that follows shakes the city, forcing Dinehart and Hale to flee. Hale is killed when the pair are apprehended aboard ship. The romance angle is worked in quite ingeniously and humorously at the end. Parole forbidding marriage, a pardon does the trick.

In the cast, aside from the principals and rounding out their performances, are Alan Baxter, Charles Richman, Noah Beery, Jr.; Christian Rubb and Frank McGlynn. Louis Lander did an excellent job of directing and he brings all the action, drama and comedy out for their best effect. The screen play was written by Kubec Glasmon, Joel Sayre and Horace McCoy.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,230. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Luck of the Irish"

(Guaranteed)

A pleasant tale, rambling and almost always in a vein of light comedy, this film will be found a delightful change. It is said to be the first Irish importation and the brogues and dialects, not incoherent, lend a novel note. The Irish-American populace should go for it. It is well done, tastefully produced and the acting by the Belfast Repertory Players deserves special mention.

A noble of Tyr Owen bets his estate on his steeplechaser, Knockavoe, in the Grand National. The horse wins but is disqualified and conditions at the castle consequently go from bad to worse. However, Richard Hayward, in the role of Sam Mulhern, an excellent characterization, in an attempt to save the estate, works a hoax with the schoolmaster, is found out, and dismissed. As the bookmaker is packing up the valuables and the family is at its wit's end, a saviour in the form of a wealthy American arrives and buys the horse, saving the day financially. At this point young romance is fulfilled and Hayward manages to marry off the Widow Whistler to the village constable.

The film has the good qualities of Irish customs and the portrayals, and folk songs which are authentically delivered are good entertainment. Much of subtle Gaelic wit is in evidence.

In the cast, perhaps known to audiences here, are Kay Walsh, Niall McGinnis, J. R. Mageean, R. H. MacCandless, Charles Sagan, Charlotte Tedlie, Nan Cullen and Meta Grainger.

Credit for a good direction job belongs to Donovan Fedelty, who also produced from the novel by Victor Haddick.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Tax Threatens in Tampa

Tampa, Fla., June 8.—An amusement tax is seen as possible here. In making up the budget for next year, it was discovered that the present taxes would provide revenue $581,000 shy of the amount needed. A tax on amusements is among the new revenue-raising measures considered.

Kansas City Royal May Be a First Run

Kansas City, June 8. — Jack Truitt and Breckenridge Fagin, who have been operating the Royal, downtown house, as a 10 and 15-cent subsequent run, may change the policy to a regular first run of B pictures next fall.

The house has just completed a week's test of a first run double feature with "King of the Damned," a G.B. picture, and "Dancing Feet," a Republic release. The take was $1,200, which Truitt and Fagin considered fair.

"Kansas City doesn't have a B type first run house," commented Fagin, "and conditions look favorable for the establishment of a house with that sort of policy." The house might operate a split week, first run double policy. The operators of the Royal will decide within the next month.

Proxy Contest ForParamount Session Seen

two representatives on the Paramount board in Stephen Callaghan and Harry O. King, is regarded as being in a strategic position in the event a rival proxy move attains proportions of any significance. In a settlement of Allied Owners' claim against Paramount, 25,000 shares of the company's first preferred stock was issued to the Brooklyn realty company only recently. A share of first preferred stock is entitled to 20 votes, which gives Allied Owners 500,000 votes in next Tuesday's meeting, which might spell victory or defeat should any close proxy contest actually develop. With several of the financial interests represented on the Paramount board having either reduced appreciably or disposed of their Paramount holdings entirely, a contest for proxies is viewed in some quarters as likely to be a spirited one.

Publication of Report Not Set

Meanwhile, expectations that Joseph P. Kennedy will complete his report on the company's status and submit it to a special meeting of the board some time this week appear to be lessening. There were definite indications yesterday that the report might not be presented until after the stockholders' meeting in order that it may be received by the board as it will be reconstituted at the June 16 meeting. In addition to the election of five directors by the stockholders, new resignations from the Paramount board are reported likely within the next week or 10 days. Among these is Callaghan, who came on the board as a representative of Allied Owners in his capacity as a trustee of that company, which is itself in reorganization. With the reorganization essentially completed, Callaghan will be discharged as an Allied trustee in the near future, which will end his status as an official representative of that company.

Kennedy, meanwhile, is making himself unavailable to reporters and his office associates profess to have no knowledge of when the report is to be submitted. The general assumption is growing, however, that with the board in its present state of flux there is little likelihood of a complete, formal report being made until it attains the semblance of permanency promised by the expected developments of the next week or 10 days.

Want Benny for Another

Hollywood, June 8.—Paramount is negotiating to hold Jack Benny for a second picture after he completes "The Big Broadcast of 1937." xpresses His Opinion In MPTOA Bulletin

The opinion that the separate score rge "is on its way out" and that will quickly disappear" if indiual exhibitors follow through with ing resistance to it, is expressed the current M.P.T.O.A. organizaal bulletin issued yesterday by Ed ykendall.

he M.P.T.O.A. opinion is based on results to date of the organizan's trade practice meetings with tributors, Kuykendall says. The letin summarizes the progress made these meetings in attaining distribu cooperation in connection with the P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice gram, which includes the eliminan of the score charge.

he bulletin states that unqualified ncellations of 10 to 20 per cent have en indicated by some companies; t there is reason to believe that the al boards for the adjustment and nciliation of trade disputes and mplaints will be set up and that

Indie Circuit Moves Are Hit In Cleveland

Subsequents Assert Film Is Being Delayed

Cleveland, June 9.—Independent theatre owners here are leveling the same complaints against independent circuits that the circuits have been shooting in the direction of producer-controlled houses for years.

They say the circuit men are using their buying power to squeeze the smaller unit and are delaying designation of playdates to a point that causes a product shortage in subsequent runs.

Affiliated circuits, in some instances, they say, are more willing to cooperate than the independent circuits.

Some of those affected who refuse

MAJORS STUDYING ERPI ACQUISITION

Meeting Held Monday for Discussion of Plan; Decision Later

The major companies are seriously considering purchase of the control of Erpi, Motion Picture Daily learned last night. A meeting, attended by leading company executives, was held in New York on Monday to discuss the pros and the cons with no decision arrived at, it is understood.

A. T. and T. controls Erpi through Western Electric, the manufacturing arm of the Bell System, and is willing to dispose of Electrical Research Products, Inc. The interest of the major film companies is believed to revolve around a desire to control directly the technical equipment used daily in the production of talkers in their studios and the reproduction of such talkers in their own and other theatres.

Queried yesterday on the possibility of a sale of Erpi materializing in the near future, Whitford

Kennedy Report to Para. Board Friday

Joseph P. Kennedy's report on the current status of Paramount and its operating problems is scheduled to be presented to a special meeting of the company's board of directors on Friday.

The directors were advised that the report would be ready by the latter part of the week and a special meeting of the board was set yesterday for Friday to receive it. The calling of the special meeting ends consideration of a reported plan for receiving Kennedy's report after the company's annual meeting of stockholders next Tuesday in order that it might be considered by the Paramount board as it will be reconstituted after the meeting of stockholders. Five new directors are slated to be elected by the

Pettijohn Favors Selling Each Picture to the Highest Bidder

Cleveland, June 9.—Charles C. Pettijohn stopped off here to get a Democratic slant on a Republican convention and to see what damage the Allied convention did to the Hollenden.

After he had found the Hollenden in good shape he fired this 16-inch long-range shell:

"I favor doing away with the present distribution plans for one year and selling pictures singly to the highest bidder. After that we would have peace in the industry."

After the Motion Picture Daily correspondent had sniffed her smelling salts she thought she heard him say, too:

"I know very little about the Allied convention. Most of our troubles are those that never happen."

A great many state legislators are here. Also present are Georgia Moffett, Cleveland; Emma Ablanap, Chicago, and Marion Hull, Indianapolis—film board secretaries—so Pettijohn may have something to do besides listening to Kansans tell how Landon will be nominated.

No Date for M-G-M English Start Set

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT started last night. From 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Daylight Time, Republican convention sidelights prior to delivery of the keynote speech filled the air; in New York the local outlets were WOR and WABC. From 10 to 11 P. M., millions—who knows how many—listened to the keynoter by Senator Steiwer of Oregon from Cleveland; for that event, there were a mere four stations in New York—WABC, WEAF, WJZ and WOR—hooked up. If you know your outlets, you'll recognize the N. B. C. and C. B. C. networks. National Broadcasting, upon inquiry, stated ninety-seven from Maine to Honolulu over the blue and the red systems were tied in. Columbia proudly gave its total as one hundred and twenty-five. . . .

Thus, from nine to eleven in the East and in corresponding hours across that great belt of the country when theatre business reached its peak, the ether was filled with political promises. Later, the same procedure will rent the air lanes from Philadelphia. From now until Election Day, which is some months off, the Republican candidate will speak regularly and, of course, so will the President, seeking re-election. The weather will be warm, if not hot, and the public will be seeking relief out-of-doors. The effect on grosses naturally becomes obvious and this suggests two things: One is a better foot thrust forward by Hollywood. Two is the necessity for showmen who call themselves that, but often are not, to peel off their coats and go to work. It will be no walk-away. . . .

Meanwhile, exhibitors are yelling about the lack of product. That is, good product. There's miles of celluloid around. The habit is an annual one and more frequent than that when release schedules hit a vacuum in merit. Deplorable and regrettable, yes. What to do about it? Exactly nothing, this year as in others. Last week in Cleveland, Allied leaders ranted about poor pictures, overlooking completely and probably deliberately the indisputable record which is that quality this season never, or rarely at least, has been exceeded. Whether it's a shortage in sufficient brains or too many pictures, Hollywood has never been able to maintain a constant flow of superior attractions, every week of the year. Moreover, those who have been around the business for any length of time understand how it goes and, long since, have resigned themselves to the status quo. . . .

To illustrate, if at this late date, any illustrating is necessary, was this conversation with a sales manager as recent as yesterday:

Sales Manager—"The studio is talking about all big pictures next year. I told them to forget it and go modest by delivering ten."

We—"Ten? You'll take four big ones and be satisfied, won't you?"

Sales Manager—"You know I will."

We—"As a matter of fact, you'll take two smashes and let it go at that. Right?"

Sales Manager—"Right". . . .

The untimely passing of Nathan Burkan was discussed on many tongues yesterday. As far as marks of respect may go, the evidences were substantial at the services held at Temple Emanu-El. Privately and as matters of such a distressing nature have a habit of showing themselves, the stories of the stature of the man's capacity for friendship were legion. Burkan, of course, was very prominent in the profession of law. But those who knew him best yesterday liked to tell and re-tell his many kindnesses, his ever constant desire to help the low as well as the mighty. Their comment went to make up the sort of tribute any man might want to think that he had earned for himself, but which relatively few actually achieve. . . .

LaGuardia Will Sign Sales Tax Extension

Following a hearing yesterday, Mayor LaGuardia announced that he would sign the bills extending the city's emergency relief tax program for another year. The levies include the two per cent sales tax, the 1/20 of one per cent tax on gross business, the three per cent utility tax and a personal property tax. The taxes collected for the past year amounted to $67,000,000.

YOUR DISH!

As Predicted! FURY at the Capitol!

"'Fury,' is the finest original drama this year . . . brilliantly directed, bitingly written and splendidly performed. 'Fury' is direct, forthright and vehement. That it is brilliantly executed as well makes it all the more notable. All have a share in the glory of 'Fury'." —Frank S. Nugent, N. Y. Times.

"A compelling document . . . with remarkable audacity for Hollywood, it has been brought to the screen with all its shocking implications . . . a visual and emotional crescendo handled magnificently. The cast gives an inspired performance." —Howard Barnes, N. Y. Herald Tribune.

"A smash melodrama . . . brilliantly acted, imaginatively directed, splendidly written, 'Fury' packs a monumental wallop . . . an exciting and impressive film." —Bland Johaneson, N. Y. Daily Mirror.

"Heart-piercing story . . . the screen of the Capitol reflects the fierce fire of a tremendously vital film-saga which shatters the shackles of conventional motion picture entertainment. It is a breathless, turbulent document. Its drama leaps from the screen to live long in your memory. It gathers force and impetus in every sequence, and goes onward through a thousand thrills to a heart-stopping climax. Never for an instant does its break-neck pace lessen, nor its grip relax upon tingling emotions. Every member of the troupe contributes to the rich dramatic entertainment." —Regina Crewe, N. Y. American.

"Powerful punches are packed into the scenes . . . story is developed on a rising tide of suspense that breaks into a smashing climax . . . a thrilling spectacle and a moving, human drama . . . excellently acted by all." —Kate Cameron, N. Y. Daily News.

"Strong film fare . . . vividly acted and directed." —Rose Pelswick, N. Y. Eve. Journal.

"Accumulates an impressive dramatic fire . . . an arresting and powerful picture." —Thornton Delehanty, N. Y. Post.

"As violent as dynamite. In addition to an original theme, a definite viewpoint, and enough punches to jar Joe Louis, 'Fury' is fine movie entertainment. Spencer Tracy plays with a sureness and force few other screen actors display. This is a picture to get you excited and keep you that way . . . grand stuff, shrewdly written, well acted, directed with strength and skill." —Eileen Creelman, N. Y. Sun.

"An earnest, excellently-acted film . . . a completely undisguised, unpretending one . . . mighty good melodrama. As simple, as terrifying as the headlines in today's newspaper. You cannot afford to miss the film. To do so would be to ignore one of the most startling and courageous things the American cinema has done. The acting is something to cheer about. A film that is well worth saluting." —William Boehnel, N. Y. World-Telegram.

land to set the production wheels in motion.

The quartet scheduled are "Silas Marner," "Wind in the Rain," "Rage in Heaven" and "Yank at Oxford." Stars, writers and directors have not been decided upon, Goetz said.

Returning from an eight-month tour of the world, George Barnett, president of Modern Film Sales Corp., held that in all foreign countries he visited the natives prefer to see and hear pictures made in their own languages. While abroad, he closed deals with foreign independent distributors for two features, the Louis Weiss serials and 60 reels of shorts. In addition, arrangements were concluded whereby Modern Film Sales will act as New York representative for independent distributors in Japan, China, Philippine Islands, Singapore, India, Egypt, Morocco, Dutch East Indies, England and the Continent.

On the same liner was Nick Long, Jr., who recently completed a six months' appearance in Charles B. Cochran's "Follow the Sun." He said Cochran had planned to make the show into a picture, but temporarily has abandoned the thought because he has had to go to Spain for an operation.

Long, Jr., may go to the coast in three weeks, he said, to appear in M-G-M's "Broadway Melody of 1937."

Memorial in Boston Goes to Dual Bills

Boston, June 9.—Keith's Memorial, the only first run here which has been showing single features on a straight film policy for the past year, this week turns to double features. Loew's State and Orpheum have been running double bills for the past few months, and the RKO Boston dropped stage shows several weeks ago for a straight film, dual bill policy.

The de luxe Metropolitan, which offers such added attractions as free dancing, combines films with vaudeville in the nearest thing to a policy of straight pictures on a single bill. Duals are still the general rule throughout New England.

stockholders and the possibility of several resignations from the board in the near future is reported.

The Kennedy report will touch upon recognized problems in the company's production and theatre operations, in particular, and may make general suggestions for improvement.

The prospects of a proxy contest between the company and an independent faction headed by one Paramount director and a former official of the company yesterday appeared indefinite of materialization at the stockholders' meeting. The independent faction is said to have obtained the support of several banks and investment houses holding Paramount securities for its move to obtain changes in the board's membership at the stockholders' meeting. Whether or not this support would be carried into the meeting as a proxy battle may not be decided until the end of the week, according to yesterday's indications.

for the city, asserted that $2,000,000 in additional city relief revenue was involved, which represented his estimate of the tax yield from rentals received by the New York City film exchanges. The tax law specifies that the levy must be passed on to the consumer, in the case of film rentals, the exhibitor. Local distributors estimate that the tax to date would amount to $1,500,000.

Ed Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for United Artists, argued the appeal for the exchanges.

Kansas City, June 9.—George E Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E. is expected to be reelected before the annual convention, being held here winds up this week.

As far as could be learned, there i no opposition ticket in sight.

During today's session, Wednesda was set for the consideration of th new constitution and bylaws suggeste by Browne in a report which he submitted. Browne stated that he considered changes necessary because th present constitution cannot keep pac with law changes and legal rulings The new constitution, Browne feel will reduce the number of member seeking redress in court by the inclusion of provisions for the exhaustin of all remedies within the alliance before court action is possible, thus saving much time and money.

In speaking of American and Canadian conditions, Browne regretted tha of 14,000 American theatres, only 5,00 employ alliance members.

He hopes to clear up the confli resulting from the organization's having taken jurisdiction over cashier doormen and ushers who are affiliate with another national labor organization.

Browne concluded his address wit a tribute to the late NRA and adde that the very stability of I.A.T.S. makes it a target for renewed attac by employers, attacks which "call f positive and judicious action." pleaded for the carrying out of t organization's platform provision saying that only by this method cou concrete results be obtained.

portant modifications of policy will made by distributors on the subt of forcing shorts with features.

Most of the remaining seven points the 10-point program are possible solution through the remedies prom- d by the establishment of the local nciliation boards, Kuykendall's bul- n says. These are the adjustment unreasonable clearance, correction overbuying which deprives a com- itor of needed pictures; elimination unfair cut-rate competitions be- een theatres; non-theatrical compe- on by professional entertainment tures, and the designation of play es and the forcing of excess short ojects.

The bulletin points out that while latter two practices are essentially oject to bargaining in connection h film buying, the local boards may expected to be of aid in relieving exhibitor who is overloaded with ner designated play dates or short ojects after his contracts have been de.

It orts that the new short form of tract recently made public by the P. T. O. A. has been submitted distribution companies with recom- ndations for its use. The bulletin presses no opinion, however, of the nces of the simplified form being pted and placed in use for the new son.

Pettengill Bill Criticized

Kuykendall asserts that the Petten- Bill, pending in Congress, has han- apped the exhibitor committee's ne- iations with distributors and he s that the bill "would definitely vent our proposals from being pted." He points out that the bill, lf, could offer exhibitors no re- for at least three or four years "it does not go into effect for 18 nths after it is enacted and would certain to be tied up in litigation another 18 months or two years ile a test case was fought out ough the courts."

Kuykendall arrives here from Wash- ton today and the M. P. T. O. A. de practice committee may resume sessions with a meeting with ited Artists tomorrow. The com- tee will meet with Twentieth ntury-Fox on Friday and, there- r, final meetings will be held at ich it will be determined "how, en and by whom" the moves agreed n can be placed in effect, the bulle- states.

he recent Cleveland convention of ied States is taken for the cus- ary "ride" in Kuykendall's mes- e to M. P. T. O. A. members. In letailed analysis of the convention istration the bulletin derives great sfaction from its discovery that of otal registration of 439, only 204 e exhibitors, whereas the bulletin there are 3,000 independent ex- ors in the country. Kuykendall gleefully reports that the 204 exhibitors operate only about 500 of the estimated 13,000 independent theatres in the country.

The bulletin closes with what it captions as "The Low-Down on the Great Allied National Convention," hitting at the drive for a $250,000 legal fund to obtain the divorcement of affiliated theatres from producing and distributing companies, which the convention authorized, and the speech by Nathan Yamins, Allied president, in which solution of the independent's trade problems by round-table conferences in New York was suggested.

"The suggestion was promptly buried by those who had other plans," the bulletin observes.

Dear Red:

Just a note of thanks.

Few exhibitors realize the cost or the effort necessary to make possible a running account of a convention and when I realizedthe manner in which you covered it I couldn't close my convention history without a word of compliment and thanks.

I hope that you understood that there were times when I couldn't give you time I know you wanted, but there was a lot to do and a lot of guys after one's time.

It was a great meeting and your contribution, both befòre and during the meeting, is truly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

Majors Study Acquiring of Erpi Control

Drake, executive vice-president of the company, said that, while he had been aware for the past year of reports that major companies were interested in acquiring control of Erpi, he did not believe that any decisive action was in the offing.

"There is a big distance between a meeting of executives and a meeting of the minds," he said. "If the subject is up for discussion again I believe it is in just as indefinite a state as it was a year or more ago."

An impressive array of honorary pallbearers included many Supreme Court justices and from this industry Nicholas M. and Joseph M. Schenck, Jack Cohn, J. Robert Rubin, David Bernstein and others.

The services opened with the Emanu-El Quartet singing "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord" and was followed by a reading of the 90th Psalm by Rabbi Nathan A. Perilman. "Shivisi," a selection in Hebrew, was next sung from the pulpit by Cantor Moshe Rubinow. After Buck's eulogy the cantor again sang and the closing prayer was made by Rabbi Perilman. As the remains were carried slowly up the aisle on their way to final interment at the Union Field Cemetery in Queens, the organ played the Recessional from Handel's "Largo."

United Artists, of which Burkan was a director, and Columbia, for which he was general counsel, remained closed until 1 P. M.

“Number” the Philadelphia Top, $23,000

PHILADELPHIA, June 9. — “Private Number” rang the bell this week with $23,000 at the Fox. It topped a field that remained pretty low in spite of being helped by a cool Memorial Day. The picture was held a second week.

Two other films earned enough trade to warrant part-week holdovers.

The $14,000 for “Bullets or Ballots” at the Stanley made it look good as a second week prospect for the Stanton. “The King Steps Out” took $13,500 at the Boyd and was held for extra days.

A surprise was the $4,200 secured by the re-issued “Private Life of Henry VIII” at the Karlton. It's the best figure the house has had in weeks. Decidedly on the weak side were “It's Love Again” at the Aldine and “Three Wise Guys” at the Stanton. “The Great Ziegfeld” ended its eight-week roadshow engagement at the Chestnut with a $6,500 gross.

Short Subjects

"Little Boy Blue"

(M-G-M)

A tender, sentimental story is built around the poem in another "Chic" Sale portrayal. Sale plays an old codger judge who visits his club every night and is the charge of his butler. At his ease one morning he is hit by a ball and when the youngster comes to get it Sale is stirred by the memory of his own boys. He befriends the child and they have quite a time together. He shows the youngster his boy's playroom. Much sentimentality is evident at this point, and when the child is given a few toys and leaves, Sale decides to live at the club. This is a rough outline of the plot, but the story is well done and the characterizations, particularly the natural ability of the child, should prove touching to all audiences. Production Code Seal, No. 2,030. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"The Old Mill Pond"

(Harman-Ising-M-G-M)

This cartoon rates among the best. The coloring, action, music and amiable burlesque of colored entertainers, condensed into eight minutes, makes effective and satisfying entertainment which will bring applause from audiences. The theme song, after the title, opens the film peacefully, and as the camera swings over the pond, frog characters begin to "get hot." A spiritual is sung, followed by a parade of famous negro acts doing their stuff in fine cartoon style. An amphibian Cab Calloway and orchestra playing and singing like the real one sets the pace. The coloring is dramatically effective. Production Code Seal, No. 2,-179. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"New Shoes"

(M-G-M)

A new comedy-romance innovation with shoes playing the opposites of Arthur Lake's and Jean Chatburn's portrayals. It is a novelty, well produced, light and pleasing. Lake meets Miss Chatburn while buying shoes and later takes her to dinner. The shoes, new and unbroken, cause them some suffering which they bear up under. Later, deeply in love, they behave romantically over the telephone while relieving their abused feet. The trick conversation and actions of the shoes is entertaining stuff. Sammy Lee, a Ziegfeld dance director, directed. Two songs written by Chet Forrest and Bob Wright aid considerably in the musical interpretation. Production Code Seal, No. 2,235. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Dog Blight"

(Radio)

Here is a comedy that has some refreshingly funny lines and, while the situations and business are standard stuff, it should, on the whole, be well received. Jack Norton secretly buys the wife, Maxine Jennings, a dog for her birthday. He gets involved in all sorts of awkward situations while leading the animal home and runs into more difficulty while preparing dinner for his wife's guests. Following the disastrous serving of the food, Norton with much exasperation and dog chasing, winds up in the house he had delivered for the mutt. Also in the cast are Edgar Deering, Barbara Pepper, Willie Best and Vernon Dent, a good collection of comedy names. Production Code Seal No. 2,151. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"Half Shot Shooters"

(Columbia)

The Three Stooges are generally good for laughs, with their completely insane antics, and this comedy is no exception in that respect. Three soldiers, they sleep until the armistice and browbeat the sergeant when they are discharged. Some years later, three tramps, they are decoyed into signing up for the army again, and find themselves face to face with that same sergeant. As a gun crew, they succeed in ruining the neighborhood and the admiral's ship, at which point the sergeant turns the gun where it will do the most good. Production Code Seal No. 2,088. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Polo"

(M-G-M)

If the audience cannot play polo after this short, it is because Pete Smith's gagging around has rendered it incapable. The film was shot on a California field, in beautiful surroundings. The training of ponies, methods of making difficult shots and finally an exhibition game provide enough interest. Smith's gags are of the fresh variety. A good sporting short. Production Code Seal, No. 2,-201. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Crime of Doctor Forbes"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—In a vigorous, straightforward fashion this tackles the subject of mercy killing. A sound, logical story, combining romantic love interest, comedy, a topical news headline and thrill-drama, it is intelligently produced and acted with realistic conviction. Basically an exploitation feature, the story content opens new paths to novel, interest-quickening publicity which, when approached from a controversial angle, place in the showman's hands a mass of unique advertising material.

Treated with impressive and sincere dignity, the early reels of the film contrive to build an atmosphere that makes the concluding dramatic sequences potently powerful.

Robert Kent, a young doctor, is befriended by J. Edward Bromberg, a famous specialist, and succumbs to the romantic lure of Gloria Stuart, Bromberg's young wife, during his absence on a research expedition. The scenes building the romantic quality give Henry Armetta opportunity to contribute an approval-winning performance. Bromberg is mortally injured and doctors Paul Stanton, Kent and worshiping Sarah Haden are called to attend him. Bromberg pleads with his colleagues for an overdose of opiates to end his suffering. Driven frantic by Bromberg's pleas, Kent administers the overdose.

The picture whirls into powerful drama when Miss Haden accuses Kent of murder. In a thrill-packed trial that has many comedy asides in a desert village courtroom, the evidence is presented convicting Kent. Alan Dinehart, the prosecutor, plays his trump card in calling Armetta to the stand to prove that Kent had a motive of jealousy leading to the killing. Miss Stuart's name is innocently brought into the testimony as Kent talks. It is revealed that all three physicians, Kent, Stanton and Miss Haden had mercifully given an overdose, permitting the jury to return a verdict of suicide.

As produced by Sol Wurtzel and directed by George Marshall, the picture is a searching expedition into a gripping drama that gives exhibitors much, in addition to the formula, with which to work.

With personal performances of a higher calibre, the picture should be sold with the intelligence which marks its production. It should return in that way better than average grosses.

Production Code Seal, No. 3,275. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Le Scarpe Al Sole"

(Nuovo Mondo)

More impressive for its pictorial effects than by reason of its story, this latest Italian importation presents an interesting, and at times dramatically exciting picture of modern warfare as it was carried on during the World War in the Italian Alps.

Sub-title translations make for ready understanding of the narrative for those lacking a knowledge of Italian. The film is said to have been taken from the war diary of Capt. Paolo Monelli. The war scenes, which make up fully half of the picture, are set against and contrasted with a picturization of the quiet pastoral life of the people of a small village set in the lowlands of the Italian Alps.

Especially effective are the scenes depicting the movement of an Italian ski patrol, mounted on runners, and dressed completely in white, in the nature of camouflage, and the stealthy attack of an Italian company, executed by climbing the almost sheer face of a mountain peak. The story centers about the manner in which the war tore fathers, husbands and sweethearts from their homes, the capture of the village by the Austrians, and the eventual recovery of the position by the victorious Italians. The most important character is that of the company cook, who turns hero in the attempted repulse of an Austrian attack.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 92 minutes. "G."

"Little Red Schoolhouse"

(Chesterfield)

An unpretentious, but entertaining, little film, this should prove satisfactory especially in the smaller situations, adaptable chiefly for double bill programs. It tells the story of a young boy who revolts against school, bums his way to the big town and becomes involved in a bank holdup, with the reformatory as the result.

Despite the prominence of Dickie Moore's name in the selling of the film, he has a relatively minor part. The key role is taken by Frank Coghlan, Jr., as the rebellious young man, while in support are Lloyd Hughes and Mathew Betz, the two players with known names.

Paul Perez's screen play and story recounts Coghlan's antipathy toward Hughes, fellow teacher of Coghlan's sister in the small town school, his feeling that Hughes is against him and his unheralded departure. He falls in with a tramp, through whom he is involved in a bank robbery. Although innocent, he is sentenced to the reformatory. Hughes, in an effort to get him out, is arrested as aiding the boy's escape. To save Hughes, Coghlan gives himself up, then is cleared when an alibi is found for him. Charles Lamont directed.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,015. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Bank Night Brief in For Missouri's Test

KANSAS CITY, June 9.—Fred Bellemere, attorney for R. W. McEwan, Bank Night distributor here, has filed a brief to support his demurrer to the charge filed in Judge Marion D. Waltner's division of the Circuit Court last week that Bank Night violates the state's lottery laws.

In the brief, Bellemere points out that there is no charge for registration, that it is not necessary to buy a ticket to win, etc. He stressed the fact that Bank Night patentees have gone into Federal Court and secured judgments in infringement of patent suits, and he pointed to the precedent set by supreme courts of various states in holding the promotion not to be a lottery.

The only issue involved is, according to Bellemere, whether there is consideration in Bank Night.

It is planned, whichever side wins in lower court, to take the case to the Missouri Supreme Court.

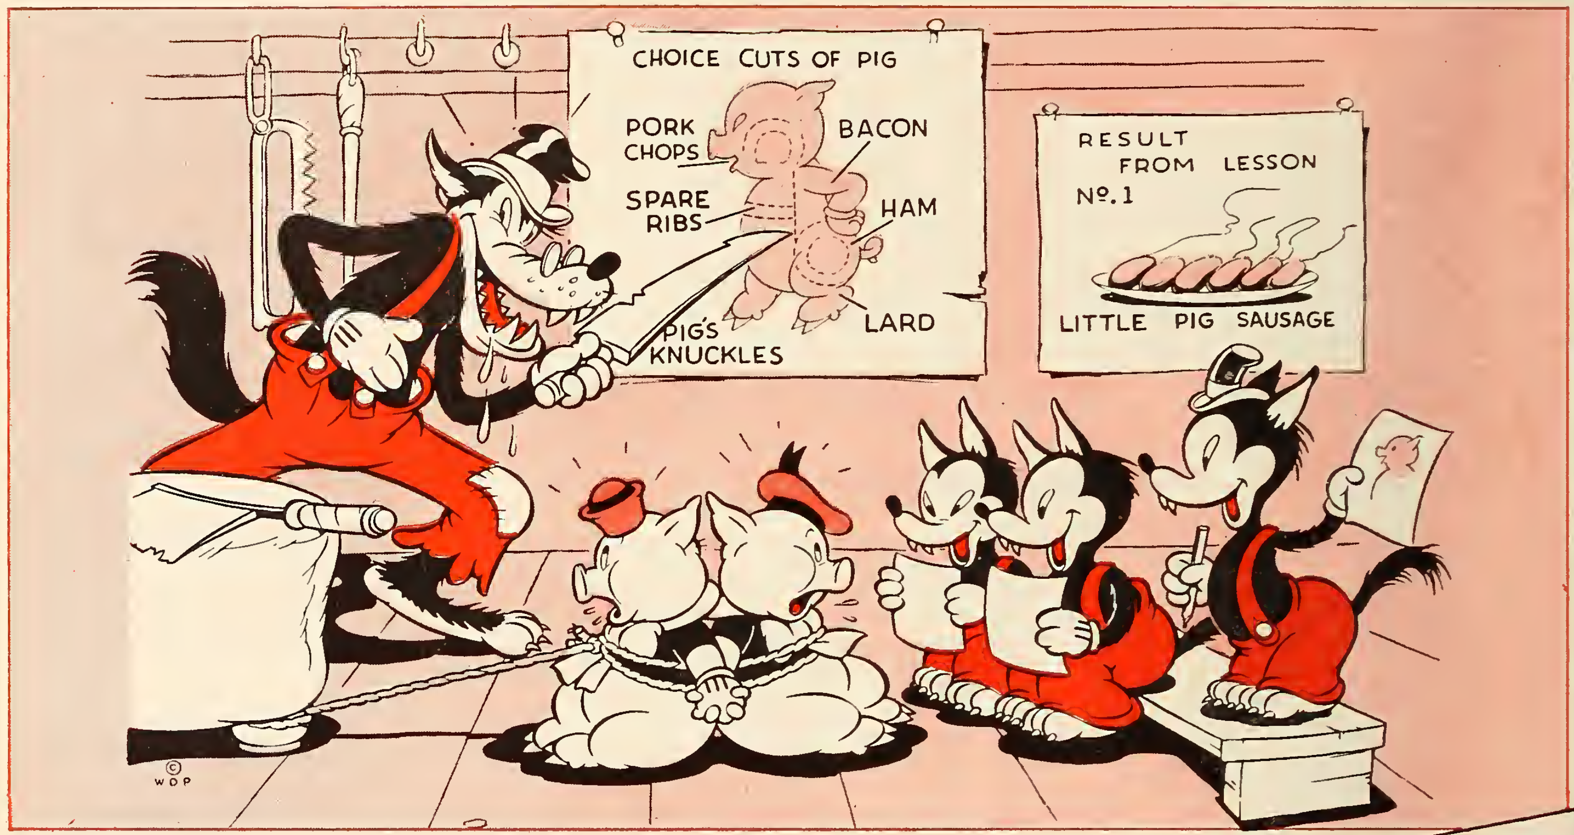
A SOCK HIT– Better than "Three Little Pigs"!

If your opposition beat you playing "Three Little Pigs", here's your chance for revenge! Book "THREE LITTLE WOLVES" before your competitor hears the news that's spreading further every hour...that Walt Disney has made a short better than the greatest short ever made!



W. G. Van SCHMUS, Managing Director of Radio City Music Hall, says: "Waves of laughter and applause echo throughout Radio City Music Hall at every showing of Walt Disney's latest production, THREE LITTLE WOLVES. It even exceeds 'Three Little Pigs'. This is the sort of short feature you can afford to bill not only in newspaper ads but on the marquee as well."

JOHN WRIGHT of the Rivoli Theatre says: "Greater than 'Three Little Pigs'! Sends my audiences into spasms of laughter. Storm of applause greets each showing. It's Walt Disney's best. Watch this one walk away with the Academy Short Subject Award this year!"

"Is it as good as 'Three Little Pigs'? The answer is emphatically 'yes'!" — Film Daily

"A memorable chapter in the great series of Silly Symphonies. A masterpiece." — N. Y. Herald-Tribune

"Holds its own with anything Disney has done." — Showmen's Trade Review

"A sheer triumph. Is manifestly advertisable. Altogether excellent!" — Motion Picture Herald

"The best Disney since 'Three Little Pigs'. Should get heavy billing." — Independent Exhibitor Film Bulletin

No Stopping It

Dresden, Tenn., June 10.—A little thing like the enforced absence of one reel of a feature is not enough to stop the show at the Uptown here. The operator set the next reel in the magazine and continued the show without a break—and nobody even missed the reel.

St. Louis, June 10.—Elimination of double features, cut-rate price scales and bargain hours will be the aim of a conference to be held between Fred Wehrenberg, M.P.T.O. head, and Harry Arthur of F. & M. within a few days.

ERPI RATES CUT TO RCA'S LEVEL

Licensees Are Notified Agreements Will Be Readjusted

Electrical Research Products, Inc., will meet RCA Photophone's new sound recording license terms by immediately adjusting its license agreements to correspond with those obtained from RCA late last week by Twentieth Century-Fox and Columbia. All Erpi licensees were advised by the equipment company yesterday of the impending rate changes.

Erpi's decision to meet RCA's new low royalty scale means appreciable reductions in recording costs for the entire production end of the industry. Moreover, it is learned, Erpi is prepared to make even further downward adjustments of its royalty schedules in the event RCA moves to lower its rates below the forthcoming Erpi level. Whether or not the indicated rate "war" develops is understood to hinge upon any further decrease in RCA's schedules.

Erpi's new reduced rates are not expected to make that company's licensing agreement identical with RCA's. It is learned, however, that while the basis for computing Erpi's new royalty charges may differ from that adopted by RCA, the net cost result will be equally advantageous to the former's licensees.

Erpi's recording rate adjustments are the direct result of the closing of new 10-year license agreements by RCA Photophone with Twentieth Century-Fox and Columbia at appreciably lower royalties than either producer had had before. In addition, the Erpi decision was influenced by new RCA negotiations with other major studios, which are still under way. The two license agreements closed last week represent the first

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, June 10.—New Deal agencies planning to publicize themselves in films were jittery this week over the threat of a Congressional investigation next year which would inquire into the authority by which funds were diverted from the purposes intended by Congress to the making of pictures.

Adapted from Mignon G. Eberhart's sensational best-selling story of high-society homicide, produced by Warner Bros. and backed by the company's nationwide Clue Club promotion, this baffling murder-mystery affords a talented cast, led by Lyle Talbot, Marguerite Churchill, and Claire Dodd, splendid opportunities to match their wits against the screen's first blue-blooded killer. Also featured are Virginia Brissac, William Davidson, John Eldredge, Gordon Elliott, Joseph Crehan, and Florence Fair, directed by Frank McDonald. A First National Picture. Released June 13th.

Last month there were 23 openings here. Of these, 10 were American, eight German and three Austrian.

Miklos Laszlo, prominent Hungarian writer and actor, made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain an injunction against showing in Hungary of Paramount's "Desire," which is still holding up in an exceptional first run showing. Laszlo claimed that the picture was based on a one-act play written by him and declared both play and film opened in the same manner. The court decided there were no grounds for an injunction, as the incident with which the picture opens actually happened in Odessa in 1900, and since then has, therefore, become common property.

each company is willing to make. The final procedure for deciding on means for putting the indicated concessions into effect has not been decided, Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, said yesterday on his arrival here from Washington. Kuykendall said that the M.P.T.O.A. hoped that the distributors could see their way clear to agreeing at a joint meeting on the procedure to be adopted and advising the exhibitor committee of their decisions. This would make it unnecessary for the committee to hold subsequent meetings with the distributors, either jointly or en masse.

If company objections to a joint session of distributors are raised, indications are that the committee would be obliged to re-visit the nine distributors in order to receive their final decisions on the new season concessions.

The exhibitor committee which will represent the M.P.T.O.A. at the three meetings being held today and tomorrow will consist of Kuykendall, O. C. Lam, Lewen Pizor, Jack Miller and, possibly, Walter Vincent. G. B. probably will be represented by Jeffrey Bernerd, Arthur Lee and George Weeks; Twentieth Century-Fox by John D. Clark and United Artists by George J. Schaefer and Paul Lazarus.

K. C. Men Hope for Hot Weather Pickup

Kansas City, June 10.—Theatremen are hoping for hot weather! Business has been off since the first of the year for exhibitors here and in the territory. Hot weather, exhibitors with cooling systems hope, will drive the public into theatres.

Unusually cool weather all spring has stimulated participation in sports and outdoor activities, attendance at baseball games, more and more of which are being held at night, races, and so on. Out in the territory, in the smaller towns, as well as in Kansas City, a great many are playing soft ball. The game afforded theatres stiff competition last summer. Indications are it will offer stiffer opposition this year.

In Kansas City, where business seems to be more generally off than elsewhere, double bills, cash and premium giveaways and stunts have reached the highest peak in the city's history.

One factor that helps explain the business drop in spots out in the territory is that no more Government money is going into the hands of farmers.

"March of Time No. 6"

(RKO)

Interest, entertainment and significance lie in this sixth issue of the second year of "March of Time." The three episodes tell, in punchy, often dramatic and occasionally amusing fashion, of the hopeful, helpless situation in which the remnant of the once-great House of Habsburg finds itself in Austria; of the beginnings of the gigantic drive planned by social welfare agencies to prevent small boys in deadly environments from becoming gun-toting, crime-pursuing young men; of the laugh-provoking competition between Dallas and Fort Worth for the honor of being the key city of the Texas Centennial.

Of deepest significance and dramatic strength is the sequence on the juvenile crime drive. Stemming from the active beginning of the drive at a recent convention, the film presents the case history of a typical boy, picturing him going from childhood slums by devious paths into the shadow of the electric chair. Contrasted is the playground and supervised sports program of welfare organizations.

The plight of the Habsburgs, who once ruled half of Europe and today are reduced to an almost hopeless state of watchful waiting and hoping, is recounted interestingly, presenting a page in European history which has not yet been turned. The hope of the Habsburgs centers about 24-year-old Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne of Austria, schooled to the duties he may never assume, and if he does, probably only as a pawn in the great European chess game.

The final sequence entertainingly highlights the great Dallas-Fort Worth battle of the centennial. When Dallas got the bid because it had more money, Fort Worth went to work, via Billy Rose and plenty of girls, to prepare a show of its own. Dallas retaliated in kind, and now it's a case of may the best legs win, while Col. Jackson Houston, only surviving son of the man who made Texas a state, wonders if they are celebrating the birth of Texas or the birth of musical comedy.

"Bold King Cole"

(Radio)

Plenty of trick effects and dramatie lighting, plus some effective and novel situations, should make this a highly entertaining color cartoon. Felix, caught in a lightning storm, makes for King Cole's palace and finds the monarch bragging away. His ancestor's portraits, hanging on the walls, are fed up with his tall stories and come to ghostly life, determined to take the wind out of him. There follows fast-moving and exciting animation in which Felix saves the king's day by ingeniously exterminating the spirits. Production Code Seal No. 0845. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Racing Canines"

(M-G-M)

Not only does this short give the inside on the breeding and racing of greyhounds, whippets and assorted dogs, but it has flashes of humor in the Pete Smith style that will bring guffaws. It is fine entertainment and the scenes that are burlesqued as monkeys ride the "mounts" will make a hit. Production Code Seal, No. 914. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Spooks"

(Educotional)

The Cabin Kids harmonize as they take shelter from a storm in a haunted house. Their singing is excellent as usual, and the obvious comic effects of the situation are mild. Moderately entertaining, it will suit the followers of the children. Production Code Seal No. 0874. Running time, 8½ mins. "G."

"The Sailor's Home"

(Terry Toon-Educotional)

The title gives the location of the cartoon's plot. A couple of old salts fall to discussing their various tattooing and a story evolves of the courtships, marriage and trials of one who married a mermaid, bested an octopus and was thrown up out of the water by the girl on his wedding day, all of which is told in flashback. The animation is good. This should round out a program. Production Code Seal No. 01079. Running time, 6½ mins. "G."

'Screen Snapshots No. 10'

(Columbia)

The highlight of this number of the series is a sequence filmed at the recent Acadamy Awards banquet on the coast, with numerous personalities and the presentation of the awards to Bette Davis and Victor McLaglen pictured. Bowling on the green, a fashion parade for stars, Al Jolson imprinting his knees in the cement at Grauman's Chinese make up the rest of the reel, which would be less than average if not for the awards sequence. Production Code Seal, No. 2,211. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Fast Friends"

(Treasure Chest-Educotional)

All-embracing as it covers the care, training and hospitalization of dogs, also their burial, this short will be found pleasing to most audiences, particularly the canine lovers. Many fine types are shown and human interest is worked in to strike a novel note. Production Code Seal No. 01040. Running time, 8½ mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Women Are Trouble"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, June 10.—Newspaper folk and racketeers are at it again and, as the cops and scribes combine to administer a liberal dose of what the underworld has coming to it, the result is pretty fair amusement for average audiences. Nothing much that is novel or different is introduced in the story, but the familiar stock stuff, abetted by all-around good acting and smartly contrived dialogue, situations and actions, are interesting and attention-holding. Comedy keynotes the show, but romance, melodrama and thrills have not been ignored.

Paul Kelly, a crusading editor, and Stuart Erwin, his star reporter, can't do much about it until Florence Rice, who wants a job, appears. Possessed of the faculty of always being the "Jenny on the spot," with a photographic mind and a camera, she gets the dope on the John Harrington-Harold Huber mob that puts it in a pickle. As alimony-hounded Kelly gets romantic with Miss Rice and real love blooms for her and Erwin, the mob kidnaps the editor and his protege, but Erwin arrives in time to prevent an elevated train from drowning out the sound of their massacre. Cy Kendall, as inspector, rounds up Harrington and Huber.

All the players have fat roles which they play with zest and vigor. Erwin, Kelly and Miss Rice are typical newspaperites, Harrington and Huber are similarly convincing as mugs, and Kendall is a different kind of a cop. A standout bit in the show is Kitty McHugh, a mobster's moll who has singing ambitions.

Produced by Lucien Hubbard and Michael Fessier, who also did the screen play from George Cox's original, and directed by Errol Taggart, the show's objective is to provide audiences with a pleasant hour's entertainment. This also is the angle on which ticket-selling showmanship should be plugged.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Private Number," opening this morning ot the Radio City Music Holl, wos reviewed from Hollywood by wire on Moy 18.

"Secret Agent," tonight's preview at the Roxy, was reviewed on May 15.

Lot of "Holes"

Of the 4,700 theatres in England, about 1,000 are "holes," Ralph Hanbury, managing director for RKO Radio Pictures in England, said upon his arrival yesterday.

Non-plussed, a Motion Picture Daily reporter inquired the meaning of "holes," recalling recently the remark by L. E. Kalker, Republic's representative in the British Isles, who said "flea pits" in England were "dumps" in America.

"You don't mean 'flea pits' by any chance?"

"Yes. 'Flea pits,' or 'holes.' They're the same thing."

Seriousness, Persiflage Mark Ampa Presentations

By J. M. JERAULD

True to form, Ampa mixed seriousness with persiflage in getting its new venture—awards for members achievements under way—yesterday, and Gordon White coined a new catchline—"glorifying the glorifiers."

At least two constructive ideas were presented by speakers, and these probably will receive consideration at later meetings. Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A., head, urged members to avoid too much emphasis on the metropolitan viewpoint in making up advertising material. He made a plea for the rural exhibitor who has so many things to do that he can't devote thought to advertising, because, Kuykendall said, "after all it's the last run accounts that turn in much of the industry's profit."

Kuykendall also pointed out that old-time stars are losing their drawing power and that a persistent effort should be made by advertising departments to make small town exhibitors conscious of the value of new names and to develop ways of presenting them to the public.

Al Lichtman took up this idea and said that distributors had learned through long experience that it was impossible to sell a picture, no matter how meritorious, without box-office names. He suggested that Ampa could include in its annual awards some

RKO English Unit Signs for 15 Films

With all of England's 4,700 theatres playing dual bills, RKO Radio Pictures, Ltd., has contracted with three independent producers for 15 features and it is planned to sign pacts with another producer for two more, Ralph Hanbury, managing director for the company in England, declared yesterday when he arrived on the Manhattan for conferences with Phil Reisman and to attend the annual sales convention at the Waldorf.

The three producing companies, which will make five each, are George Smith Prod., Faye Prod. and Stafford Prod. The last named will make the more expensive pictures at a cost of about $150,000 each, Hanbury stated.

During the quota year of April 1, 1935, to April 1, 1936, independent producers made about 16 for RKO. The pictures are distributed in India, Australia and Continental Europe. In Spain only one or two are released.

The RKO British representative expressed some concern over the

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

HISTORICAL interlude: The current discussions of plans for the majors to acquire control of Erpi from Western Electric and the A. T. & T. bring the subject of talking picture equipment control back to its starting point when sound was something for conversation and theorizing instead of the basic industry commodity it has become since the halcyon days of '27-'28. You may not know it, but back in those days when the development of recording and reproducing equipment was rapidly attaining the stage where its commercial introduction on a wide scale first raised the problem of how and, especially, by whom that equipment was to be marketed, several definite proposals were made for the industry itself to take over the licensing rights. . . .

Western Electric officials held meetings with major company representatives over a period of almost two years beginning late in 1926 in an effort to work out a plan under which the A. T. & T. sound equipment patents could be assigned to the industry which would itself license users of the equipment. At least three very complete schemes for bringing about this result were proposed by W. E. officials and considered at great length by members of the M.P.P.D.A. before the A. T. & T. subsidiary, known as Electrical Research Products, Inc., came into being. For one reason or other, all such proposals ultimately were rejected by the majors, the last of such plans failing before the conflicting interests injected into the situation by the Warner-controlled Vitaphone Corp. and its valuable sound devices. . . .

When Western Electric and Vitaphone failed to reconcile the claims of each to its respective place in an industry-controlled licensing picture, the electric proceeded to organize Erpi as its licensing subsidiary. Again the major companies go back to the early idea of controlling their own important tools for sound recording, but this time the suggestion appears to come from them with Western Electric, however, apparently lending a very receptive ear, what with Federal commissions hammering at A. T. & T.'s "diversified interests" and a sound equipment rate situation apparently staring the electric in the face as RCA makes its first advances into hitherto exclusive Erpi territory. . . .

The mushroom growth which stamps a number of glittering producing enterprises in England today has more sober observers there and here worried. Not this trip, but on his return from his last, Sidney R. Kent sounded a note of warning about the headlong spree generally indulged in on the other side. There was little startling about admonition for caution aside from the fact that his was a public utterance. From a high and conservative informant comes this:

> "A very hell of a smash is coming somewhere. British production costs are already higher than Hollywood's—wonder of wonders—due to all the stars and directors putting up their prices far above the American level. Actually, some of the companies have $500 or other nominal capitals and depend on getting loans to be able to go into production at all. It appears as if quite a number of them have been floated less to make films than to book space at some studio in or near London."

Joe Schenck, recently in from London and just returned to Hollywood, now has something to say along identical lines. The United Press:

> Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, who returned from London yesterday, predicted that the British are "due for a sad awakening" in motion picture production.
> He said that English movie producers are going through growing pains similar to Hollywood in the movie boom days. He said that money for production was easy to obtain and that the British were doing pictures on a grand scale, but were aping Hollywood. Inexperienced producers are making too many costly pictures, Schenck said, and cannot hope to get back the money spent on them.
> "When the hubbub dies down, there will be a sudden sad awakening for British financiers who have placed money in incompetent hands," he said.

Rumblings come from overseas about prospectuses, but none about the extravagances of their claims which are available for all who may care to read. Finances from the City—London's Wall Street—are not easy to get these days and, in that direction, at least, care is prevailing. But

CRIME DOESN'T PAY

6 THRILLING DRAMAS IN TWO REELS EACH!

Experience has proven that no matter what else is on the program you can rest assured that a CRIME DOESN'T PAY subject will send them out satisfied with the whole show. To exhibitors who have consistently played these wonderful little entertainments we don't have to expound their virtues. We want the industry to know that M-G-M, proud of the nationwide response to this series, is zealously guarding the reputation they have won from press and public. We are proceeding with new slants on CRIME DOESN'T PAY . . . timely, dramatic stories that are designed for Page-One publicity breaks at the time of release. (By the way, the phenomenal newspaper space piled up by "Hit and Run Driver" throughout the nation, editorials, news stories, picture publicity, etc., has broken all existing publicity records for ANY short subject.) M-G-M will continue to give this series the feature-value production with feature-value casts and directors that actually lifts them out of the short category. And as in the past, which developed stars like Robert Taylor, Edward Norris, etc., the casts will present new, outstanding talents.

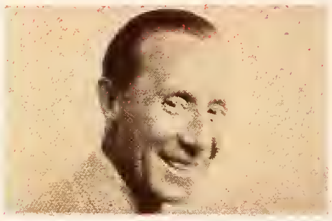
10 M-G-M MINIATURES

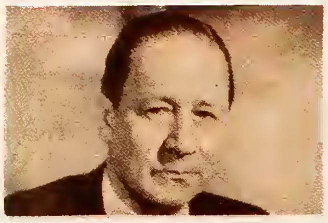
THREE BRILLIANT PERSONALITIES BEHIND THE SERIES!

The carefully thought-out program of M-G-M shorts for next season covers a wide range of audience interests. We honestly feel that nowhere else could a theatre obtain show-building elements so absorbing and entertaining as those provided by the Miniature series.



CHARLES 'CHIC' SALE

His "Perfect Tribute" did more to win new patrons to theatres than any film of the year, long or short, and what publicity it got. 'Chic' Sale is one of the greatest character actors of our time. He has new, distinguished impersonations for next season to delight your audiences.



ROBERT BENCHLEY

A new, refreshing personality for the screen! Already famous in literary fields, Benchley brings to pictures a casual quality of genuine humor that has won him an immediate and enthusiastic public. His first Miniature took the prize for Best Short of the Year. Watch for "How to Cure a Cold."

CAREY WILSON

Another brilliant talent for this interesting series. He has long been a famed writer of outstanding feature pictures. He wrote and delivered the dialogue for the fascinating "Pitcairn Island" featurettes of the past season...and audiences demanded more!

The well-known critic of the N. Y. Harman-Ising have displayed a real talent." How wise of these showmen to refuse to limit their product to a tiresome repetition of any one or two set characters. Cleverness of theme, beauty of technicolor-reproduction and distinguished symphonic musical effects make Happy Harmonies the class cartoons of the industry.

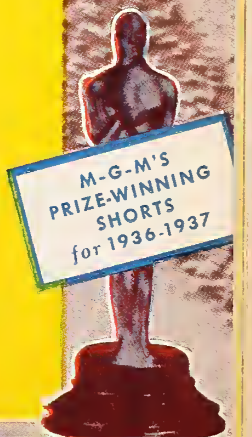
for 1936-1937

15 YEARS AGO!

In 1921 Hal Roach the famed comedy producer collected a flock of assorted kids and started "OUR GANG" comedies. Probably in no other phase of motion pictures has any idea retained its hold on the American public so steadfastly year after year. The Gang is as American as baseball and the circus, and there's no age limit to its enjoyment. Their series for 1936-37 will feature "Spanky" McFarland, supported by Darla Hood, "Alfalfa" Switzer, Billy "Buckwheat" Thomas, Baby Patsy. Fred Newmeyer, who directed "The Pinch Singer" and "Arbor Day" will direct. This year "Our Gang" went on a personal appearance tour and it was no surprise that they broke box-office records.

12 OUR GANG COMEDIES (1 REEL Each)



"HE'S JUST PLAIN PETE SMITH, AN AMERICAN GUY WITH A GREAT SENSE OF HUMOR!"

That's how one exhibitor sized him up! No sir, he doesn't wear a monocle or spout a lot of phoney theories about Art in the movies. He's just another American named SMITH, with a delicious funny bone and a happy faculty for observing his fellow-citizens in action and making swell cracks about the globe we spin on. He's accumulated a world-wide reputation during the five years he's been M-G-M's ace screen commentator, and he's better than ever. The variety of his recent subjects, such as "Audioscopiks," "Airhoppers," "Jonker Diamond" (what publicity it got!), will be extended. Whether it's the world of sports or adventure, animal, vegetable or mineral life, if it lends itself to his keen and comic handling he'll do it. Your program's bright spot in 36-37!

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Earthworm Tractors"

(First National)

Hollywood, June 11.—With vigorous hilarity as his keynote, Joe E. Brown here brings Alexander Botts, the famous tractor salesman of William Hazlett Upson's magazine stories to life. The picture gives incident after incident from the career of Botts, a self-styled natural-born salesman, with each one topping its predecessor as a laugh-provoker until in the last sequence when Brown, demonstrating, rides Guy Kibbee, a tractor prospect, over a callapsing trestle, adding suspense which will floor the spectators who may have survived previous efforts to knock them into the aisles with laughter.

Brown, ever sure of himself, stumbles into success after outlandish blunders. In his first demonstration, to Kibbee, he leaves Guy stranded in a tractor that is running wild through a swamp. This escapade brings him an order from William Davidson, Kibbee's business competitor. Later, on his own, he moves Kibbee's house at night to the wrong address. During his adventures he courts Carol Hughes and later decides he loves June Travis, Kibbee's daughter, messing his love affairs as efficiently as his business. However, he finally wins Miss Travis.

Richard Macauley, Joe Traub and Hugh Cummings wrote the screen play, contributing smart dialogue, and director Ray Enright has routined the action for comedy punch. Supporting cast includes Joseph Crehan, Gene Lockhart, Dick Foran and Olin Howland, who aid the merriment by straight performances. The Sam Bischoff production combines the elements tastefully and Arthur Todd's photography is above average.

The picture should add to Brown's following and click generally.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,076. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Wellington Pike Goes West"

(Maurice O'Neill Prod.-State Rights)

Hollywood, June 11.—Typical wild west, production of which takes a satirical twist, this is aimed directly at the patronage contingents that enthuse to cowboy-tenderfoot-badman stuff. In the title role Russell Gleason, writer of lurid western yarns, goes west. The townfolk, aided and abetted by Virginia Carroll, with whom Gleason has fallen in love, conspire to give him a thrill action reception outdoing in excitement anything conceived by his fertile mind.

Turning to burlesque, a gang of real desperadoes headed by Jack LaRue, bankrobbing bent, swoop down on the town and its celebrants. To the tune of much gun-popping and comic, hair-raising adventure, tenderfoot author Gleason outwits and captures bad man LaRue and saves the town's finances from spoilation.

Impressionable youngsters and imaginative western addicts probably will find much to thrill and amuse them, but the quality of the entertainment probably will not excite run-of-the-mill theatregoers.

No production code seal. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

"King" Gets $67,000

Approximately $67,000 was chalked up for the second week of "The King Steps Out" at the Music Hall. "Bullets and Ballots" at the Strand garnered about $16,000 for the third week, or $4,500 under the second stanza. "The Princess Comes Across" ended with slightly over $32,000 at the Paramount while "Little Miss Nobody" tallied about $25,000 at the Roxy.

Use British National

Joseph M. Schenck was quoted in yesterday's Motion Picture Daily as saying in Hollywood that Twentieth Century-Fox would produce 10 pictures in the G. B. studios in England. The company's English production will be at British National Studios.

Bank Night Spreading

New Haven, June 11.—The Strand, Sound View and Windsor, have signed for Bank Night.

Short Subjects

"The Song of a Nation"

(Vitaphone)

Taking the familiar story of how the national anthem came to be written and embellishing it with an intimate and seemingly authentic touch, the producers of this short have made a stirring, historical document. It is filmed in Technicolor and the incident is vividly and colorfully brought home. Touching and restrained, Donald Woods, in the role of Francis Scott Key, plays against the dramatically projected scenes of the bombardment of Fort McHenry by the British fleet, anchored in Chesapeake Bay, and gives a finished performance. The slight thread of story has Woods conflicting with his wife, Claire Dodd, in government opinions. She leaves him after writing the famous letter on which he wrote the words of the song. A tieup with patriotic societies will reap dividends when this short is shown. The color is well-done, as usual, and the battle scenes are remarkably realistic. Also in the cast are Joseph Crehan, Addison Richards, Virginia Brissac and Gordon Hart. The musical setting is finely given by the invisible, Hall Johnson Choir. Production Code Seal, No. 2,175. Running time, 22 mins. "G."

"Home On The Range"

(Educational)

A fairly entertaining musical featuring Niela Goodelle, Fred Lightner and Nell Kelly. The plot of the film involves mistaken identity angles, resultant complications, comic treatment of marriage for money. A few well-spotted harmony songs by the Buccaneers' Octette and an excellent solo by Miss Goodelle enliven the piece. Production Code Seal No. 01019. Running time, 19½ mins. "G."

"Dumbbell Letters No. 4"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

In this short there is the usual collection of "hot ones" from the mailbag. Some are unconsciously funny and others downright stupid. However, some humor prevails in practically all. Production Code Seal No. 0376. Running time, 5 mins. "G."

Malfeasance Action Hits Theatre Heads

Wilmington, June 11.—An action charging malfeasance in office was filed against four directors of the Wilmington Amusement Co. and Topkis-Ginns Theatre Co. in Chancery Court here today by the Farmers' Bank of Delaware. The action charges James N. Ginns, Charles Topkis, his wife, Mrs. Vitelia Topkis, and Oscar Ginns with malfeasance in office as officers and directors of the two companies. Their removal is asked.

The bill alleges that the funds of Topkis-Ginns Co. were used wrongfully to gain voting control of Topkis Bros. Co., local manufacturers. The complainant is owner and holder of stock of Wilmington Amusement Co. The bill asks for an accounting, return of funds to Topkis-Ginns Co. and immediate election of directors.

Wilmington Amusement Co. is a holding company whose assets consist solely of cash and the Queen Theatre, leased to Warner Bros. Topkis-Ginns Co. is its subsidiary with assets of cash and the Arcadia Theatre, also leased to Warner Bros.

kind of an honor for the best campaign on a picture sold on its merits without the help of names.

It was a large turnout of members and company executives. On the dais were: Gordon White, Howard Dietz, Al Lichtman, Martin Quigley, Colvin Brown, Ed Fay, Ed Kuykendall, Harry Brandt, Tom Hamlin, Joseph Gallagher, S. Barret McCormick, Robert M. Gillham, Walter Vincent, Jack Alicoate, John Benson, Joseph E. Benson, S. Charles Einfeld, Charles McD. Puchette, Paul Gulick, J. Hood MacFarland and Red Kann.

White outlined the steps leading up to a decision to make awards by saying that it had been discussed for several years before it had been found possible to work out the details. Martin Starr was one of the persistent advocates, he said, and recently Milton Silver had suggested the plan anew. No exploitation and publicity awards were made, he explained, because of the impossibility of presenting something concrete to the judges. As finally decided, the plan had been split into four classifications—best advertisement addressed to the trade, best advertisement addressed to the public, best poster and best press sheet.

Winners were: Best addressed to the trade—Moe Kallis, Paramount, for 16-page insert on "How to Pack 'em In"; best ad addressed to the public—Leo Quanchi, RKO, for newspaper layout on "The Little Minister," with a certificate of merit to Ralph E. Lund; best poster, a 24-sheet on Joe E. Brown's "Alibi Ike"—Joseph Tisman, Warners; best press sheet—"Mutiny on the Bounty," M-G-M, accepted by Howard Dietz in behalf of his department.

Howard Dietz Toastmaster

The awards were bronze plaques mounted on wood, the original sketches for which were drawn by Hap Hadley, an Ampa member, and were developed by Anthony de Francisci, a sculptor.

Dietz acted as toastmaster after White had explained that he (Dietz) had been out on a bachelor party the night before. The toastmaster arose with an effort and said he hoped the gathering would forgive him if he

I. A. Renames Browne As Convention Ends

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—The I. A. T. S. E. today reelected all of the officers by unanimous vote, as the organization ended its convention here. The officers are: George E. Browne, president; John P. Nick, first vice-president; William P. Covert, second vice-president; Harland Holmden, third vice-president; Richard F. Walsh, fourth vice-president; Floyd M. Billingsley, fifth vice-president; James J. Brennan, sixth vice-president; Roger M. Kennedy, seventh vice-president.

An amendment to increase the terms of the officers from two to four years passed by the narrow margin of 10 votes. The organization will continue to hold conventions biennially. The incoming board was authorized by the convention to set up a pension and hospitalization plan. It is planned to attempt to have the Government require I. A. men in theatres at military bases and other Government institutions.

Browne was empowered to seek the introduction into Congress of a bill to bring Government service film operators under civil service. The placing of I. A. men in the many small, non-union theatres in outlying districts was urged. The grievance committee asked the organization to demand more cooperation from Equity in the matter of summer stock actors who do not refuse to work when I. A. members are not employed.

$15,775 Is Michigan Rogers Contribution

DETROIT, June 11.—Michigan theatres and exchanges contributed $15,775.78 to the Will Rogers Memorial fund, according to J. E. Flynn, divisional manager for M-G-M, who served as chairman of the committee in charge of the drive in Zone 12. Based upon four per cent quota of the $300.000 sought nationally, this put Michigan more than 33 1/3 per cent over the top.

In announcing the sum collected, Flynn expressed thanks to the various members of the committee, composed of local exchange managers, who helped to make the drive a success, as well as to all contributors.

The final figures representing the total collected during the Rogers Fund drive throughout the country will not be available for several days, at the earliest, it was indicated at the headquarters of the fund yesterday.

Wallis to Put Six Pictures into Work

Within three weeks after he arrives on the coast, Hal B. Wallis will place six pictures in work at the Warner studios, he stated yesterday upon his return on the Conte de Savoia from a five-week vacation abroad.

Three of the productions will be "God's Country and the Woman," with Bette Davis and George Brent; "The Green Light," with Errol Flynn and with Frank Borzage directing, and Paul Muni in "The Gentleman from Kimberley" with William Dieterle directing.

With his wife, Louise Fazenda, Wallis visited London, where he spent 10 days; Paris, Vienna and Prague, where he spent a week at Max Reinhardt's castle in Salzburg; Venice an Nice. The Warner studio executiv said he looked over a number of play and made two or three tests, but wil do nothing about these until he get back to Hollywood.

Only two features will be made i Technicolor, Wallis asserted. On will be "God's Country and th Woman."

Miss Fazenda will appear in "An It All Came True" for Cosmopolitar She may do one for M-G-M befor this picture.

Accompanied by Henry Blank Warner supervisor, who also reache these shores on the Conte de Savoi after a six-week Sabbatical leave, th Wallises left for the coast yesterda on the Century.

Seriousness, Humor Mark Ampa Awards

acted like a "milk toastmaster." Physically he may have been weak, but his wit was as nimble as usual and his satire as biting.

Ampa had gone through a number of phases, he said, from the "night club administration of William R. Ferguson, White's predecessor, to the present academic, educational regime." A session like this one in Ferguson's administration would have been "like a meeting of the Smithsonian Institute in Leon and Eddie's."

"Awards are getting so common," Dietz went on, "that we meet them everywhere—the Academy, trade papers and fan magazines. If this keeps up we'll be able to hire an advertising man for $75 per week and three plaques."

Then he got down to the business of introducing speakers. "The man I am about to present is beginning to be an annoyance to me. I meet him everywhere at these luncheons—Quigley, I mean the man, not the plaque."

Quigley said that if Dietz had looked at the pencilled notation before him he would have discovered that he was supposed to speak on trade paper advertising.

Ads an "Auxiliary"—Quigley

"I am interested in this venture," Quigley said, "because of my concern that trade papers should do certain things for the industry. I want trade advertising to be a definite working auxiliary. I want it to continue to represent the ideals of the industry.

"It was 40 years ago that the first industry ad appeared. There has been great progress. The industry's product has won the admiration of the advertising world. You men directly concerned with its production are deserving of the highest appreciation. I congratulate you and hope your standards will be maintained."

"Quigley is a dreamer," said Dietz before introducing the next speaker. "He isn't interested in what he gets out of it. Now I'll present another publisher—of sorts—Jack Alicoate."

Alicoate remarked drily that he wasn't sure that "alleged humorous comments" of toastmasters should be introduced in an occasion of this kind.

"I'm not interested so much in the type of advertising as I am in how much," Alicoate went on. "When I get down to the office in the morning—or the early afternoon—that is what I want to know.

"But seriously," he continued, "I think this industry has more competent men engaged in advertising, publicity and exploitation than any other."

Kuykendall was the next speaker and was followed by Lichtman. Before going into the serious phases of his talk Lichtman took up Dietz's reference to a $75 a week advertising man, and said: "I'm glad to know we can get one for that figure. Dietz's contract is coming up for renewal. We'll offer him your plaques and $50 a week."

A. A. A. A. Head Presents Awards

Presentation of the awards was made by John Benson, president of the American Ass'n. of Advertising Agencies. He gave a number of statistics on film advertising and said that more than 15,000 individual ads are turned out daily. Good copy, he said, should be judged by the honesty of its appeal, the impression it makes on readers, fair play to competitors. It is one thing to tell a plausible story; it's another to tell it with sincerity of statement and service to readers, he added. These contests give a stimulus to better advertising by recognizing the men who produce it, he concluded.

The judges were: Joseph E. Hanson, Hugh Philbin, Harry Carey, Frank Quinn, Ben Nash, Fred G. Cooper, Karl Egge, William A. Adriance, Gerald Lauck, Bernarr Macfadden, Charles McD. Puchette, Ed Kuykendall, Edward M. Fay, W. G. Van Schmus, Martin Quigley, Harry Brandt, Si Fabian, Elias Sugarman, Walter Vincent, Jay Emanuel, J. W. Alicoate, Ray Gallagher, Tom Hamlin, Chick Lewis, Joe Gallagher, George T. Delacorte, Jr., Gordon S. White, George Batcheller, James MacFarland, Red Kann.

OPPORTUNITY IS POUNDING

(on your box-office window!)

In "SINS OF MAN" 20th Century-Fox gives you another of the year's great pictures.

"SINS OF MAN" stars Jean Hersholt . . . in his first picture since "The Country Doctor". . . in a sensational performance.

"SINS OF MAN" introduces to the screen Don Ameche, radio star of "The First Nighter." His brilliant performance in this picture already has earned him stellar assignments in the 1936-37 program.

"SINS OF MAN" packs the kind of emotional wallop that made "Humoresque," "Stella Dallas" and "Sorrell and Son" the box-office smashes of their time.

The values are there! But to get all that's coming to you, you've got to get behind it.

"SINS OF MAN" is as big as you make it. It is one of the greatest word-of-mouth hits ever made.

"SINS OF MAN," forcefully advertised, will start packing your house from the opening of the doors.

"SINS OF MAN" is a production of which 20th Century-Fox is highly proud . . . and of which you also will be proud!

If you've asked for a screening, you've seen for yourself!

20th CENTURY FOX
THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

Robbins and 20th-Fox in Music Tieup

Gaumont British, the music firm looms as one of the dominant organizations in its field in the industry, rivaling Warner Brothers' Music Publishers' Holding Corp. in strength.

The Twentieth Century-Fox agreement was concluded in effect on the coast recently, with Jack Robbins, vice-president, representing the music company, and William Goetz, Darryl F. Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck acting for the film company. The contract actually was drawn and signed in New York. E. P. Kilroe prepared the agreement for Twentieth Century-Fox and Julian T. Abeles, Robbins attorney, for that company. Jack Bregman, Robbins Music secretary and general manager, acted for the company in New York.

Twentieth Century-Fox music is currently handled through Movietone Music Corp., a Twentieth Century-Fox company, which acts virtually as an intermediary between the film company and the publisher and distributor of the music, Sam Fox Music. Under the new agreement Movietone Music will retain its identity. It will copyright the music of the film company, which then will be assigned to and distributed by Robbins or Feist, under a royalty agreement with Movietone Music. The Sam Fox company will be entirely eliminated under the new setup.

Pact with G.B. Subsidiary

The English agreement actually will be concluded with Cinephonic Music Co., Ltd., which is a subsidiary of Gaumont British. Jimmy Campbell, head of Cinephonic and acting in charge of the Gaumont British music department in England, has been negotiating the deal in this country.

He left for England last week, carrying with him a copy of the contract, to seek the approval of the G. B. board of directors on the agreement. It is expected that such approval will be forthcoming, and the contract signed shortly, probably in London. Campbell is expected to return to this country in August, but the deal is expected to be closed before then. Cinephonic will continue to handle G. B. music in England.

Twentieth Century-Fox owns a 49 per cent interest in Gaumont British.

quota law, which was put into effect seven years ago and expires the end of next year. He said producers want a higher quota, exhibitors a lower quota and distributors are aiming for the elimination of the law entirely.

Hanbury feels that the British industry is not being helped any by the quota act. He said that for the first year the quota was seven and a half per cent of the imported footage and this has risen to 20 per cent. There is a possibility that the current figure may be reduced to 15 per cent, the RKO representative held. He is in favor of ruling out the quota on a footage basis and in its stead substitute a clause for quality pictures, one for every 10 imported.

"If fewer quality pictures replace the many cheap pictures being made it will be better for the industry," Hanbury believes.

About 175 new theatres were built in England last year and indications are that 200 will be constructed this year, according to Hanbury. "Building is going on at a rapid rate and there is a lot of buying in progress by the big circuits."

Business has improved tremendously and prospects for the coming season are very good, the RKO executive stated. He plans to remain in New York about two weeks and then return home.

Hartford Power Cheaper

Hartford, June 11.—Theatres and other commercial users in Hartford and surrounding territory will save $300,000 annually on current from the Hartford Electric Light Co. The reduction followed an agreement between the company and Joseph L. Shulman, attorney for a group of consumers including the Rivoli, who petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for lower rates. Beginning with this month's bills, an average saving of 12% will go into effect, with additional savings for theatres and others increasing their use of power over last year.

dent, reported yesterday following a meeting with G. B. officials.

The company indicated that it would make concessions on cancellations, score charges and other trade practice issues which would match those offered by other companies, Kuykendall said. The M. P. T. O. A. president and Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia represented the exhibitor trade practice committee, while G. B. was represented by Arthur Lee and George Weeks.

O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga., and Jack Miller of Chicago are expected to join Kuykendall and Pizor today for meetings with Twentieth Century-Fox this morning and United Artists this afternoon. With today's meetings the exhibitor trade practice committee will have met with nine national distributors individually, which will conclude the committee's current sessions. Kuykendall plans to leave for his home at Columbus, Miss., tomorrow and may be back here about the end of the month. In the meantime, he hopes that distributors will agree upon means for putting their indicated concessions into effect for the new season. In this event a second series of meetings between the exhibitor committee and the distribution companies would not be necessary.

Expect Skouras-RKO Case Will Fold Up

said to be virtually no chance of its being called for trial before the court adjourns for the summer term. By the time the court reconvenes next fall the RKO theatre's product deal with Twentieth Century-Fox will have expired, as it was a one-year deal only, made last September.

The case was based on the Skouras contention that the sale of the films to the RKO house day and date with competing neighborhood houses operated by Skouras was a violation of the latter's Fox franchise. Skouras obtained an injunction last fall restraining the 81st St. from playing the product and the RKO house has managed without it since. Efforts to settle the case were made during the winter, but were abandoned recently when it become apparent that there was little chance of the case going to trial before the expiration of the RKO deal.

Fire Damages N. O. Spots

New Orleans, June 11.—Audiences at the Wonderland and Newcomb here vacated the houses in orderly fashion when a fire on the second floor of the building housing the twin theatres caused $10,000 damage to walls and equipment. Kennedy Will Stay in Para. Adviser Post

Committee Gets Report For Detailed Study

Joseph P. Kennedy will continue in his capacity as special adviser to Paramount indefinitely, it was learned yesterday following the submitting of his first report on the company's status to a special meeting of the Paramount board.

The report was referred by the board to a committee consisting of Stanton Griffis of Hemphill, Noyes; Harry O. King of Allied Owners Corp., and Harvey D. Gibson of Manufacturers Trust Co. This committee was instructed to study the Kennedy report and return it to the board with recommendations for action at an early date.

While Kennedy's future status in Paramount remains in doubt despite his intention to continue as a special adviser for the time being, it was reported in authoritative quarters yesterday that a high post in the company has been offered him and that his final decision has not been made yet. The same sources reported that posts on the company's board have been offered to Frank C. Walker of

Prudence Trustees Stay, Court Rules

Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz in Brooklyn yesterday dismissed a petition for the removal of Stephen Callaghan and William P. Cowin as reorganization trustees of Prudence Co., Inc. Prior to his action Judge Moscowitz also dismissed a petition of prejudice directed against himself.

The removal of the two trustees was asked on June 9 by Clarence McMillan, attorney, on behalf of James and Louis Sandel, as committee for Benjamin Sandel, a disabled war veteran, holding $3,000 in participation certificates. The petition alleged that Callaghan and Cowin had taken no action with regard to the sale of properties valued at $1,622,678 for $100,000 in cash. A second accusation was that the two directors made it possible to rent two of the Prudence theatre buildings in Florida mortgaged for $1,041,700 to Paramount, of which Callaghan is a director, for a "small percentage of the theatre receipts."

McMillan, when Judge Moscowitz denied his petition of prejudice, told the court that in his opinion there was now nothing before the court and asked for an adjournment. This, Judge Moscowitz, denied and requested the attorney to present his accusation against the two trustees. McMillian refused to do this and shortly afterwards left the courtroom whereupon the judge ordered the opponents of the petition to present their side of the case. Emil Weitzner, an attorney, representing $1,000,000 certificate holders, said that his clients had no criticism of Callaghan or Cowin. The record of the two trustees was also endorsed by Meyer Kraushaar and George F. Corrigan, Jr., representing the Sabath Congressional committee and by an attorney for the Reconstruction Finance Corp., which has loaned Prudence $6,000,000.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"My Man Godfrey"

(Universal)

Hollywood, June 12.—Nonsensical comedy pitched to a satirical farce key, this can be readily tabbed as all-audience, all-laugh entertainment. In story content, production and cast values it has qualities that should make selling a pleasure. There is never a trace of seriousness from start to finish and at times it waxes insanely hilarious. The dialogue, action and situations all combine to accentuate the ridiculous theme. The whole film sparkles with personal performances of real merit while the character of the screen play and the direction reveal a keen knowledge of all that induces exhibitor and patron enthusiasm.

Some idea of the film's ludicrous content can be gleaned from the fact that suave William Powell is introduced as a trash dump derelict. He is found on the dump and claimed by feather-brained Carole Lombard as candidate for first prize in a scavenger hunt. After he has given her snobbish, socialite sister, Gail Patrick, a verbal and physical shellacing he becomes Miss Lombard's protege and is brought into the Bullock family as butler.

There follows one of the nuttiest conglomerations of femininity ever conceived on the screen. Powell must please the addle-minded mother, Alice Brady, escape the amorous advances of the half-baked Miss Lombard and evade the vengeful plots of Miss Patrick, who hopes to see him end up behind the eight ball. A modicum of dignity is maintained between Powell and old man Bullock, Engene Pallette, who is striving to keep secret the fact that he is the scion of an aristocratic Boston family. The foolishness of the resulting situations sent the audience here into spasms of glee.

Eventually, Powell saves Pallette's fortune and rids the family of monkey-aping Mischa Auer. Incidentally, he teaches Miss Patrick a lesson. But he cannot elude Miss Lombard, who follows him back to the dump pile, which has been miraculously transformed into a gaudy night club, providing work for Powell's erstwhile derelict pals.

The Gregory La Cava production and direction are highly intelligent and reflect a keen understanding of what the public and showmen will go for. He presents a captivating Powell, a surprising Patrick and certainly elevates Miss Lombard to top-notch farceur ranking. Morris Ryskind and Eric Hatch fashioned from the Hatch novel a screen play which is a fine job of farcical wit, providing La Cava with all that he needed to utilize to the fullest the talents of the supporting players in a manner that should click with any kind of an audience.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, before cutting, 95 minutes. "G."

"Spendthrift"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, June 12.—Walter Wanger's last for Paramount has a pleasant cast and an improbable development of a routine plot, but with enough laughs to do nicely.

Henry Fonda is most engaging as a boy who has houses, yachts, polo ponies, a racing stable, but not a dime in cash. His last hope of saving his estate is based on winning the Kentucky Derby. George Barbier, his crochety uncle, refuses to give financial aid, but after a series of races, J. M. Kerrigan, the trainer; his daughter, Pat Patterson, Edward Brophy and Fonda all travel in the box car with the horse. After losing the race Fonda falls into the clutches of Mary Brian, a southern belle, and does not extricate himself from her stranglehold until the foreclosures begin to fly thick and fast, but he makes good as the world's best radio announcer and marries Miss Patterson for the expected finale.

Miss Patterson is charming in a small role and Brophy is funny as a loyal, tough mug. There are telling performances by the rest of the cast, which includes Richard Carle, Halliwell Hobbes, Jerry Mandy, Greta Meyer, Miki Morita, Robert Strange and June Brewster, as a tough playgirl, and Spencer Charter as a comic Kentucky colonel.

The somewhat jerky screen play is by Raoul Walsh and Bert Hanlon from Eric Hatch's original. The direction by Walsh is smooth and rapid and the production is excellent for the budget.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,289. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Music Hall Team Wins

The Music Hall baseball team won its fifth straight game in the M. P. Baseball League, defeating M-G-M 4-1.

"Pastures" Has Opening

"The Green Pastures" had a dual premiere last night at the Ritz in Tulsa and the Miller in Wichita.

Short Subjects

"The Wife of the Party"

(Vitaphone)

Ken Murray's and Sassafras' "Oh Yeahing," and their general carrying on as they put over this comedy, are the redeeming feature of an otherwise routine affair. It is one of those situations where Murray and Peggy O'Donnell, working in the same office are secretly married and the boss is sweet on Miss O'Donnell. George Watts, the boss, invites himself to a party in Miss O'Donnell's flat and means to propose to her. Murray and Jeanne Kelly, somewhat bewildered by the situation, play dumb. However, Sassafras' and Don McBride, a cop, intrude and mess up the whole farce. Murray, in the last scene hurls Watts' birthday cake in his face. The piece has some good funny moments and should generally please. Production Code Seal, No. 0937. Running time, 22 mins. "G."

"When Fish Fight"

(Vitaphone)

Big game fishing off Bimini, in the Bahamas. Well filmed and with Clem McCarthy's comment interestingly delivered, this makes an exciting addition to a program. Shown are the manner in which bait is trolled and the fish played. A particularly fine shot in which the actual strike of a swordfish is filmed is a remarkable closeup. Lurking sharks are shot at and the big fish is landed. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Islands of the Netherlands"

(Harold Auten)

Two islands lying in the Dutch East Indies, Nias, a small spot of land, little visited, on which live a group of primitive natives, and Sumatra, one of the largest islands in the world, well-designed and with a high grade of population, are the subjects of this camera visit in the Screen Traveler series produced by Andre de la Varre. It should fill a spot in any film program in highly satisfactory fashion. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Clyde Lucas and His Orchestra"

(Vitaphone)

A lively and tuneful offering, this short moves with a snappy pace and provides adequate amusement and novelty. There are specialties by the band, dancing by Dave and Dorothy Fitzgibbons, harmony by The Symphonettes and Lyn Lucas sings a comical, Chinese version of a rhumba. Production Code Seal, No. 0989. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"I Love to Singa"

(Vitaphone)

A pleasing enough color cartoon that has sufficient novelties and humor to please. It concerns a family of musical owls. Of four newly-hatched owlets, one has modern inclinations and is made to leave home. He gets an audition on an amateur hour and clicks. A family reunion and he is forgiven for his disregard of the classical tradition. Fine coloring and a trick ending make it an entertaining tidbit. Production Code Seal, No. 2,240. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Kennedy Will Stay in Para. Adviser Post

the Comerford Theatres and S. A. Lynch, formerly of Southern Enterprises, in line with a move said to have been recommended by Kennedy to strengthen the board's membership with men of recognized industry experience. However, it was learned on good authority that neither Walker nor Lynch is likely to accept the posts.

Other men of industry experience have also been urged for posts on the Paramount board, although the identities of those regarded as likely to accept the bids was not disclosed. Five new members of the board are scheduled to be elected at the company's annual stockholders' meeting on Tuesday and additional vacancies may be filled at that time or at a meeting of the board in the near future. The resignations of at least two members are expected if the board committee upholds Kennedy's findings, it is said.

Yesterday's Meeting Peaceful

The threatened proxy fight between the company committee and a coalition of former Paramount associates headed by H. A. Fortington, chairman of the company's executive committee, appeared yesterday to have been abandoned and one of the active participants in the Fortington campaign indicated that he would attend the stockholders' meeting on Tuesday only as an individual stockholder and not as a spokesman for an independent proxy group. The abandonment of this proxy move is interpreted in Paramount circles as meaning that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and other banking and investment organizations contacted recently by the Fortington group will not reenter the Paramount situation at this time.

Reports that Kennedy recommended the resignation of two board members and criticised the activities of a third could not be verified officially. The report is said to have dealt generally with the problems of board politics and their effect upon company operations; with executive and personnel problems and with the studio situation. Adolph Zukor, now in executive charge of Paramount production, is said to have been commended highly by Kennedy and general optimism was said to have been expressed over the company's ability to recoup its earning power with a revision of policy. No official word on the report was issued by the board, however.

Reports on Paramount theatre and foreign problems are understood to be nearing completion under Kennedy's direction and probably will be presented to the board some time next week.

Paramount observers attached considerable significance to the fact that neither John D. Hertz of Lehman Bros., or Fortington attended yesterday's board meeting. The two have been at loggerheads on matters of company policy for the past few months.

Studio Marking Time

HOLLYWOOD, June 12.—The action taken by the Paramount board of directors in connection with the report of Joseph P. Kennedy had no repercussions at the studio here. The general feeling was one of waiting to see what form the recommendations take.

Meanwhile, it is understood that Adolph Zukor is quietly gathering stockholders' proxies in anticipation of the Tuesday meeting.

Decision Reserved On Para Fee Appeal

expenses; A. J. Schanfarber et al, $75,000, and $7,808 expenses; Adolph Feldblum, $3,000, and $20 expenses; Archibald Palmer, $15,000; Jacob J. Lesser, $37,500, and Louis Boehm, $10,000.

In disallowing the petitions originally, Judge Coxe held that the petitioners, who are attorneys who represented independent intervening creditors of Paramount, should look to their clients rather than the company for remuneration, as the regularly organized creditors' committees were held to be adequate for the representation of all claimants.

The six appeals are the last petitions to be carried to the higher court by applicants for Paramount reorganization allowances. The circuit court recently upheld Judge Coxe's rulings in denying the appeals for increased allowances of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, attorneys for the Paramount trustees, and Cook, Nathan & Lehman, counsel for the Paramount stockholders committee and temporary counsel for Paramount. The higher court, however, reversed Judge Coxe's order denying allowances to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the bank's attorneys, Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, and allotted a substantial allowance to each.

Thomas D. Thacher, Paramount counsel, opposed the allowance of any fees to the last six appellants.

Hicks, who has been managing the Orpheum, has taken over Moore's duties. William J. Mahoney, who has been in charge of the Hi-Pointe, is now at the Orpheum. Homer Harmon, former assistant to Moore and press representative, has taken over management of the Hi-Pointe. No change in this setup is expected when the theatres switch to F. & M.

Leto Hill, who is supervising the St. Louis Amusement Co. for Nelson Cunliff, receiver, is reported dickering for a number of neighborhood theatres on his own. It is likely that when this circuit passes to F. & M. Hill may continue in his post.

F. & M. Will Take Warner Trio June 26

Also to Get Interest in St. Louis Circuit

Indications over the weekend were that Warners will turn over the Shubert-Rialto, Orpheum and Hi-Pointe in St. Louis to Fanchon & Marco on June 26. In addition to the leases of the three theatres, F. & M. will acquire Warners 42 per cent interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co., operating 20 neighborhood theatres, and now in receivership with Nelson Cunliff as receiver, thereby making F. & M. the dominant factor in the Mound City.

Contracts in the deal, which have been in work since the Government's equity case against Warners, RKO and Paramount was settled out of court on April 30, are expected to be ready for signatures the latter part of the week when Harry C. Arthur, vice-president, will make the first monthly payment of about $4,500, as part of the $385,000 deal, plus interest.

Negotiations for the 52 per cent stock in the St. Louis Amusement Co., owned by Skouras Brothers Enterprises, also in receivership, have been discontinued for the time being, but will be resumed shortly after F. & M. takes over the three Warner first and second runs.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THOSE who continue to maintain faith in Hollywood and the celluloid institution are about to enjoy the gratifying glow of throwing out their chins a bit more firmly and proudly. No one, of course, can tell what surprises the busy lots in the west are about to spring. It is, therefore, perhaps well enough to adhere to the available facts predicated on direct scrutiny of quality performance and film completed and showing or about to be. The preponderance of that evidence is quite enough. . . .

The stories of "The Great Ziegfeld" and "Show Boat" have been recounted, if not in this space, in the preview wires out of Hollywood and in box-office headlines out of the nation's key cities. They are standing four-square on their own and doing very, very nicely if you don't mind. This weekend pondering rather has to do with matters current or about to become so. It has to do, for one thing, with a picture, now in its second week on Broadway, called "Fury." Interested by appraisals from the coast, intrigued and then excited by the typewriter boys on the New York dailies, finally we took a look. We are going again. . . .

Sitting on the loge steps at the Capitol until a couple of seats came along was no inconvenience at all and besides, they use soft and deep carpets there. In "Fury," Hollywood, in this instance represented by Metro, hit out hard and valiantly against mob rule and lynching and filled each blow with the kind of sock that leaves its mark. For, in this story of mass hysteria and frightful injustice, is an indictment of scathing, pungent and prussic-acid bite. The foreword makes it clear that, if what follows should happen to remind of individuals and dates and places, they merely become "coincidental." Yet, culled from newspaper headlines but with dramatic melodramatic embroidery added, the highlights easily will be recognized as a bit of this from one lynching and a trifle of that from another. The sum total pieces itself together as what might be and, indeed has been, the disgraceful history of the six thousand lynchings of record in the last forty-nine years. And that, we assert, is a blight on the social escutcheon of the nation and one requiring penetration. . . .

"Fury" throws cold, unrelieving light into the inefficiencies of the legal system, the political boss, the smugness of small town America and it points out in bold and horrific detail how easily may be scratched and then inflamed the sadistic tendencies of the average American moron. This is not a pleasant picture. It is strong, drippy red meat, but it is powerful and effective. It induces thought and invites considerable morose and unhappy reflection over the sort of social scheme which allows such unpardonable matters as lynchings to happen. . . .

Frankly, we are skeptical about "Fury" at the box-office. Certainly and for the seriousness and the drama which are in it, Metro deserves an accolade for the courage which gave it birth. We extend the awards further to include Fritz Lang, the distinguished director of "M" and "Metropolis," whose job this is; to Bartlett Cormack and to Norman Krasna for their acid pens; to the strong cast which includes Spencer Tracy and Sylvia Sidney and Walter Abel, whose work as the prosecuting attorney we have the conviction to describe as impressive. . . .

"Fury," a commercial success or not, is Hollywood at its most intelligent and at its most serious. There are segments of the public greater than perhaps are appreciated by most within the industry who want something beyond boy meeting girl and who, by their faithful allegiance at large to Hollywood, thereby are entitled to have that wish met. "Fury" is of the sort which not only does this, but imparts continued hope that, as a medium for depicting drama, the screen commands recognition as a major force. . . .

Cohn expressed the opini that increased advertising approp ations for films are required in or that films may command a bet share of public attention in compe tion with the increased merchandisi appeal of other entertainment for and large scale advertising used travel agencies and beverage firms

erman Censorship Stirs Home Critics

Berlin, June 14.—Increases in the mber of American films banned for hibition in Germany have become pronounced during the past few eks that the Ministry of Propa-nda is being criticized by publicans controlled by state officials who, is believed, see the German theatre dustry ultimately being crippled by shutting off of a supply of Ameri-
n pictures.

The increasing severity of the cenship regulations has been felt espelly by Twentieth Century-Fox, ramount and M-G-M in recent eks. Permits are reported to have en refused on the flimsiest of pre-ts and are commonly barred on the ound that Jews were involved either producers, directors, actors or nposers of the music used. In ad-ion to the new censorship activities, nerican distributors here are con-nted with an increasingly difficult mit system which tends to increase cost of obtaining permits while chances of their films being apoved for exhibition are lessening.

Foreign representatives of Twen-
th Century-Fox, M-G-M and Paraunt were not available for comment sterday on the current exhibition uation in Germany. An industry icial familiar with foreign problems, wever, said that the German market s not been an important factor in eign distribution revenue for many ars because of the currency regula-ns which prevent the transfer of neys outside Germany even in the ent profits could be made in that rket. He expressed the opinion that that reason any increase in the erity of censorship or permit reguions within Germany was of le significance to the American tributors.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Return of Sophie Lang"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 14.—Light drama, roguery, comedy and romance are the ingredients of this story, telling of the regeneration of a notorious woman Raffles. Keyed to a vein of suspense, the dialogue and action are well balanced and move at a speedy pace. With effective application, these qualities, plus credible individual performances, result in a good average entertainment.

Supposedly dead, Gertrude Michael, as Sophie, in making her farewell visit to her London tomb, meets the romantically inclined Ray Milland, an American reporter. Reformed, Miss Michael sails to America as a companion to Elizabeth Patterson, a wealthy jewel collector.

Also on board the ship are Sir Guy Standing, an international jewel thief, and Milland. Standing steals Miss Patterson's jewels, and, though she is not suspected, Miss Michael admits to Miss Patterson that she is Sophie Lang, and promises to recover the stolen gems. Getting off the boat safely by placing the loot in Milland's pocket, Standing cleverly recovers it when he is safely past the customs. To protect his own hide, Standing tips off the police that Miss Michael has the jewels, but she, by brilliant, exciting application of Raffles' tactics after eluding the police, re-steals and returns the diamonds to Miss Patterson. The finale is her regeneration in Milland's love.

The realistic work of the principals is embellished by the performances of Colin Tapley, Paul Harvey, Garry Owen, Don Rowan and Purnell Pratt. George Archainbaud's direction takes full advantage of the production's assets and the talents of the players. The film is based on a story by Frederick Anderson. The screenplay by Patterson McNutt and Brian Marlow is smooth and believable.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"High Tension"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Hollywood, June 14.—Treating deep sea diving in a farcical rather than a dramatic manner, this picture emerges as a fast-moving comedy which should click in smaller houses.

Brian Donlevy, a diving expert with a Zioncheck complex, carries the brunt of the story, getting himself involved in scrapes ashore but gaining forgiveness from Robert McWade, his boss, and Glenda Farrell, his sweetheart, because when laying cables 30 fathoms under he is the best in the business. During one barroom brawl, Norman Foster befriends Donlevy. In appreciation, Donlevy teaches Foster the diving business, and later, when Foster is on his own, Donlevy saves him from a watery grave in the best picture tradition.

Allan Dwan directed the script, concentrating on the comedy elements and getting some very humorous sequences. Helen Wood, Romaine Callender, Jasper Sawyer and Hattie McDaniel are best in the support, with Sawyer scoring heavily in one scene where he and Donlevy push a piano at each other.

The script is the joint work of Lou Breslow, Edward Eliscu and John Patrick from an original by Norman Huston and Robert Bren. Sol Wurtzel produced.

Comedy is the best selling angle and should produce satisfactory results if emphasized.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,305. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

H. W. Chotiner Dies

Los Angeles, June 14.—Harry W. Chotiner, 50, prominent exhibitor and past president of I.T.O., who died here Friday night, was buried today.

Chotiner, at the time of his death, operated three theatres here. Several of his former houses are now F.W.C. property.

N. O. Ends Cloth Banners

New Orleans, June 14.—Theatre managers have been notified by City Architect Morris B. DePass that use of cloth banners across streets must be stopped at once. Theatre owners are not the only ones affected. Merchants are also included.

Refuse Seattle License

Seattle, June 14.—The Rialto, third run film and stage house downtown, has been refused a renewal of its annual license by the license committee of the City Council.

Granting of the new license was denied after protests by Parent-Teacher groups and ministerial bodies who objected to alleged obscene language and nudity of the stage performances.

Kill Vending Tax Bill

Boston, June 14.—A bill to impose a $5 annual tax on all vending machines has been killed in the Legislature.

Short Subjects

"Ceremonies in Bali"

(Harold Auten)

The somewhat overdone Island of Bali, which is fast losing its charm and isolation in the wake of considerable publicity via the screen, forms the subject matter of this number in the Screen Traveler series, produced by Andre de la Varre. Fortunately the film does not attempt to take in too much, concentrating on certain of the picturesque and interesting ceremonies which make up the life of the inhabitants. In particular the elaborate and almost frenzied cremation service for the dead is treated. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Bits of Brittany"

(Harold Auten)

An interesting and pictorially effective tour through the charming old province of Brittany in France is afforded in this number of the Screen Traveler series, for which Andre de la Varre was the producer and cameraman. All the customs which are quaint to today's American audience, and the costumes, which are even more quaint, against a background of attractive scenery and architectural accomplishment, serve to make up a superior sort of travel subject. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"A Job's a Job"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Many little known jobs are made known as the Easy Aces take turns reading titles. In their usual fashion they comment on the making of glass eyes, knife-throwing, raising of salmon spawn, piecing together prehistoric skeletons, meteorite slicing, feeding of sea cows and grating scavengers who pick up trinkets that are lost under gratings. It is interesting stuff and the Ace humor has its moments. Good entertainment. Production Code Seal, No. 01007. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Scrappy's Camera Troubles"

(Columbia)

When Scrappy goes out into the woods to photograph the animals he meets with little success, but when he returns home and tries to film his dog, his little brother gets very much in the way, with the eventual conclusion of a ruined camera and disposition. As a cartoon it rates as average in production technique and quality. Production Code Seal, No. 2,137. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Baltimore Men Shifted

Baltimore, June 14. — Several changes in the personnel have been made by Associated Theatres. Leon Back, manager of the Broadway, has been promoted to the head office as shorts booker and supervising manager of the Broadway, Rialto, Cameo, Apollo and Preston. George Lang succeeds Back as manager of the Broadway. Harold Grott succeeds Lang as manager of the Rialto. Wilbur Brizandine goes from the Cameo as manager of the Preston and Leo McGreevy goes from the Preston as manager of the Cameo.

product will go along with the transfer of the Orpheum, Shubert-Rialto and Hi-Pointe. Although no new contracts have been signed for RKO and Paramount product, F. & M. will continue playing the pictures lined up for three houses by Warners.

With the booking of "First Lady" for the Roxy, starting July 10, the first Paramount picture booked by F. & M. for the house in more than a year, indications point to the two companies getting together on a two-year deal for St Louis proper. Paramount recently initiated a drive for two-year pacts and several important circuits throughout the country already have signed under this arrangement.

Arthur, who had planned to leave for the Mound City last week, has postponed the trip until the contracts with Warners have been signed, sealed and delivered. Ernest L. Wilkinson, F. & M. attorney, who has been working on the deal with Robert W. Perkins of Warners' legal staff, returned to Washington yesterday and is scheduled to be back again Wednesday for final conferences.

Present." Jack Benny, earlier down for two, has signed a contract for a third. One is "College Holiday" and a second is "The Big Broadcast of 1937" with Burns and Allen as costars.

John Boles did not appear in the first lineup. He will star in one, probably "The Count of Luxembourg" with Irene Dunne as co-star. Burns and Allen, according to Paramount, step into the stellar division with three: "The Big Broadcast of 1937," as costars with Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles in "Hotel Haywire" and "Follow the Sun." Bob Burns, formerly down for only "The Big Broadcast of 1937," will star in one other as a result of his radio popularity.

Claudette Colbert's series of four remains unchanged and that goes for Gary Cooper as well although one of his four will be produced by Major Prod. Bing Crosby was first down for three, but will star in four. He may not appear in "The Big Broadcast of 1937," however. Marlene Dietrich's brace remains as planned, as does W. C. Fields'. However, Gladys George, scheduled only for "With Banners Blowing," will take top spot in two additional and Cary Grant will star in four instead of only two. Harold Lloyd stays at one, while Carole Lombard, mentioned first for "Spawn of the North" and "Panama Girl," will do these and two more.

Fred MacMurray, down for four, may do a fifth. Adolphe Menjou and Verree Teasdale, slated for one, will star in two. Two for Jack Oakie represent no shift, but George Raft will star in four, as against one announced in Chicago. Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles, as originally reported, stay at two as a co-starring team, but Randolph Scott now will make four, not one. There also will be one Sylvia Sidney and not one Gladys Swarthout, but three. Mae West will do one, "Personal Appearance."

New starring names, therefore, are Edward Arnold, Jean Arthur, John Boles, Irene Dunne, Bob Burns, and Gladys George.

Dual Bills Planned For National Spots

Dual features will be extended to a number of National Theatres' units throughout the country. Provision for two-ply attractions is being taken care of in negotiations under way and deals already closed for next season's output.

Although the new houses adding a second feature are centered in the west, the circuit of some 300-odd houses will not be on a 100 per cent twin bill policy. There are several spots which will not adopt the two-picture programs, at least not for the 1936-37 season.

Leff-Meyers Drop House

Leff & Meyers have dropped the Radio, Bronx, from the circuit.

RKO Film Budget Biggest Ever, Leo Spitz Asserts

RKO will spend more money on next season's program than in any year in the history of the company, Leo Spitz, president, and Sam Briskin, vice-president in charge of production, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday.

The studio setup with Briskin as head man is permanent, Spitz added. Negotiations are under way for an additional producer to join the company, the RKO head stated. If, and when he joins, he will work on the RKO lot, Spitz added.

"We are thinking of roadshowing 'Mary of Scotland' and 'Gunga Din,'" Spitz asserted. The first picture was shown the sales force yesterday in rough form. The latter is now in work. "We will also have the greatest lineup of talent ever," the RKO studio head declared.

Pandro Berman, who plans to produce eight to nine on next season's schedule, stated "Winterset" looks like a roadshow attraction. Burgess Mere-

Television Is No Threat—Sarnoff

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Television will not supersede other forms of entertainment, but will provide a new type of amusement, members of the Federal Communications Commission were told today by David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corp. of America.

Appearing before the commission as one of the first witnesses in the hearings on the engineering problems of the various radio frequency bands, Sarnoff declared that the American public has invested more than three billion dollars in radio receiving apparatus, which is 10 times as much as the investment in broadcasting stations and radio manufacturing plants.

"Technically," he said, "television

French Trade Still Affected by Strike

PARIS, June 15.—The strike here as it affects the film industry has not reached a settlement. Producers, distributors and exhibitors are holding lengthy meetings with workers and their syndicates. Exchanges and distributors expect the negotiations to lead to the reopening of the studios tomorrow. The laboratories are still closed.

The Paramount has been closed since Friday. The staffs of the Cineac newsreel houses are also still on strike.

Three Majors Talk Ending German Sales

Due to increasing restrictions, which are making it impossible to operate in the country, Twentieth Century-Fox, M-G-M and Paramount are expected to withdraw from Germany shortly, it is understood. The three companies are the only major American distributors operating in Germany at present.

One of the major companies has just completed a survey on conditions in Germany as it affects the film business in general. The report is said to be pessimistic and will recommend the closing of offices, announcement of which is expected to be made within the next few days, it is said.

Not only are American companies barred from taking money out of the country, but new restrictions being imposed are making it so difficult that the only recourse for Twentieth Century-Fox, Paramount and M-G-M is to stop doing business in Germany.

Spain, Italy and now Poland have also put the clamp down on money going out. France is understood to be thinking along the same lines, but as yet nothing has been done. Meanwhile, American distributors are closely watching developments for future action.

Independents Attack Low Cleveland Scale

CLEVELAND, June 15.—Small independent theatre owners who have expressed themselves as opposed to the recently voted Allied move to oust producers from exhibition until they have been relieved of the alleged oppression of independent circuits, have added to their complaints of overbuying and delay in designating playdates, that of excessively low admission prices.

They claim that even with the ad-

Richards, Lynch, Walker, Nathanson, Balaban

N. L. Nathanson, Barney Balaban, E. V. Richards, Frank C. Walker and S. A. Lynch, all ranked among the industry's leading theatre operators, were reported in authoritative quarters yesterday to comprise the complete slate of candidates wanted by the company's proxy committee to fill the five vacancies on the Paramount board on which stockholders will ballot at the annual meeting scheduled for today.

Uncertainty as to whether or not sufficient proxies to supply a quorum would be on hand to make the holding of a meeting possible when the session is called to order at noon today persisted at a late hour yesterday. Paramount officials said the meeting would be held as scheduled if a quorum could be obtained.

The five candidates reputed to be the proxy committee's choice for the Lange said he expected the French strike to end either today or tomorrow. Paramount closed its theatres, studios and laboratory before a strike could be called.

Nathan Burkan's estate, estimated at $1,500,000, is divided into two trusts, one for Mrs. Marianne Alexander Burkan, the widow, and the other for Nathan Burkan, Jr., according to the terms of the will filed in the Surrogate's Court. Mrs. Burkan's share is to revert to her son upon her death.

Income from the son's trust is to be used for his support and education until he reaches 21. The will was filed by Burkan's associates, Charles Schwartz and Louis D. Froelich, to whom he left his law library and office furnishings. His law books on copyright go to Ascap. Bequests are also made to his physician, Dr. Maxmilian Goldstein and to a niece, Adelaide Burkan.

It wasn't a gentle hiss, either. Nor was it indulged in by a few of the younger set over the house. It was a 100 per cent hiss.

ard vacancies were reported to have en sought in response to demands om influential stockholders for the dition to the Paramount directorate men of recognized industry experi- ce. The need of industry men on e board is also said to have been ged by Joseph P. Kennedy, special viser to Paramount, in his interim port to the board last Friday.

Considerable doubt was expressed to whether any of the five men hose names were advanced for the ard vacancies would agree to becom- g candidates. It was learned on od authority late last week that alker and Lynch definitely had re- sed the proffered posts. Several of- ials who professed to know the at- udes of Nathanson, Balaban and chards said that it was "extremely ubtful" if any of them would ac- pt.

fair, the Paramount representative asserted. There is no theatre building of any consequence going on, he said.

As to Germany, Lange said: "We don't know where we're going." Stringent restrictions are making it impractical to operate, he stated. The production moves in Italy and Spain are being made to see if "they will help our situation in those countries."

John W. Hicks, Jr., vice-president in charge of foreign activities, visited Hungary, Austria, Germany, Spain, England and Italy where he held meetings with the local forces. He returned on the same liner after a five-week trip. Roger Clement of the Paramount legal department accompanied Hicks. His purpose for the trip was to adjust contracts, a move which was found necessary because of the change in name of the parent company. Lange expects to remain about a month.

John L. Day, Jr., head of South America for Paramount, who has been here several weeks conferring with home office executives, will sail July 4 on the Pan American. He returned Sunday from Chicago where he spent 10 days with his family.

London to Publish Films Act Evidence

London, June 15.—The Board of Trade on June 19 will publish all the evidence before the Moyne Committee studying possible revision of the Films Act, as filed by the Federation of British Industries, the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n and the technicians' group. The move is seen as answering the criticism that opponents of the recommendations of various interests would have no opportunity to answer them.

No Complaints Over Labor

London, June 15. — Secretary O'Brien of the National Ass'n of Theatrical Employees, which presents its suggestions for Films Act revision to the Statutory Committee June 16, has no complaints about labor conditions in British studios put before the committee, but will support legislation to abolish "quickies." In the theatre field, he declares, refusal of some branches of the C.E.A. to meet unions might lead to trouble shortly.

London, June 10.—The C.E.A. general council is to discuss charges made by E. J. Hinge, prominent North Country exhibitor, against a leading American distributing company. Hollywood, June 15.—Irving Asher, production head of Warners' Teddington studio, here on a two week visit, sees an early change in the British quota laws. Under the present law, quotas are figured on a footage basis, the law requiring a producer to make 20 per cent of the footage exhibited in Britain, in England. Asher believes that within a year this will be changed so that dollars will be set as a standard. This will permit a producer to make four pictures at $250,000 each instead of ten for $100,000 each. Asher states that if the change is made, Warners will use bigger names and better stories in their British product.

Television Is No Threat—Sarnoff

is an accomplished fact, although it is not yet ready commercially.

"The television which is assuming shape in our laboratories will not, as many persons assume without warrant, replace sound broadcasting. The present sound broadcasting service will proceed without interruption. Television must find new functions, new entertainment and new programs.

"As soon as television has been brought to a point of practical service it will be made available to the American people."

The hearings, expected to last probably three weeks, are to be devoted to discussion of technical points, it was stressed by Commissioner Prall, chairman, and will be followed by further hearings at which details of television and other radio services will be considered.

The problems of the film industry in the use of radio communication will be discussed before the close of the present series of hearings by E. H. Hansen, who will represent Twentieth Century-Fox and the Research Council of the Academy.

Assigned "Cave In" Role

Hollywood, June 15.—Priscilla Lyon is added to the cast of "Cave In" at Warners. This film, formerly titled "Daegerman's Courage," features Jean Muir and Barton MacLane under direction of Louis King. Bryan Foy is producing.

Stage Player in Film

Hollywood, June 15.—Warners have signed Peddy Hart of the stage cast of "Three Men on a Horse" to play a part in the picture which starts July 5. Mervyn LeRoy will direct.

Mauch Twins Are Cast

Hollywood, June 15.—Warners will produce "The Prince and the Pauper" with the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, in the title roles. Billy is the boy who plays young Anthony Adverse. His brother has not yet appeared on the screen.

Not Selling Dickinson

Kansas City, June 15.—Warners this year are selling away from the Glenn W. Dickinson circuit, which was served last year. The exchange already has closed deals with the Beldorf, Independence; the Orpheum, Parsons; the Varsity, Manhattan, and other Kansas theatres in opposition to Dickinson.

In addition, Berman will make two Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers musicals, two with Katharine Hepburn, one of which will be "Quality Street" and the other "Portrait of a Rebel" in addition to a Lily Pons picture which will be "Street Girl." Berman leaves for Hollywood Friday.

The company's lineup next season will comprise 54 features. The figure takes in the six George O'Briens to be produced by George Hirliman, two Joe E. Browns, to be made by David Loew, and three Bobby Breens, which will be produced by Sol Lesser.

There will be a minimum of 22 big pictures, it was stated by an important sales executive yesterday. The announcement will be made to the sales staff today.

Most of yesterday's session at the Waldorf was taken up with a review of the current season's lineup. Ned E. Depinet called the morning session to order and read telegrams from numerous exhibitors throughout the country. He stated that the current season showed an increase of 67½ per cent in contracts over last season. He also spoke of the company's increase in distribution in the foreign field.

Cresson E. Smith, western and southern division sales head; E. L. McEvoy, eastern division sales head; Harry Michaelson, head of short subject sales, addressed the men and told them the company was starting in better shape than ever before.

Jules Levy presented gold and silver medals to "blue ribbon" salesmen, who have sold 90 per cent or more of the possibilities in their territories. Six gold medals were awarded for 100 per cent sales to:

Fred Horn and E. J. Frace, Sioux Falls; C. Boasberg, Buffalo; J. J. Clarke, Chicago; G. R. Giroux, Los Angeles, and W. V. Adwell, Dallas.

Thirty-nine silver medals for 90 to 99 per cent sales went to: F. G. Ross, Boston; B. R. Keller, Portland; W. C. Winters, Minneapolis; S. Gorelick, Chicago; P. D. Fielding, Oklahoma City; C. J. Dressel, Minneapolis; H. F. Goldstein, Boston; E. L. Dyson, Kansas City; J. H. Gruben, Dallas; S. W. Whitehead and J. Rubenstein, Los Angeles; J. B. Brecheen, Dallas; E. J. Epstein, Philadelphia; H. F. Cohen, New Orleans; A. A. Renfro and J. Lewis, Kansas City; J. Graham and E. Lebby, Pittsburgh; H. Melcher, Milwaukee; B. S. Bryan and F. W. Salley, Atlanta; H. W. Landstrom and H. C. Fuller, Salt Lake City; C. L. De Vizia and M. M. Ames, Boston; E. G. Huhnke, O. Hanson and W. J. Foley, Omaha; J. L. Raper, Minneapolis; R. S. Nolan, Chicago; R. L. Brentlinger, Indianapolis; R. E. Pfeiffer, New Orleans; C. D. Burton, Oklahoma City; W. F. De Frenne, St. Louis; G. R. Seach, San Francisco; R. F. Branon, Charlotte; J. A. McKnight, Cincinnati; M. E. Lefko, Cleveland; R. F. Crawford, Des Moines.

Phil Reisman, foreign head, spoke on the progress the company has made abroad and the opening of new offices in Brazil, Austria and Poland.

Spitz, M. H. Aylesworth, Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Briskin, Berman, David Loew, Edward Gross and Roy Disney are scheduled to talk today on the new season's output.

S. Barret McCormick will discuss advertising, publicity and exploitation; Howard Benedict, studio publicity; Leon Bamberger, sales promotion; Lou Gaudreau, accessories.

A party will be given the men by Major Edward Bowes in his Capitol Theatre suite.

Wires expressing confidence in the organization were received from Sam Bendheim, Jr., Richmond, and Morton G. Thalheimer, Richmond; John F. Kumler, Toledo; Mike Rosenberg, Los Angeles; Milt Arthur, Los Angeles; Rick Ricketson, Denver; Charles R. Gilmour, president, Gibraltar Enterprise, Inc.; Harry L. Fitzgibbons, Toronto; Ray Tubman, Winnipeg; Oscar Hanson, Toronto; Harold and Dan Vield, Minneapolis; B. & F. Theatres, Ltd., Toronto; Samuel H. Levin, San Francisco and others. One of the most interesting was from Vincent Youmans, composer of "Carioca," who is in Colorado Springs recovering from a recent illness.

At six o'clock the convention was guest of W. G. Van Schmus at a cocktail party at the Music Hall. Last night, the delegates saw "Boy Meets Girl" as guests of John Hay Whitney.

More or Less Personal

The entire convention wore plaid ties by way of inducing atmosphere for the rough print of "Mary of Scotland" which was screened in the ballroom of the Waldorf yesterday.

"What clan?" asked a diligent Motion Picture Daily reporter.

"We don't know, but maybe it's the Clan MacBriskin," was one suggestion.

"At any rate," came another, "we know one thing positively. It's not the Clan McDonough."

W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall, entertained the RKO conventioneers with a cocktail party last evening on the roof of the theatre.

Leonard Goldstein and George O'Brien were luncheon visitors. Both arrived from the coast in the morning and made a dash for the Waldorf. O'Brien had his right hand bandaged from a fall and did all his handshaking with his left. Goldstein said that two of the six which O'Brien is to make for George Hirliman will be in color.

E. L. McEvoy, eastern district manager, is annoyed by a mild case of the hives.

Charles L. Casanave, general manager for National Screen Accessories, attended all sessions yesterday.

Arthur Willi, talent scout, looked over the faces for possible screen material, but says he's still looking around.

Gordon E. Youngman of the legal staff was surrounded by O. C. Doering, a partner of Donovan, Lumbard & Leisure, and A. H. McCausland, A. C. Christensen, Garrett Van Wagner and Walton Arment of Irving Trust, trustees for RKO.

Edward Gross, production manager for Sol Lesser, who is producing three Bobby Breens for the company's release, was in evidence with Hal Horne introducing him to the boys.

William B. Levy, English representative for Walt Disney, heard enough about Detroit and automobiles to last him for some time. At the luncheon table he was flanked by A. J. Mertz, Detroit manager; Garrett Payne and Fred Bonnem, salesmen from the same city.

Bert Gillette, formerly with Disney and who has just finished with A. J. Van Beuren, will rejoin Disney's outfit in August. He sails Saturday on the Tuscania for a tour of a month. He sat with Roy Disney at lunch yesterday.

Kay Kamen was another Disneyite attending. He was responsible for every salesman and branch manager getting a Mickey Mouse in his room.

Nate J. Blumberg, who was on hand with all his theatre men, introduced a lot of the men to each other. Nate was feeling pretty good, after the Bar Mitzvah of his son, Lewis, on Saturday. The festivities continued all that day and were resumed on Sunday as well.

Pandro S. Berman, associate producer for Radio, snapped as he arrived from the coast yesterday. With him is Howard S. Benedict, studio publicity director.

Levy says he's going to return to England on the Normandie on July 1. Meanwhile, he's conferring daily with Roy Disney.

Barney Pitkin, manager of the New Haven office, is inviting the local boys to the golf tournament which is to be held up his way next month.

Bill Wolf, San Francisco manaager, says he's gained six pounds in the last few weeks. Part of it is due to a recent vacation at Hot Springs.

Bob Wolff, local branch head, managed to keep his men close together at the sessions, screenings and lunch. Frank Dacey, one of the real old timers at the exchange, is present and doing wads of handshaking.

Bob Goldstein joined his brother, Leonard, for a free lunch during sessions.

Harry Cohen, western division manager, has a gag for everyone he meets. He's popular with the boys.

Some disa and datas about the New York branch boys, with Bob Wolff: Max Westebbe is out for the toe and heel championship. Max has enormous gondolas. They're now hailing Lou Kutinsky as the "Kingfish" because of his resemblance. Eddie ("Moe") Carroll is the only Irishman with a Jewish moniker. "Uncle" John Dacey is a life member of the Treasurers' Club. Jack ("Gershwin") Ellis is a writer of unpublished songs. Bernie Kranze has a "rep" for picking talent and losing straw hats. Phil Hodes is the original Annie Oakley kid.

They tell this one on Ely Epstein, Philadelphia's crack salesman. He won't take "no" for an answer. One night when talking to an exhibitor the lights went out and the exhibitor followed to see what was wrong, but Ely kept right on talking to a vacant chair.

Mike Shulman covers the stick towns and for exhibitors in small towns he has been known to milk the cow, churn the butter and diaper the baby.

Among the Beau Brummels put Sam Lefko, Philly, up there with Abou Ben Adhem.

J. J. McFadden, Jr., covers the Pennsylvania coal regions and can talk back to himself in Russian, Polish, Hungarian and Pennsylvania Dutch.

Jim Finey took all the speeches for the record.

Jules Levy got a fan letter the first thing yesterday morning. It was written in French and Levy doesn't know whether it's a gag or not. He's having one of the French representatives interpret it for him.

A. Schubart and Mike Poller handed out the badges as the conventionites checked in for the morning session.

Bill Corum, who keeps the New York Journal readers well informed on sports, will give the boys the lowdown on the Louis-Schmeling fight today.

Bert Reisman is checking up on Don Hancock. When in Cuba recently, Don put a lily in the hands of several local boys under the weather and when they discovered the gag there were no kind words for A. J. Van Beuren's representative.

Several of the boys visited the French Casino Sunday night. Comments on the show were heard all around convention headquarters yesterday, so much so that a number of the out-of-towners have already made plans to attend the night club before going home.

Cooperate, But Not Merge, Says Whitney

Hollywood, June 15.—John Hay Whitney, president of Pioneer Prod., stated upon his arrival here today that his visit is in no way concerned with a reported merger of Pioneer and Selznick International.

Amplifying John Wharton's remarks as published last Wednesday, Whitney said that he will devote his efforts to the evolving of a plan for closer physical coordination between the companies. The objective would be an interchange of story properties and personnel with the holdings of each so distributed as to work for the common welfare of both.

Since the individuality of each organization is to be retained, a mutual agreement will be proposed whereby stories owned by either company will be produced by the one best equipped to handle the production.

O'Brien in "Daniel Boone"

Hollywood, June 15. — George Hirliman has signed Daniel Jarrett to a term writing contract. His first assignment is "Daniel Boone" which will be George O'Brien's first for the producer. David Howard, who directs the O'Brien pictures, has finished his work for Sol Lesser and has reported to Hirliman to assist in writing the script.

'Nut Guilty"

This one strikes a new note in short ubject material. Edgar Bergen, the entriloquist, and his dummy "Charley IcCarthy," act out some good, novel omedy scenes. 'Cities of North Africa"

There is a strong, but well-coated avor of educational value in the subect. Looking 'Em Over

"Seven Brave Men"

(Amkino)

This latest importation from Russia is more nearly a pictorial record than a dramatic narrative, concerned as it is with the adventures of a group of explorers in the wastes above the Arctic Circle. It is lifted somewhat out of the average plane of most of the importations from the Soviet state-controlled industry, in that it is characterized by some excellent photography and occasional drama, recording the fight of the group against the elements which at one point very nearly overwhelmed them.

Aside from citing the heroism and hardiness of the group, it has rather less of propaganda for Russia than most of the importations from that country. In Russian, the dialogue is explained by subtitles for those lacking a knowledge of the language. A subtitle to the film reading "And One Woman," refers to the rather unusual circumstance of a woman as the only feminine member of the expedition, the doctor. A somewhat insignificant romance is interwoven in the mutual love of the expedition's leader and the woman, which culminates in her approved request to remain with the few of the original group who will stay at the base camp.

The film's highlights are the air trip to the rescue of an injured Eskimo, the avalanche which sweeps away the dog team of two of the group, and their fight back to their camp, without food or skiis.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 92 minutes. "G."

Penn. 10-Month Tax Reaches $2,662,794

Harrisburg, June 15.—Admission tax receipts from theatres and other amusement places in the state, which went into effect in July, 1935, are exceeding expectations, the total for the fiscal year to May 31 reveal. Total collections for the 10-month period were $2,662,794, which compares with estimates of $3,000,000 for the full year. May collections were $301,634.50, or at the rate of $3,619,614 annually.

The bill pending before the current special session, calling for a new tax of 1½ cents per foot on film approved by the censor board, is still in committee. The measure is being held in reserve, with several others, to be brought out in the event of failure of the legislature to agree on a relief taxation program from other sources sufficient to take care of relief needs until next February, when the regular session convenes.

Roach's Writers Busy

Hollywood, June 15.—Jack Jevne, Hal Roach scenario editor, has his staff working on four features and 12 one-reel scripts for "Our Gang." The Roach studio is currently closed, but will go back into production between July 6 and July 13.

First picture to face the cameras will be an "Our Gang," which will be directed by Gordon Douglas, former assistant to Gus Meins. Next will be a new Laurel & Hardy feature as yet untitled. Later, Meins will start "Girls Go West," a Patsy Kelly-Lyda Roberti feature, Edward Sedgewick will start "Forty-fourth Floor," with Jack Haley, and Fred Newmeyer will begin the first Spanky MacFarland feature, "Colonel Spanky."

Form Partnership

Hollywood, June 15.—Murray Ellman and Al Feinman have formed an agency partnership here. Ellman was associated with the William Morris Agency and Feinman recently resigned from M-G-M.

Horwitz Tries New Stunt on Giveaways

Houston, June 15.—Will Horwitz continues to enliven the days for his "homefolks" with original publicity blurbs and bubbles.

Horwitz' four subsequent run theatres, including the swanky little Uptown and popular Texan, connected by an under-street tunnel, are called the "Horwitz Homefolks Theatres."

Horwitz plastered his lobbies with signs condemning "tin horn gamblers" when the Interstate theatres started Bank Night, but within a week had started two Bank Nights weekly instead of the Interstate's one. After four weeks, he closed his Bank Nights, announcing that such games of chance had ruined theatre business in Houston, and he had "promised the people of Houston he would not be mixed up again in lottery schemes."

The free lottery is the newest development. A few weeks ago Horwitz asked a reporter: "Have you ever owned a dog? Did you ever feed him raw meat? And then did you ever take him off the meat diet and feed him beans and potatoes? That's what Bank Night is doing—whetting the appetite of theatre goers for something for nothing until you can't feed them just a good show and satisfy them."

Holds District Meeting

Pittsburgh, June 15.—Harry Goldstein, district sales manager for Paramount, had four of his exchange chiefs in Pittsburgh over the weekend for a two-day conference at the William Penn Hotel. Present were John Himmelein, Cleveland; Duke Clark, Columbus; J. J. Oulahan, Cincinnati, and Dave Kimmelman, Pittsburgh.

Austell Is Transferred

Spartanburg, S. C., June 15.—D. B. Austell, for the past two years manager of the Strand, has been transferred to Concord, N. C., as manager of the Paramount.

Variety Club

Cleveland

Cleveland, June 15.—According to a bulletin just released by Harry J. Wessel, chief barker, the third annual picnic of Tent No. 3 is set for July 20, at Tom Reilly's Pleasure Isle, across the river in Kentucky. Reilly is owner of the Rialto.

The annual golf tournament is in the offing, according to the same bulletin. Rumor has it that Jim Grady and Joe Oulahan, who were tops last year, expect to hang up some new records this year. In fact, they admit it, and don't have to prove it.

The tent went on summer schedule this week in so far as the steward's hours are concerned.

Michael Greenburg, a partner in the Bard Amusement Co., Los Angeles, has been approved for membership.

Omaha

Omaha, June 15.—Tent No. 16 began its second year in its new and elaborate quarters in the Fontenelle hotel, moving there from the Paxton hotel, with a housewarming party for members and wives and friends. Practically the entire membership was present.

The new quarters are believed to be among the more elaborate Variety tents in the country. Formal dedication will be held the night of June 27 with a supper-dance.

20th-Fox Signs Writers

Hollywood, June 15.—W. Scott Darling and David Silverstein have joined the Twentieth Century-Fox writing department. Darling has been assigned to work on "Murder at the Opera" which will be next in the "Charlie Chan" series. Universal Sales Parleys Get Under Way at Astor

Finances Are Set, Cochrane Tells "U"

tomorrow's session to discussions of new sales policy and the new product, introduced Cochrane.

"For the first time in the history of the company," Cochrane said, "we are properly financed so that we can give you the kind of pictures you have been hungry for . . .and plenty of them."

After stating that there was "complete harmony and understanding between the studio and sales department," the Universal president praised the work done by Rogers in reorganizing and strengthening the studio and production staff and paid tribute to the ability of William Koenig, studio manager.

"Studio morale has increased 100 per cent," Cochrane said. "Rogers reorganized the studio exactly as you would have if you were in his place," he told the sales force.

"Our relations with all of the other studios have been improved, and this will have a fine effect on our future as we can get cooperation such as we have never had before."

Cowdin was credited by Cochrane with the success of Universal's new financing program and the men were told that Universal's new board of directors, a majority of whom are not industry men, "has no intention of doing what other financial men did in other companies. They are going to let motion picture men run this motion picture company and they are going to back us because they have confidence in us," Cochrane said. "They are in for life. They are not taking a 'flier' in the market."

"I accepted the presidency of the new company," he added, "because of these things and because I know we have a bright future. When the company was sold I did not sell any of my stock. I left everything in the new company — practically everything I have made in 30 years of work. I wouldn't have done it without a mighty good reason."

In closing, Cochrane complimented the sales organization on its performance during the past season.

Cowdin, introduced by Cochrane, placed his stamp of approval on the latter's statements concerning the Universal board's policy of non-interference with management and the company's financing arrangements. He related that the purchase of control of Universal by his company, Standard Capital, came about through his association with men who knew the film business and whose policy was to "find men and give them the power and the money to run their company."

He said that he believed successful operation of a film company depended upon four basic factors—the top executive and his staff, the sales manager and his organization, th production organization and a financia policy. Examining Universal, Cowdin said he found the executive sta headed by Cochrane and the sales or ganization by Grainger to be second t none in the industry.

"But," he added, "I found a produc tion situation which was impossible which required new personnel and reorganization from top to bottom.

Cowdin said that with the acquis tion of Rogers the production prob lem has been solved and that the ne financing has given Universal a soun financial policy. With the strength the executive and sales department Universal is ready to take its ne place in the industry, he said, and deliver pictures which exhibitors ar the company want.

Rogers, who followed Cowdin, to the convention that he would do h talking today. The studio head scheduled to make known the ne production plans to the sales force, ar his talk may take up the larger pa of today's sessions. In a brief tal however, Rogers recalled his own da as a salesman and sales executive.

Grainger will have the floor f most of tomorrow's session, outlini new season sales policies to the me The convention is scheduled to clo Thursday noon after a meeting of di trict and branch managers.

Among the New "U" Boys

P. D. COCHRANE, WILLARD MCKAY, EDDIE BONNS, F. J. MCCARTHY, PAUL GULICK, ANDY SHARICK and CHARLES E. FORD were among the "U" home office men who took bows at the opening session in the Astor yesterday.

BUDD ROGERS, a member of the Universal board and brother of CHARLES R., was spotted at the meeting.

J. CHEEVER COWDIN, attending his first film sales convention, drew plenty of applause and hearty laughter with what was, of course, his first convention message.

CHARLES R. ROGERS recalled that the last sales convention he had attended was held in the same room at the Astor. He presided over that one as general sales manager of Selznick Pictures at a time when that company had just lost a bevy of its first flight stars. He told the meeting the departing ones were "all on the decline, anyhow," and proudly read off a list of unknowns who would replace them.

ANDY SHARICK shook so many hands as the delegates gathered he looked like a complete reception committee.

WILLIAM KELLY arrived with a hat full of Boston jokes but found it difficult to gather an audience willing to listen.

DAVE MILLER, Cleveland manager, staged a one-man show on the train coming in, delivering his complete repertoire of impersonations.

MORRIS JOSEPH is celebrating his 21st anniversary as New Haven branch manager and had to interrupt his anniversary sales drive to attend the convention.

PAUL KRIEGER, Cincinnati branch manager, nearly had to interrupt another anniversary to attend. He celebrated his 25th wedding anniversary last Saturday.

JIMMY HOBBS of Charlotte likes the Broadway view from the convention meeting room on the eighth floor of the Astor.

NATE SAUBER, manager of the Buffalo branch, can't wait to get back and start selling the new season lineup.

HENRY HERBEL of Chicago still ranks high on the sales organization's list of well-dressed men.

JOE WEIL was busy making the delegates comfortable.

JOE GARRISON, St. Louis branch manager, and WILLIAM BENJAMIN, Kansas City manager, played pencil golf all the way in. Both lost their amateur standing.

PAUL GULICK was hours renewing old acquaintances.

FRANK MANTZKE, Minneapolis branch manager, was less impressed when he learned there were other offices in Rockefeller Center besides Universal's.

JACK CAMP, recently appointed branch manager at Milwaukee, is attending his first convention in that capacity.

CHARLES PAINE, NATE MANHEIM, CHARLEY LEONARD and SAM SEDRAN got big hands when introduced to the first session by JIMMY GRAINGER.

BARNEY ROSE, San Francisco branch manager, is trying to pick a name for a late July blessed event.

J. C. FELDMAN, manager at Salt Lake City, was met in Chicago by about $280 worth of good news.

H. C. GIBSON of Dallas and H. H. HULL of Indianapolis were both forced to miss the convention because of illness.

PAUL TESSIER is requisitioning extra contracts for the New Orleans exchange in anticipation of a big season.

JOHN EZELL of Atlanta swears that what they say about Dixie is true.

Charles R. Rogers, production head of Universal, yesterday virtually "took his hair down" at the company's sales convention. In the same spirit of frankness which characterized the speeches of R. H. Cochrane and J. Cheever Cowdin on Monday, Rogers gave the lowdown on his troubles in reorganizing the studio and by that frankness evoked enthusiasm wilder than company veterans later declared had ever prevailed before at a similar gathering.

"It is like coming back home to me at Universal City again," he said. "As an independent producer, I made some

Television as New Field for Film Foreseen

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Promises that film producers will have a new market in television were made to the Federal Communications Commission today by James M. Skinner, president of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. (Philco Radios) and chairman of the special committee on television of the Radio Mfrs. Ass'n.

"It is likely that television will depend to a very large degree on film producers for films for television broadcasting," Skinner said. "The required technique is the same."

Skinner told the commission, which is holding hearings on the engineering problems of frequency allocation, that television will not supersede either motion pictures or sound broadcasting, pointing out that picture radio requires a tiring concentration which is not involved in sound broadcasting.

"Television and films should not, in the opinion of the manufacturers, be serious competitors," he declared. "Television will never supplant the

Queries on Otterson and Kennedy Status Stir Up a Storm

By SHERWIN A. KANE

Three industry figures—Neil F. Agnew, vice-president of Paramount in charge of distribution, and E. V. Richards and Barney Balaban, Paramount theatre operators—were among the five new directors elected yesterday to the board of Paramount at a stormy annual meeting of the company's stockholders which sought to bring the relative positions in the company of Joseph P. Kennedy, John E. Otterson and Adolph Zukor into the open.

The two additional directors elected are Paul McClintock, vice-president of the drug firm of Sterling Products, Inc., and A. Conger Goodyear, president of the N. Y. Museum of Modern Art, and an officer of southern railroad and paper companies. No specific information on what stock or financial interest in Paramount they represented could be obtained.

Agnew was elected for a one-year term expiring July 1, 1937, and the other four were elected for two-year terms expiring July 1, 1938. They fill vacancies on the board created by the expired terms of John E. Otterson, Paramount president, and John Golden, director; the resignations of George J. Schaefer and Charles E. Richardson, and the death of Gerald Brooks.

In addition to the four new directors members of the board are Harry O.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE right for champions of the film to thrust out chins with pride and aggressiveness does not end with "Fury." The discussion of the other day about the manner in which Hollywood is putting forward, far forward, its best foot goes beyond. Not yet in release, but a potent piece of evidence to strengthen this argument, is "The White Angel." We have seen it privately and now we propose doing something about it publicly. . . .

In the middle of the 19th century, there was a war. Like all wars, some nations were arrayed on one side, some on the other. England, for reasons which make no difference here, joined up with Turkey and France against Russia and the fracas was fought out in the Crimea, that bulk of land which sticks out and away from the rest of Russia into the Black Sea. In London, scandal was brewing over the inadequacies of the city's district hospitals. The nurses were incompetent, dirty and drunk, often. In that early Victorian era when womanhood was supposed to be dutiful and quiescent, there was one woman, Florence Nightingale, who was not. Aimless social functions were of no interest to her; she wanted a career. . . .

Fired by the relief which cried for action in the hospital reports submitted to her father, this English woman determined the time had come. How she launched upon the unprecedented move of supplying the army in the Crimea with skilled women nurses, the opposition which she encountered and overcame and her subsequent success in interesting the Queen in the continuation and perpetuation of the work—this is the story. Unlike "Fury," a distinguished contemporary effort along wholly different lines, "The White Angel" is not angry and virulent in its conception or in its telling. It is an almost placid and calm depiction of a highly dramatic and purposeful life, placid and calm by the very virtue of its fixed determination. At the same time, it is told with intelligence, sympathy and warmth and with that identical distinction which made of "The Story of Louis Pasteur" such a noteworthy film. . . .

We saw "The White Angel" a few days back. Since then in mentally reviewing its high merits, we have been endeavoring to determine how it compares with "Pasteur." The answer is still in the jury room, but it doesn't make much difference. Certainly, this new Warner attraction is as good, if not better. If it merely were to repose in the same aura, that, too, would be sufficient to say for it. Kay Francis, as Florence Nightingale, here is given the opportunity to try her abilities on a serious, semi-exalted kind of role. It must be said that the results stamp her as an actress of distinction and that's a statement, now that it is down, which surprises us for having made it. . . .

Excellent throughout its length, nevertheless four sequences have taken major possession of our reactions as outstanding. One, the valiant disembarkation of Miss Nightingale and her band of nurses from the steamer in the pouring rain at Scutari. Two, Miss Francis' emotional reactions, in a semi-closeup, of the scene of filth as she first walks into the hospital. There is no dialogue; there is nothing aside from her face on the screen, but the drama which that shot conveys is unmistakable in its penetration and power. Third is a long and, aside from a musical background, silent sequence of Miss Francis as she walks the miles of corridors personally and alone, inspecting the condition and the comfort of each of her hundreds of patients. It was from this that came Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's inspiration for the famous poem, "The Lady with the Lamp." Fourth, toward the close when Miss Francis rehearses her speech which is her plea to Victoria for the establishment of nursing schools before the Queen's portrait, never realizing that in the room is the sovereign already listening sympathetically to that plea. . . .

"The White Angel" is a picture of significance. It will hold old friends of motion pictures and make new ones. It is a further demonstration that Hollywood, this time represented by Warners, has the brains and the tools to record on celluloid the worthwhile which scoffers have maintained they could find only in the theatre. Product like this makes incomprehensible the statement attributed in the Osservatore Romano, daily newspaper of The Vatican, to Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia that three-fourths of the film output continues "an instrument of corruption." Hollywood's artistic and box-office efforts may be, and are, of variable quality, but the good taste and the respect for decency and morality which have prevailed since 1934 when the Production Code of Ethics began to bite hard present their own challenge and, we think, furnish their own answer to the statement credited, perhaps erroneously, to the Catholic prelate, as all who have at all observed the scene are aware. Maybe the Philadelphia cardinal, who was sweeping in his denunciation of films at the outset of the Legion of Decency campaign, has just decided that that's his story and he's going to stick to it. . . .

lucky pictures there and I have always felt that that lot was always lucky for me.

"When I came on the Universal lot this time, I found only two real producers, Edward Grainger and Eph Asher—few personalities and extra low morale. The only thing to do was to reorganize. Since we intend to build a real first line company, I determined to reorganize thoroughly and build from the bottom. I wanted to give everyone on the lot a chance to prove himself and I have done that. I am glad to say that there are a number of people on our lot today who have proven themselves and I am very glad to retain them. Nevertheless, you must realize that it is necessary to run a studio with the head and not with the heart.

Lauds Koenig

"In starting the reorganization, I was fortunate to secure William Koenig to take executive charge of the studio. There is not a man in Hollywood who enjoys a finer reputation for ability and integrity than William Koenig. I was equally fortunate to secure Rufus Le Maire. Le Maire has dicovered and built up many of the greatest personalities in the studios of M-G-M, Warners and Twentieth Century-Fox.

"Every company in Hollywood would have grabbed at the opportunity to sign Jim Normanly. I had the nerve to ask Giannini for him, and Giannani let me have him. That I consider financial showmanship. He is the financial genius of the films. His acquisition proved that our reorganization aimed only to secure the top men for each department. We have carried this same plan throughout the entire organization.

"In building up our producing staff we now have the following capable producers in all of whom I have the greatest confidence: Eph Asher and Edward Grainger you know all about. I have just signed a new long-term contract with Asher and we already had a contract with Grainger. Bob Presnell who made 'British Agent' and a number of Warner pictures, is now with us on long-term contract. Lou Brock who made 'Flying Down to Rio' and who was responsible for the teaming of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, is also under long-term contract. His first production will be 'Everybody Sings.' Morrie Ryskind, I consider one of the greatest writers of dialogue and scripts in Hollywood. His first production will be 'Hippodrome.'

Pasternak and Paul Cited

"When I came to to Universal, I found a young producer named Joe Pasternak. I liked his ideas. His first picture will be 'Three Wise Girls.'

"For a long time, I have known Val Paul as an associate producer. I feel that the time has come to make him a producer. His first production is "Yellowstone.'

"Among the directors we have for next season are James Whale, who will make two of our big productions. We have a seven-year contract with Walter Lang who gave us 'Love Before Breakfast' this year. We have a three-year contract with Anton Litvack. He is by universal consent the leading director in Europe. We have a seven-year contract with Ralph Murphy, who made 'Seventy Thousand Witnesses' and 'Collegiate.' We have a long-term contract with Edward Buzzell. He will do a number of the romantic comedy type of pictures for us.

Other Directors in Mind

"I also wanted a young producer who had a fresh mind and an original outlook and I chose for a certain type of picture, Arthur Lubin. Herman Koster, who directed the Pasternak pictures in Europe, is also with us. There are two other directors that I am very anxious to get. Circumstances do not permit me to mention them now.

"No organization is complete without the best of photography, the best of sound. We have signed on long-term contract Hal Mohr, Merritt Gerstadt, and Joe Valentine. Universal was always deficient in both its sound and music departments. To improve sound, we have engaged Homer Tasher. We were fortunate to secure Charles Previn to take charge of our music department. He directed innumerable stage shows for Klaw and Erlanger, Ziegfeld, Dillingham, and the Shuberts. One of his chief aids is a young European composer named Franz Grothe. His first work will be heard in 'My Man Godfrey.'

"We have also entirely reorganized the story department, both east and west. Betty Roberts, formerly of RKO, is in charge of the story department at the coast, and Elsa Neuberger in the east. We have divorced the story and talent departments. Le Maire will be responsible for talent in the west and Harry Evans will have charge of securing talent in the east.

Rich in Young Stars

"When it comes to players, we are not as well off, as many of the companies, because most of the important personalities in this business are already tied up. However, we have a large and growing stock company of young players, many of whom may develop into the stars of tomorrow. We are doing our utmost to build them, to develop their personalities, and make them valuable as sales assets. One of these is Doris Nolan who made a hit in the Broadway show, 'The Night of June 16.' Another is Jeanne Dante who is still playing in 'Call It a Day' at the Morosco. Just before I left Hollywood we signed Walter Pidgeon. He is a Gary Cooper type. Louis Hayward is another. I signed him the next morning after I saw his performance in 'Anthony Adverse.' We have a young singer with a voice, named Ella Logan, who has been a hit on the radio and has much of the Joan Blondell quality. We have cast her in 'Everybody Sings.' She is under joint contract to Universal and Samuel Goldwyn.

Dunn's Start Impressive

Another young player who has made quite a hit in Hollywood already, although he has not been in a picture, is Jack Dunn, the skating partner of Sonja Henie. We have cast him for a role in 'Hippodrome.' Other new players are Elisha Cook, Jr., Ann Preston, Henry Hunter, Maxine Reiner, Mary Alice Rice, Gloria Holden, Nan Gray, Jean Rogers, Marla Shelton, Diana Gibson, John King, Walter Koy, Michael Loring, William Hall, and we have our players like Margaret Sullavan, Jane Wyatt, Binnie Barnes, Edward Arnold, Edmund Lowe, Edward Everett Horton, Karloff, Cesar Romero, Andy Devine, Little Billy Berud, Henry Armetta, and a new personality in David Oliver, the newsreel camera man who has very recently, turned comedian.

"I know these stars can be built. I have made a number of stars as a producer and I feel that it is possible to make a number of stars from this list of players. This is a big business. Big personalities grow over night. Last year's beginners are this year's drawing cards. That is one thing that makes moving picture business so tremendously interesting."

"27 Ready"

Rogers told the convention 27 shooting scripts are in readiness and said the number was the greatest in Hollywood in proportion to the number of pictures other studios plan to make. The production schedule, he declared, will be followed in this order: "As Good as Married," "A Fool for Blondes," "Three Smart Girls," "Everybody Sings," "Flying Hostess," "Rich and Reckless," "Class Prophecy," "Lesson in Society" and "Four Days' Wonder."

James R. Grainger will be the convention star today, the final session. Tonight will be the beefsteak dinner at the N. Y. Athletic Club.

Among the New "U" Boys

Charles Rogers was describing a story, "And, by the way, Bob, that is one of the stories for which we paid $50 for a Saturday Evening Post suggestion. We have already spent $6,000 developing this story."

R. H. Cochrane: "Well, why are you looking at me?"

W. P. Kelly, Boston, sported the convention's prize haberdashery.

E. S. Olsmith and the Texas boys cheered every time Binnie Barnes' name was mentioned. Down South they refer to Binnie as "Texas" Binnie Barnes' and they would be willing to pay her a bonus if she would visit there some time or other.

After the convention was over, Joe Weil gave every delegate a copy of four of the novels which Universal is going to make next year. The sight in the Astor lobby with sports like Harry Graham, Herbell of Chicago and Dave Miller of Cleveland, running around with a young library under their arms was an eye-opener. They looked O. K. under the wing of Floyd Brown of Indianapolis, however.

Herman Stern, manager of the non-theatrical department, was introduced along with Eugene Cox, James Jordon and Charles E. Ford, editor of Universal Newsreel.

Rogers paid a high compliment to his secretary, Bill Pierce, when he introduced him as the author of "Night Key" and the man he expected to become another Thalberg in the Universal organization.

Every time that Rogers' voice would give out, Jimmy Grainger reached across and took his manuscript and "subbed" for him until the voice returned.

J. Cheever Cowdin sat through the second day of the convention without saying a word except to tell Rogers at one point to "make 'em funnier." You should have heard the story he told the boys the first day.

Harry Evans finally arrived at the convention and sat on the dais. George Cochrane had been pacing the lobby for hours waiting for him. Harry certainly covers ground fast.

R. H. Cochrane certainly wanted them to know that it wasn't a "dirty shirt" drama. "Dirty shirt" dramas are out this year with Universal.

Bob O'Donnell, big time exhibitor from Texas, got up in convention, and told all salesmen present, as well as officials of the company, that theatre owners are interested in seeing new Universal make excellent pictures because all theatres of the country have a spot where they can play them. He finished his talk by pledging his support, stating, "I have a great deal of confidence in the new Universal and I will make a deal which will include all our 120 theatres in Texas."

Rogers, talking in a quiet conversational tone, using no melodramatic whoop-'em-up, stirred confidence and awakened enthusiastic fire in every man of the sales staff. He said he was going to make pictures that entertain the public, with a definite appeal in each one.

A certain exhibitor was mentioned and Rogers asked, "Is that fellow still buying film?" The reply was, "Yes, and he's tougher than ever to sell." Then Rogers added, "Next time you see him, be sure to give him my regards." The topper was, "He'll want us to give him a whole lot more than your regards."

The 400,000 shares are to be offered first at $1.75 per share to common stockholders on the basis of two shares for each share held.

movies. Of course, it may be argued that some people may stay home to see a news or sporting event, or a play, rather than go to the movies, but, as in the case of radio broadcasting, the stimulation of the public mind to greater interest in wider fields should encourage their greater attendance in person at the movies, sporting events, or theatre.

"Furthermore, the gregarious instinct of the human race to gather in crowds is fundamental and will never be changed by television or anything else.

"It is wholly unlikely that television will be used anything like the number of hours per day that sound radio is used," Skinner explained. "Television in too large doses would be tiring."

Recommendations for assignments of specific frequencies to various services, made public today by the commission, include a suggestion from Twentieth Century-Fox for the provision of four frequencies in different short wave bands for motion picture use. In its recommendations, the company was said to have pointed out that four widely separated frequencies would permit simultaneous use of a number of units. The use of radio, it was also said, has proven to be of value in keeping film companies in touch with units in remote locations.

More than 100 players already have been signed for Vitaphone shorts, with others to be signed during the season.

It was indicated to the convention today that the Vitaphone studio already has completed the first three-months' schedule for 1936-37. A total of 24 subjects are in the cutting rooms, 11 two-reelers and 13 singles.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The feature of the second day of the Warner western and southern sales convention at the Blackstone Hotel today was an address by Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production, heard from the coast by telephone and over loudspeakers. He declared film prestige has made a "notable advance" during the past year, and that that advance will be maintained during the coming season.

In the course of his telephonic address Warner told the convention the studio planned a special based on the story of the Wright brothers, pioneers in aviation. "The studio has struck its stride," he declared at one point, adding "The Charge of the Light Brigade" made "Captain Blood" look "like a quickie." "The Gold Diggers," "Three Men on a Horse" and "Green Lights" will go into production in July.

From this end, Major Albert Warner, replying to Jack, declared the product coming through was so good it ought to be released over an 18 month period instead of 12.

The company plans to increase its newspaper and trade paper advertising budget by 40 per cent next season, S. Charles Einfeld said in his talk. A. H. King, Stephen Callaghan, Duncan G. Harris, John D. Hertz, Charles A. McCulloch, H. A. Fortington, Maurice Newton, Floyd B. Odlum, Adolph Zukor, Harvey D. Gibson, and Stanton Griffis.

Querying of Paramount officers and directors by stockholders began in spirited fashion soon after the meeting, which was scheduled to begin at noon, finally readied itself for the election of directors at 3:10 P. M. Delays in starting the meeting were occasioned first by the unexpectedly large attendance of stockholders which crowded the meeting out of the 12th floor projection room in the Paramount Bldg. Reassembling the more than 150 in attendance in the 11th floor office well, Otterson, who presided, called the meeting to order at 12:30 P. M. Proxies were called for and when tabulated by 1:15, it was announced that no quorum was present, but that additional proxies were on the way and the meeting would be adjourned to three o'clock. At that time a tabulation showed that stock entitled to 3,685,358 votes, out of a total of 7,200,395 votes was represented, giving a quorum.

Callaghan the Nominator

Callaghan, on behalf of the company proxy committee, made the five nominations. Saul Rogers, attorney, sought information concerning the qualifications of McClintock and Goodyear, provoking the first of many clashes between the stockholders and the company officials.

Insisting that Callaghan should know all about the two candidates "because you placed them in nomination," Rogers finally nettled Callaghan to the point where he refused to answer further questions, declaring "I'm not going to be cross-examined by you."

Rogers had been identified earlier as the possible leader of a small independent proxy movement. He stated at the meeting that he represented 15,000 shares of stock. He placed no names in nomination for the board vacancies and, inasmuch as the principal rival proxy contest reported to have been started by H. A. Fortington several weeks ago, was abandoned last week, no organized opposition to the company's nominees was presented.

Board Criticism Develops

Rogers' queries concerning the nominees rapidly developed into criticism of the board and its membership during the past year and this was taken up by numerous stockholders.

The retention of Kennedy, its terms, purpose and result, was the subject of numerous queries put to the officials by the stockholders. It was brought out that Kennedy is to be compensated for his services on a basis to be decided by the board when his survey of the company has been completed. It was denied by Griffis, who, despite the fact that he is a comparative newcomer to the board, was projected into the role of spokesman for the company, that Kennedy has been given an option on Paramount securities.

Griffis, prompted at times by Edwin L. Weisl, attorney for Floyd Odlum of Atlas Corp., said that "Kennedy is staying with the company as long as he gives good service" and added that he was brought in to Paramount to advise the board on means of restoring the company's earning power.

Asks If Kennedy Is "Front Man"

"Why isn't Otterson giving that advice?" a stockholder wanted to know. "Do we pay double for Kennedy and Otterson doing the same job?" another asked. Still another wanted to know if Kennedy wasn't only a "front man," referring to the former S. E. C. head's recent success in averting a Washington hearing on Paramount affairs scheduled by the Sabath Congressional Committee.

"It seems to me," this stockholder pursued, "Kennedy is being paid for answering questions that Walter Wanger, whom you just let go, could have answered for you. Or that any Hollywood star could answer, for that matter."

No attempt was made to answer questions in this vein, which led Rogers to charge the officials with "evasions" on several occasions. Resuming his seat after one unsuccessful attempt to obtain an answer, he said "I am yielding at this time, but there will be another day of reckoning."

Another stockholder was impelled at one point to remark that "It seems that the mighty captains of industry on our board can't answer some very simple questions that all of the company's stockholders would like to know."

Griffis Calls Report Confidential

Griffis ended the Kennedy discussion by stating that the latter's report was considered to be of a confidential nature at this time and, reiterating that Kennedy was retained only for the purpose of aiding in restoring the company's earning power, he said "If we have six presidents and 74 directors we'll keep on trying to get men who can do that for the company and you stockholders."

The questioning turned to Otterson's status. Griffis was asked if Otterson was being continued as president and Weisl, who had been prompting Griffis from a distance, moved over to take a seat beside him at this point. After a whispered consultation between the two Griffis replied, "I can't speak for the entire board."

He was next asked if there had been any discussions by the board of a settlement of Otterson's contract, which has four years to run at $150,000 per year. Griffis declined to answer the question directly, saying that the questioned related to the business of the board as a whole.

Rogers jumped to his feet at this point and said, "If any payment in settlement of that contract is made this company will be held accountable."

Zukor's name was projected into the meeting by a stockholder who wanted to know if the Paramount founder had been consulted on the new board nominees and what he thought of their qualifications.

"We want men like Zukor back at the head of this company—a man we can depend on," the stockholder said.

Many Demand Zukor

Another, identified after the meeting as Edgar E. Wolf, rose to say that he "hopes Zukor will shortly become the head of Paramount." He was followed by another stockholder who says that Zukor "should be back at the helm."

Efforts to adjourn the meeting at 4:15 were defeated by an overwhelming oral vote and the discussion and criticism continued for another 45 minutes. During the closing minutes several unsuccessful efforts were made by stockholders to elicit some definite information from the officials concerning the contents of the Kennedy report.

A first meeting of the newly constituted Paramount board is tentatively scheduled for today, but may be postponed.

Otterson Off Directorate; Directs Inquiries to Board

John E. Otterson, Paramount president, was eliminated from the company's board of directors when his name was not placed in nomination for reelection with the expiration of his initial term at yesterday's annual meeting of Paramount stockholders.

Questioned as to the significance of the development, Otterson stated simply, "I was not a candidate for reelection."

Asked whether his absence from the board would affect his official position as president of the company, he replied "I think a statement on that should come from the board."

Stockholders who put similar questions to members of the board during the meeting failed to elicit direct answers.

Para. Dickering with S. & C.

Paramount is negotiating a two-year product deal with Jack W. Springer and Sam Cocalis for 60 theatres in the Greater New York area. The arrangement not only covers the houses jointly operated by the two exhibitors, but also their individual units.

Prudential also is dickering for Paramount's lineup next season. Milt Kusell, New York state district manager for the distributor, and Henry Mandell are handling the deal with Joseph Seider, head of the circuit.

Katz Authorized to Sue Para.

Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday in Federal Court ruled that Sam Katz, former Paramount theatre department executive, is entitled to bring suit against the company and its successor, Paramount Pictures, Inc. The suit is based on an employment contract under which Katz was retained for three years beginning in 1932 at a weekly salary of $2,500 plus the right to acquire Paramount Publix stock from time to time at prevailing prices.

Judge Coxe rejected a special master's report which recommended the suit be dismissed.

Overseas Previews

"The Interrupted Honeymoon"

(British Lion)

London, June 10.—A very bright, though very British, version of a stage farce, with considerable story value of the clever-nonsensical sort, incident definitely humorous and varied and, as a high spot, some very skilfully done comic-crazy flying.

It is good entertainment for those who can understand it, the question being just how many American audiences will get the flavor of Claude Hulbert's performance. In British evaluation, it is first rate.

Out-Allistering Claude Allister in dude characterization, Hulbert is a bridegroom whose congenital fatuousness gets him into trouble during his wedding trip in Paris with an hotel proprietor who quite inaccurately thinks himself a wronged husband. A self-starting plane carries the innocent Britisher and the infuriated Frenchman, bent on a duel, into further complications in London due to the fact that the bridegroom has lent his apartment to a friend who has made it the center of a web of, mostly feminine, intrigue.

The pronounced English is the only thing against a really amusing light item.

Running time, 73 minutes. "A."

"One Good Turn"

(Joe Rock-A.B.F.D.)

London, June 10.—Leslie Fuller, typical British low comedian, here has Georgie Harris, from the "halls," as his chief support in a slapstick farce in which they are coffee-stand proprietors who become involved in the plans of a swindling theatrical manager to defraud a widow of her savings. Apart from recovering the money, they butt in on the stage show, making big reputations as comedians.

Pretty crude in its methods and appeal, it has its brightest moments in scenes in which the coffee-stand horse, booted for silence, is smuggled into a bedroom. The back-stage atmosphere has some appeal.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G." ALLAN

"Poppy," this morning's opener at the Paramount, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on June 6.

"Dancing Pirate," another picture opening this morning, but at the Rivoli, was reviewed from Hollywood by wire on May 7.

"Sins of Man," which was reviewed from Hollywood on May 6th, also opens this morning at the Radio City Music Hall.

No Standees Allowed In Frisco Bay Area

No standees are permitted in theatres or their lobbies in the San Francisco Bay area due to stringent regulations invoked by fire departments in the last week, Cliff Work, western division manager for RKO theatres, stated yesterday.

Where there are no seats available, patrons must stand in line in the street, according to Work.

Not one new theatre has been constructed in the area during the past year, the RKO executive said. About 30 theatres have been reopened in the last 12 months, 10 of which are in San Francisco. All together there are operating 180 theatres in the bay area, Work estimated. He leaves for San Francisco Friday.

Cocalis-Loew Talk Deal

Negotiations are under way between Sam Cocalis and Loew's whereby the major circuit will purchase a half interest and operate the Marble Hill, Bronx, and Park Hill, Yonkers.

Previously a deal had been on to include the Interboro, but this failed to materialize.

Goldwyn Signs Amateur

Andrew Leeds, whose only screen work has been amateur films, has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn for "Come and Get It."

Photophone Expands Staff on the Coast

Hollywood, June 16.—Expansion of RCA Photophone's west coast staff and technical facilities is under way here under the direction of Edwin M. Hartley, head of the Photophone division, and Lawrence B. Morris, vice-president and general counsel of RCA Mfg. Co. The two arrived from Camden, N. J., today, to confer on the expansion plans with James E. Francis, west coast manager. They expect to be here for about six weeks.

Photophone's Hollywood expansion follows the recent closing of 10-year recording license agreements with Twentieth Century-Fox and Columbia. Negotiations with major studios are also under way.

Start New Bronx House

Excavation will be started today at 166th St. and Ogden, Bronx, to make way for the new de luxe house Sam Cocalis plans for the site. Contracts for the theatre have been signed by Cocalis with William I. Hohauser.

With Dave Rosenzweig, Cocalis has taken over the Williston, Mineola, L. I. The two exhibitors recently acquired the Mineola, in the same town.

"Fury" Gets Third Week

"Fury" is being held for a third week at the Capitol.

Walkathon Measure Rejected in Mass.

Boston, June 16.—With the Senate's turning down of a bill to ban the holding of Walkathons and other endurance contests, Massachusetts theatre interests have again lost their fight against such competition. The bill was given two readings in the legislature.

Though legislation on parimutuals was favored during the session, the Senate refused to increase the tax on parimutual dog racing but increased the levies on incomes and gasoline.

"Postman" Suit Filed

A suit for $100,000 damages charging copyright infringement was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by Casino de Paree Prod., Inc., against Warners over the manuscript of "The Postman Always Rings Twice." The complaint recites that the plaintiff exhibited the play "The Postman Always Rings Twice" last year and subsequently the defendants produced the picture "The Doorman's Opera," which made use of the material in the play allegedly owned by the plaintiff.

The defendants have entered a denial of the charges and assert that the manuscript of their play was written by A. Darian Otvos and Joseph J. Bennett and rights to the play were properly held by the defendant. The plaintiff asked for an injunction to restrain the defendant from further exhibiting "The Doorman's Opera." The motion will be heard on Friday.

RKO Men Receive Gifts

Pens, pencils and a special merchandising book by Walt Disney, watches by Sol Lesser, moccasins by George O'Brien and wallets by Pathe News were distributed to all RKO convention men after the morning session yesterday.

Smith Discusses Television

Courtland Smith, president of Pathe News, yesterday told the RKO convention he does not regard television as playing an important part in the dissemination of news for the time being.

"In its present state, television news pictures cannot be transmitted more than 25 miles and therefore national and international dispensation of pictorial events will have to be continued through mediums existing today," he said.

Looking ahead when the development will require a replacement of radio sets, Smith held "the presentation of news in the home will in no way detract from the business of the theatre."

Hal Horne to Radio; To Become Producer

Hal Horne, well-known advertising and publicity man and formerly in charge of that department at United Artists, joins Radio in an executive capacity, his duties designating him as an assistant to Samuel J. Briskin, vice-president in charge of production, as well as a producer. He leaves for Hollywood with Briskin the end of the week.

Horne said yesterday he will retain his interests in the Blackstone Agency, which handles publicity in the East for Walter Wanger Prod. and the Bobby Breen series which Sol Lesser will make for Radio distribution. Ned E. Depinet told the Radio convention of Horne's appointment at yesterday's morning session at the Waldorf.

Leo Spitz, who on Monday had referred to a new producer about to join Radio, informed Motion Picture Daily yesterday Horne was not the man to whom he had referred.

Time Distributes Books

Advance copies of the current week's issue of Time and "Three Hours a Year," a book published by Time and giving the history of the March of Time, Fortune and Time, were distributed to the RKO conventioneers yesterday.

To Present "Top Hat" Award

The Arthur Murray Medal for the best dance film of the year, awarded to "Top Hat," will be presented to Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO, during the third day of the sales meeting today. The judges for the award, founded as an annual presentation this spring, included Whitney Bolton, Kate Cameron, Regina Crewe, Don Herold, Eileen Creelman, Laurence Reid, Irene Thirer and Russell Patterson.

Colbert in One

Claudette Colbert will appear in one picture for RKO, Sam Briskin announced yesterday.

RKO Will Have 192 Shorts in 1936-37

RKO will release a total of 192 short subjects during the season of 1936-37, including 88 one and two-reelers and 104 issues of Pathe News. The 88 will comprise 36 two-reel comedies, 13 March of Time issues, 13 Bill Corum Sports Reviews, 13 World on Parade, six Struggle to Live and seven Pathe Topics.

The total of 32 included in the Sports Reviews, World on Parade and Struggle to Live will be produced by Van Beuren. Although they are not included in the announced total, RKO is expected to release at least 12 Walt Disney Mickey Mouse and Silly Symphonies cartoons before the close of next season. The cartoons go to RKO at the completion of the current United Artists contract.

The 36 two-reelers, which will be produced on the coast under the supervision of Lee Marcus, will be divided into six series of six shorts each: Edgar Kennedy, Headliner, Radio Musical, Superba, Radio Flash and Smart Set. Leon Erol probably will be featured in the Superba group, while the Radio Flash and Smart Set units will feature personalities, including Jack Norton, Lucille Ball, Maxine Jennings, Jane Hamilton, Bud Jamison, Edgar Deering, Edith Craig, Billy Gilbert, Vivian Oakland and Edward Kenne.

The Sports with Bill Corum group and the World on Parade series have been increased to 13 subjects each. The latter will feature Alois Havrilla, radio announcer, who will handle the narration. H. L. and Stacy Woodward are the associate producers of the Struggle to Live series.

Revive Silverstone Report as U. A. Head

Reviving an old report, The New York Times yesterday rumored the designation of Maurice Silverstone, U. A. head in England, as president of the parent company here.

George J. Schaefer, vice-president in charge of distribution, could not be reached for a statement all of yesterday. His office reported him in a continuously sustained conference.

Hollywood, June 16.—United Artists producers here today denied the Silverstone report. He leaves here Friday for New York and London.

Studio Harmonious, Briskin Tells Men

Berman, Edward Small and Cliff Reid. About 30 of the new season's output now are in various stages of preparation, he stated.

"We are definitely going to spend more money on our production budget than ever before," he informed the men. Briskin also announced the promotion of Robert F. Sisk, who has been associate producer with Cliff Reid, to full-fledged title of producer. He added that Sisk "was coming along in fine shape."

David Loew briefly discussed the two Joe E. Brown pictures he will produce on the 1936-37 program. He said he hopes to bring new stars to the RKO roster.

Roy Disney, business manager for his brother, Walt, told the men that the organization plans to make a minimum of 12 shorts and a feature yearly. He also said that "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will not be ready until the latter part of 1937. He invited the salesmen and other sales executives to the Disney studios next year in the event the company decides to hold its annual sales meetings on the coast.

Disney spoke at length on the merchandising of Walt Disney licensees, stating that last year the manufacturers of toys and other articles did a gross business throughout the world amounting to $35,000,000.

Horne Talks Bobby Breen

Hal Horne, acting in the capacity of representative for Sol Lesser, discussed the business "Let's Sing Again," the first Bobby Breen picture, garnered at the Roxy where it had a two-week run. Bobby was called upon to make a speech. He had to stand on the dais and when he got through telling the men how glad he was to meet everyone, he jumped off the table without assistance. He was applauded generously.

Courtland Smith, president, and Jack Connolly, general manager of Pathe News, discussed the strides made by the newsreel and the scoops in the last year.

George O'Brien, who will star in six outdoor films to be produced by George Hirliman for RKO, talked about "Daniel Boone," the first of the sextet. This will be in black and white.

Bill Corum, sports writer for The New York Journal and commentator for the Sports Review, produced by A. J. Van Beuren, promised to make his subjects better next year than in the past.

Depinet outlined the features and short subject lineup, which was followed by a discussion by Jules Levy on sales angles. C. Barret McCormick gave a short analysis on the contemplated publicity, exploitation and advertising campaigns.

Today, the final day of the meetings, will be highlighted by talks by Merlin H. Aylesworth, chairman of the board, and Leo Spitz, president. Levy will invite discussions from the floor on the new lineup and also announce the winners of the Cresson E. Smith-E. L. McEvoy drive. Gifts will be presented with the announcements.

Winding up the convention tonight will be a banquet in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf where a special show will be put on by March of Time.

More or Less Personal

Abe Balaban, who says he's a man of leisure since he retired from exhibition out Chicago way, dropped in for a chat with Leo Spitz during the morning and afternoon sessions yesterday. He also states he'll be in town for a while and hasn't decided whether to return to Switzerland.

Mort Singer, RKO theatre partner in the midwest, arrived yesterday from the coast, a day ahead of schedule. He says now that his gout is gone he's back on the golf links regularly. He also is telling the world about the marriage of his son, Mort, Jr., on the coast June 8.

Bobby Breen, star of "Let's Sing Again," exuded plenty of charm and personality as he was introduced to the various field men. His sister, Sally, is with him. He plans to return to the coast Friday.

Malcolm Kingsbury, George S. Leisure, William Mallard, Gordon E. Youngman and Robert Dan, lawyers all, were on deck for yesterday's excitement. Bill Savage and Harry Pimpstein had so much work they couldn't attend.

David Loew, producer of Joe E. Brown features, has his say. To the left, Leo Spitz. To the right in the shadows, Jules Levy.

Ben Solomon, Sol Lesser's eastern representative, and Edward Gross, production manager, were paired for lunch, during which they managed to discuss a little business.

Lowell Calvert is the only Pioneer representative on hand. And he attends all the business sessions.

Leigh Jason, who will direct Lily Pons in "Street Girl," was another unexpected visitor. He dropped in to see Pandro Berman for a minute and left. Jason will head west Friday. In the interim he's conferring with the singer on her next picture for RKO.

C. D. Burton of Oklahoma City can be distinguished from the rest of the boys by his Palm Beach suit. Sam Briskin has a light grey outfit, but it doesn't stand out as much as Burton's summer dress.

Samuel Briskin, head of production, addressing the Radio sales convention yesterday.

Pandro S. Berman, who is busier than a bee making honey appeared during the screening of the rushes of several scenes from "I Won't Dance." The scenes shown include Astaire playing and singing "The Way You Look Tonight" and "Pick Yourself Up," which is followed by a dance routine by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. Plenty of applause greeted the rushes after the exhibition.

Hal Horne passed out the cigars after Ned E. Depinet announced that Horne would join the company as a producer. Horne later said that the reason the story hadn't gotten out sooner was that he had made an agreement with himself to keep it a dark secret.

Mark Plotte is a ribber in his own way. At the Cort Monday night, he unintentionally dug an elbow into the ribs of Bill Horn.

Jim Finey is doing a swell job taking down the various speeches and comments from the floor.

Roy Larsen of March of Time cut short his 15th Harvard reunion to catch the convention yesterday. Al Sindlinger managed to get in from Pittsburgh just in time for the opening talks.

Roy Disney at the speakers' platform. Phil Reisman in the background. Also Briskin and Spitz.

Leon Bamberger has flooded the Waldorf with a number of his sales promotion ideas. He gets his reactions by tabbing the various men during sessions.

Emmett Cashman, special representative, brought along the missus from the midwest. Both are New Yorkers looking over familiar spots.

Herb MacIntyre is sporting a fancy five and dime watch presented by Cress Ely Smith as a booby prize for March of Time sales. The Woolworth time piece was nicely embedded in a Tiffany box.

Joe Heppner is the official photographer. He's all over the place as soon as the business meetings break up.

Leland Heyward, representing Katharine Hepburn, paid the convention a surprise visit. He took a squint of "Mary of Scotland," now being edited for a Music Hall showing in August.

Courtland Smith is contemplating a trip to Europe. He said he's not sure when he's going, but it may be sometime next month.

Ned Depinet was reminded time and again by the men that this is the greatest convention ever held by the company. And are the boys enthusiastic?

Rutgers Neilson in his modest way refuses to take a bow for the splendid job he's doing on the publicity end. He says it's all in the day's work. Irving Shiffrin is lending able assistance.

Barret McCormick and Howard Benedict haven't much time to talk things over, but yesterday stole a minute or two for a private conclave.

Jules Levy is trying to figure out a way to add a couple of hours to the normal day. So far Father Time and Levy can't agree and it looks like the matter will have to be put over until next year.

Harry Ross and Claude Saunders of Ross Federal Service greeted the boys as they exited from the morning round. Saunders returned late last week from a trip to Minneapolis, Des Moines, Kansas City and Chicago.

Harry Gittleson, who edits Flash, the house organ, had his hands full getting pictures of the various groups.

Jack Ellis, who wrote a number of songs for the convention, was congratulated on all sides for his lyrics for "I'll Never Let You Go." Fred Astaire and Dave Dreyer collaborated on the music.

March of Time, which hosted the conventioneers at "21" last night, will put on the show tonight at the banquet which will wind up the three-day meet.

No Merger Is Aylesworth's Word to Staff

Insists RKO Will Stay In Convention Talk

Definitely discounting rumors that RKO would merge with any other company, Merlin H. Aylesworth, chairman of the board, yesterday told the sales force at its convention that there was no truth to the stories in circulation.

"Last year at the Chicago convention I told you men that the company was not going to merge with Paramount, M-G-M, United Artists or any other company and the same holds true now," he said.

Aylesworth's talk took less than eight minutes, following which he rushed off to his office.

"Yesterday," he stated, "a report came through the grapevine system, not NBC, that I was in and Leo Spitz was out. Then I heard that I was out and Spitz was in.

"As a result, I got together with Spitz and we spent a few hours trying to get to the bottom of the stories

Spitz Sees RKO in Industry Forefront

With the various departments functioning at top speed, RKO now is definitely on the verge of taking the leadership in the industry, Leo Spitz, president, told the convention forces yesterday. He lavishly praised the heads of various affiliated companies for the fine work they have accomplished in the past year and held that RKO is going places next season.

Admitting he was reluctant to accept the presidency when it was offered him and drop his lucrative legal Spitz yesterday afternoon spoke to the RKO convention forces. He will be named a member of the Metropolitan board to represent RKO's 20 per cent interest in the circuit, a post which was vacated when Herbert Bayard Swope resigned from the RKO directorate.

New Setup Soon

RKO will be reorganized under 77B by January, or sooner, Leo Spitz, president, told the company's sales force yesterday shortly before the three-day sales meet ended at the Waldorf Astoria.

The parent company today, he said, has upwards of $7,000,000 in the treasury as compared to a depleted exchequer three and a half years ago.

"U" Brings Sales Convention to End

The business sessions of the first sales convention of the new Universal ended yesterday afternoon with an expression of enthusiasm in reply to the closing remarks of James R. Grainger, general sales manager, relative to the selling of the new season's product.

Harry Brandt, president of the I. T. O. A., told the convention, "I have the feeling Universal has straightened out its financial affairs and that it is going ahead." He paid tribute to Charles R. Rogers, vice-president in charge of production.

Kennedy Out Of Paramount Soon, Report

Failure to Act Upon His Suggestions Indicated

An unscheduled exit of Joseph P. Kennedy from Paramount is foreseen by authoritative sources close to the company who view his departure as likely momentarily because of a reported disregard of recommendations made in his first interim report which went to the company's board last Friday.

The same sources see Kennedy's withdrawal hastened by the failure of Paramount officials to acquaint Tuesday's meeting of stockholders with at least some sections of his report pertaining to the company's current condition.

Queried yesterday on his future plans, Kennedy stated emphatically that he was not candidate for any Paramount office and had definitely decided not to reenter the film business.

He said that it was his intention to wind up his Paramount activities at "the earliest possible moment," but when pressed for an estimate of how

Katz Pact Ruling Seen Otterson Aid

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe's opinion holding Paramount to be liable for damages for breach of an employment contract held by Sam Katz, former vice-president and director of the company, was viewed in legal circles yesterday as being favorable to the contract status in Paramount of John E. Otterson at this time.

Last June, Otterson was elected to the presidency of Paramount and to the company's board for one year, but was given a five-year employment contract at $150,000 per year. He was not reelected to the board on the expiration of his term at the annual meeting of Paramount stockholders

Mundus Ends Sales In American Market

Mundus Pictures, a United Artists subsidiary organized last year to distribute approximately 10 British-made pictures in this country, will not function next season and the company probably will be dissolved.

A number of reasons are given by United Artists officials for the abandonment of Mundus' operations, among them the expiration of the company's distribution deal with British & Dominions under which it was to distribute approximately seven of that company's pictures in America. It was also pointed out that with Alexander Korda having become a United Artists partner the production policy of London Films was altered, eliminating from its schedule the "B" type picture from which Mundus made its selection of London Films product.

Mundus has become inactive already, as a result of which "The Girl from Maxim's," the last of the London Films productions designed for the United Artists subsidiary, was sold recently to J. H. Hoffberg by Korda's company.

New National Group Seen in Local Boards

months to establish the boards on any comprehensive national scale.

The conciliation committees which will attempt to adjust all complaints brought before the boards will be made up of local industry men, familiar with local trade practices and problems. Indications are that the membership of the boards will vary from two to eight officials, dependent upon the size of the exchange territory in which they are located and the number of complaints likely to be filed. Representation on the boards as between distributors and exhibitors or affiliated or independent interests is said to be immaterial inasmuch as the board's findings will not be enforceable without an agreement between any disputants involved in a complaint.

The chief function of the boards will be to conciliate differences between complainants. They are expected to operate in much the same manner as Federal labor conciliators who have been particularly successful in adjusting industrial strikes, although they are entirely without authority to enforce their decisions. Even the most enthusiastic advocates of the boards among M. P. T. O. A. leaders admit that the agencies may prove to be useless for all practical purposes in solving trade practice problems, but they point out that the boards are the only agency for the handling of genuine industry complaints which have been suggested since the demise of NRA.

Held Worthy of Trial

"They may not work but they're worth a trial," one M. P. T. O. A. officer observed. "It's either the local agencies or nothing."

The principal functions of the boards, if they are successful, are counted upon by the M. P. T. O. A. to solve most of the problems involved in the designation of an excessive number of play dates, the forcing of shorts, unreasonable clearance, overbuying, unfair and cut-rate competition and non-theatrical competition. They are expected to decide the questioned suitability of pictures for Sunday showing in line with their handling of complaints on designated playdates and also rule on whether an exhibitor has been overloaded with designated playdates or short subjects in the course of his picture buying.

If, as is expected, the new local agencies eventually take over the work of the Film Boards, that work would, of course, be handled separately by the board secretary and his staff. When established, they could easily assume such Film Board functions as fire inspection, investigation of requests for free film supply, recording changes of theatre ownership, contacting local censor boards and civic organizations and maintaining a point of contact on adverse legislation of a local character.

The actual establishment of the boards rests at this point with the distribution companies which must bear the expense of their maintenance. It is assumed that the distributors who have approved their establishment in discussions with the M. P. T. O. A. will devise means of setting up the first of the boards shortly after July 1. Some of the distributors, for legal or other reasons, are understood to be prepared to participate in the boards' functions only with qualifications as to the type of complaint on which they will seek adjustments. Some companies are understood to be excepting clearance complaints, for example, but are agreeing to participate in attempted conciliations of any other type of complaint.

Katz Pact Ruling Seen Otterson Aid

on Tuesday. The board is scheduled to meet in the near future for the annual election of officers, in accordance with the company's bylaws. If Otterson is not reelected to the presidency of the company at that time, legal observers say that his status will be that of an untitled contract employe unless special duties are assigned to him or a settlement of his contract, which has four years to run, is made. If these alternatives are not met, attorneys say, Otterson, on the basis of Judge Coxe's opinion, would have an unassailable claim against the company for breach of contract.

Katz's claim was filed against Paramount in the company's bankruptcy proceedings for $265,498 and interest, based on his three-year contract dated Jan. 1, 1932 which provided for a salary of $2,500 a week and certain stock purchase options. In opposing the claim, counsel for Paramount set up as a defense Section 60 of the N. Y. Stock Corporation Law, which they claimed authorized the removal of Katz at any time without subjecting the company to liability for damages for breach of contract. Special Master John E. Joyce ruled in favor of Paramount.

Finds Issue Undetermined

Samuel Spring, attorney for Katz, filed exceptions to Joyce's report and brought the case before Judge Coxe. In his opinion reversing Joyce, Judge Coxe observes that the question has never been passed upon by the N. Y. Court of Appeals but "in that court it seems to have been assumed that corporate employment contracts for fixed terms were valid and enforceable." He cites several lower court decisions which "show an unmistakable trend against the contention of the trustees (Paramount.)"

"I do not think," Judge Coxe writes, "that Section 60, in authorizing the withdrawal from an employe of corporate powers, permits the directors completely to obliterate a contract obligation entered into by the corporation....It is said for the trustees (Paramount) that the grant of power to remove carries with it the right to exercise the power without penalty. There is, however, a clear distinction between the right to terminate a contract and the right to deprive an officer or employe of corporate powers which have theretofore been given him. And without some specific statutory authority to terminate, I do not believe that any such right as contended by the trustees existed. I hold, therefore, that Section 60 did not authorize the removal of the claimant without subjecting the company to liability for damages for breach of contract."

Kennedy Out Of Paramount Soon, Report

much time this might require he said that he could not say "definitely."

It was learned, however, that Kennedy plans to leave today or tomorrow for his summer home at Hyannis, Mass. Whether or not he will complete his final report for the Paramount board there or abandon his study of the company at this stage without making a final report was a subject of much conjecture yesterday in official and financial circles associated with Paramount.

Official sources commenting on Kennedy's present position pointed out that his report, as is now generally known, called for the resignations of board members identified as leaders of discordant factions as a basic condition for achieving a properly functioning administration for Paramount. It was also stated that Kennedy had even made the resignations a condition to his proceeding further with his Paramount study. No resignations from the board have been received since the report was submitted last Friday.

Fortington, Hertz at Odds

H. A. Fortington and John D. Hertz reputedly have been heading opposing camps on the Paramount board for several months past. Fortington recently resigned as chairman of the company's executive committee, but according to friends of the English financier he has no intention at this time of resigning from the board before the expiration of his term in 1938. Hertz's term expires next year and he, too, is said to be determined to stick it out. In recent months the Lehman Bros. partner has been recognized as the "stormy petrel" of the Paramount board. It was primarily at his insistence, however, that the board retained Kennedy for the company survey.

Stanton Griffis of Hemphill, Noyes, an associate of Floyd B. Odlum and the Atlas head's attorney, Edwin L. Weisl, is reputed to be in the ascendancy in influence in Paramount, although he is a comparative newcomer. Weisl, without official position in Paramount other than his legal association, is also identified as a prime mover in board policies and activities.

Walthall, Veteran Of Pictures, Dies

weeks ago, when he was taken ill suddenly on the set of Warners' "China Clipper." During the 26 years in which Walthall appeared on the silent and talking screen, he appeared probably in 100 or more pictures, playing under the banner of almost every company in the industry at one time or another. His fame had somewhat dimmed in recent years, yet he still was recognized as one of the most capable of character actors, and in the past year or two had been seen in a number of pictures, with several scheduled for the new season.

Walthall was born in Shelby City, Ala., in 1881. His early experience was on the stage. From a road company which had just completed a tour with "The Great Divide," Walthall walked into the Biograph studio in New York, where D. W. Griffith was the producer, in 1910, and there began his long and successful screen career. With the select company which included Mary Pickford, Owen Moore, Jack Pickford and Tony O'Sullivan, Walthall went to California with Griffith. In 1911, he joined Reliance, formed by Charles O. Bauman and Adam Kessel, but later returned to the Griffith lot.

Then in 1915, as the little colonel in Griffith's "The Clansman," which was retitled "The Birth of a Nation" before its general release, Walthall attained the fame which has attached to his name ever since.

His first pictures were made for First National, Selznick, Pro-Dis-Co., Tiffany-Stahl, Schulberg, Truart, Fox and Rayart.

Among the more important pictures in which he played in the earlier years were "The Scarlet Letter," M-G-M; "Love Me and the World Is Mine" and "Freedom of the Press," Universal; "Wings," Paramount; "Black Magic," Fox; "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," M-G-M; "Jazz Age," Radio; "Blaze o' Glory," Sono Art-World Wide; "Abraham Lincoln," United Artists.

In 1934, he appeared in "Viva Villa," and "Men in White," for M-G-M; "Judge Priest" and "Helldorado" for Fox; "The Scarlet Letter," Majestic, and "Beggars in Ermine," Monogram. In 1935 Walthall appeared in "Dante's Inferno" for Fox.

A few weeks ago he completed his role in "Hearts in Bondage" for Republic, and was working in "China Clipper" when he was stricken. Both pictures are on the company schedules for the 1936-37 season.

Spanish Fund Releases May Not Aid Films

BARCELONA, June 1. —American and other foreign film distributors in Spain were stirred by the recent announcement of the Centro Oficial de Concatracion de Moneda (official central bank) that 150,000,000 francs would be released to cover debts abroad of Spanish interests, but so far they have been unable to figure out how much film interests will interests will benefit.

Developments to date indicate that the Government's plan is designed to facilitate cotton imports and to aid other "basic and essential industries." Four classifications have been made with films coming last.

Jacques Edelstein, managing director of M-G-M, has been carrying on negotiations with the Centro de Concatracion authorities in Madrid in an effort to secure an allotment of some proportion of the 150,000,000 francs to film companies on applications pending for a long time.

Most of the film money held in Spain is in dollar accounts, but the Artistas Asociados, S.A.E., (United Artists) accounts are in French currency. This would give this company a legal basis for applying for the exportation of francs under the release now planned, since it could produce the required certificates of origin.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Border Patrolman"

(Sol Lesser-Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLYWOOD, June 17.—Against a thrill-action background which adds unique interest to the film's romance, comedy and drama, this is a modernized version of "The Taming of the Shrew" premise. The combination of class production, convincing acting and intelligent direction give the show character that should prove attractive to every day theatregoers. The original screen play by Dan Jarrett and Ben Cohn is well put together. The plot is established quickly and, to the tune of exciting suspense, all the elements move with zip and speed to a logical conclusion.

The story is set in a stylish desert resort along the Mexican border. Patrolman George O'Brien resigns from the service when he is unable to do anything about Polly Ann Young's lawbreaking, she being a wealthy, spoiled playgirl. He is hired by Miss Young's grandfather, William P. Carleton, to knock some sense into the girl's head. She is remorseful for having caused O'Brien to quit his Government job and romance is suggested. This takes an odd twist when Roy Mason, a smuggling czar, informs Miss Young of Carleton's intention in hiring O'Brien. To put O'Brien in his proper place, Miss Young becomes involved with Mason's mob, but, as O'Brien gets wise to the goings on. he intervenes with a series of chases, in autos and afoot across the desert, plus several exciting hand to hand battles, to frustrate Mason's plot and save Miss Young from criminal implication.

The performances of O'Brien, Miss Young and Mason meeting all expectations, the work of the supporting cast, principally Smiley Burnette, Mary Doran, Al Hill, Tom London, Al St. Polis and Carleton is effective in the yarn's development.

A clean, wholesome picture throughout, it is directed by David Howard with dexterity, assuring audiences plenty of exciting entertainment and showmen many easily adaptable explotiation leads.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,339. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Trailin' West"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, June 17.—The Civil War secret service slant makes this western a little different and gives exhibitors a new exploitation angle. Dick Foran, a Union officer, is sent to the wild west on undercover duty. The gang which is raiding gold shipments pursues him and steals his credentials. Foran thwarts a stagecoach holdup and rescues Paula Stone, who turns up later as a dance hall girl in gang headquarters, where Foran, on the trail of the stolen papers, takes a job as professional gambler. There follow a number of fast action sequences until Foran finally exposes the villain using his papers, saves the gold shipment and gets the girl, who, incidentally, is also an undercover agent using her dance hall job as a blind.

Bryan Foy produced most creditably for this type of entertainment. Noel Smith's direction is rapid and sure. Robert Barrat's impersonation of Lincoln is excellent. There is also a good cast of experienced western favorites, including Addison Richards, Joseph King, Eddie Schubert, Joseph Crehan, Henry Otto, Frank Price, Carlyle Moore, Jr., Tom Wilson and Jim Thorpe. The screen play by Anthony Coldeway has better-than-usual dialogue and the photography by Sid Hickox adds considerably to the value of the production.

No Merger Is Aylesworth's Word to Staff

being circulated, but we haven't been able to trace them.

"I expect to be with RKO many years," Aylesworth declared, "and if you boys will have me I'll be glad to attend next year's convention, too." He has been at the Waldorf every day dropping in and out of the various business meetings.

After the morning session, Ned E. Depinet told Motion Picture Daily: "There positively will be no merger."

Aylesworth interspersed his remarks with a twinge of humor by relating the experiences of his son, who was not mentioned by name, as the operator of a third run theatre in a small Texas town with a population of 3,000. He stated his son gets $125 a month, is married, and handles the bookings, advertising, publicity, ticket selling and ticket taking all by himself. The only thing he doesn't do is operate the projection machines, he said.

One of Aylesworth's gags, which went over big, was the story he related about his daily morning meetings with Spitz to make sure the RKO Bldg. was still up. Spitz did not attend the morning session.

The RKO chairman took time to extend praise to the building of manpower within the organization, pointing to the success achieved by Pandro Berman, who started as an assistant cutter, Robert Sisk and Cliff Reid.

Foreign managers spoke most of the morning. Each gave a resume of conditions in his territory.

Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Laboratories, assured the salesmen of better prints. Major Edward Bowes, who is making a series of amateur shorts, spoke of his 20 years' friendship with Aylesworth and extended his greeting to the men.

Among the speakers at the afternoon session were Joseph Skelly, Sid Kramer, S. Barret McCormick, Lou Gaudreau, Lou Miller, William Dahler, M. Poller, A. A. Schubart, Jim Finey, Arthur Willi, Dave Strumpf, William Clark, William Mallard and Gordon E. Youngman.

At 7:30 the men convened for the banquet for the windup of the three-day session.

Two New Ones

Reports that RKO and Paramount might merge have been current for weeks. M. H. Aylesworth, chairman of Radio's board, yesterday took official cognizance of them and denied any such combination was planned.

JULES LEVY almost broke out in tears during the morning session when CRESSON SMITH presented the general sales manager a framed scroll signed by every district and branch manager and salesmen in the west and south pledging to come through with 100 per cent sales for the new season.

CHARLES CURRAN of the Donahue & Coe agency, attired in a Palm Beach suit, navy blue shirt and yellow tie, copped the sartorial prize yesterday.

NED E. DEPINET learned yesterday that JOHN MARTIN, editor of Time, didn't get a Mickey Mouse pen and pencil set. The oversight was soon taken care of. A number of the boys were not around when the jacknives were distributed and they clamored for samples until the echoes reverberated on KAY KAMEN's ears and got results.

When DEPINET asked SPITZ how to pronounce "Gunga Din," the latter pulled a fast one and instead of giving a direct answer presented DEPINET a copy of the book.

SPITZ again proved his sense of humor by stopping DEPINET during an announcement of "The Big Game," a gridiron special. DEPINET said that four expert footballers had been signed for the film when SPITZ interjected and said: "Don't forget, three are All-Americans."

Note for Whitney

March of Time's story of the year comes from Al Sindlinger of the promotion department. Shortly after Al moved with his family to New York from Appleton, Wis., he took his two kids to see "Jumbo." For three hours they sat through it and when it was finally over Al got his coat, looked at the kids who were all sitting, waiting expectantly. "Well," said Al, "come on, what are you waiting for?"

"For the picture to start," said the oldest.

practice, Spitz acknowledged the fact that he was happy he had made the move. He stated many of his friends advised him to take the job, and after being convinced that the company had a great future before it, he decided to step in.

Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Phil Reisman, Leslie E. Thompson, Nate J. Blumberg, Sam Briskin and Pandro S. Berman were extolled by the RKO head for their untiring efforts in making the company what it is today.

"I haven't any changes in mind," he said, adding he had made a complete survey of the theatre, production and sales departments and was convinced that the personnel was loyal in its support.

"The company is built on a strong foundation and its stability is on a par with the leaders of the industry," he declared. "When changes are made they will be made from within the ranks. We have the finest manpower and we are going to retain it," he said.

"RKO pictures have reached the point where they have a definite place in every community in the world."

Trusteeship Reforms Asked By SEC; Legislation Urged

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Legislation prohibiting service as trustees of persons having or acquiring "conflicts of interest incompatible or inconsistent with their fiduciary obligations" was recommended to Congress today by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In a lengthy report on trustees under indentures, resulting from its study of protective committees in the Paramount and other cases, the commission pointed out that the present law does not permit it to deal with such matters and urged uniform legislation to deal with all phases of reorganization problem.

The measures recommended, it was stated, "would go far towards curbing the exploitation of investors which has occurred either at the hands of trustees or at the hands of reorganization and management groups with the knowledge, consent or acquiescence of a complacent and inactive trustee. The result would be that the investors would have an active guardian of their interests throughout the entire life of the security.

MELBOURNE, May 20.—(By Airmail via London.) —No further progress has been made here in the reported merging of Hoyts' Australian interests with Amalgamated Theatres, Ltd., of New Zealand, but the possibility of a definite link between the two is considered extremely likely.

Hoyts control 65 neighborhood houses in New South Wales and Victoria and 15 leading city theatres in association with General Theatres Corp. Amalgamated also has 65 houses, and its executives have discussed an affiliation with Hoyts officers in Sydney.

Para. Officers May Be Named Next Thursday

Bylaws Call for Action By the Directors

The annual election of Paramount officers, required by the company's bylaws, will probably be held at the monthly meeting of the board next Thursday. No notice of a special meeting in advance of the regular scheduled one has been sent out, it was stated at Paramount yesterday.

Joseph P. Kennedy, who declared this week he would not be a candidate for any post in Paramount, left yesterday for Boston and from there he will go to his summer home on Cape Cod for a few days before leaving for the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia next week. His office said yesterday that he was expected back here at the end of the week, but others maintain that Kennedy's plans are indefinite at the moment and that he may return to Cape Cod from Philadelphia.

While Kennedy obviously has discontinued his personal study of Paramount and his work on a final report for the company's board, for the time being, at least, his aides, John J. Ford and C. J. Scollard, are continuing with their individual reports on Paramount departmental operations. Whether or not Kennedy will submit a final report on the company could not be ascertained definitely

It has been estimated that $1,000,000 has been invested in theatre properties in the outlying districts of Melbourne during the past year. As the theatres compare favorably with the city houses, the latter are beginning to feel the competition.

In Melbourne, Hoyts, with 40 houses and the pick of the product, with the exception of M-G-M and Paramount, is making things difficult for the independents, who find the two sources of product supply insufficient for their needs.

Capitalized at $75,000, a company has been formed to finance the production of a Zane Grey picture on the Barrier Reef, a coral island off the northern coast of Queensland. The film will be made with the cooperation of the Queensland Government.

"Modern Times" is bringing unusual grosses in its city runs. In houses whose normal Saturday business is about $2,500, the picture is grossing as much as $4,750. Prices have been increased considerably with little objection from patrons. The film has been sold throughout Australia at a minimum rental of 50 per cent of the gross, with competition forcing the price even higher in some cases. The percentage sets a record for distribution in this country.

tributing companies, studios and laboratories, with temporary wage increases of $7 to $10 monthly pending the completion of a permanent agreement. The new collective contract is expected to include a 40-hour week, minimum wage scale and paid vacations. The Paramount Theatre and the Cineac circuit of newsreel theatres reopened yesterday. As a result of the strike, no newsreels were issued this week, with trouble expected tomorrow, since no prints have been made for two weeks.

Storm-Tossed Warner Crowd Reaches Rye

Most of the 1,200 Warnerites who went to Playland, Rye Beach, on the annual Warner Club outing yesterday debated whether to wear bathing suits or raincoats. Raincoats won.

The Peter Stuyvesant found its way past Throggs Neck into Long Island Sound and tied up at the dock on schedule, but there was considerable delay about going ashore. The park's attractions were enjoyed between showers. The dinner was served according to schedule at 5:30 and the return trip started in a southeast gale at 8 P. M. A good time was had by all.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Public Enemy's Wife"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, June 18.—With such familiar elements as machine guns, jail-breaks, screeching sirens and automobile chases, this seems as if it were made from blueprints rather than a scenario. However, the story offers several original twists and will satisfy in some localities.

Margaret Lindsay, playing the title role, is freed from a penitentiary after serving a sentence for a crime which implicated Cesar Romero, her husband. Pat O'Brien, a Government agent who is anxious to link Romero with other crimes, trails the released wife. Miss Lindsay, divorced, goes to Palm Beach and is about to wed Dick Foran when Romero breaks from jail. Thinking Romero will try to stop the wedding, O'Brien substitutes for the bridegroom at the ceremony and is unintentionally married when Romero is scared away. Romero snatches the bride from her honeymoon. As Romero is about to make his getaway to Cuba, O'Brien's Government men close in, the crooks are killed and O'Brien and Miss Lindsay agree to let the marriage stand.

Nick Grinde directed for suspense and managed some clever excitement. The supporting cast includes Robert Armstrong and Joseph King on the side of the law, and Richard Purcell as Romero's aide. The screen play is by Abem Finkel and Harold Buckley from P. J. Wolfsin's original. The Sam Bischoff production indicates it is aimed for dual bills.

A deal is practically set whereby Randforce will take over the Greenpoint, Brooklyn, from RKO in exchange for the Republic, same borough. Although no papers have been signed, it is expected the transfer of the houses will take place on Sept. 4.

John J. O'Connor, film buyer for the RKO circuit, and Max Fellerman, his assistant, are scheduled to leave tomorrow for a week's trip to Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Kansas City and Des Moines. James A. Christie, Midwest theatre head, who has been attending the three-day convention of the parent company at the Waldorf, will accompany the two home office executives as far as the Windy City where he makes his headquarters.

The action carried out a resolution passed at the recent Cleveland convention. Details of the proposed plan are to be mailed to all who made pledges at the convention.

In the meantime an investigation is to be made of the legal aspects of the campaign and for drafting of proposed legislation to accomplish its objects. The commodities clause of the Hepburn act divorcing railroads from industries they serve and various state laws barring breweries from owning saloons are to be studied.

20th-Fox Wins Reel Case Against Brandt

Twentieth Century-Fox yesterday was victorious in its two claims against Harry Brandt's Inwood, Forest Hills, L. I., and Garfield, Brooklyn, at an arbitration proceeding before the New York Film Board. Jack Bellman, Republic branch manager, was chairman of the board which comprised Irving Gumberg, G. B. manager; John Manheimer, secretary of the I. T. O. A., and Charles Oppenheimer, Bronx exhibitor.

The exchange asked for $260 on each theatre, which has not lifted any of the bi-weekly releases of Fox Movietone News. The board awarded the distributor half of each claim with the understanding Brandt would pick up all future releases.

Police Renew Moves Against Theatre Games

conferring with the district attorneys have decided to drop the games for the summer. However, they have also notified the city officials Bank Night will be resumed and that in their opinion the game is not a lottery. Louis Weber has had several decisions handed down in his favor and is ready to go to bat on the legality of Bank Night, he said.

Several arrests have been made recently by the police department at theatres where crowds have gathered outside to participate in the games. Loew's Rio was fined $5 when the Bronx Magistrate's Court found the management guilty of disorderly conduct.

This is a new phase which has never come up before and a new source of worry to independent exhibitors. In order to get around the Appellate Division ruling theatre men have been displaying blackboards in the lobbies so that non-patrons can join the games. In the case of the Rio, it was held 2,000 people were outside the theatre blocking pedestrian traffic. One Long Island exhibitor also has been fined because he allegedly obstructed vehicular traffic on a night when a game was being played.

An example of the illusory nature rd is provided by an incident from history of Paramount-Publix

p. developed at a hearing before commission," the report related.
1932 this company was obligated $25,000,000 of debentures which e widely held by the public. These tained a familiar negative pledge ise; that so long as the debenes shall be outstanding the coration will not create, or permit the ation of, any mortgage or other on any property or assets direct-owned by the corporation without ally and ratably securing the bentures) bonds thereunder.

Bankruptcy Threatened

Paramount had $9,600,000 in short n, unsecured notes outstanding in spring of 1932, held by a numof banks, chiefly in New York. It ked cash sufficient to pay all these es. One of the banks refused to ew the note it held and it was red that others would follow suit.
rthermore, Paramount needed sub-ntial new money in order to carry through the summer, for even in mal years production costs were viest during the summer when inne was lowest, and it had been cusnary in former years for Paramount borrow money at this season. Ac-ding to Sir William Wiseman, who tified at the hearing before this nmission: 'Paramount had at that e about six to seven million dols tied up in partly finished negaes and if they had not been able finish them, those negatives would ve been completely worthless, and reover, they wouldn't have been e to finish their program for the
. It would have meant bank-otcy.'

Saved by Bank Credit

'Paramount had several meetings
h its bank creditors as a result which the decision was reached t the banks would extend the ex-ng credits and (with other banks) uld also provide approximately $4,- ,000 of new credit against which ramount might draw to complete films then in production and for anticipated summer requirements the condition that the bonds ob-n security both for the existing ns and the new credit. The latter ant that the debenture provisions uld have to be either violated or avoided. The latter course did not prove to be impossible to Paramount's lawyers. Assets of the company directly owned were not pledged; they were transferred to a subsidiary created for the sole purpose of holding them. This subsidiary paid the parent for these assets by notes which the parent endorsed to the banks. The effect of this was to give the banks a claim on these assets prior to that of the debenture holders.

"As noted above," the commission concluded, "the business (as contrasted to the ethical or legal) argument in favor of such a transaction was (1) that receivership was staved off, and (2) that investment in films was salvaged. The validity of that business argument need not be determined here. Motivation for evasion or avoidance of such negative pledge clauses will always have varying degrees of propriety. But if issuers and their lawyers are left unrestrained in fixing the degree of protection afforded by the negative pledge clause, the use of such clause will become grossly deceptive."

Unfettered Trustees Asked

Discussing the affiliation of trustees with protective committees, the report charges that the latter "all too frequently have been identified with interests that are not identical with those of the security holders whom they represent.

"It is idle," the commission held, "to expect a committee composed of underwriters to require a receiver or bankruptcy trustee to sue the underwriters for their participation with the management in misappropriation or diversion of the corporation's assets and thus improve the position of the bondholders."

While the report was based on the investigation of protective committees, the problems of such organizations are to be dealt with at length in a report which is to be submitted to Congress later.

Name Group to Help Study Film Storage

Hollywood, June 18.—William Koenig, chairman of the Academy Research Council, has appointed George Crane, Alan Freedman, Sidney Lund, Hugh McClung, J. M. Nickolaus and John Swain to assist the Council's Film Preservative Committee. The committee consists of Harris Ensign, chairman; Fred Gage, A. J. Guerin, and Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of the Council.

Various types of available preservative processes are being investigated, and a comprehensive report will be issued in the near future. Eastern distributing executives will thus have the benefit of the collective experience of laboratory authorities on preservative processing.

Schulberg Leases Studio

Hollywood, June 18.—B. P. Schulberg, through his new company, Schulberg Studios, Inc., has signed a long lease on the Prudential studio property. Negotiations had been going on with Harry Sherman, owner, for some time.

Plans are now being rushed for the construction of a new administration building, star dressing rooms, and remodeling of stages. The new studio will house B. P. Schulberg Pictures, Inc., and the 16 pictures they will make for Paramount release will be made there.

Alien Talent Bar Passed by House approval of the Secretary of Labor would have to be secured before any alien actor, singer, solo dancer, instrumentalist or orchestra conductor could enter the United States, but provision is made for a reciprocal exchange of artists with foreign countries which permit the performances of Americans within their borders.

In considering the applications for entry, the Secretary of Labor would "seek the counsel" of reputable organizations or associations of artists of the types covered by the bill in determining the availability here of artists for professional engagements.

Despite the action of the House it is doubtful that the bill will be enacted into law during this session. With only the tax bill remaining to be considered, leaders in Congress are planning to adjourn before the opening of the Democratic National Convention next Tuesday and are sidetracking everything to clear the way for taxes. Consideration of any other bills was characterized today as extremely doubtful by majority leader Joe Robinson of Arkansas.

yesterday. The opinion in some Paramount quarters is that Kennedy will continue inactive in the situation until the committee of three Paramount directors appointed last week to study his report and make recommendations to the full board has completed its work. If Kennedy's findings, especially those calling for the resignation from the board of the leaders of its discordant elements, are approved by the committee and upheld by a majority of the board, it is believed that Kennedy would resume his work of making final and specific recommendations on company revisions. If the committee or the board, however, rejects what he regards as his basic suggestions for improvement, contained in his first report, he would not reenter the Paramount situation.

Some financial sources close to Paramount developments are of the opinion that the holding of the annual election of officers in advance of the resignations from the board which Kennedy has urged would also result in his withdrawal from the situation.

The board committee's study of Kennedy's report has been delayed by the absence from the city of Harvey D. Gibson, a member of the committee. The other members, Harry O. King and Stanton Griffis, expect to begin work on it early next week.

Kansas City, June 18.—The Circuit Court at Brookfield, Mo., has granted a permanent injunction restraining the City Council of Brookfield from interfering with Sunday shows there. The City Council of Marceline, Mo., also will abide by the court's decision.

This spring Steve Souttar, manager of the Fox DeGraw, Brookfield, was arrested when he continued to show on Sunday after the City Council had moved against Sunday shows. The DeGraw obtained a temporary injunction.

Seek Script on "Opera"

A motion will be made in N. Y. Supreme Court this morning before Justice John L. Walsh by Casino de Paree Prod., Inc., to compel the Vitaphone Corp. to produce a complete copy of the script of "Doorman's Opera." This is in connection with a suit brought by the Casino de Paree against Warners and Vitaphone alleging that the film is an infringement of the story "The Postman Always Rings Twice." It is pointed out in the affidavit that Warners in making a denial, allege that the "Doorman's Opera" was based on an original script by A. Dorian Otvos and George J. Bennett.

Sabath Hits Bondholders Committees

Paramount Case Used As An Illustration

Washington, June 19.—Enactment of legislation to restrict the activities of real estate bondholders' committees was urged today in a special report to the House by the Sabath investigating committee.

A bill carrying out the recommendations was reported earlier this week by the House Judiciary Committee but because of the lateness of the session it is doubtful that anything will be done with it before adjournment.

In its report, the committee cited the Paramount case to exemplify the unwarranted fees and expenses which it is asserted were sought by protective committees and frequently al-

Television Limited To Cities, FCC Told

Washington, June 19.—Television will be limited to large cities at the start, the Federal Communications Commission was told today. Its present limit seems to be about 40 miles.

Relay stations can be constructed, it was explained, but these require new radio channels, and an extension of television for 200 miles would use up all the available wave length channels.

RCA spokesmen said a broadcasting station costs about $600,000 and present indications are that receiving sets will retail for about $400.

ASKS 10-YR. QUOTA AND FIXED COSTS

English Proposal Would Base Percentage on Films Exhibited

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, June 19.—Extension of the Films Act for 10 years with the quota to be based on the proportion of foreign films exhibited, instead of a percentage of the total including British films, and minimum costs for quota films, are among the recommendations submitted to the Board of Trade in the first four days' of hearings by the film section of the Federation of British Industries.

Minutes of the evidence before the departmental committee for the first four days were published today as a Blue Book containing about 200,000 words and including statements submitted by the F. B. I. film group and the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n., and documents presented by producers.

The Board of Trade's evidence is mainly historical, but its representative, R. D. Fennelly, was questioned about distribution of bad British films by American companies at some length.

One question by Dr. Mallon was: "About these American companies, they are not interested in the production of good British films, that we can understand. Would you put it higher

Block Booking Bill Will Meet Need, Report States

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, June 19. — Block booking legislation "will meet a need for regulation that is constantly growing more acute owing to the rapidly influence of films on morals, habits, manners and culture of the country," it was declared in the report of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee favoring enactment of the Neely Bill, released today by the Government printing office.

The proposed regulation, the committee held, provides "community freedom on the subject" and conforms "with the essential principals of our American form of government."

The only readily available point of contact between the industry and the community is the exhibitor, it was pointed out, and the latter is helpless in the matter of obtaining many outstanding pictures not incluled in blocks under contract "for the reason that three or four blocks of pictures will virtually preempt his playing time and he cannot obtain the meritorious pictures of other producers without buying their entire blocks,

Block Booking Bill Will Meet Need, Report States

which, in the circumstances, he cannot possibly use."

Enactment of the bill as introduced is recommended by the committee, which declared that it "is in effect as much a relinquishment as an exertion of the power of Congress over interstate commerce in that it enables communities freedom of selection of motion picture films shipped in interstate commerce in much the same way that Congress from time to time has yielded to the state local option in respect of intoxicating liquors shipped in a similar manner.

"There appears to be no sound reason for assuming that the enactment of the bill will inflict appreciable monetary loss on the motion picture industry," the committee asserted. "The measure will effect no shrinkage in the playing time on the screens, there will still be the same number of theatres operating the same number of days a week and the same number of hours a day, and this playing time will have to be occupied by the product of the existing producing and distributing organizations, at least until competition has sprung up under the conditions of free and open competition which will prevail.

"The only change will be that exhibitors will have the opportunity to make up for the poor pictures not hitherto available to them. To illustrate: if the bill is passed, an exhibitor who heretofore has bought the full blocks of Paramount-Metro-Fox, will be free to buy only half of the pictures included in those blocks and he will be enabled to purchase half of the blocks of RKO, Warners and Universal.

"In brief," the committee contended, "the bill, if enacted, will result in giving additional play dates and extended running to the good pictures at the expense of the bad, and the public will gain, not only from the vital standpoint of selectivity, but also because of the added incentive on the part of all producers to make better pictures due to the restoration of competitive conditions.

"Both the testimony and everyday observation confirms the fact that the producer-affiliated theatres frequently give extended playing time to unusually popular pictures. To do this they must of necessity discard other of their own productions.

"If the producers refrain from showing their poorer pictures in their affiliated theatres, the independent exhibitors should not be compelled to buy them as a condition precedent to obtaining other pictures which they and their patrons desire.

"The main point of attack by producer-distributor was Section 4, requiring the furnishing of synopses," the committee explained, "but it is obvious that this provision must be retained if the bill is to accomplish its purpose to establish community freedom in the matter of motion picture entertainment. The right of selection conferred by Section 3 would be a farce without the provision for supplying the information on which the selection would necessarily be based."

The contention that pictures have improved in quality in the past two years was held by the committee to be irrelevant "since the public is entitled to choose even between good pictures.

"But the recent feeble reformation is purely voluntary," the report charged, "and there is no assurance that even present imperfect standards will be maintained if this legislation is not passed. Experience teaches that, as a rule, such reforms are sporadic, induced by outbursts of indignation, and that they are of short duration."

With Congress planning to adjourn tomorrow night or, at the latest, Monday, the committee's enthusiastic endorsement of the bill is not expected to be effective in securing enactment.

Sabath Report Hits Bondholder Groups

lowed by the courts, the cost of which was borne by the stockholders.

"In the reorganization of Paramount-Publix Corp. of New York," the report pointed out, "approximately $3,200,000 in fees and expenses had been requested in addition to some $400,000 previously allowed and paid. One law firm, Root, Clark, Buckner and Ballantyne, of New York, had been allowed $250,000 and was claiming an additional $700,000. During public hearings in New York, your compensation, delved into this matter many of whom have served without compensation, delved into this matter to determine what services could be rendered by a group of men, their attorneys and associates, over a period of a few years, that would justify the enormous fees approximating $3,600,000.

"Considerable publicity was given to the activities and interest of your committee and we feel that it was due largely to our public review of the matter and our bringing it to the attention of the courts that the fees and expenses requested were reduced by approximately 75 per cent."

The committee also referred to the fact that the Bankruptcy Act limits fees but that such limitation is not applicable to 77-B reorganization, as a result of which many groups have "injected themselves into the proceedings, making claims on the court for services, which fees are often allowed far in excess of the value of the services rendered."

In this respect the report also cited the Paramount case, as well as another situation where Straus issues on motion picture theatres were involved, as in St. Louis, where a large producer and distributor invested approximately $3,500,000 in real estate and offered a reorganization in which he pledged all his own resources, to be made without salary and without detriment to investors, which plan was killed by a protective committee.

legitimate stage fields before films meant anything. His first foray into exhibition was at the Whiteway, Chicago, said to have been the first picture theatre in that city. Thereafter, he was with Essanay and General Film. He roadshowed pictures, including the original "Spoilers," as well as "Neptune's Daughter," was with Paramount in Chicago, operated his own state right exchanges in that city and in Kansas City and built theatres in Missouri. When Spyros Skouras took charge of the Warner circuit, Peskay took over the Philadelphia zone, a post which he held for three years. He then returned to New York as assistant to Joseph Bernhard, then newly appointed successor to Skouras. Peskay took charge of Warner houses from the Atlantic seaboard as far west as Chicago. When Skouras joined Fox, he assumed the post from which he is about to retire.

George Skouras, operating head of Skouras Theatres, will take over the film buying as soon as Peskay leaves.

New 10-Year Quota, Fixed Costs Sought

and say, they are interested in the production of bad British films?"

Fennelly replied: "No, I would not put that against them."

"Then there is no reason to suppose they desire to see that the reputation of British films is lowered?"

"That has been alleged," Fennelly replied, "but it is difficult, of course, to get any proof of a thing like that."

The film group's recommendations are for a renewal of the act for 10 years, the quota in the future to be a proportion of foreign films handled or exhibited, instead of a percentage of the total including British films; fixing the minimum cost at £2,500 per reel and £15,000 per feature. Another recommendation is that films made especially for renters' quotas are to carry 30 to 40 seconds of trailer; the renters' quota to start at 29 per cent and rise to 54 per cent in six years and the exhibitors' quota to start at 25 per cent and rise to 50 per cent in the same period.

Films made in the British dominions would not rank for British quotas, except under special reciprocal quota arrangements with such dominions.

Native Writers Demanded

It is also urged that scenario writers be British as well as technicians and that not more than one foreign technician be employed in a British picture.

The C.E.A. asks a new quota basis making two films available from distributors for every one which the exhibitor must show, exhibitors' quota to be reduced immediately to 10 per cent.

The C. E. A. opposes the minimum cost suggestion and urges as an alternative that the committee approve the quality of films before registration, with any future legislation to give the Board of Trade power to vary the quota, or not, to extend five years.

During evidence by Theodore H. Fligelstone, president, and W. R. Fuller, secretary of the C. E. A., about audience objection to British films, questions were asked whether this applied chiefly in Jewish slum districts.

One question by the chairman was: "Is it fairly accurate to say that most Jews in all branches of the industry here and abroad trace their origin to a common mid-European bloc and that they have a natural antipathy to the British outlook as represented in films?"

Fuller's reply was: "No. The British films—a good many of them—are produced by these people."

The Kinematograph Renters' Society will present its case on Tuesday.

5 Majors Offer 270; 134 in Top Brackets and 10 at 40%

Five of the majors are quoting major circuits delivery of 270 features, 134 of them in the upper brackets and 10 at a peak percentage figure of 40 per cent for the new season. M-G-M lists four in the top percentage division, Warners a like number, Radio, two, Paramount and 20th Century-Fox, none. The following chart gives the proposal, which represents the opening quotation:

Company	Total	Top Group	At 40%	At 35%	At 30%	At 25%
M-G-M	50	30	4	6	6	14
Paramount	60	26	.	4	6	16
Radio	48	22	2	3	5	12
20th-Fox	52	26	.	4	6	16
Warners	60	30	4	5	5	15
Total	270	134	10	22	28	73

There is a gap of one in the Warner bid. This represents an unnamed picture on which the percentage figure has not been set, although circuit men are under the impression it probably will be "Anthony Adverse" to be offered at 50 per cent.

Columbia is offering 42 pictures and is understood to have indicated willingness to make new deals on the basis of this season's, provided circuits will pay 35 per cent for Pictures No. 41 and 42, which are to be Frank Capra productions.

Price Dispute Is CEA Meeting Topic

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, June 21.—The summer conference of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n opens at Eastbourne Monday and closes Friday and is expected to be highlighted by controversy over the alleged threat of distributors to establish theatres in cities where independents control prices and the distributors' insistence upon dictating credit terms and free access to box-offices to check percentages.

This is the big talkfest of the year. The conference, in all probability, will comply with precedent by providing at least one sensational debate and possibly a resolution on matters which

Details Only Bar Shift in St. Louis

Ernest L. Wilkinson, attorney for F. & M., is due from Washington today or tomorrow to wind up final details in connection with Harry C. Arthur's acquisition of Warners' three theatres in St. Louis and a 42 per cent interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co., operating 20 neighborhood houses and now in receivership with Nelson Cunliff as court's representative.

Provided the few unsettled legal points are ironed out satisfactorily by all interests, F. & M. will assume management of the Shubert-Rialto, Orpheum and Hi-Pointe on Friday. Every effort will be made to clean up the deal this week, it is said.

Reports have been current B. & K.

M-G-M had five going. Columbia and Twentieth Century-Fox each had four.

Renewals of Para. Circuit Deals Nearing

Wilby-Kincey, L. & J. Pacts Up Wednesday

Recommendations for the extension of the operating contracts for the Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins circuits for one year are scheduled to be acted on by the Paramount board at a special meeting Wednesday.

The board is also slated to act on the Karl Hoblitzelle partnership agreement for the operation of the Texas Interstate theatres. All three operating deals expire July 1. The Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins contracts do not involve stock ownership and, on the basis of the recommendation to renew the contracts and the favorable operating results of both circuits in the past, it is believed that the new contracts will be approved. Both operations were commended in the Joseph P. Kennedy report on Paramount theatre enterprises which went to the company's board last week.

is angling for the 52 per cent interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co., which is owned by Skouras Bros. Enterprises. Jules Rubens, an affiliate of B. & K., has been in St. Louis to look over the situation.

Cunliff is understood preparing to reorganize the neighborhood circuit. He is believed to have the support of Arthur, whose stock interest, pooled with the 52 per cent which Cunliff represents, would make 94 per cent stock backing in the rehabilitation plan to be presented to the Federal court. A reorganization of the St. Louis Amusement Co. would eliminate any outsiders from entering into the setup.

Arthur, most likely, will operate the 20 houses under the new plan.

Child Bill Is Passed

The Board of Estimate has passed the local New York law permitting unaccompanied minors under 16 to attend film theatres under strict regulation. The measure was passed last week by the Board of Aldermen, and now awaits Mayor La Guardia's signature.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

A MEASURE of comfort and assurance is to be found in the statement on television made before the Federal Communications Commission in Washington a handful of days ago. James M. Skinner, chairman of the special committee on television of the Radio Manufacturers Association, was talking and what he said, in part, is worth reprinting here:

> "It is likely that television will depend to a very large degree on film producers for films for television broadcasting. The required technique is the same. Television and films should not, in the opinion of the manufacturers, be serious competitors. Television will never supplant the movies. Of course, it may be argued that some people may stay home to see a news or sporting event, or a play, rather than go to the movies, but, as in the case of radio broadcasting, the stimulation of the public mind to greater interest in wider fields should encourage their greater attendance in person at the movies, sporting events, or theatre. Furthermore, the gregarious instinct of the human race to gather in crowds is fundamental and will never be changed by television or anything else. It is wholly unlikely that television will be used anything like the number of hours per day that sound radio is used. Television in too large doses would be tiring."

While assurance certainly runs through this point of view, it is our opinion that too much complacency should not follow. Today, the transfer in wholesale of radio broadcasting to Hollywood where the talent is to be found has sharpened the competition between air and screen entertainment with the answer apparently defying solution. There are those, as all and sundry are aware, who argue super broadcasts whet the desire to see stars in their next attraction, whatever it may be. No doubt, this is in large measure the truth. Yet, it must likewise be true that the star worshippers are very apt to stay out of theatres and close to their loudspeakers on the nights their favorites take the air. . . .

When television becomes economical enough and, therefore, marketable enough, theatre business will suffer, probably brutally. The first flush of excitement will be drummed up by its sponsors through the usual methods of ballyhoo and advertising and the job of creating a vast audience at the outset will be a lead pipe cinch. We should say that the size of this audience will diminish or increase in direct ratio to the quality of televised programs and the talent that performs them. How to combat the situation which is inevitably on the way is as vexatious to answer as the problem in radio. At least, it strikes us as a sensible, if obvious, suggestion that the major factors in the industry turn more serious attention to a situation which they must, or should, know is on the way and make whatever plans seem feasible now. Not necessarily to fight against it, but to cooperate with it. . . .

Rowland production for Paramount, "I Give My Life," was begun at the Educational Studios. Paramount put "With Banners Blowing" into work.

Twentieth Century-Fox completed three, "Girls' Dormitory," "The Bowery Princess" and "Charlie Chan at the Racetrack." Warners finished two, "Cain and Mabel" and "China Clipper." Edwin L. Marin brought "Sworn Enemy" in several days ahead of schedule for M-G-M, and Republic finished "The Gentleman from Louisiana."

Radio had five features preparing, Paramount three, Columbia and Universal two each, and Goldwyn, M-G-M, Republic, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners one each. Paramount was editing 12; Warners, eight; Columbia and Twentieth Century-Fox, five each; M-G-M and Republic, four each; Radio and Universal, three each, and Hal Roach, two.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"We Went to College"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, June 21.—Some people may like this. Others may think it silly. The preview audience's opinion swung both ways. The show is comedy. It has laughs in some places and falls flat in others.

The picture has to do with a lot of old graduates returning for a college reunion. Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel, Walter Catlett and Walter Abel are the main amusement providers. There is fun in a homecoming football parade, a game, a college show and frat house revelry. The romantic menace, Abel, is married to Edith Atwater and falls for the lure of Miss Merkel, Herbert's wife, and begins to relive his old campus dreams. As everything is mixed up and Miss Atwater fears she will lose her husband, Miss Merkel explains that the escapade has been a nightmare.

A midsummer attraction, the billing of Butterworth, Herbert and Miss Merkel indicates the film's character.

Selling it as a laugh show in which there are no serious and few quiet moments looks like the best exploitation lead.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,329. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Arizona Raiders"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 21.—This offers an unusual amount of comedy in a routine plot, but the laugh sequences are constructed for surprise and deserve special emphasis.

Larry Crabbe rescues Raymond Hatton from hanging only to discover he has a horse thief on his hands. Nevertheless they become pals, and, after meeting Marsha Hunt, devote all their energies to saving her cattle from the greedy grip of her double dealing foreman. Johnny Downs plays the juvenile lover who is determined to elope with Jane Rhodes and puts the part over with unusual success. Raymond Hatton stands out in a fairly large part and Crabbe does plenty of hard riding and shooting.

The competent cast includes Grant Withers, Arthur Aylesworth, Don Rowan, Richard Carle, Petra Silva, Augie Gomez, Ken Cooper and "Spike" Spackman. The direction by James Hogan deserves special praise for its emphasis on laughs. Dan Keefe supervised and A. M. Botsford produced from the novel by Zane Grey. The screenplay, interesting for its good dialogue, is by Robert Yost and John Krafft.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,248. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"Ticket to Paradise"

(Republic)

Hollywood, June 21.—Concerned with the efforts of Roger Pryor to establish his identity after an auto accident makes him an amnesia victim, this is at times amusing and occasionally a bit dull.

Pryor remembers only that he is in a hurry to catch a train. He lands in New York, where Luis Alberni, the doctor, convinces him he should be a taxi driver. His first fare, Wendy Barrie, falls in love with him and when her father, Claude Gillingwater, sets a time limit by which Pryor must establish his identity, the couple set out on a tour to find someone who recognizes him. Seeking publicity, their series of wild escapades brings Wendy's legs, but not Pryor's face, into print, and almost ruins father's securities business. The competitors attempt to place Pryor as the owner of a night club which the couple decide to remodel. In an ensuing riot, Pryor is hit on the head, his memory returns, and he foils the competitors.

Aubrey Scotto, who directed, has sustained the suspense and brought out many laughs. Jack Natteford and Nathaniel West did the script from an original by David Silverstein. Victor Zobel supervised.

Report Grand National May Start Circuit

Financial Interests Said To Favor the Move

Financial interests backing Grand National yesterday were reported interested in developing a national circuit with deals said to be on for a half interest in seven New York and New England houses and also for 18 others.

According to the story, the men are reported to be anxious to buy into the seven-house circuit built up by Edward Peskay. This group, it was said, would serve as a nucleus in addition to the Pathe theatre in Denver on which Grand National has an option to buy.

Peskay vehemently denied the reports, stating the only reason he resigned from Skouras Theatres was to

No 20th-Fox Deal, States Ostrer Here

Denying his trip had anything to do with reported stories of a stock deal with Twentieth Century-Fox, Isidore Ostrer, chairman of the G.B. board, arrived yesterday morning on the Queen Mary for a general checkup on the company's American activities and to develop more revenue from this market, he declared in a statement to Motion Picture Daily.

"Like everything else," Ostrer stated, the increase in business will have to be gradual." There is nothing to the various rumors linking G.B. with a stock deal with Twentieth Century-Fox, he said.

Speculation over an offer from the Greenfriars Investment Trust for a half interest in the Denham Trust, an investment company largely interested in G.B., and providing for the purchase of 412,138 £1 shares at 23 shillings, six pence was described by Ostrer as "basically without importance." He said that by this arrangement the stock becomes marketable

Industry Tribute Climaxes Career of Carl Laemmle

Evident above all else as a night of tributes to Carl Laemmle neared its close last midnight at the Waldorf-Astoria was that the Universal founder's benefactions are as widely known as his place in the industry's history and as numerous as the friends that gathered to pay their respects at the close of his active career as an industry leader.

That it is the end of his active career Laemmle insisted again last night. His old friend, William A. Brady, was not convinced of it.

"I want you as my partner to produce a picture that will make a million dollars," Brady tested him.

"No, sir. I'm through," was Laemmle's response, given lightly but with emphasis.

Laemmle was hailed as benefactor and industry pioneer by the many who spoke in his honor at the testimonial

No Film Bills Are Passed by 74th Congress

Efforts to Speed Up Block Booking Law Fail

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, June 22.—No legislation affecting the film industry was passed by the 74th Congress.

Despite last-minute efforts to secure consideration of film legislation, neither house took up the subject, and the block booking bill, requiring merely affirmative action by the House and Senate and the actor-immigration bill, passed by the House, both failed at the last moment.

As usual, many measures applicable to the industry were introduced during the five and one-half months of the session, and a number were carried over from the first session of the Congress just ended. All, now, are thrown into the discard and if any are to be considered next year they must be reintroduced and treated as new measures.

The block booking and copyright bills were the outstanding features of Los Angeles, June 22.—Plans to form an independent booking office for this territory have finally materialized with the formation of Pacific States Theatres Service Co. Fifteen independent theatres will book through the office, though the new company will not buy film.

George Milner will replace Blowitz at FWC, and Carl Smith will take over Rackin's duties at Principal.

Brazil Quota Suggested by Film Censor

By A. WEISSMANN

Rio de Janeiro, May 22.—R. Magalhaes, Jr., film critic of A Noite, and a member of the censor board, has suggested to the Brazilian Government the imposition of a quota, providing for the compulsory acquisition by foreign distributors of 10 meters of domestic product for every 100 meters imported and released.

Brazil annually imports approximately 600 features. The quota suggestion has met with favor in many quarters, but it has been pointed out that Brazilian producers do not turn out 10 per cent of the total of features imported annually. In 1935 domestic producers completed about 100,000 meters of features and shorts, compared with a total of 1,250,000 meters imported, mostly by American distributors here.

It is expected that the Government will not give serious consideration to the quota suggestion at this time.

Decided Increase Noted

There has been a decided increase in Brazilian production, but in the main only in the output of short subjects, since the Government ordered that every foreign picture exhibited must be accompanied by domestic short product. From eight to 10 new shorts are produced each week.

Brazil Vita Films has released its latest picture, "Cidade-Mulher" ("Town Woman"), which was directed by Humberto Mauro. He has two other features scheduled. Raul Roulian is completing his first feature, which he directed and in which he is starred. Opposite him is his wife, Conchita Montenegro. The film is titled, "Grito Da Juventude" ("The Cry of Youth"). Fan Films has "O Gigante Da America Do Sul" ("The South American Giant") in work, and plans early production on "Tremendal," a jungle story.

American films which have been notably successful in the leading local theatres recently include "Top Hat," "The Littlest Rebel" and "Anna Karenina."

Austrian Says U. S. Will Produce There

Vienna, June 22.—American firms will produce musical films here, according to Eugen Lanske, Trade Minister, who has just returned from the United States. Back of the idea, it is said, is a desire to increase American film sales here at the expense of German firms which have export bounties.

No conflict is seen with the provisions of the new French laws on censorship.

An important phase of the agreement provides that the German Government will permit the transfer of foreign currencies which have been collected in Germany by the exploitation of French films. U. S. Product Leads In Czechoslovakia

By HARRY KNOPF

Prague, June 19 (Via the Hindenburg.)—American product, which dominated the Czechoslovakian market during the current season with 150 releases, is expected to duplicate that next season. Of an anticipated total of approximately 300 features, American companies are expected to supply more than 150.

Leading American films have proved to be the hits of the present season here, with "Broadway Melody" and "Modern Times" among the outstanding grossers. German producers have attempted to register in this market, but have failed, owing to the political situation and the comparatively poor quality of the German output, which is too nationalistic.

Twentieth Century-Fox, M-G-M, United Artists and Paramount are expected to have especially good season here. Audiences in this country are discriminating, never willing to accept a film merely because it has been ballyhooed. That is given as the explanation of the fact that many of the most heavily publicized pictures do not run longer than a single week at the leading local theatres.

Domestic production is expected to show an increase over the current season, the Film Advisory Board having expressed itself optimistically. Approximately 18 films are expected from the various producers during the coming season.

W. C. Fields

In "Poppy"

The great W. C. Fields is to be seen at the Paramount in one of his most fabulous roles, that of Professor Eustace P. McGargle, F. A. S. N. It goes almost without saying that "Poppy" is the funniest and most completely diverting comedy that has come to local screens for a long time In spite of the serious illness that has made acting for Mr. Fields a brave challenge to adversity, the new photoplay finds him magnificently comic. The master of what Alva Johnston has termed "unfaked or legitimate nonchalance," he is once more the supreme clown, mixing pantomime with racy wit and making the carnival trouper whose advice to his foster daughter was "never give a sucker an even break" enormously appealing.

It is eminently fitting that "Poppy" should present him to film-goers again after too long an absence. He was first raised to stardom in the Dorothy Donnelly play a dozen years ago and the silent screen version of the tale. "Sally of the Sawdust," marked his debut before the camera. It is a colorful vehicle for his consummate genius, exploiting all his talents with the exception of juggling. As the elixir-vending concessionaire who clips yokels with the shell and pea game, sells talking dogs, forges legal documents and appropriates various loose objects from a cigar to a horse, he is a completely lovable scoundrel.

There is no hint in his present performance that it was executed under arduous and even painful circumstances. When he is tossed off the carnival wagon he holds his shoulder gingerly, muttering about a dislocated sacro-iliac with grim good humor, but one never might suspect that each scene was shot just after he had cast aside two canes and walked away from attendants. The photoplay is full of splendid slapstick, ranging from a hilarious piece of business on a croquet grounds to an uproarious suspender-snapping sequence when the brilliant comedian wrestles with full-dress clothes.

The Donnelly work has not entirely escaped the ravages of time. It has a rather incredible romance of the musical comedy variety and a lost heiress theme that demands your tolerance. Fortunately, the piece has been adroitly adapted and directed to give Mr. Fields a multitude of opportunities to provoke your laughter. This he succeeds in doing superbly, even when he is mumbling quite unintelligibly. The opening passage, in which he endows a stray pup with speech and sells him to a bartender for a couple of sawbucks is sure to become a classic of cinema comedy.

As Richard Watts jr. has written, Mr. Fields "may be less universal than Chaplin, but he stands for what we would like to think was typical American folk comedy at its highest degree." In "Poppy," for all his triumphs over the hicks, he enlists your sympathy profoundly and sets up overtones of pathos that are compelling. That he was able to appear at all is a testament to his courage. That he has made his current role one of his greatest portrayals is a glowing tribute to his consummate showmanship.

W. C. Fields Plays Medicine Spieler,

By ROSE PELSWICK.

The incomparable W. C. Fields is back on the screen again, with his twangy voice, his flowery verbiage, his acrobatic silk hat, his cigar and all those tricks of pantomime and dialogue that make him head man among the comics. Recovered from a serious illness that lasted almost a year, he's at the Paramount Theatre this week in a filmization of his old stage success, "Poppy."

ROSE PELSWICK

The Fields enthusiasts—and they packed the theatre at yesterday morning's first performance—will find plenty to delight them. This time he's Professor Eustace McGargle, a patent-medicine spieler who follows carnival shows and extolls the virtues of "Purple Bark Sarsaparilla" while running a quiet shell-game on the side. During the course of the proceedings he does his famous croquet routine and also the hilarious ventriloquism bit with the dog that he sells to the bartender.

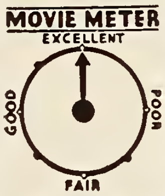
W. C. Fields Returns to the Paramount Screen in "Poppy"

The Incomparable Comedian at His Best in Film Version of His Erstwhile Stage Vehicle

By THORNTON DELEHANTY

BETRAYING slight traces of the desperate illness he suffered last year, the ineffable W. C. Fields is back on the screen again in the film version of "Poppy," the musical comedy by the late Dorothy Donnelly in which he appeared many seasons ago on Broadway.



"Poppy" has been changed in the adaptation, but Mr. Fields, being an incomparable comedian, is essentially himself. We wouldn't go so far as to say that he is funnier than ever because we doubt if even he could be that, but "Poppy" offers him a highly suitable role, and its dialogue is rich in characteristically Fieldian humor.

It is, moreover, an engaging play in its own right, artfully combining bucolic sentiment with roguery and offering the supporting players several comic and romantic scenes independently of the star. For it is an evidence of the Fields genius that he can afford both competition and help from the other members of his cast.

Thus Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell blossom forth in a surprisingly neat love match which is not without its intentionally funny moments; Catherine Doucet and Lynne Overman are likewise hilariously engaged in amorous maneuvers, and the minor characters, of the small town and circus carnival variety, furnish a background that is properly keyed to the story.

Fields and His 'Poppy' More Hilarious Movie Than in Stage Version

A real Fields' Day of delightful comedy brings that Grand Old Party of the movies, W. C. Fields, to the Paramount screen in a bigger and better laugh version of a vehicle in which he stage-starred years ago. Time cannot blunt the Fieldsian wit, dim the humor of the comic master, nor still the Olympian laughter which his divine nonsense inspires. He and "Poppy" are more hilarious today than in any of the yesterdays.

Established in the character of a carnival chiseler, the ludicrously pompous Mr. Fields gives lavishly of his rich talent, dazzling again with the old tricks and many that are new. The show is his, yet for those who must have romance in their movies, that element is present, too, and nicely contributed by Rochelle Hudson and stalwart young Richard Cromwell.

Mr. Fields deftly registers bit after bit of inspired comedy, delivers laugh after laugh, and holds his comic crown securely.

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM

Fields as Hilarious Vagabond Provides Great Fun in "Poppy"

By WILLIAM BOEHNEL.

ORDINARILY the bare announcement that a new W. C. Fields film has arrived on Broadway is sufficient to send the countless Field enthusiasts scurrying to the theater post hast to see the greatest of all screen comics. But when that news is further supplemented by the information that Mr. Fields has never been funnier, the announcement becomes an event and calls for a revival of those old customs of street dancing and hat tossing.

William Boehnel.

The news, then, is that in "Poppy," at the Paramount, the funniest of all comedians offers one of the finest performances of his career. Since the film permits Mr. Fields to play a disreputable carnival vagabond and gives him an opportunity to appear in almost every scene, it can be definitely set down as one of the most hilarious and satisfying of the recent motion pictures.

Here the star is an itinerent carnival player who, accompanied by his ward, Poppy, comes to a small town during the engagement of a traveling circus. Believing that it never pays to give a sucker a break, Mr. Fields, as Professor Eustace McGargle, soon gets himself a concession. Here, too, he learns from the unscrupulous village lawyer that an enormous estate in town is lying idle because the missing 18-year-old heiress cannot be found. He decides to palm off his ward as the girl.

Of course, the ruse is exposed, and Fields is forced to flee the town. But just when he is apprehended and brought back to be thrown into jail, it is discovered that Poppy is actually the rightful owner of the estate. Although Fields is overjoyed at the news, he is unable to enjoy any other life, but that of the big tent, and so he takes to the road in search of new suckers on whom to practice the old army game, while Poppy stays behind to marry one of the town boys.

That's the story and it isn't much. But, then, when did any story in which Mr. Fields appears have to be much? Give him a croquet bat or a billiard table, or some mad invention and his scenario writers may just as well take a vacation. And "Poppy" is no exoeption.

THE unique, the only, the inspired W. C. Fields contributes his exquisite fun to this pretty romance, adapted from one of his greatest stage successes.

Impersonating the delightful rogue, Professor McGargle, he manages to apply carnival methods to the business of providing happiness and a future for his wistful little girl, the Poppy of the title.

Filled with the laughs which are entirely W. C. Fields, the picture never becomes too sentimental, despite the elaborate sweetness of Miss Rochelle Hudson and young Richard Cromwell, the lovers. In his battle of wits against the Reform Mayor and the amorous widow, Fields is his matchless self.

San Francisco Case On Screeno Watched

San Francisco, June 22.—Local police have taken their first action to ban Screeno, arresting Rene T. LaMarre, manager of the President, five times in five days for operating the game. Theatre interests throughout the state are watching the case closely, since the game is claimed to violate both city and state anti-lottery laws.

The action came as a surprise, since 22 houses have been using the give-away for some time without police interference. Bank Night and other types of games are being used in practically every subsequent in the area. A jury trial has been set for this week in the President case.

Thermometer Routs Kansas City Houses

Kansas City, June 22.—Temperatures hovering about the 100 degree mark have sent local theatre business to the showers, and set exhibitors to howling at the sun. Two large independent circuits experienced their worst week thus far last week.

The general concensus here is that theatre business is not booming. The use of premiums, giveaways and double billing is more widespread than ever before. Fox Midwest has just started duals on four out of five Wichita houses, the Wichita, Palace, Uptown and Orpheum.

session, from the viewpoint of the lustry. Both were made subject to gthy hearings by committees, the oking bill by both House and Senate d the copyright measure, which was ssed by the Senate in 1935, by the ouse Patents Committee.

The booking bill was given a favor- e report a few days before ad- urnment by the Senate Interstate mmerce Committee; the House mmittee on Interstate and Foreign mmerce would, it is believed, have en similar action had it not been foregone conclusion that the Rules mmittee would not permit its con- eration on the floor.

The copyright bill did not reach the nt of a favorable committee report, largely to the opposition of some the members to A.S.C.A.P. and of ers to the manner in which the ject was handled. The committee several bills before it—that passed the Senate and measures introduced Chairman Sirovich and Representa- Daly of Pennsylvania.

The film industry, like all others, l, of course, be affected by the v tax law, which provides for cor- ation income taxes ranging from ht to 15 per cent and surtaxes on listributed net income running from en to 27 per cent.

Some Never Heard

The several bills designed to remove sent bars on the interstate trans- tation of fight films never reached n the point of hearings.

The Dickstein bill to limit the entry alien actors was passed by the use, but so late in the session that Senate refused to give the matter consideration.

Representative Sirovich's bill for the ablishment of a Department of ence, Art and Literature, and his olutions for an investigation of the otion and sonant picture" industry, Duffy bill to prohibit public ap- rances for profit of jurors serving criminal trials, and the Culkin bill creation of a Federal motion pic- commission were among the asures which received no con- ration.

Dietrich Tax Appeal Filed in Washington

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Denying that she is a "non resident alien," attorneys for Marlene Dietrich today filed a brief with the Board of Tax Appeals contending that her residence in California entitles the actress to the benefits of the state property laws for income tax purposes.

The brief was filed in connection with deficiencies of $52,562 claimed of the star by the Government on her 1933 income, which, the Treasury claims, was $187,469, and on which she paid taxes of $17,209. In addition to the benefit of the California property laws, Miss Dietrich contended that the Government had erroneously included in her net income property belonging to Rudolph Seiber, her husband.

San Francisco Fire Law More Stringent

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—The hope of local exhibitors for a more liberal fire ordinance on theatre crowds received a setback when the fire department returned a draft of the proposed new law to the city attorney's office to be made "more restrictive."

The fire regulation supported by the theatre men is based on the current New York code and permits patrons to wait in lobbies and foyers provided a ten-foot aisle is maintained. The present ordinance, tacitly unenforced until very recently, forces those waiting for seats to stand in the street outside the theatres. The Board of Supervisors is expected to pass the new ordinance when it has been approved by the fire department.

chairman, had postponed the recent hearings which were about to get under way in Washington only until after the annual meeting of Paramount stockholders. This was done at the request of Joseph P. Kennedy, who, in asking for the postponement, said that he felt the holding of public hearings on the company's affairs in advance of the meeting of stockholders "would confuse matters to a greater extent insofar as the bondholders and security holders of the company are concerned."

Kennedy added as a further argument for the postponement of the hearing that he hoped a program would be initiated at the stockholders' meeting "which would be based upon definite recommendations that will remedy conditions in the company now subject to criticism."

It was reported here that members of the committee are of the opinion that no such program as that suggested in Kennedy's communication to Sabath was proposed at the stockholders' meeting.

Saul Rogers, film attorney, who led the questioning of Paramount officials at the stockholders' meeting, said yesterday that he was organizing a stockholders' committee of inquiry which would attempt to obtain information concerning plans for Paramount's future administrative policy and what new manpower the company will attempt to acquire. He said that the committee now represents about 75,000 shares of Paramount stock and that it hoped to increase this to 500,000 shares in a few months. Rogers said that the committee would also propose new names for the company's directorate.

Indications yesterday were that the annual election of Paramount officers would not be held at the regular board meeting on Thursday, as at first believed, but will probably be deferred until later.

Short Subjects

Louis-Schmeling Fight Pictures

(Super Sports Attractions)

With every important blow shown clearly, giving the audience better than ringside seats, these films of the big bout last week are the last word. The sound of the crowd and of the blows as punches connect made a new note in realism. The thud of leather against flesh can be plainly heard. The knockdowns and closeups are fine, vivid photography. Each important punch-slinging moment is shown in closeup and the scene of the knockdown in the fourth is repeated in slow motion. The cameras were cleverly placed and cutting and closeups were well handled. No production code seal number. Running time, 46 minutes. "G."

"The Champ's a Chump"

(Columbia)

This is a jocular episode in college athletics and has moments which will provoke laughter. At times there is forced comedy from stock situations, but by and large, it is snappy and tuneful as the tunes of the "swing" variety are provided by Louis Prima and his band. Guinn Williams plays the pug turned collegian to get an intercollegiate boxing champion to turn pro. He has to join the student body and take resultant hazing. However, after some roughhouse, slapstick and romantic interludes he meets the champion in the ring and using "Sockology" brings him down and everything ends well Production Code Seal, No. 2,257. Running time, 17½ mins. "G."

Industry Tribute Climaxes Career of Carl Laemmle

held under the auspices of the amusement division of the United Palestine Appeal, one of the charities to which he has been a liberal donor.

The nearly 500 who attended came in tribute to Laemmle, the man and his career, and this fact was cited by Nathan Straus, chairman of the New York campaign of the Palestine Appeal, as further evidence of Laemmle's generosity. This note was prominent in the words of every speaker.

"A fine man lends a great name to a great cause," Louis Nizer, co-chairman of the amusement division, said later. He pointed out that the evening's tribute was to both the film pioneer and "the other Laemmle—the man we know as 'Uncle Carl'."

War Time Generosity Stressed

Brady stressed Laemmle's generosity in time of war, told how he overcame difficulties in 1917 to get 10,000,000 feet of film into Europe as pictorial evidence of America's amazing aid to her Allies, heartening, war preparations. He characterized the Universal founder as "a man and a hero". Federal Judge Julian W. Mack paid a glowing tribute to Laemmle's character and generosity, with particular reference to the aid he is giving to the Palestine Appeal. Gene Buck, president of Ascap, Judge Jonah Goldstein of General Sessions; Mrs. William Dick Sporborg, Terry Ramsaye, Major Adams Proctor, and other speakers of the evening said that his charitable works are as permanently established as is his place in the industry.

More than 1,000 wires were received during the evening, adding tribute from those unable to attend. They came from President Roosevelt, Adolph Zukor, Nicholas M. Schenck, Will Hays, Carl Laemmle, Jr., and many others.

Roosevelt Extends Greetings

In his message, President Roosevelt said: "Yours has been a dominant role in shaping a primitive enterprise into a gigantic industry and a powerful medium for artistic expression. I hope for you long years of health and happiness."

"Don't be too happy over that," Harry Hershfield, toastmaster, cautioned Laemmle after reading it. "It's likely to be declared unconstitutional yet."

An entertainment program concluding the evening featured a screening of "Hiawatha", Laemmle's first production. Milton Berle, Cross & Dunn, Jay C. Flippen, Harriet Hilliard, Joan Marsh, George O'Brien, George Raft, Pat Rooney, John Steel, Ed Sullivan and Alice White appeared on a program arranged by Louis K. Sidney of Loew's.

On the dais in addition to the speakers listed were Austin C. Keough, Siegfried Hartman, Donald Flamm, Jules E. Broulatour, Martin Quigley, Morris Rothenburg, Harry M. Warner and Major Henry Adams Proctor.

Election Year Is No Worry, Asserts Cohn

People Must Eat and Be Amused, He Declares

CHICAGO, June 23.—Solidly grounded, well organized industry need stand in no fear of bad business as a result of the uncertainty supposed to be inevitable in an election year, Jack Cohn, vice-president, told the delegates in an address at the annual Co-umbia sales conevtion at the Drake Hotel here today.

"People must eat, they must build iouses, they must buy clothes, they nust travel from place to place, and as a normal part of their life, in an election year, as in any other year, hey must seek diversion and amusement," he declared.

"Columbia," he continued, "has always belonged in this category of inlustry, and will continue to do so." He urged sanity and calmness despite he clamor and excitement of an elecion year, declaring the business ex-

CEA-KRS Theatre Battle Is Seen Likely at Conference

By BRUCE ALLAN

EASTBOURNE, Eng., June 23.—The possibility of a fight on principle between the C.E.A. and K.R.S. which may involve an appeal to the Government in regard to foreign holdings in British theatres and possible legal proceedings between exhibitors and renters over oppressive trading practices was foreshadowed in proceedings of the C.E.A. general council here today.

The meeting this morning in the Town Hall was secret and members were very reticent on detail of the proceedings, but an official report issued this evening indicates the council will demand a reversal of K.R.S. policies.

In the discussion of alleged instances of oppressive renter tactics a letter was presented from the northern branch reporting a complaint from E. J. Hinge that salesmen had threatened to "get one of the circuits in which they were interested" to build up an opposition house if product were not booked.

C. P. Metcalfe, vice-president of the association, said that he would have to look further into the case to see if representations should be made to Lord Moyne's committee to see how much foreign interests should have control over British theatres. Major Gale suggested the possibility of end-

Zukor Choice As Para. Head Likely Today

Board to Hold Annual Officers' Election

The annual election of officers of Paramount Pictures, Inc., is scheduled to be held today at a special meeting of the company's board of directors. Adolph Zukor appears to be the most likely candidate for the presidency of the company despite the fact that it was reported in authoritative quarters yesterday that a majority of the board was undecided on a candidate for the post as recently as Monday night.

The name of Stanton Griffis, a recent addition to the Paramount board, is mentioned more frequently than any other as the likely successor to both Zukor, as chairman of the board, and to H. A. Fortington as chairman of the executive committee. Although Fortington continues as a member of the board, his term as chairman of the executive committee expires with the annual election of officers. The latter post is a salaried position and requires almost the full time of the incumbent. Griffis, reputedly an Atlas Corp.-Lehman Bros. ally, is a member of the brokerage firm of Hemphill, Noyes.

Zukor is at the Paramount studio and, consequently, will not be in attendance at today's meeting. If he is elected to the presidency, indications are that he will remain at the studio for some time to come, regardless. John E. Otterson, whose Paramount contract has four years to run, may be given some special assignment by the board perhaps in connection with production. There is said to be no

By RED KANN

EXHIBIT Number Three, current series, in the chain of evidence which, with justification, permits those interested and proud in their industry to hold heads on high is "The Green Pastures," ready and coming up for release by Warners quickly now. The Hollywood preview wire, weeks ago, took this offering through the analytical ropes with the odds very heavily in favor of the film version of the play written by Marc Connelly from Roark Bradford's "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun." Our purpose today is to take full cognizance of an important Hollywood effort and to discuss several angles bearing on its future. . . .

"The Green Pastures," it seems almost totally unnecessary to state, is a story of the Deity as seen through the simple, believable and credulous eyes of the Louisiana negro. To him, "De Lawd" is, of course, kindly and sympathetic, but also wrathful, and His Kingdom, which is Heaven, a land of elaborate fish fries and fragrant ten cent cigars. The story of Creation is told, of "De Lawd's" trials and tribulations as the humans He created slip into the slough of careless and unholy conduct. Yet "The Green Pastures" is never shoved down the throat, never turned into moralizing or preachment, while yet it gets over clearly and succinctly its message. . . .

The angels discourse in matter-of-fact terms as they dust off their wings. Gabriel talks to "De Lawd" in accepted business administration terms. Noah builds the Ark according to divine specifications and, according to the Good Book, along comes the flood to wipe out the sinners and to allow "De Lawd" a chance at starting all over again. The results are delightful in their utter and wholesome, child-like simplicity, the picture charming and miles off the beaten track. It is so far off the beaten track, in fact, that any predictions as they may concern its commercial future constitute a guessing contest in which we propose taking no positive part. On the other hand, there are facts, formidable facts, which enter any discussion of "The Green Pastures" and command reflection. Some of them follow. . . .

As a play, its success, of course, grew into a hardy perennial of the American theatre. The show ran eighteen months in New York, won a Pulitzer Prize and played 1,652 performances in 203 cities and towns throughout 39 states with a gross of about $3,000,000. Those engagements included a notable tour of one-night stands in the deep South; 2,000,000 people are estimated as having seen one performance or another; in the 4,000 seat Shriners' Auditorium in Des Moines, the play filled every seat and grossed $11,000 in one day. In Big Spring, Texas, the receipts for a single day ended at $600. "The Green Pastures," before it completed its amazing barnstorming tour, had developed into a combination of American folklore and legend and became permanently woven into the fabric of the American scene. . . .

The conclusion interpretable from this scattered assortment of facts and figures would appear to be that an audience, as readily-made as any audience might be said to be, is waiting for the Warner version of the famous play. It will be argued that those who patronize the theatre do not always patronize the film and this is essentially true. But the circulation which the play achieved, in this instance, strikes us as being different—different and sufficiently embracing to assure a considerable percentage of those who saw and liked the play for the film. The others will have to be sold. We think they can. . . .

It is in the history of the play that its tour was marked by no religious intolerance in this country. England where materialization of the Deity long has been ruled out has banned the film. The Province of Ontario has done likewise and that, it is our opinion, is unfair. This is no argument with the fundamentals behind the belief. Their purpose is to avoid encouragement or to run counter the danger of irreverence. But "The Green Pastures" rightfully should be considered an exception by the very nature of conception and execution. It would be highly regrettable if this production for which the industry will be praised should find its circulation hampered because of a censorship restriction that properly does not apply under the circumstances. . . .

Ontario Bans "Pastures"

TORONTO, June 23.—Premier Hepburn announced today "The Green Pastures" has been banned in Ontario with his concurrence. An appeal to the Appeal Board is expected.

Dual Features Have Firm Hold in Brazil

The double feature has a firm hold on the exhibition field in Brazil, declared Al Szekler, Universal manager in that South American country, here for home office conferences. The only houses not using duals are the leading first runs in the major cities he said, and he indicated that other houses are able to make a profit only when they show double bills. Attempts have been made to discard the practice, but without success, Szekler said.

At least 70 per cent of the film business in Brazil is centered in about 1 major cities, with American produc dominating the market to the extent o 90 per cent, he said. The use o superimposed titles on original versions has been found the best procedure. The only real competition t American films is developing fror England, Szekler declared. There i little building in the area, the Plaz in Rio de Janeiro, seating 2,000, jus opened, and the new M-G-M hous also to seat 2,000, which will b opened in November, being the onl outstanding new houses. Szekler wi leave Saturday, returning directly t his headquarters in Rio.

Zukor Choice As Para. Head Likely Today

immediate likelihood of his contract being settled. His official position in the company has been confused since the annual stockholders' meeting, June 16, when he was not reelected to the Paramount board on the expiration of his one-year term. While the company's bylaws specify that the president must be a member of the board the same bylaws also specify that the incumbent president is to retain his office until a successor has been elected and qualified.

The bylaw provision that the president must be chosen from the members of the board is cited in many quarters as a further indication of the likelihood of Zukor's election to the post. However, there are 16 members of the board at present, whereas a maximum membership of 18 is authorized. Thus, if the dominant factors on the Paramount board agreed upon an outside candidate, one who might be better known to Wall Street than to the film industry, such a candidate could be elected to one of the board vacancies and then to the presidency. This possibility is suggested in responsible quarters on the basis of a known penchant of certain board factors for names which rank high in downtown opinion. Joseph P. Kennedy's name is still mentioned in this connection despite his emphatic denial last week that he was a candidate for any office in Paramount or that he desired to reenter the film business.

Doubt Anderson Reelection

Indications are that the following officers will be reelected: Neil F. Agnew, Y. Frank Freeman and John B. Hicks, Jr., vice-presidents; Walter B. Cokell, treasurer; Austin C. Keough, secretary, and Norman Collyer, assistant secretary. The reelection of R. E. Anderson as vice-president is considered doubtful, with a prominent Paramount executive being mentioned as a successor to the post.

The board committee consisting of Griffis, Harry O. King and Harvey D. Gibson, which was named to study the first "interim" Kennedy report and make recommendations to the full board based upon it may bring in its report at today's meeting. However, the fact that the committee's study of the report was delayed by the absence from the city of Gibson, may delay action on this. Kennedy is said to have suspended his Paramount study and, particularly in the event the board committee does not uphold his initial recommendations, is not expected to resume it.

Action on recommendations for extending the operating contracts for both the Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins circuits and for renewing the partnership arrangement with Karl Hoblitzelle for Texas Interstate Theatres on a revised basis is also scheduled to be taken by the board at to-today's meeting.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"San Francisco"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, June 23.—Facts tending to establish "San Francisco" as a great audience entertainment and a great showman's exploitation show are many. The quality of the motivating dramatic, romantic story is stirring and the sequences depicting the city's cataclysmic destruction are sensational. It is an impressive tribute to technical genius.

Performances supporting the stars are excellent and the music is an artistic treat. The caliber of the direction is imaginative and endows the plot with socking, believable realism which is powerful in its capability to stir emotions.

The film returns Clark Gable to the rough, tough, virile character in which he scored his greatest successes. Jeanette MacDonald sings with new charm and reveals herself as an accomplished dramatic artist. Spencer Tracy plays his role with understanding and sincere dignity. It should elevate his importance.

This has name value, with Jack Holt, Jessie Ralph, Ted Healy, Shirley Ross, Margaret Irving, Harold Huber and Al Shean plus the appeal elements listed above. It places in the hands of exhibitors all the commercial essentials to intrigue patron-interest.

The plot is simple and poignant and is developed in convincing fashion. It hurls Miss MacDonald into the welter of the Barbary Coast to become the innocent pawn between two amazing human forces. With a spiritual atmosphere underlying the human quality, all the picture's action tells a gripping, heart-warming love story. Her only trust placed in the counsel of the priest, she is helpless between Tracy and the powerful Holt.

In the fury of the earthquake, the technical excellence of which brought the preview audience to its feet, Gable works out his moral regeneration and finds that Miss MacDonald has been spared for him.

A dynamic story, it is told in dynamic style. It is sometimes brutal, sometimes hits heights of romantic beauty, with music adding much to the effect. Miss MacDonald's singing of the theme song, "San Francisco," is excellent, and her straight dramatic work drew applause from the audience. With Gable, her name offers much for the box-office. The film should provoke wide public attention.

The story is by Robert Hopkins and the screen play by Anita Loos. William S. Van Dyke, the director, is credited also with the production. The theme song is by Bronislau Kaper and Walter Jurmann. "Would You" is by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed and the musical direction by Herbert Stothart.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,180. Running time, 115 minutes. "G."

"M'Liss"

(Radio)

Hollywood, June 23.—Unusually well produced and performed, this backwoods romance should appeal to family audiences. It marks a definite step forward for Anne Shirley. She plays M'Liss, innocent and hot-tempered child growing up in the riotous atmosphere of gold rush days.

Her chief responsibility is a drunken father, Guy Kibbee, and her best friend is Douglas Dumbrille, for once in a sympathetic part as a good-hearted gambler. Her enemies are the meddling, self-righteous Morpher family, played with excellent comedy by Arthur Hoyt, Margaret Armstrong, William Benedict and Barbara Pepper. The best scene is her appeal to Esther Howard, whose work is outstanding as the middle aged dance hall butterfly, for an explanation of marriage after John Beal almost proposes.

James Bush, the menace from the big city; Moroni Olsen, Frank M. Thomas, Ray Mayer, Louis Mason, Arthur Loft and Fern Emmett complete the good cast. The film was directed with emphasis on the sentiment and comedy by George Nicholls, Jr., and Robert Sisk produced. The excellent screen play was done by Dorothy Yost from the old Bret Harte story.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,272. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Opposition Talked For Cocalis Moves

their time until the first brick is laid, it is said. As soon as this is done, the theatre men mentioned are expected to band together and buy a number of lots in areas where Cocalis has houses, not only in Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn, but also in New Jersey.

Springer & Cocalis have dropped the Momart and Heights, the theatres having been taken by J. Cohen. This circuit operates about 22 theatres, while Cocalis has 21 of his own and Springer about 15 in which Cocalis has no interest.

Negotiations whereby Loew's would take over the Marble Hill from Cocalis are understood to have reached an impasse. Cocalis is reported insisting that Loew's also assume operation of the Park Hill, Yonkers, with the major circuit's executives understood not to be keen on the second house. Cocalis reputedly has $400,000 cash invested in the Marble Hill, which was the first theatre in his circuit.

How this picture will be changed in the event the independents build in opposition is something no one can predict. Some say Loew's will not want the house, while others hold that because of the circuit's buying power, Loew's will not be concerned about new theatres going up in the Marble Hill neighborhood.

Election Year Is No Worry, Asserts Cohn

ecutive can, by a "persistent policy of 'business as usual,' become a dominating influence in maintaining prosperity."

A. Montague, general sales manager, opened the session this morning, outlining the sales policy, and declaring it would be flexible to meet necessary changes. He said the quarterly meeting plan adopted last year will be continued, since it has been highly satisfactory. He said he planned a decentralization of the sales department, with more responsibility for the district and branch managers.

He said selling today was as much a matter of selling the company as the product, and urged salesmen to play fair with exhibitors. He declared such a policy would result in better and fairer rentals on big pictures that should be played on percentage only.

Harry Cohn Speaks

Following Montague, Harry Cohn spoke about "Lost Horizon" then left by plane for New York.

Other speakers today included Leonard Picker, Columbia attorney, who advised the sales staff on drawing up contracts; Al Seligman, who discussed plans and functions of the accessory department; Maurice Grad who discussed sales promotion and the importance of developing cooperation between exhibitor and producer.

S. O. Shapiro, circulation manager of Macfadden Publications, told the delegates about tieups which have been made for the Court of Human Relations shorts. Large scale radio and magazine publicity is planned for this series, he said.

Jack Cohn denied to Motion Picture Daily that "Lost Horizon" would be roadshown. At the end of the day he described the meeting as one without any grandiose speeches. "The bare facts and no bull characterized the talks to the sales force," he said.

More than 100 prominent local exhibitors attended a beefsteak dinner at the Drake tonight, which was topped off with entertainment furnished by B. & K.'s Loop theatres. The dinner officially ends the convention, although individual sales meetings of division, district and branch managers are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Overheard in the Lobby

Chicago, June 23.—Nat Cohn is the most serious guy at the convention.

The Three Stooges are still talking about the plane trip with Harry Cohn from Hollywood. Larry is holding on to his plane ticket stub to prove that he really went on a plane, but Curly swears it was all a dream.

Jerry Safron, with rose in lapel and cigar perched in mouth, got one of the big hands of the day when he went up to get his prize as a roundup winner. Walking away with the cup, someone yelled, "Go easy on it, Jerry. It's not a shaving mug."

When McConville handed Miller his prize check, Montague said, "I think we ought to deduct the telephone charges from that check." And someone else shouted, "Hurry, Joe, there's a call for you."

Phil Dunas breezed up like a veteran Chicagoan for his prize only to find out it was a mistake. However, he got his prize letter, so all was well.

The prize awards came as a surprise to the boys, but all the guys figured the dough would come in handy, what with expenses and the sights to see.

Lester Zukor had a seat away back in the hall and when he went up to get his prize four of his pals offered to buy him some roller skates.

Al Avid is proud of being a Southern gentleman—from Southern Minnesota.

Joe ("Chicago") Kaufman is the athlete of the convention what with being a shining light of advertising King Lasker's handball team. He works out in grand style on the big estate.

Clarence ("Chicago") Phillips is batting out contracts as strongly as his baseball favorites, the Cubs. The whole North Side is in the bag, he says.

Hy ("Smilin'") Chapman, reputedly the best dressed man in Minnesota and Columbia's amiable branch manager in Minneapolis, swings a wicked stick of golf and is gunning for some of Columbia's Eastern boys who shoot in the 80's or 90's.

When Mrs. Joseph learned that her young hubby, who is in the home office sales department, was going to the convention, she wanted to be taken along, but George hastily informed her he was afraid it was too warm for her in Chicago.

Cohn Signs Performer

Chicago, June 23.—Harry Cohn, Columbia president, today personally signed Carl Grayson, night club entertainer, to a long term contract. Grayson was surprised by the offer as he left the dinning room floor. Grayson is a violinist as well as singer and has been with Henry Busse's orchestra for the past year and one-half.

No Films Set

Chicago, June 23.—Although no vehicles are announced for her, Grace Moore will continue to appear in Columbia's 1936-37 program.

The identical situation applies to Herbert Marshall, Irene Dunne, Richard Dix, Walter Connolly and Jack Holt and to Gregory LaCava, the director, who is now in New York.

Columbia Scatters Exploitation Staff

Chicago, June 23.—Columbia's exploitation department is to be decentralized so that each exploiteer will make extensive tours of specialized territories instead of being assigned from the home office for individual attractions. They will operate out of key cities.

During the summer each field man will visit exhibitors, editors and radio stations to discuss the new season product, and, if the plan works, publicity and exploitation material will be sent out six months in advance of big attractions.

"Horizon" Exhibit a Hit

Chicago, June 23.—One of the hits of the party at the Columbia convention here is the exhibit of models, paintings and photographs of the sets for "Lost Horizon," directed by Frank Capra and starring Ronald Colman, which will be on next season's program.

The exhibit is to be sent on a nationwide tour, ending at the Music Hall shortly before the opening of the film there.

On Extended Trip

London, June 23.—J. H. Seidelman, foreign sales manager of Columbia, is expected to remain here four months.

Short Subjects

"Golfing Rhythm"

(Columbia)

A combination of amusing golfing antics and serious, hard-swinging power, this short in the News World of Sports series is entertaining in general and should set the countless golfing bugs on the edges of their seats as such players as Lawson Little and Gene Sarazen put their shoulders behind the club swing. As is usual with these subjects, this is lively and entertaining. Production Code Seal No. 1,012. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Glee Worms"

(Columbia)

A pleasant, entertaining cartoon novelty in color, this should generally please. Played against the music of "The Glow Worm," two of the insects are lovers, and as they bill and coo a storm comes up, they become separated and the female of the species is lured away by a villainous spider. Her 'boy friend" comes to the rescue and ngeniously overcomes the menace. Production Code Seal, No. 2,239. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

'Sport Magic"

(Columbia)

A collection of unusual shots of various sporting events that should make this one pleasing all around. There is condensed excitement in excellent shots of log rolling, trick motorcycle riding, archery, pistol shooting and horseshoe pitching, all with the element of risk involved. Other scenes are of trick billiard and bowling shots. It is interesting and ery often thrilling. Production Code Seal, No. 010138. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

O'Donnell Asks If It's So What Was Said About Texas

Dallas, June 23.—R. J. ("Bob") O'Donnell, general manager of the Interstate Circuit, is back from New York and the Louis-Schmeling bout with pleasant recollections of the party which Herman Robbins, president of National Screen Service, threw for him in New Rochelle last Saturday night. Among O'Donnell's choice possessions now is a brochure simply called "O'Donnell Melodiana" and there's a story.

Robbins, always an excellent host, had prepared specially written lyrics which were superimposed on phonograph recordings and dealt at large with the life of a big film buyer as it is lived by O'Donnell. For instance, there was a parody on "Oh, Susanna." It ran like this:

He came to New York City with a twinkle in his eye,
He was full of twinkles when he had some film to buy.
He bought his film in very cheap, and never laid an egg;
But the firm went into bankruptcy from dealing with this yegg.

Chorus

Bob O'Donnell, they take it on the lam.
When they see you coming, every salesman hollers "Scram!"

That put Bob in the Landon class.

Dubbed "He'll Be Comin' Up from Texas," was another parody to the tune of "She'll Be Comin' 'Round the Mountain" and went like this:

He'll be comin' up from Texas when he comes.
He'll be comin' up from Texas when he comes.
He'll be comin' swiftly, Mister,
Just like any Texas twister,
So get your fifes and bugles and your drums.

He'll be comin' up from Texas when he'll come.
He'll be comin' up from Texas when he'll come.
He'll be comin' up from Texas.
And his comin's sure to wreck us.
What else could you expect from such a bum!

He'll be comin' up from Texas when he'll come.
He'll be comin' up from Texas when he'll come.
He'll be comin' up from Texas.
And if John Law doesn't check us,
We will drown this Dallas yokel deep in rum.

He'll be comin' 'round the mount when he arrives,
He'll be comin' 'round the mount when he arrives,
He'll be ridin' 'round the ranges,
Showin' up the film exchanges,
'Till you wonder how the picture trade survives.

Good, too, was "I'm Buying All My Film by One System," cudgeled and cajoled to fit into the tune of "I'm Putting All My Eggs in One Basket." It ran on like this:

I'm buying all my film by one system.
I'm buying everything low too, you can bet.
I'm saving millions for old boss Hoblitzelle.
We'll make Interstate a real circuit yet.
I buy the product with a smile.
Demand adjustments after a while.
Long ago I decided dough divided in two Won't do. So I'm buying
All my film by one system.
Oh, Industry, what Bob has done to you!!

"I can't wait until I get back to New York for the annual Schrooners' meeting in October," declared O'Donnel today, thereby inferentially suggesting he might be willing to submit to another Robbins funfest although advices from New York contain nothing to indicate anything of the kind will happen.

Much profound discussion revolved around the so-called "Lichtman formula" by which the M-G-M sales policy for next season is being governed. O'Donnell had an explanation as did some of the others, but Lichtman failed to make an appearance and the issue therefore emerged clouded in some doubt. The accordionist, who made up the one-man band, however, played and sang a Russian folk song and insisted he was furnishing the answer. Nobody paid much attention to him.

Among those who attended and made 'way with whole sides of beef, Pilsener and Johnny Walker Black Label were:

Neil F. Agnew, Austin Keough and Y. Frank Freeman, of Paramount; Gradwell L. Sears and A. W. Smith, Jr., of Warners; William Sussman, Twentieth Century-Fox; William F. Rodgers, M-G-M; Joe Vogel, Loew's, Inc.; Martin Quigley, W. P. Garyn, Sam Dembow, Jr., Toby Gruen, William Brenner, Morton Van Praag and Red Kann.

Labor Moves Limit Spanish Production

Washington, June 23. — Although exhibition of Spanish films showed considerable increase in Spain in 1935, which increase has continued during 1936, production has been restricted, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't. of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Miles Hammond in Madrid.

Since the election of a "left" majority to the Cortes on Feb. 16, particular attention has been paid to labor conditions. Film workers and artists, in keeping with the trend, have been requesting higher wages and are reported to have sought to obtain representation in the management of the enterprises.

Labor organizations are said to be requiring that contracts be entered into in every case where a player takes part in a film, and it is reported that under some contingencies the wages of the artist must be paid whether or not he works.

Although the belief is expressed that these problems will work themselves out through cooperation and understanding between labor and capital, the effect since the beginning of the year has been such as to limit production activities and to cause capital to be timid.

Bomb M-G-M in Spain

Barcelona, June 23.—The office of M-G-M was slightly damaged by a bomb today during the mercantile strike which has closed distributor branches. Exhibitors in Cataluna are exchanging films, thus prolonging the supply for another week. The Cortes at Madrid has reduced the gross turnover tax of 7.50 per cent to 3.75 per cent for foreign and 1.50 for native Spanish films.

M-G-M Buys Riggs Play

Hollywood, June 23.—M-G-M has bought Lynn Riggs play, "Green Grow the Lilacs," from Radio. There is a strong likelihood that Franchot Tone will play the lead, since he did the part in New York.

ing business relations with offending firms. This was referred to the legal, finance and parliamentary committee for action.

Resolutions were considered from the London home counties and northwestern branches regarding a K.R.S. secret circular urging renters to insist on percentage bookings in certain situations. T. H. Fligelstone, president, said the officers took a very serious view of this and had had a meeting this morning with the affected parties.

"Fortunately, we shall be quite competent to deal with the matter," he said, "and shall have an opportunity of returning the compliment to the other side which they have so often paid us in the past."

Thomas Ormiston moved that the matter be remitted to officers of the C.E.A. with instructions for them to interview officers of K.R.S. in order to secure withdrawal of the K.R.S. policy outlined in the circular, failing which the council could take whatever action it considered necessary.

S. K. Lewis, one of the exhibitors on the special list, said the policy had all the foundations of dictatorship. K. A. Nyman, chairman of the London branch, said renters had thrown down the gauntlet and exhibitors had taken up the challenge. Fligelstone asserted that the council considered the situation an acid test of the C.E.A., and that if there was to be a fight it would be a fight to the bitter end.

A garden party was held under brilliant sunshine with about 500 present. A banquet was held tonight with Fligelstone presiding.

Film in England At 37 Billion Feet

London, June 15.—Official figures issued by the Board of Trade, summarizing returns made by exhibitors under the provisions of the Cinematograph Films Act, show that the footage of film exhibited in the year ended Sept. 30, 1935, was 37,520,000,000. This figure covers the 4,700 theatres in the United Kingdom and represents not actual film used but footage exhibited, counting each run on its footage basis.

Of this total 9,575,000,000 feet exhibited was British; the percentage of the total, 25.5, compares with 26.1 in 1934. The legal exhibition quota was only 15 per cent. Feature footage exhibited was 33,498,000,000, and of this 9,406,000,000 was British, a percentage of 28.1 against 28.4 in 1934.

Tax Burden

Oklahoma City, June 23.—Standard Theatres, Inc., local circuit, is bringing to public attention the details of its tax burden, totaling 15 cents of every dollar, via cards in the box-offices in all its theatres.

The 11 different taxes are: sales, Federal income, state income, corporation license, real estate, personal, social security, occupational, Federal capital stock, consumer, Federal amusement. A twelfth, in the form of a two per cent levy for old age pension, is expected to become effective within a year.

Wis. Ordinance Sets Number of Theatres

Oconto, Wis., June 23.—The City Council here has passed an ordinance limiting the number of theatres in the city to one for each 5,000 population. This action, it is believed, may halt plans to construct another theatre in the old Grandall Bldg. here.

Oconto has a population of slightly more than 5,000, and unless the ordinance is declared unconstitutional, the Princess, operated by A. L. Merritt, will be the city's only theatre. The Oconto Operating Co. recently announced plans for the erection of a house here. The concern is reported affiliated with circuit interests.

'auses Artificial Film Shortage, CEA Told

By BRUCE ALLAN

EASTBOURNE, Eng., June 24.—While merican exhibitor groups are fight- g for a prohibition of block booking, er here the law against it is stirring protests on the ground that it cre- es film shortages and thereby raises ntals.

J. X. Prendergast discussed the oblem today at the third day's ses- on of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' ss'n while talking about "Scientific ying and Selling."

The block booking prohibition eans plenty of rental for short pe- d booking, he declared, by creating artificial shortage.

Prendergast's speech was full of secracks, aimed largely at Ameri- n distributors and their high power lling methods. He urged a defensive

Spring Takes Show Decline In 29 Cities

Grosses Near Figures For Christmas Week

Advent of summer weather has sent key city grosses into a sharp decline which has the total take for 29 key cities flirting with the low mark set during Christmas week. The total for the week ending June 12-13 was $1,357,750, which was $130,916 below the previous week.

Only twice before since the current season started last September have grosses hit this low mark. This was during Christmas week when the total was $1,228,199, and the week ending Dec. 12-13 when the total was $1,321,385.

Last week's decline was confined to 18 cities. In Chicago, Denver, Detroit, Houston, Kansas City, Lincoln, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Providence, San Francisco and Seattle business was better than the previous week.

Convention No Help To Phila. Theatres

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—The Democratic convention has enlivened Philadelphia, but it hasn't meant much to theatres. The cool weather break has kept the crowds parading the streets instead of taking refuge in the air conditioned theatres. The niteries have been doing a rushing business.

Opposing attractions also have done their share in getting convention trade. The Paul Whiteman symphony concert was a sellout and the Mardi Gras on the Parkway, with the mummers' parade, crowning of the convention queen and street dancing cut into film trade.

School Films Start Fight in Northwest

SEATTLE, June 24.—Northwest theatre owner members of Allied are launching a campaign against the alleged practice of scholastic institutions in this territory of running feature pictures for students without payment of theatre and film taxes. Allied has appointed sub-committees to study the problem and will immediately take steps to obtain legislation prohibiting schools from entering into the entertainment business.

J. M. Hone, executive secretary, says "schools can expect lawsuits before the year is over." He was quoted as saying: "It isn't right that theatres

U. A. to Appeal on Sales Tax Decision

United Artists will appeal at once from the Appellate Division decision handed down late Tuesday which held that films exhibited in New York City are subject to the two per cent city sales tax. Films licensed for exhibition outside of the city limits are not subject to the sales tax, the court held, even though they are supplied by exchanges located within the city.

The decision was described by attorneys associated with the case as being "about 60 per cent in the city's favor insofar as taxation revenue is concerned." A recent estimate placed the amount of the sales tax on films licensed by city exchanges since the enactment of the tax law at $1,500,000. Thus the decision means that approximately $900,000 in sales taxes on films exhibited within the city

RCA Workers Strike At the Camden Plant

CAMDEN, June 24.—A group of workers in the RCA Mfg. Co. plant here went on strike yesterday after lunch and the plant is being picketed today. The strike was called by Local 103, United Electrical and Radio Workers of America.

Wage raises, closed shop and other demands have been made by the union, according to E. T. Hamilton, vice-president.

Eighteen pickets were arrested today for disorderly conduct.

David Sarnoff says that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has been retained as labor adviser and that the company is willing to have the National Labor Relations Board make a poll of employes to see whether they wish to be represented by the union or by a committee of employees in the plant.

New Executive Committee Set By Paramount

Election of President Is Delayed Until Today

After electing a new executive committee of Paramount at a special meeting of the company's board yesterday, the annual election of officers was deferred until the regular monthly meeting of the board which is being held today.

Stanton Griffis of the investment firm of Hemphill, Noyes, was elected chairman of the new executive committee, succeeding H. A. Fortington, whose term had expired. The chairmanship of the committee is a salaried position paying $1,000 per week and requires practically the full time of the incumbent. The post is a strategic one in that the executive committee is recognized as the "steering committee" for the board.

Two management men, Barney Balaban and Neil Agnew, were elected to the committee, which with the reelection of Adolph Zukor, gives the executive committee three seasoned film

While executives at RKO admit a deal is on, there is no indication that such an arrangement will be consummated. Persistent efforts to reach Truman H. Talley, producer of the newsreel, by telephone yesterday for confirmation of the Stallings resignation and his successor, were unavailing and finally met with word by his secretary that a formal statement on Stallings would be released today.

Overheard in the Lobby

Chicago, June 24.—Rube Jackter didn't dispose of his cigar at all at the beefsteak party. The boys are betting he's still chewing the same one.

Max Weisfeldt figured short subjects worth talking about even during dinner, but stopped when the entertainment started.

Al Sherman told three Yiddish dialect stories to Clark Rodenback, Bill Crouch and a couple of other guys.

Hy Daab and Mike Newman are still talking about the ranch.

Sam Liggett proved a popular gagster not gangster. But even he was stopped when the Three Stooges told the one about the traveling salesmen who did not stop at the farmhouse or meet the farmer's daughter.

Frank McGrann was another press table sitter who enjoyed the show, the food, the drinks and especially the room decorations.

Bill Thomas was here, there and everywhere, but he didn't get up to do his famous impersonation of Helen Lynd impersonating Jeanne Eagles doing a scene from "Rain." It was a break for everybody.

Bill Brennan, the print expert, was acclaimed the handsomest guy at the convention. A lot of the muggs, however, insist it's a put up job. Vince Borrelli and Maurice Grad aren't saying anything.

George Josephs, however, looked best on paper. His picture in the Columbia Beacon had everyone wondering if he was Columbia's new find.

Milt Hannock and Leo Jaffe compared notes all day long.

Tim O'Toole practiced a couple of Boston tunes, or were they Irish ditties? Anyway Tim tried out his tenor for a few minutes before going down to the beefsteak party.

Jovial Jerry Safron, Los Angeles district manager, went along with the New York delegates. Jerry and Clark Gable have the same tailor, and both are pretty smart clothes-hangers.

Charlie Roberts never travels without his camera. He proposes to take a bunch of pictures of the proceedings inside the convention hall, again this year.

Munn Delano, Columbia's office manager in Chicago, is president of the Soft Ball League and vice-president of a number of bowling teams.

A test case involving a theatre owner who is also on the board of a local scholastic institution and a competitive exhibitor who claims the school official is using films for both his theatre and school, is scheduled to be heard in Washington court within two months it was learned.

F.W.C. executives in Los Angeles to date have taken no active interest in the impending trouble brewing between exhibitors and schools, but it is expected they will make a trip north following reports of the Allied subcommittee and subsequent action by the organization.

FACTS

We are in this business to make money, the same as you.

We know, as you do, that big pictures and fine pictures are the surest way to profit, that to make money you have to spend money. 2 plus 2 equals 4 in your theatre or on our books; one profitable week and one losing week equals two lost weeks. We can't make money unless you do.

RKO-RADIO holds an enviable place in this industry. During the past few years we have delivered more than our share of all the big money pictures produced, as well as earning a record for consistently fine and substantial attractions.

You can't put more on film than you've got in your head, and it takes men with brains to make big pictures. We've been buying brains!

To the solid foundation of our organization we have been adding man-power and star-power.

For months we've been planning and building, re-inforcing our production facilities with the best minds that money can bring together. Today our company stands strong among all producing organizations.

We are thinking in terms of big pictures.

We have star names to head our casts, and if it takes two stars or ten to tell a story, that's the kind of a cast you're going to get.

There are several very important pictures to deliver on our 1935-1936 program and they will show, better than we can tell, this new vitality of RKO-RADIO. Our new year strides in on the cyclonic heels of such attractions as the Katharine Hepburn - Fredric March "Mary of Scotland"; Barbara Stanwyck, Gene Raymond, Robert Young, Ned Sparks, Helen Broderick, in "The Bride Walks Out"; Hepburn's "Quality Street"; John Ford's "The Plough and the Stars" and the new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers dancing show of shows. Any one would highlight a season.

We have gone out for names —star names—paid the price and bought them. Ours is a noble list right now, but we're still buying —stars, names, producing brains, stories.

So solid, so real is our production policy for next season that with confidence we lay it on the table, unadorned, in black and white.

M-G-M Opening 8 Abroad; More Due

next two months, the Metro at Rio de Janiero will be ready. The new theatre at Brisbane, Australia, is slated to be completed in three months.

Construction has just been started on a 2,200-seat house in Durban, South Africa, and within the next few weeks building will get under way on the new Tokyo project.

William Weiner of the Loew home office construction department is en route to Rio de Janiero to relieve Ely Stillman who will go to Durban to supervise the work on the latest South African unit. Sam Burger, who has just returned from a nine-month trip, will leave in a month or so for Rio de Janiero to attend the opening the new Metro there.

William Melniker, recently appointed by Arthur Loew as foreign theatre head, sailed June 18 on the American Legion from Rio de Janiero and is due in New York the end of the month.

Now Operating 22 Houses

M-G-M now is operating 22 theatres outside of the United States and this number will be increased to 27 by the end of the year.

Theatre conditions are improving nicely, especially in countries where new structures have gone up, Burger commented. He visited, during his nine-month trip, the following territories: Japan, China, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Straits Settlements, Java, India, Egypt, South Africa, Rio de Janiero, Montevideo, the Argentine, Chile, Peru, Panama and Havana. Burger negotiated most of the trip by plane.

Sale Policies Topic Of ITOA's Directors

Directors of the I. T. O. A. yesterday discussed the sales policies of M-G-M, Paramount, Radio, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners which appeared in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on June 22. The men admitted the information was the first of its kind to reach them.

Bernard Barr acted as chairman. Because several members were absent the session at the Astor was cut short.

"Seven Sinners"

U. A. to Appeal on Sales Tax Decision

could be collected now if the decision is not reversed.

In exempting films delivered by local exchanges to theatres outside the city the court observed that "the city controller by express ruling has recognized that the city may not impose a tax upon merchandise delivered outside the territorial limits of the city, even though the contract of sale is concluded within the city. For identical reasons we think that a license to exhibit films, though executed within the city, is not taxable where the license requires that it be exercised beyond its territorial limits."

As a result of the decision all theatres in northern New Jersey, Westchester and Long Island counties other than Kings and Queens, representing about two-fifths of the business of the city film exchanges will not be required to pay the city sales tax. All theatres within the five boroughs are subject to the tax.

Recognized as a Test Case

The case is recognized by all local distributors as a test. United Artists, against whom the first tax assessment was made by the city on all films shipped from its local exchange, took the initiative in contesting the city's action. The company's contention is that films are in interstate commerce and, therefore, not subject to local taxation. O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for United Artists, said yesterday that notice that the decision would be appealed to the Court of Appeals at Albany would be given the city within three days. However, a hearing of the appeal can not be obtained in the state's highest court before the opening of its new term next October.

Britons Find Block Booking Ban Is Costly

organization because, he said, exhibitors are becoming paid employes in their own theatres.

"Will you organize for a year, or take two years to pass out of the business?" he asked.

He suggested a clearing house through which independent exhibitors could jointly offer booking competition to circuits. He also said financial interests were ready to produce 20 pictures yearly for exhibitors, if 500 theatres will guarantee playing time. He indicated that he thought it desirable and probable that British independents should organize separately from circuits and establish a booking agreement with American independents.

The conference opened decorously, with the presentation of Lord Tyrrell of Avon's paper on "Film Censorship Today" and Simon Rowson's talk on "It Pays to Advertise." There was no discussion of either. The liveliness developed when Prendergast spoke.

Brooke Wilkinson, secretary of the British Board of Film Censors, said there was no desire on the part of the board to interfere with films made for political propaganda, but thought such films unsuitable for public theatres. T. H. Fligelstone asserted that the C. E. A. was hostile to the increasing tendency toward propaganda in newsreels.

2,100 Subjects Examined

During the past year the board examined 6,130,115 feet in 2,100 subjects and passed 350 in the "A" classification and 1,750 in the "U" division. Renters collaborated on the excision of incidents in many films put in the "U" category, Lord Tyrrell said. The same method was used with producers in reading scenarios.

If films were considered unsuitable for youths, censors were zealous in their differentiation. Films in the horrific category were gone, the report said, and the board regarded suggestions that there should be a third category for such films as not desirable.

During the past year, the report indicated, the board took exception to 360 films as not desirable, 50 per cent less than the previous year. Standard film production both in England and America, the report stated, is on a much higher plane than in the past and far less contentious. The board indicated that the same license should be granted to films as to other forms of dramatic art, remembering that films cater to millions as against thousands for other forms of art.

Sees Politics in Films

The board indicated it had noticed a tendency for politics to creep into films and expressed the opinion that this is dangerous, as nothing "is more calculated to arouse passions than introduction on to the screen of religion or politics," and one of the first license regulations states that no film may be exhibited which is likely to lead to disorder.

No films have yet appeared dealing with current burning political questions, but the thin edge of a wedge has been inserted, the report went on, and it is difficult to foresee where this will lead unless checked.

The board has been attacked, it was stated, for passing films looked upon as insidious propaganda against the state. Even Mickey Mouse has been assailed. The attacks are invariably made by "worthless critics." It was stated that the C. E. A. might have a definite pronouncement on what attitude it would take toward such films.

An attack was made on a film connected with a series of topical events strung together to form a stogey subject centering about the League of Nations and with a commentary of such a nature as to give the impression that England is arming against Italy. Some films, it was stated, are compiled by stringing together sections of old films with a running commentary which may have nothing to do with the original and they are frequently handled by non-registered renters who affirm these films do not enter the provisions of the Films Act.

It is for the C. E. A. to say whether this policy is in the interest of the industry, as they are primarily intended for some form of propaganda and are generally innocuous.

Increase in Hospital Scenes

The report noted an increasing number of films with intimate hospital scenes which are "neither entertaining nor amusing" and indicated a belief that the cumulative effect is unwholesome.

British and American films are less open to censorship than formerly, it was stated, but there is a marked increase in European films mostly intended for specialized programs of artistic merit, coupled with objectionable, prohibited scenes. The tendency is to import such films to obtain the board's observations on themes, and then retake scenes with English dialogue and atmosphere. The board indicated it welcomed this procedure.

It also reported a growing tendency by producers to submit scenarios. During the first five months of the year approximately 200 were submitted. One important producer who had previously held aloof has agreed to submit all future scenarios. An agreement has been reached to keep all trailers within the "U" certificate restrictions.

Carlisle House has been purchased by the board for new offices. It was built by Christopher Wren for the Earl of Carlisle 250 years ago. Many of the original features have been retained in the decorative scheme, with projection booths constructed in the courtyard.

It is the board's policy, the report concluded, to prevent the showing of films likely to give offense to the public and to imperil the industry.

Rowson Argues for Advertising

In his paper, "It Pays to Advertise," Simon Rowson based an argument for a cooperative advertising campaign by the industry on the experience of other industries. He estimated that the weekly film attendance in Great Britain is 20,000,000, but for every two patrons there are three who do not attend.

"An increase in the average attendance of one per cent would produce additional revenue of £370,000 a year, and would avoid the necessity of a capital expenditure in building and equipping new theatres," he declared. He cited the instances of campaigns conducted on beer, milk and fruit, and said that if the British advertising expenditure were up to the American level of $7 per seat, the total gross would be £5,000,000 yearly, or nearly treble the present total.

He suggested an annual budget of £100,000, leaving details of a campaign for later discussion. He called it a small, experimental first step toward bringing the British annual receipts from $42 per seat to the American figure of $74.

Other speakers included James Welsh, Jack Alexander, Dan Benjamin, E. Trounson, Bert Green and Coverdale Bell.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Three Cheers For Love"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, June 24.—This is light musical fare offering good production flashes and should fit happily on most programs, despite the lack of stellar cast names. Although the story is slight and handicaps, rather than helps, the players, it also leaves them free to concentrate on musical numbers which are delightfully presented.

The plot concerns Eleanore Whitney as the daughter of John Halliday, a picture tycoon, who is sent to a boarding school which has been taken over by a stranded theatrical troupe. William Frawley, head of the troupe, conceives the idea of selling the show to Halliday by staging a performance at the school as an amateur offering. When Miss Whitney falls in love with Robert Cummings, a song writer, complications are added, but all ends happily with all the company finishing with Hollywood contracts.

The songs by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin are catchy, with two showing hit possibilities. In the supporting cast Roscoe Karns carries most of the comedy. Louis Da Pron does tap dancing that is second only to that of Miss Whitney, while Veda Ann Borg and Grace Bradley competently offer what little menace is needed for the story. The screen play is by Barry Trivers from an original by George Marion, Jr. Danny Dare staged the dances. Mel Shauer here bows as an associate producer and can be pleased with his maiden effort. The picture should get over as average entertainment.

New Executive Committee Set By Paramount

men out of a membership of eight. Zukor was the only committee member of recognized industry experience during the past year. The five remaining members of the committee were reelected. They are John Hertz of Lehman Bros., Maurice Newton of Hallgarten & Co., Duncan Harris of Brown, Wheelock & Harris, and Stephen Callaghan of Allied Owners Corp.

The new members of the committee replace Fortington, John E. Otterson and Percy Johnston. The last two are no longer members of the Paramount board, although Fortington is.

No official explanation for deferring the election of officers until today could be obtained in Paramount. The assumption was that either no candidate for president of Paramount had been agreed upon up to the time of the meeting or that the favored candidate, Zukor, had not consented to accept the post.

Scheduled action by the board in extensions of three Paramount theatre operating agreements was also delayed until today. They are the Wilby-Kincey, Lucas & Jenkins and Karl Hoblitzelle deals, all of which expire July 1.

Austin Keough, Paramount secretary, presided at the meeting. Otterson did not attend.

Para. Trustees Get Examination Order

An order authorizing the examination of a number of members of the law firm of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood in connection with actions instituted some time ago by the Paramount trustees in bankruptcy was signed yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

The Cravath firm was formerly Paramount counsel. The order was obtained by Charles D. Hilles, Paramount trustee, to obtain information concerning Paramount's assets, it was stated. The hearings were referred to Special Master John E. Joyce with no date being set yet.

Carolina MPTO Hits Para Ad Sales Plan

CHARLOTTE, June 24.—Protests against the new Paramount ad sales plan of giving credit for return of accessories has been decided upon by the board of the M.P.T.O. of North and South Carolina. It is contended the plan would work to the advantage of exhibitors with one theatre playing the newer releases, but would eventually lead to generally increased costs if adopted by other companies.

The directors also have gone on record as protesting against the "exorbitant" rentals being charged for next season's product.

Endorsement has been given to the 10-point trade practice program which Ed Kuykendall and an M.P.T.O.A. committee has been negotiating in New York.

The Mourners

Great Neck, L. I., June 24

They kept the promise made at the Allied convention in Cleveland a couple of weeks ago. At the golf tournament today, Dave Palfreyman and Nate Yamins who agree on the merits of golf although they disagree on the relative merits of exhibitor organizations, teamed against Eddie Ansin and Harold Stoneman, Boston exhibitors, and licked the pants right off them.

Morris Lieberman set a new technique for the game. He arrived at Glen Oaks without a putter.

The British cousins were well represented by Jeff Bernerd who played on the losing Cinema Club team, which gave away to the Ampa team, and Arthur Lee for the play during the day. Abe Waxman came out for the dinner.

It was a case of the "A's" having it on one count at least. Albert Warner, Al Manheimer, Al Fagan and Al Levy looked up suddenly and found themselves in the same foursome.

Al Lichtman, the toastmaster at the dinner, was grouped with Billy and Harry Brandt and Milt Weisman. The Lichtman formula was unexplained by the end of the day.

Sam Rubinstein sank a 25 foot putt on the sixth green and promptly passed out.

Jules Levy, on the other hand, failed to land the longest drive. "It was the highest anyway," was his defense.

Oscar Doob kept his pipe burning merrily during the melee before dinner. It was loud and furious—the melee not the pipe.

Mitch May was bedecked in yellow; so was Joe Hornstein. Jack Alicoate were a pleasant sartorial ensemble in white and brown; Cres Smith, all brown; Levy, solid blue.

Monroe Greenthal, away on the coast but represented via Western Union, won a bet. Herb Hyman said he would go around in 95. He ended at 127.

Charlie Einfeld's golf was the sensation of the day. He got his reward in cups to add to the gold medal which he captured at the City Athletic Club last week for the best all-'round athletic performance.

Don Mersereau was the handicapper. Which was another way of catching hell and grief from all sides.

Gordon White had an experience. In the morning, he chased his golf bag all over the club. Two solid hours went by, then Gordon discovered his caddy was waiting for him with the bag at the first tee where he should have been in the first place.

Ralph Rolan occupied the end seat on the dinner dais. Any minute he threatened to topple into the aisle, but coordination won out. Nine guys waiting on the sidelines were grievously disappointed.

Chilly Air Fails to Dampen Film Daily's Golf Swatters

Great Neck, L. I., June 24

The Film Daily's traditional and eagerly awaited golf tournament—the 24th, by actual count—played off today and tonight at the Glen Oaks Country Club to the largest turnout in the history of these events. Forty foursomes and three threesomes, which totals itself mathematically to exactly 209 players, not excepting goofers, braved a chilly and unsavory day on Long Island and voted the tournament in and the weather out by popular and unusually noisy acclaim.

Approximately 260 sat down to the dinner which climaxed the day, thereby crowding the main dining room of the club and giving the commissary and the waiters a somewhat hectic time of it. Somebody forgot to take the ice cream forms out of the refrigerator in time. That gave opportunity for some of the gang to try an anvil chorus to the tune of a "swing" song on the phonograph blasting away through loud speakers. But it was all in fun and it was good fun.

Hyman Nabs Clubs

Herb Hyman walked off with a set of costly golf clubs and nine golfers before him with a quart of Golden Wedding rye contributed by Schenley Products. Columbia's convention in Chicago kept its representation to exactly nil, but the Cohns didn't get off badly what with Grace Moore warbling her way through a record and "Golfing Rhythm," a company release, as part of the film entertainment which included "The Old Mill Pond," a Harman-Ising cartoon for M-G-M and "Alpine Climbers," a new Mickey Mouse, for United Artists.

Beer flowed, courtesy of The Tavern in New York; Al Lichtman was toastmaster in his usual good form; the Ampa team, captained by Charlie Einfeld, licked the Cinema Club array in charge of Ted Curtis. One of the impressive moments of the evening was a silent toast to Joe ("Danny") Dannenberg, Alicoate's deceased partner who had originally launched the golf tournaments for The Film Doily many years ago. Wires were read from Herb Ebenstein, Monroe Greenthal, Bruce Gallup, the tournament's handicapper for a considerable span; Louis Nizer, Jay Emanuel, now in Paris, and Hap Hadley.

Bernard Kleid won the booby prize with a nifty score of 258. A firing squad with Jack Glucksmann as captain and composed of Joe Hornstein, Ed Finney, Irving Chidnoff and George Morris, properly accoutred in scarlet uniforms and rifles, led him off to slaughter. The revolver shots offstage, by reliable authority, were reported to have been managed by Charlie Alicoate.

Grand As Ever

Great Neck, L. I., June 24.—They all said the United Artists home office hadn't even seen it tonight and that's simply swell for the gang at 729. As usual, at the golf dinner tonight, the celluloid entertainment included a new Mickey Mouse, dubbed "Alpine Climbers." In it Mickey, Donald Duck and Pluto do what the title indicates and have a perfectly mad time in Technicolor. This is well up to the Disney standard, a grand short and another demonstration that Walt and his merry crew continue to climb entertainment heights as high and as dizzy as the very peaks Mickey essays to conquer here.

"Number" Big Denver Draw In 2nd Week

Denver, June 24.—"Private Number" held up in a big way at the Aladdin after playing a week at the Denver. The $4,000 take was above normal by $1,000.

"The Golden Arrow" also was in the money. It took $8,500, up by $1,000, at the Denver with the help of a stage band. "House of a Thousand Candles" and "Born to Gamble," on a dual bill at the Center for four days, reached $1,500, the only other spot in town to show a profit.

"Investigator" on Dual N.H. Best Bet

New Haven, June 24.—With record summer business on a rainy Sunday and a continued good showing for amateur night, the College took $3,500. It was the only house to beat par. "Special Investigator" and "Hell Ship Morgan" made up the dual bill.

"The Unguarded Hour" and "The First Baby" at the Poli, "and "Early to Bed" and "The Amateur Gentleman" at the Paramount did average business. "Let's Sing Again" on a double bill with "Murder by An Aristocrat" at the Roger Sherman had s.r.o. on Sunday, but was unable to maintain the good showing, dipping $1,000 under the usual $4,700. Severe thunderstorms during the week counteracted the effect of cool weather.

"Everything Is Rhythm"

(Joe Rock-A.B.F.D.)

London, June 17.—A musical, technically crude in some of its details, but with plenty of good popular items, both instrumental and vocal, Harry Roy and his band providing the former and Roy also officiating as soloist as well as hero in a serio-comic story of a dance-band leader who loves and is loved by a princess and gets away with her.

As well as being tuneful it has some good comedy scenes, and an ingeniously presented finale, in which the musician and his band carry off the princess by aeroplane, while the court thinks a phonograph reproduction of their show is being provided by the musicians in person. There is also some effective double photography, presenting Roy and a chorus in miniature on the lid of a piano played by a life-size musician. Ensembles and solo dance turns are well done.

The story is strong enough to maintain interest through the succession of musical items and is amusingly developed in the scenes showing the band-leader's masquerade as a waiter and in those showing the band on its way to a "command" performance under military escort.

It wants cutting at the beginning where the humor drags and it is rather obvious that Roy ranks a good deal higher as a musician than as an actor. As a potential American booking, the drawback here is that this attraction will be compared with much more polished American efforts.

A useful exploitation value has to be considered, in that Roy actually married "Princess Pearl," daughter of the white Rajah of Sarawak, and that she appears in the picture. Alf Goulding directed. Allan.

Running time, 75 mins. "G."

"Girls' Club"

(Jacques Deval)

Paris, June 16.—This is one of the most interesting films made in a French studio in some time. It has been written, directed and produced by Jacques Deval, who is now in Hollywood to make two for Twentieth Century-Fox.

It is the story of the lives of girls 20 to 30 years old in a city house erected by a philanthropic woman familiar with the difficulties of young women in a large city. One of the young women is an 18-year-old dancer at the Folies, in love with a musician. Greta, a Danish girl, in Paris to study painting, returns to the club as a servant after a series of adventures. The stories are really less important than the study of characters and the climax of the film.

Love, life, death, passion and hope make the action deeply moving. Drama and comedy are mixed.

The story is delicate and some of the incidents are rather shocking, but it is done in good taste and some incidents are only suggested. The cast is made up entirely of women.

In the cast are Danielle Darrieux, Betty Stockfeld, Josette Day, Junie Astor, Kissa Kouprine, Marion Delbo and Carol Royce.

The settings are large and splendid and the technical work is fine.

Warners have bought the rights to the story for American production.

No production code seal. Running time, 90 minutes. "A." Autre.

Looking 'Em Over

"Guns and Guitars"

(Republic)

Routine in its conception and story, this western features Gene Autry and his guitar, the combination providing several bits of vocalization, which may or may not be an asset to a riding, shooting western, depending entirely upon the tastes in action films of the audience.

With Autry are Dorothy Dix, for romance; Smiley Burnette, for occasional comedy as Autry's buddy, and Tom London, for menace.

Autry, singing cowboy with a medicine show, runs into town and trouble as London attempts to drive diseased cattle through a quarantine into the next county. Miss Dix, niece of the sheriff, trying to stop them, is saved from a bad situation by Autry, who proceeds to beat London at his own game. When London shoots down the sheriff, Autry is elected, and tracks down the gang when they attempt to bring the cattle in again. He also proves London's complicity in the shooting of Miss Dix's uncle.

There is plenty of riding, shooting and general excitement for the followers of westerns.

Pittsburgh's Heat Hammers Down Grosses

Pittsburgh, June 24.—The heat took another sizable fall out of business last week and not a single one of the four first run houses downtown was able to come even near average. It was probably the poorest all-around week in several months.

Although "Fury" received fine notices at the Penn and started off nicely, it couldn't overcome the weather and backed down after the brisk getaway to a very ordinary $9,700. At the Stanley things were just as bad with "The Case Against Mrs. Ames" and a stage show, with the gross dipping to $12,500, while at the Alvin "Dracula's Daughter" also felt the pinch after two good opening days and fell off to $4,100. The Warner, too, found the going tough and had to be content with a weak $3,600 for "The Law in Her Hands" and "Palm Springs."

Total first run grosses were $29,900. Average is $35,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending June 18:

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER" (Univ.)

"THE CASE AGAINST MRS. AMES" (Para.)

"THE LAW IN HER HANDS" (W. B.)
"PALM SPRINGS" (Para.)
WARNER—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $3,600. (Average, $4,000.)

"Nobody" and Band Indianapolis Lead

Indianapolis, June 24.—"Little Miss Nobody" and Ina Ray Hutton's band rocketed the take at the Lyric $4,000 above the line for a gross of $11,000 on the week. First run business held its own against summer heat.

Shorts made by the Hutton band for Paramount some time ago were re-run by the Lyric for three weeks preceding the personal appearance and this exploitation was believed No. 1 cause for the heavy gross.

"It's Love Again" drew $5,500 at the Circle, $1,500 above the line. "Dracula's Daughter" shared the bill with it. "Fury" and "Absolute Quiet" at Loew's stood at normal with $6,000, and "Private Number," in its second and last week at the Apollo, was good for $3,700.

Total first run business was $26,200. Average is $21,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending June 19:

"PRIVATE NUMBER" (20th-Fox)
APOLLO—(1,100), 25c-40c, 7 days, 2nd week. Gross: $3,700. (Average, $4,000)

"IT'S LOVE AGAIN" (G. B.)
"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER" (Univ.)
CIRCLE—(2,800), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $5,500. (Average, $4,000)

"FURY" (M-G-M)

End Building, Nyman Pleads At CEA Meet

Sees Situation as Near "State of Chaos"

By BRUCE ALLAN

EASTBOURNE, Eng., June 25.—The overbuilding situation in England is rapidly approaching "a state of chaos," declared Kenneth A. Nyman, vice-chairman of the London and Home Counties Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, in an address at the annual summer conference of the organization here today.

Nyman's speech, on "Redundancy, or Progress," virtually closed the business sessions of the conference. He said that it was imperative not to "engulf all exhibitors with a repetition of the near holocaust in America."

Building must stop immediately, he declared. An increase in patronage was unlikely, he said, unless the trade advertises to tap the millions of potential patrons.

Nyman urged the formation of a trade statistical bureau for the purpose

F. & M. Details Set Back St. Louis Move

Although there was a possibility F. & M. would take over from Warners the operation of the Shubert-Rialto, Orpheum and Hi-Pointe in St. Louis today, the few remaining details in connection with the 10-year Warner franchise have not been ironed out to permit the transfer of the three houses before July 3.

Harry C. Arthur will leave for the Mound City next week to supervise the change in management to F. & M. There is a possibility Jack Partington, head of the stage production department, will go along with Arthur to set up local policies.

The Playoff

Ed. G. Levy, whose major interest these days is the forthcoming golf tournament of Connecticut exhibitors on July 14, said yesterday Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A, and Nate Yamins, president of Allied, had agreed to play it off as a twosome on that date.

Ross Federal Service will check the score.

Radio Boycott Threatened Over "Indecent" Programs

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Extension to radio of the campaign leveled two years ago at improper pictures was threatened today by Representative William P. Connery of Massachusetts.

Connery, who for several months has sought an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission because of allegedly indecent programs permitted, inserted in the appendix of the Congressional Record, issued today, a letter from the solicitor of the Post Office Dep't holding that the material complained of would be unmailable under the penal code.

Referring to the drive by churches against films, Connery said, "The result of that campaign was that very few indecent pictures are now produced, because the American people so decidedly indicated that they would support the campaign initiated by the Catholic Church.

"It is not at all improbable that the American people may find it necessary, unless the Congress acts—as I expect that it will—to take similar action by refusing to purchase the products of those concerns who use the radio facilities of such radio stations as permit the broadcasting of indecent or otherwise unfit radio programs."

M-G-M Sells Away From M.&P. Spots

BOSTON, June 25.—M-G-M has sold away from M. & P. in New Bedford where the 1936-37 product goes to Zeitz Bros. and in Portland, where a deal has been made with Abe Goodside.

These are the first two deals to follow in the wake of failure of Marty Mullins and Sam Pinanski to get together with Metro on the basis of next year's terms.

M-G-M is still discussing terms with M. & P., it is understood. The deals in New Bedford and Portland do not necessarily indicate that the company will pursue the same policy in all of the New England situations where M. & P., Paramount affiliate, operates, although this is possible.

Stallings on Leave, Truman Talley Says

Laurence Stallings, editor of Fox Movietone News, "is on a leave of absence and has gone to North Carolina to do some literary work and a play," Truman H. Talley, producer of the newsreel, stated yesterday in answer to reports that Stallings had resigned and was negotiating to join RKO.

Talley pointed out that on two previous occasions Stallings has taken leaves. He added that Stallings' contract, which expires in the fall, provides he can do work for other companies, but not competitive with the newsreel. Such was the case last fall when Stallings worked on "So Red the Rose" for Paramount, according to Talley.

Stallings is due back at Fox Movietone News late in the fall, Talley stated. "He has indicated to me that he wants to come back," Talley added.

Schaefer Heading U. A. Coast Group

George J. Schaefer, Harry Gold, Lowell Calvert, James Mulvey and Arthur W. Kelly left for the coast yesterday on the 20th Century as the advance guard for the U. A. convention which opens Tuesday at the Ambassador, Los Angeles. Schaefer and Gold are accompanied by their families.

Paul Lazarus and L. Jack Schlaifer today will head the eastern and home office sales personnel departing for the three-day sessions.

Maurice Silverstone, managing director of U. A. in England, will leave by plane Sunday. Edward Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, will be on the same airliner with Silverstone.

Moe Streimer, local branch head, on Monday will go to Asbury Park with his family for a vacation. Doctor's orders will not permit him to attend the convention this year.

Silverstone, who is here with his wife and two daughters, is sending his family to the country while he sits in on the sales conferences. He ex-

Warner Houses Take Universal's Lineup

Universal and Warners have reached an agreement whereby the latter's theatre circuit will take all the Universal output for the new season. James R. Grainger, general sales manager, handled the negotiations for Universal, and Clayton Bond represented Warners. Playing time in about 435 theatres is involved.

Grainger informed the Universal sales convention recently that the company this year is far ahead of last in closing circuit deals.

Extend Para. Theatre Deals Automatically

Board Takes No Action, Delays Election

Three Paramount theatre operating agreements are extended automatically for an indefinite period to give the company's board of directors additional time in which to study the new agreements recommended for adoption by the management, it was stated yesterday by Edwin L. Weisl, of counsel for Paramount, following the regular monthly meeting of the Paramount board. The agreements are for the Wilby-Kincey, Lucas & Jenkins and Hoblitzelle circuits.

The board took no action on these nor did it hold the scheduled annual election of officers, although it was in session for nearly three hours with a full attendance except for Adolph Zukor, who is in Hollywood, and Floyd B. Odlum of Atlas Corp., who, however, is customarily represented by Weisl at board meetings. The company's official statement at the conclusion of the meeting was that no action was taken by the board on anything except routine matters.

The new agreements covering the Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins

Rule New Iowa Bank Night Stunt Illegal

DES MOINES, June 25.—Attendance card registrations for Bank Night, now used by theatres here, is illegal, it has been ruled by Carl Burkman, Polk County attorney, who has obtained a ruling from the Attorney General's office.

The Attorney General ruled recently that the giveaway was not a lottery if no purchase of ticket was required. Since that time persons buying tickets on the day of the drawings have been allowed to register their names in the lobby as being present. It is this new development that is now frowned upon.

Kahane Stays

B. B. Kahane's contract as president of the RKO Radio Studios, Inc., was extended yesterday at a regular meeting of the board of Radio Pictures. His current pact expires on July 1.

Other busines transacted was described as routine.

Meeting on Changeover

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—Film editors of all major studios will hold meetings during the next 10 days under the direction of Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of the Academy Research Council, to receive final instructions on the 2,000-foot reel changeover Sept. 1. Due to the Council's complete coverage of all studio branches, exchanges and distributors, with comprehensive instructions, it is anticipated the new standard will go into effect smoothly, without disturbing the existing routine.

Say Australia Film Business Is Booming

The film business is booming in the Antipodes and theatre construction in the neighborhod is very active, Elton Wild, secretary-treasurer of Twentieth Century-Fox in Australia, and Ralph Doyle, head of RKO Radio activities in the same country, asserted in a joint statement yesterday.

Wild left yesterday for San Francisco, where he will sail on the Maunganui for home after spending six weeks in England and a week in New York. Doyle will leave for the coast on July 4 and will sail on the Mariposa. He has been in town for three weeks on his first visit in two years, during which he attended the company's annual sales meet at the Waldorf.

All of the 1,567 houses in New Zealand and Australia are in operation, the men said. There are no theatres without sound.

From 10 to 12 pictures will be produced in Australia next season by two independent companies, Wild and Doyle asserted. Zane Grey has formed a syndicate in Sydney to produce and act in a story centered about the native life on the Great Barrier Reef, which is 1,000 miles in length and parallel with the Queensland coast. After this picture, Grey will do another on the life of the inhabitants.

"White Angel" Off To a Flying Start

"The White Angel," enthusiastic Warner executives yesterday reported, is off to an auspicious start in widely scattered key cities.

At the Strand, New York, the picture is running neck to neck with "Bullets or Ballots." Relatively little business is being done at the 25-cent "early bird" price, but plenty at 55 and 85 cents.

It had a $1,300 day at Warners' Hollywood and about the same calibre opening at Warners' Downtown, Los Angeles, thereby outdistancing the opening of "The Story of Louis Pasteur" and "Bullets or Ballots."

Milwaukee, according to Warners, was even better. The Warner there did $2,800 the first day, leaving behind "Pasteur," "The Petrified Forest" and the Robinson film.

From Philadelphia came word the Boyd, at $3,300 on the day, has outstripped every opening day record since 1932. That figure is about $800 ahead of the opening of "Pasteur."

Many RCA Workers Back

CAMDEN, June 25.—Thousands of RCA Mfg. Co. workers returned to work today through the picket lines with police escorts. Ten more pickets were arrested on disorderly conduct charges. This brings the total of arrests to 52.

Company officials said that about 2,500 employes failed to report to work today, the second of the strike.

More Time on RKO Pacts

The Irving Trust Co., as trustee for RKO, yesterday was allowed six months from July 1 by Federal Judge Bondy to affirm or disaffirm any breach of contract or other agreement to which RKO is a party and which has not yet been fully performed.

Columbia to Build Exhibitor Contacts

CHICAGO, June 25.—Closer cooperation with exhibitors was urged today as a Columbia policy at a series of conferences held between Abe Montague, general sales manager; Joe McConville and Rube Jackter and men in the field as one of the windup features of the annual sales convention.

Company executives will leave tomorrow on the 20th Century. In the group will be Montague, McConville, Jackter, Leonard Picker, Louis Astor, Lou Weinberg, Max Weisfeldt, Al Seligman, Sam Liggett, Maurice Grad, Leo Jaffe, George Josephs, Milton Hannock, Hank Kaufman, Bernie Zeeman, Vincent Borelli, W. G. Brennan and Al Sherman.

The Cleveland contingent headed by H. C. Bissel, branch manager, left this evening by plane. In this group were L. Zucker, G. J. Becker, S. Gerson and F. Barry. The Albany, New Haven, Buffalo and Philadelphia contingents got away this morning and last night.

Western contingents departed in groups last night and early today.

Columbia Takes Shorts

New GTE Securities To Be Ready Monday

Securities of the reorganized General Theatres Equipment, Inc., will be ready for distribution next Monday, according to Arthur W. Loasby, chairman of the reorganization committee which recently secured approval of the new plan from the Chancery Court at Wilmington.

Loasby says approximately 92 per cent of the holders of the company's debt are participating. Voting trust certificates for about 81 per cent of the preferred stock and about 70 per cent of the common have been deposited. Deposits are still being accepted.

Application is to be made soon for listing of the new stock on the N. Y. Stock Exchange.

End Suit Against Loew's

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday unanimously affirmed a judgment of Justice Cotillo dismissing a suit for $1,967,611 damages brought by the Theatres Holding Co. against Loew's, Inc.

Also named as co-defendants were Marcus Loew Booking Agency, Loew's Atlanta Theatre Co. and the Fox Theatres Corp. The suit was over an alleged breach of lease contract between Yaarab Temple Bldg. and Fox Theatres Corp. entered into on Jan., 1928, and to extend over a period of 21 years. The claim was assigned to the plaintiff after the lease had allegedly been broken.

of making a survey before plans can be formulated for new houses.

The C. E. A. controls 4,000 theatres, 4,000,000 seats and serves 1,000,000,000 patrons yearly.

Iniquitous rentals, he declared, will result in open revolt. Renters, he declared, are extracting more by acquiring control of theatres. He sharply criticized what he described as the persistent refusal of the K. R. S. to draw a standard film contract. Continuing on this subject, he said he would hate to see a Government-controlled industry, but indicated he regarded this as more desirable than being crushed out of existence.

Suggests Three Methods

"The menace of redundancy," he declared, "is due to the vicious percentage systems, followed by speculation by financiers who are prostituting legitimate business. Renters have swung away from legitimate exhibitors to the newcomers who are paying ridiculously disporportionate rentals, menacing both the independents and major circuits.

"Three methods have been suggested to combat redundancy—first, Government intervention; second, a joint C. E. A.-K. R. S. tribunal; third, opposition to all applications considered redundant."

Nyman declared that it was the Government's duty to maintain British screens for British films. The quota, he said, has increased British films on British screens from two per cent to 26 per cent.

Referring to the three methods of control proposed by Nyman, Joseph Pollard, last year's president, declared the first is dangerous and the second impossible, in the face of repeated refusals by the K. R. S. to cooperate.

A resolution was passed urging the appointment of a committee to consider Nyman's suggestion on the formation of a trade statistical bureau.

Hints Trade Board Appeal

Declaring in the debate, "There is something fundamentally rotten going on in this business," Nyman hinted an appeal to the Board of Trade would force a friendly answer from the K. R. S. on the next request of the C. E. A. for cooperation.

Following the Nyman address and debate, the day was featured by a visit to Arundel Castle in the afternoon, and a trade showing of Herbert Wilcox's latest film, "The Three Maxims," and a reception and dance at the Winter Garden here this evening.

A channel trip to France and the Film Star ball in the evening tomorrow will conclude the five-day meeting.

John J. Dervin will board the train at Albany, Carlos E. Moore at Buffalo. At Chicago, the following will be picked up: Jack Goldhar, midwest district manager, and Harry Lotz, Windy City exchange head; A. M. William Truog of Kansas City, Dave McLucas of Omaha and Fred A. Rohrs of Charlotte will get on the train at Kansas City.

N. Y. Clergy Attack Ban On "Pastures"

Clergymen in New York are taking issue with Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario, who concurred in the banning of "The Green Pastures" by the Ontario censor, the New York Journal declared yesterday. Hepburn had declared the film is shocking to Christian people.

The sentiment here is in accord with that of numerous of the Canadian clergy, who protested the action of the censor and Hepburn. The Journal quoted expressions lauding the film from Dr. Christian F. Reisner of the Broadway Tabernacle; Rev. James F. Cunningham, of the Paulist Fathers; Rev. Dr. George M. Duff, of the Riverside Presbyterian Church; Rev. Dr. Edgar R. Hyde of the Creston Ave. Baptist Church, and Rev. Shelton Bishop, of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church.

M. H. Hoffman Here On Producing Plans

M. H. Hoffman, who has just returned from England, will spend the next 10 days in New York arranging his new production program. While in London he had been offered a proposition to become a permanent producer for an English company, but had turned it down.

Although reports have linked Hoffman with planning to produce 30 next season, he stated yesterday that the number has not been determined, but it will not approximate 30.

Harry M. Goetz Arrives

Harry M. Goetz of Reliance arrived by TWA from Hollywood yesterday for talks with Leo Spitz, president of RKO, on next season's schedule. He plans to stay in New York a week and then return west.

Students Censors

Des Moines, June 25.—College students are acting as film censors here.

G. Ralph Branton, manager of Tri-States, listened to protests on the showing of "The Plow That Broke the Plains," and invited the faculty and students of Drake University to see it at a private screening.

They voted that it shouldn't be exhibited. Branton won't show it.

Ask Court Decision On Securities Plan

St. Louis, June 25.—Federal Judge Charles B. Davis will decide shortly what disposition to make of the $110,000 par value preferred stock and $110,000 par value in debentures of Paramount Pictures, Inc., which the voting trustees of the reorganized Missouri Theatre Bldg. Corp. received on a rent claim against Paramount, which at one time was interested in the Missouri and Ambassador.

A petition for a ruling was filed by the Boatmen's National Bank, as trustee under the $2,000,000 income mortgage bond issue which the holders of the original bonds obtained in the reorganization. The bank asked that the voting trustees be directed to turn these assets over to it. The trustees, in answer, requested the court to authorize an exchange whereby the Paramount securities would be used to retire some of the new bond issues.

Isley-Moran Group Planning Expansion

With 17 theatres already in the group, the Isley-Moran circuit, operating in Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas, is contemplating the addition of several houses, Phil Isley said yesterday.

Isley, who is in town with his family, will leave tomorrow or Sunday for Buffalo and Canada for a vacation. He stated business is satisfactory in his spots, "but it is never very good."

Autry Stay Is Modified

Hollywood, June 25.—Federal Judge William P. James has modified the injunction granted Republic against Gene Autry, and Autry will hereafter be permitted to make phonograph records and appear on the radio. The former injunction was all inclusive. Judge James set July 21 as the date on which he will hear argument to make the injunction permanent.

Para. Delays "North"

Hollywood, June 25.—Paramount has postponed "Spawn of the North" because of the illness of Carole Lombard. "Souls at Sea," also a Technicolor subject, will be started in its stead by Grover Jones and Henry Hathaway.

To Publish Martini Songs

Pickford-Lasky and the Sam Fox Publishing Co. have closed a deal for publication of the Nino Martini songs in the forthcoming picture, "The Desperado." The most important song featured in the film is "The World Is Mine Tonight."

circuits would give the operators new one-year contracts. The Hoblitzelle agreement involves a stock partnership in Texas Interstate circuit, which has been equally owned by Paramount and Karl Hoblitzelle, the operator. The new agreement would revise the stock ownership to give Paramount a controlling interest, it is reported.

The postponement of the election is not regarded in informed quarters as lessening Zukor's prospects of being elected to the presidency of Paramount and the name of no other candidate appears to be in evidence.

John D. Hertz, a director, said that while no definite date had been set for the next meeting of the board he anticipated that one would be called early next week, probably for Monday or Tuesday. There is no assurance that the election of officers will be held at that meeting, either, members of the board indicated. Hertz plans to leave for Chicago today for the week end.

Seek Otterson Settlement

It was ascertained, as well, that the board's committee of three appointed to study and make recommendations on the Joseph P. Kennedy interim report two weeks ago has not completed its work and may not do so for another week or 10 days.

It was indicated that no election of officers will be held until the board has agreed on a course of action on the settlement of John E. Otterson's five-year contract. The assumption in informed quarters is that the board is not willing to elect a new president until some final disposition is made of Otterson's contract.

Directors who were requested to comment on this yesterday were evasive. One member, recently elected, remarked "Why ask me? In the first place we've all been sworn to secrecy and, in the second, the first thing I was told on becoming a member of the board was that the trade papers know more about the company than the board does."

Paine Suit Against Erpi Is Dismissed

Federal Judge John C. Knox yesterday dismissed the suit of John G. Paine, representing a group of music publishers, against Erpi. The action asked royalties of approximately $150,000, which Paine claimed were owing to the publishers on the distribution abroad of American-made films, the music rights to which were controlled in this country by the publishers. The case was dismissed for failure to state a cause of action.

Erpi contended it had contracted with Paine, for its producer licensees, for the use of copyrighted music here and abroad, and entered into about 200 similar contracts with foreign publishers to obtain such rights as were not controlled by the Paine group. Erpi claimed Paine could not collect for the foreign use of any music on which he did not control the foreign rights.

Judge Knox allowed the plaintiff 20 days to amend the complaint.

"Thru the Mirror"

(Disney—U. A.)

Walt Disney's incorrigible and ever-entertaining rodent herein has a dream which carries him through the mirror to high and hilarious adventure on the other side. With the usual very excellent technique in color which characterizes these subjects, we find Mickey reduced in size to that of a mite. He becomes engaged in a fierce battle with packs of cards, which snap and twirl and shuffle themselves in amazing fashion as they pursue Mickey under the leadership of the king. A wholly delightful cartoon.

"Pathe Topics No. 6"

(Radio)

An interesting glimpse into Guernsey, the largest of the channel islands with its "dissimilarity to any place on earth," a sequence which is artistically effective due to fine photography. "Away With the Wind," the second part, concerns sailing and sailboats. How the winds make a boat go, a surprising fact, and beautiful camera work blend in making a clever and novel subject. The last part deals with a community fishing project in Nobleboro, Maine. In the spring, millions of alewives, a herringlike fish, go to fresh water to spawn. Their trip to the spawning grounds is made easy, but on their return to the sea they land in a barrel, are salted down and shipped to Haiti. Profits are directed toward village improvements. On the whole the film is generally informative, educational and quite entertaining. Production Code Seal No. 01107. Running time, 12 mins. "G."

"And So to Wed"

(Radio)

This is comedy that manages to sometimes develop amusing scenes. Jack Norton, cleaned out by the horses and having no inclination to work, looks up a wife he obtained through the mails. Deceived at first by her daughter, he meets her and immediately prepares to leave, but is stopped by his future wife's grown son and a wrestling ex-husband. They "take care" of him. A nightmare experience with the wrestler, attempted getaways, and finally he brings the house down, structurally, in a last effort to escape the preacher. The cast includes Eva MacKenzie, Tom Kennedy, Matt McHugh and Jane Hamilton. Production Code Seal No. 2,217. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Swing It"

(Radio)

How Louis Prima brought his original style of music to Hollywood is reenacted in this tuneful, entertaining piece. The story begins in New Orleans where Prima was signed up by a phoney booker to go to the coast. Arriving in California, he finds he must eat and starts playing at a roadside tavern at which a former associate works. From that point success after success until The Famous Door. Comedy is woven in by Harrison Greene and Kitty McHugh who are addicted to slot machines. There are many snappy tunes and the orchestra's "swing" antics are quite the thing. Production Code Seal No. 1,963. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"White Fang"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.—Adventure in Alaska in the gold rush days of 1900, as woven into narrative by Jack London, this sequel to his famous "Call of the Wild" emerges as unpretentious but entertaining screen fare, which should do especially well in the smaller situations. Properly sold, it may well draw the youngsters from miles around.

It is a story of an appropriated gold mine, the ousting of the usurper, misunderstanding, suicide on the trail and murder, against a background of romance and the manner in which a wolf-dog comes to love a man, forgetting his wild past.

Michael Whalen and Jean Muir head the cast, sharing that spot with White Fang, the splendid animal who has the title role. A strong vein of humor runs through the yarn, handled in excellent fashion by Slim Summerville, as the gangling buddy of Whelan; Charles Winninger, in an inimitable characterization of the almost perpetually inebriated and highly forgetful "doctor," and Jane Darwell.

Miss Muir and her young brother come to Alaska to claim the mine left by an uncle. They meet Whelan, who persuades her to return while he goes with her brother. On the trail, in splendidly photographed scenes, they are caught in a storm, the boy commits suicide, fearing the legendary White Fang, and Whelan, collapsing, is saved from death, strangely enough, by the dog. Whelan, recovered, poses as the suicide, takes over the mine with Summerville, and, when Miss Muir suddenly appears, is threatened with hanging. Winninger and Miss Darwell, with the aid of the dog, save his life again, and he and Miss Muir complete the romance.

Bogart Rogers was associate producer and David Butler directed.

HOUSTON, June 25.—"Private Number" led the parade, finishing with a take of $8,750, which was $1,750 over par at the Metropolitan. "Fury," at Loew's State, opened well, but slumped at the close to chalk up a normal of $7,000.

All other pictures were down, "Big Brown Eyes" at the Majestic falling off $1,500 to take $5,500, and the Kirby, playing "Country Beyond," "Ship Cafe" and "Sky Parade," slumping to $3,900, instead of the usual $5,000 for the week.

Houston is still suffering the hottest weather of the summer, the thermometer hitting 98 for about three hours each midday.

Looking 'Em Over

"Luci Sommerse" ("Crooked Love")

(Nuovo Mondo)

This is to be considered definitely one of the less conspicuous of the importations of Italian product by Nuovo Mondo. Its story concerns a gentleman crook and his attempts, finally successful, to renounce his career of crime when he falls in love with a beautiful girl.

The girl, Nelly Corradi, is certainly attractive, but hardly more than a competent performer. Fosco Giacchetti plays the "Spider," whose fate is sealed when he steals a necklace from the girl at a party, then returns it when she indicates its sentimental attachment. The film moves for the most part at a pace slower than anticipated in view of the nature of the story, the wooing of the girl being permitted to play too large a part in the footage.

In general, the film is of the type which probably will appeal to audiences understanding the Italian language of the dialogue, but to few others. There are plenty of superimposed subtitles to permit of ready understanding of the story.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 76 minutes. "A."

"Below the Deadline"

(Chesterfield)

Containing a title with exploitable possibilities and a second-rate story that follows familiar patterns, this rates for a double bill.

Cecilia Parker, borrowed from M-G-M and credibly naive, works for a prominent jeweler and is in love with Russell Hopton, a cop, who aspires to be a detective and carries a heavy brogue through the film. It is a redeeming feature. However, Hopton is framed by Thomas Jackson when a collection of diamonds is stolen and Hopton faces charges of murder in addition to robbery. He manages to run away, get involved in a railway accident, lose his identity, undergo a plastic surgery operation and reappear on the scene. He contacts Theodore Von Eltz, an insurance investigator, and with his assistance closes down on Jackson. The action moves jerkily, but subtly weaves excitement.

The original story and screen play are by Ewart Adamson. Charles Lamont directed.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,270. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Overseas Previews

"A Star Fell from Heaven"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, June 18.—Thoroughly good entertainment in this British musical. It has melody, humor and pep. Joseph Schmidt, a very fine tenor, has just the sort of numbers the women love. All through, the action goes with a hop, skip and jump with large credit due to George Graves, stage veteran, as a film producer.

The incidental satire of film methods is such as the public can appreciate. Lots of the action takes place in the studio of the Miracle Film Corp., whose trade mark is a snarling tiger, and slogan: "If you see a good film, it's a Miracle." A well-constructed plot, turning on the fact that a student with a beautiful tenor voice is persuaded to voicedouble for a film star who is in love with the same girl.

Florine McKinney, Judy Kelly and Iris Hoey are the chief women W. H. Berry and Steve Geray back up Graves well in the comedy. Billy Milton looks good and acts good as the film star. There is enough musical appeal, and enough laughter, to compensate for the occasional ultra-English accent.

Running time, 70 mins. "G." ALLAN.

Negotiations are now under way to bring Benny Goodman's orchestra from New York for one.

Play Selling Rules Agreed Upon by Guild

Film Companies in Pact On Disputed Details

Final objections of film companies to the new Dramatists' Guild-producers' contract are believed to have been removed with the approval by the joint committee of guild and producing managers of supplementary rules stabilizing the provisions governing the sale of film rights to stage plays.

The film companies objected to the new contract and threatened to withdraw their financial backing of Broadway plays because the supplementary rules governing the sale of film rights were not incorporated in the new five-year contract recently approved by the guild and managers. The film interests held that unless the rules were made a part of the contract they would be subject to change at any time and, consequently, a film company which had backed a stage production never

The Georgia law required Ascap to obtain a $1,000 lincense for every county in the state in which it sought to collect a tax for the public performance of its copyrighted music. There are approximately 160 counties in the

"Poppy" Only Bright Spot Along Broadway

The only bright spot along Broadway last week was "Poppy" at the Paramount which garnered $45,000 and is being held for a three-week run. The Music Hall with "Sins of Men" was off, getting about $55,000. "Dancing Pirate" at the Rivoli hit the doldrums with less than $10,000 for the first week and a smaller gross in sight for the second.

After chalking up a take of $20,000 on the first seven days of "Hearts Divided," the Strand wound up the last five days of the picture with about $9,000. The second week of

Canada Passes New Copyright Control Rules

Toronto, June 26.—Strict government control of copyright charges and regulations imposed by the Canadian Performing Rights Society is provided in a bill passed in the closing hours of Parliament.

The new law is the outcome of the investigation into the fees imposed by the Canadian Performing Rights Society of Toronto and the passing of the bill is a distinct victory for theatre men, radio broadcasters and other amusement operators of the Dominion.

The legislation provides for the setting up of a permanent board of appeal with headquarters at Ottawa for the hearing of complaints or protests that annual or temporary license fees of the society are excessive. The society is required to register its scale of levies for a year with the Dominion Government prior to Jan. 1 and such charges cannot be increased during the 12 months. The board of appeal is empowered to order a downward revision of rates for performing rights if a protest is considered justified.

Refuse to Comment On Lasky to Para.

Hollywood, June 26. — Jesse L. Lasky and Mary Pickford both refused comment today on reports that Lasky would leave the Pickford-Lasky organization to join Paramount. At the close of an all-day conference attended by Lasky, Miss Pickford and John C. Flinn, general manager of the company, the following official statement was issued:

"Upon the completion of the current picture, 'The World Is Mine,' production activities of Pickford-Lasky, Inc., will be suspended temporarily. Miss Pickford, who is an executive of United Artists, has been occupied with the affairs of that company, and it is contemplated that she will soon make a trip abroad in its interests. Lasky will continue his headquarters at United Artists."

Report Briggs Leaves DuPont To Head Pathe

Resigns After 20 Years And Will Go to Coast

O. Henry Briggs, sales manager for DuPont Film Mfg., resigned from that post yesterday with reports current he will be named president of Pathe at the next board meeting.

No successor to Briggs has been named, it was stated at the DuPont offices. He will leave for the coast tomorrow and will be gone for two weeks.

When questioned about the Briggs report, Frank F. Kolbe, head of Pathe, declined to comment. Robert W. Atkins, executive vice-president of Pathe, expressed surprise on being informed by Motion Picture Daily of the Briggs story. He said he hadn't heard about it.

Briggs has been with DuPont for the past 20 years in charge of raw stock sales. It is understood that when he returns from the coast he will assume his new duties at Pathe.

Pathe for many years owned 49 per cent of the DuPont stock and recently sold 15 per cent of it back to DuPont.

Coney Island Seeks 77-B Reorganizing

The Coney Island Theatre Corp. filed a petition to reorganize under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Law in Federal court at Brooklyn yesterday. The company operates the Coney Island and leases an office building in connection with the theatre.

The company's petition said that its gross receipts had declined from $360,000 in 1930 to $272,000 in 1935 and that rental on the office space had declined proportionately. It stated that despite a reduction of the ground lease from $30,000 to $25,000 per year it was unable to meet current obligations.

Regardless of what the clergy may say about it, however, Premier Hepburn says the ban on the picture will not be removed because he considers it "an insult to religion." It is estimated that approximately 100,000 pesetas were lost to exhibitors during the recent amusement strike in Andalucia, during which all forms of entertainment closed. The striking elements threatened to establish open-air theatres in tents in competition with the regular houses. The theatres in the area already have entered the summer closing period.

Hispano Foxfilm will release a total of 42 features during the coming season, of which 30 will be dubbed in Spain. The dubbing represents an increase of 20 per cent over the number dubbed during the current season, but the total of releases is slightly under that of the current year.

Considerable gains to the exhibitors in the affected areas are anticipated with the planned construction of a complete manufacturing plant of the Ford Motor Co. near this city, replacing the present assembling plant. General Motors also is considering the development of a manufacturing plant here.

Cifesa, one of the major Spanish producing companies, has begun to dub pictures in German and French, following the success of several films during the current season. The company has established a branch in Paris for that purpose.

Jose Maria Salaverria, one of Spain's leading writers on the screen, devoted a column on the front page of the leading Barcelona paper, La Vanguardia, to the neglect by all producers, European and American, as well as Spanish, of the opportunities inherent in Spanish history for subjects for films, citing numerous possibilities.

Ascap Wins Ruling On Georgia License

state and the $160,000 license fee would have greatly exceeded Ascap's collections in Georgia. In deciding the case brought to test the law, the state court held that only one license was required by the Ascap agent for the entire state. Although Ascap's attorneys said they were of the opinion that any license requirement for their agents was illegal, no appeal will be taken from the Georgia decision.

Several other southern states have recently enacted licensing legislation designed to make it financially impossible for Ascap to operate within the state boundaries and the Georgia decision is regarded by the society as an important precedent in invalidating the legislation in the other states. Indications are that Ascap agents in these states will refuse to take out licences and thus bring other test cases.

Steelman, Lawyer, Named Fox Trustee

by a group of creditors' representatives apparently friendly to counsel for Fox, and Clarence E. Knauer, who was proposed by an opposing group whose spokesman made charges of "false and fictitious" claims and "fraudulent transfer of assets."

Steedle's conclusions, made public in connection with the appointments, pointed out that "every single claim filed with the referee, except one not represented at the meeting, was disputed by some other creditor. Even hasty examination of the proofs of claims filed and the objections will disclose that weeks and weeks of testimony would have to be taken before the validity of the 43 claims filed can be passed upon and the claims allowed or disallowed."

Analyzing the language of the bankruptcy laws, Steedle pointed out that "there can be no valid election (of a trustee) by the creditors unless and until all the claims filed are heard and passed upon by the referee." He emphasized that in the Fox case even if the referee were to sit every working day hearing these contested claims it would be several months before all could be heard and decided. Therefore he himself made the appointment.

Counsel for creditors today continued their inspection of the Fox books and records. On July 6 there will be another formal hearing for questioning of several witnesses. On July 10 Fox himself will be submitted to examination by the lawyers for his creditors.

May Ask Rehearing Of Sales Tax Case

this week that film delivered outside the city limits from New York exchanges is not subject to the tax, but film delivered to theatres within the city is. Attorneys for the distribution companies are of the opinion that the court overlooked several basic considerations in making its decisions and that, if a rehearing of the film exchanges' case is obtained, a more favorable decision might result. The rehearing, also, might be expected to strengthen the film exchanges' case even in the event it is taken to the Court of Appeals later.

Distributors have been conferring on procedure in the case and are expected to make their decision some time next week.

Zukor Here Monday For Board Session

for the settlement or adjustment of John E. Otterson's five-year contract, which has four years to go. One of the proposals is said to involve a production affiliation between Otterson and Paramount.

If an amicable adjustment of the Otterson contract is made early in the week, the Paramount board may proceed with the annual election of officers of the company, which has been twice deferred in the past week, reputedly because of the board's unwillingness to elect a new president of the company while the status of Otterson's contract remains a subject of controversy. In this event, Zukor might be in attendance at the meeting which would return him to the presidency of Paramount. Even in the event of an early election, however, it is belived that Zukor would return to the coast to complete the work he now has under way at the studio.

"Poppy" Only Bright Spot Along Broadway

"Secret Agent" at the Roxy ended with $22,100, which the management considers good in view of the fine weather Saturday and Sunday.

The Louis-Schmeling fight films at the Palace perked up business to the extent of a $12,000 week. "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford" and "Educating Father" were the regular attractions. The Rialto on "The Last Outlaw" got $8,500 and for "Border Flight" and the fight reels, Arthur Mayer anticipates about $14,000.

Indications are that Warners may reopen the Hollywood for an indefinite two-a-day run of "Anthony Adverse" in the late summer.

At the Capitol, where "Fury" concluded a 21-day run, the intake for the last seven days was about $18,000.

Brandon Applies for Film Carrier Permit

Washington, June 26.—An application of M. H. Brandon, doing business as Film Transit Co., Memphis, Tenn., for certificate of convenience and necessity under the Motor Carriers' Act to operate a motor transportation service for films and commodities between Memphis and points in Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky was today made the subject of hearings to be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Memphis on July 23.

So far as is known, this is the first application to be received under the act for operation of a film transportation service.

Play Selling Rules Agreed Upon by Guild

could be sure of obtaining the film rights to the play which carried its investment while the rules for the sale of those rights were subject to momentary change.

The new provision written into the instructions for Joseph P. Bickerton, arbitrator on the sale of film rights, specifies that the same conditions prevailing at the time that a backer becomes financially interested in a stage production must prevail for him at the time of the disposal of the film rights. The committee believes that through this provision a film company which finds the backing of a play attractive at any time will be guaranteed the same prevailing conditions when the film rights to that play are offered for sale later.

The guild was opposed to the inclusion of the arbitrator's instructions in the five-year contract on the ground that the rules had to be kept flexible to meet seasonal changes in the theatre market and that this could not be done if the rules were made a part of the five-year contract. Spokesmen for the committee are confident that the new provision will end the threat of withdrawal of film money from the legitimate production field and that an equitable arrangement for both the investing film company and the playwright will be preserved.

Mrs. Ben Goetz, who arrived on the same liner, will leave for Hollywood today to join her husband who plans to remain on the coast for another three weeks before returning to England to set up M-G-M's production unit there.

Marcus Heiman, trustee in bankruptcy for the Orpheum circuit and president of the League of New York Theatres, accompanied Gordon on the journey. He said he went abroad for a vacation and that he had no plans at the present time.

Emily Roosevelt, dramatic soprano and cousin of the president, returned from a tour abroad and asserted she is not entering the film business.

Short Subjects

"Major Bowes Amateur Parade No. 2"

(Radio)

Fast, condensed and with excellent cutting this short is a whirlwind of variety, amateur entertainment. In 10 minutes eight turns are presented. They range from torch singing and impersonations to harmony and an accordion-harmonica duo. The entire reel is laid in a night club setting and should be found pleasing. Production Code Seal No. 0916. "G."

"Fool Your Friends"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

The Easy Aces again serve as jocular interpreters of an interesting and very entertaining expose of some simple tricks of magic in this, their latest. David Allisen, a magician, does various sleight of hand and "hand is quicker than the eye" stunts and repeats them, revealing how it is done. The short manages to be highly amusing. Production Code Seal No. 01045. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

U. S. Product Leads In Asiatic Market

Despite the advance of English product, American films still dominate the market in southern Asia, declared David R. Blyth, Warner manager in that territory, in New York for home office conferences on his first visit in four years. His headquarters are in Bombay. Audiences in that section of the world are partial to musicals and action films, Blyth said. Outside of the few important cities, the more sophisticated types of films have no market.

The outlook for next season is extremely good in the territory, which includes India, the Malay States and Java, Blyth said. A number of new theatres are under construction or planned in some of the more important cities, the outstanding project being a 1,200-seat, highly modern theatre planned for Bombay by Shivaraz Calbatta, wealthy native Indian, who is on a world tour seeking ideas for the house. Most of the theatres in the area, even in the interior, are wired for sound, Blyth said. He will remain in New York for several days.

Change "Jungle" Title

HOLLYWOOD, June 26.—"Girl of the Jungle" is the new title of the Paramount picture previously known as "Queen of the Jungle."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Shadow"

(Globe Pictures)

A mystery, produced by Real Art Prod., Ltd., of England, and released here by Globe Pictures, this has a reasonably good element of mystery, but for this market is seriously handicapped by the heavily accented speech, some of which is almost unintelligible.

The suspense is well maintained, for the most part, and the culprit well hidden throughout, but the film offers little unusual in the way of mystery films of its kind. The film has been adapted from a novel by Donald Stuart, by H. Fowler Mear and Terrence Egan.

The leads are played by Henry Kendall, Elizabeth Allan and John Tumbull, as the Scotland Yard inspector who finally brings to book, with the girl's help, the man who has made a laughing stock of the Yard. Blackmail and murder are his methods. In general it is only average mystery.

"Topaze"

(Remade Version by Marcel Pagnol)

PARIS, June 19.—This stage play which made Marcel Pagnol famous and has been running in one theatre here for three years, had been adapted to the screen before in 1932 at the French Paramount studios. It also was produced in Hollywood by Radio.

This time the author, Pagnol, has made it into a film. His theory of picture technique is that pictures should be screen copies of stage plays. In this new version this theory is strictly applied. Dialogue is predominant, with not much care lavished on sets. The film was made in Pagnol's private studio at Marseilles.

The cast includes Arnaudy, who played the role of Topaze; Leon Belieres, Delia Col, Alida Rouffe and other well-known French players. It is an interesting film and is meeting with success in France. Its appeal elsewhere will be limited to spots where French is spoken and satirical French humor is appreciated.

No production code seal. Running time, 110 minutes. "G."

Louisville Trailers Attack New Tax Law

LOUISVILLE, June 26.—All Louisville first runs are running trailers anent the new admissions tax. In substance the trailer states that the patron had to pay the tax which was no doubt distasteful to him, that theatre interests had exerted every known means to stop passage of the bill, and that it was just as distasteful for the house to collect as it was for the patron to pay. The trailers wind up with the suggestion that if the patron thinks the tax should be removed, he should "write to the Governor." This latter is in screen size letters.

Sir Maurice Bonham-Carter, a director of the banking firm of C. T. Falk & Co., is head of this company. Arthur Levey, an American, is on the board.

Says British Aim at World Film Markets

Major Procter for Quota On Competitive Basis

The aim of every major British producer today is to deliver pictures which will be judged on their merits and find their place in world markets as well as at home without the aid of quota laws or other protective legislation, Major Henry A. Procter, a member of Parliament and an officer of six British producing companies, said Saturday.

Major Procter, who was educated in America, is here to receive the degree of Doctor of Laws and Literature at Bethany University. He returns to England on the Queen Mary, July 8.

Major Procter declined to comment on the changes in the British quota laws now under consideration, on the ground that his position as a member of the industry and a member of Parliament made a discussion of pending legislation affecting his business interests unethical. In general, however,

Paramount Will Not Quit Reich—Vallar

Paramount is not making any moves to withdraw from the German market for the next year, it was learned Saturday with the arrival of George Vallar, manager for the company in that country. Vallar already has received the full quota of kontingents from the German government for the release of eight dubbed and two superimposed pictures produced in Hollywood.

Vallar is not worried over the situation as it exists in Germany and regards the stories in the trade about increasing restrictions as exaggerated.

This is Vallar's first trip to Amer-

Warners earnings for the third quarter of the fiscal year ending May 30 will be about $944,929, according to the Wall Street Journal. This is at the rate of 23 cents per share, somewhat less than the previous quarter, but well ahead of last year when the earnings touched 11 cents a share.

In the first half of the current fiscal year the net was $1,976,245, or 48 cents a share.

Erpi Scales Will Be Cut Wednesday

Slashes Expected to Be About 33 1/3%

Erpi's new recording license fees, which will represent reductions of approximately 33⅓ per cent under the present rates, will become effective on Wednesday for all new contracts closed by the company.

Final work on the new reduced rates is now under way and the first contract to embody them is in work. The Erpi rate reductions, although planned some time ago, were not made known by the company until after the recent closing by RCA of new 10-year recording license agreements with Twentieth Century-Fox, Columbia and Warners. The RCA terms represented many concessions to producers in the way of computing charges for recording, the use of equipment, free servicing and replacements and availability of new recording developments. Despite the drastic reductions in Erpi's rates being placed in effect this week, the over-all recording cost is still said to be more than that established in the new RCA agreements.

According to reports, the first license agreement embodying Erpi's new reduced rates will be closed with

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

YOU'VE heard about "A Midsummer Night's Dream," of course, and, if you are a faithful reader of this department, you will recall how the Warners ingeniously revamped orthodox picture merchandising to put that notable effort in a special classification, thereby establishing something new in distribution and a much more comfortable gross than the wise guys said was possible with Shakespeare and fantasy. "The Story of Louis Pasteur" and the critical acclaim showered upon it, no doubt, is another matter with which you are familiar. We have had our say on "The Green Pastures" and we have fumed quite ecstatically about "The White Angel" . . .

But have you ever heard of Henry Blanke and William Dieterle and, if you have, how much? Something has to be said about these men and today it shall be done, first biographically, which is the usual manner and, secondly, by way of critical observation. Blanke was brought over from Germany by Warners about five years ago to supervise Spanish and German dialogue features on the coast. Prior to that, his record establishes him as business and production manager of "Metropolis," produced about nine years ago in Berlin by Fritz Lang, the same director who has "Fury," indelibly and praiseworthily etched on his escutcheon. For two years, Blanke was the production head for Warners in Berlin: that was in the days before Hitlerism and insanity. Then in 1933 and in Hollywood, he supervised "The Bureau of Missing Persons," "Lady Killer," "I Loved a Woman" and "Convention City." . . .

Now Dieterle. He was both actor and director in the Germany that was. When Max Reinhardt was producing stage spectacles there, Dieterle was his assistant director on several. Just about a half decade ago, the Warners brought him over to direct German-language features. Dieterle, however, refused to be satisfied and, largely at his own insistence, asked and was given opportunity to try his hand at making features in English. Hollywood English anyway. His first assignment was "The Last Flight" which went so well the studio determined to assign him to the regular directorial staff. . . .

It was Blanke who was charged with the supervisory responsibility of "The Dream," "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "The Green Pastures" and "The White Angel." Another, "Anthony Adverse," on which advance word is the industry's favorite—"terrific"—was his as well. Dieterle was co-director with Reinhardt on "The Dream" and full director on "Pasteur" and "The White Angel." Leaving "Adverse" out of this since we cannot pound away on something which so far we have not seen, the point about to be made is in no wise weakened. That point is merely this: That, on the basis of any one of the attractions mentioned variously here, both Blanke and Dieterle command attention, also respect. In Hollywood, there may be some who sing their praises. Out of Hollywood, relatively little is known of them and that, we argue, is a condition on which some attention ought to be fastened. For one of these men, Blanke, to have been responsible, as supervisor, for four of the genuinely noteworthy pictures to come out of Hollywood in the last two years is an achievement. For the other, Dieterle, to be similarly identified, but with three, is only slightly less through force of numbers. . . .

On the one hand, the current report of the Catholic Theatre Movement of the Archdiocese of New York which finds none of the current New York plays, a paltry few when compared with the full bloom of the season, it is true, completely unobjectionable. On the other, the weekly reports of the committee of the National Legion of Decency which finds not all of the current product to its entire liking, but the bulk of it completely unobjectionable for all types of audiences. Having compared, your conclusion can be but one. . . .

Says British Aim at World Film Markets

he said that he would be satisfied to see a quota law which placed the marketing of British pictures on a purely competitive basis.

"I feel," he said, "that heretofore British pictures have received fair treatment in the American market. If that continues and the improvement in our product maintains its present pace, I am confident that our pictures can compete on their own merits with American product here as well as at home."

Major Procter said that British film interests might be impelled to petition new and more stringent protective legislation at home only in the event that they are unfairly "frozen out" of the American market or "shelved" by the companies who handle their distribution here. He pointed out that British production today represents a tremendous investment which must be protected now as never before from discrimination in the principal film markets of the world.

Various Firms Handle Releases

Pictures of the companies in which he is interested are handled here by United Artists, Columbia, Universal and G. B., Major Procter said. The interests with which he is associated do not plan to enter the American distribution field on their own while these associations continue satisfactory, he said.

The quota picture made in England by American companies was blamed by Major Procter for whatever odiousness is still attached to the term "British picture" in this market. English producers today are attempting to overcome the handicap of that description with a high quality product which they hope, soon, will reverse its meaning so that a "British picture" will connote a high type of product characteristic of British workmanship in other fields of industry.

Holds $15,000,000 of Contracts

In the work of advancing British production standards Major Procter ranked Alexander Korda, Max Schach and Karl Grune in the order named. Schach and Grune are associated with companies in which Major Procter is interested. He is president of Capitol Film Corp., British Cine Alliance, Cecil Films and Somlo; is a director of Trafalgar Film Co. and one of the founders of General Film Distributors. The last named company is a part owner of Universal, with Standard Capital and Charles R. Rogers.

Major Procter said that his interests hold $15,000,000 of contracts for production material and personalities.

Doyle's prospective visit to New York is understood to indicate that further conferences will be held with Kent on the local situation. Twentieth Century-Fox has a large interest in Hoyts.

Fight Film Starts Vancouver Argument

VANCOUVER, June 28.—The Schmeling-Louis upset had repercussions in Vancouver, with exchange men biting fingernails and exhibitors producing long arguments as to why their houses should play the reel.

Originally slated to go into the second-run Dominion, the fight reel was switched to the Capitol, Famous Players No. 1 house, when the unexpected knockout increased public interest. The Dominion manager didn't like that a bit, and set up a minor howl. Meanwhile Ivan Ackery of the Orpheum also put in a bid for the reel on the grounds that "Sins of Man," his current picture, was laying something of an egg.

Morning papers after the fight carried Capitol copy advertising the reel, so eventually a compromise was reached by playing the pictures concurrently at Capitol and Dominion. With both houses drawing well, everybody's happy except the Orpheum.

Barcelona Strikers Back; To Arbitrate

By HARRY C. PLUMMER

BARCELONA (By Cable), June 28.—Striking distribution employes returned to work yesterday under an agreement which makes it mandatory for an arbitration board to adjust all questions in dispute within eight days, restoring the industry in Spain to normal activity.

In advance of the return to work of the distribution employes, Governor General Andalucia of Sevilla terminated the 52-day amusement strike by a temporary arbitration measure which granted regular projectionists a wage increase, permitting theatres to reopen. Mutua members reserve the right to withhold salaries accrued during the strike period pending a final adjustment by the arbitrators, but some houses will pay salaries while the negotiations are under way.

There are definite indications that distribution employes will receive an average seven per cent increase in wages and a 44-hour week, although this represents much less than the strikers' original demands.

Seidelman to Hold Three Conventions

LONDON, June 28.—J. H. Seidelman, foreign manager of Columbia, plans conventions in Madrid, Rome and Paris within the next six weeks. Joe Friedman, managing director of Columbia in London, will accompany him on his visit to Continental territories.

That Columbia regards color as a "technical necessity" in the case of certain scenes and that it will only use it when it is demanded by subject matter was Seidelman's comment on recent all-color talk from other quarters.

The Columbia foreign manager will spend three or four months on this side.

he will return to New York on Thursday for the final closing of the Warner deal and on July 3 assume operation of the three houses.

Working with Wilkinson in the east on the negotiations and contracts are Sol A. Rosenblatt, former NRA administrator, and Robert W. Perkins of the Warner home office. Samuel Jeffries, local Warner counsel, is handling the circuit's dealings with Chasnoff here.

A practical agreement between Warners and F. & M. was reached on Saturday, but no papers have been signed, it was learned over the weekend. Several matters have yet to be cleared up before F. & M. takes over the three St. Louis houses, acquires a 42 per cent in the St. Louis Amusement Co. and signs the 10-year Warner franchise.

The earliest possible date, as it appears now, that F. & M. can assume operation of the Warner theatres in the Mound City is seen as July 3.

Ernest L. Wilkinson, for F. & M. and Robert W. Perkins, for Warners, hope to finish up the deal by Thursday.

Whitford Drake, Erpi executive vice-president, is en route to England where, it is reported, he will discuss new rate reductions for that market with William Bach, who was recently placed in charge of the Western Electric London office. Bach succeeded R. M. Hatfield, who returns to this country for a new assignment. New reproducing rates which made appreciable savings available to British exhibitors recently were placed in effect in England. The expectancy is now that Drake's mission may result in reduced recording rates for British studios comparable to those being placed in effect here. Drake will be away less than three weeks.

"Number" Is Pittsburgh's Wow, $12,000

Pittsburgh, June 28.—All of the action in downtown Pittsburgh last week was restricted to two houses, the Alvin and the Stanley. At the Alvin, "Private Number" brought out the biggest feminine crush since the days of Rudolph Valentino, with that 1936 model matinee idol, Robert Taylor, being exclusively responsible for the sensational $12,000, the best take this spot has had since "The Country Doctor." The picture was held for a second week and a third is also likely.

The Stanley had one of Pittsburgh's ranking favorites, Ted Lewis, on the stage to bolster "Things to Come," but it was Lewis, the management readily admits, who gets the chief credit for an excellent $19,000. Elsewhere, however, things were not impressive. "Hearts Divided" never got started at the Penn and dropped that house to $8,500, while "Three Wise Guys" and "Fatal Lady" were able to attract only a weak $3,100 at the Warner.

Total first run grosses were $42,600. Average is $35,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending June 25:

"PRIVATE NUMBER" (20th-Fox)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $12,000. (Average, $4,500)

"HEARTS DIVIDED" (F.N.)

"THINGS TO COME" (U.A.)
STANLEY — (3,600), 25c-55c, 7 days. Stage: Ted Lewis' band, Edna Strong, Nascha, Hi-Hatters, Three Radio Aces and Snowball Whittier. Gross: $19,000. (Average, $16,500)

"THREE WISE GUYS" (M-G-M)
"FATAL LADY" (Para.)
WARNER — (2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $3,100. (Average, $4,000)

M. P. League Has Shutout

With A. Weinstein pitching a no-hit, no-run game, the first on record in the M. P. Baseball League, to give Columbia its second win of the past week, the Music Hall was forced to share the league lead with Columbia. The latter has won six and lost none while the Music Hall has won five and lost none. The week also saw RKO advance from fifth to third place in the league by a 4 to 0 win over NBC, while Skouras was losing to Paramount, 3 to 1, and Loew-M-G-M to Columbia in the no-hit, no-run game which ended 2 to 0. Columbia's first win of the week was registered against Consolidated Laboratories, 9 to 5.

The NBC-Loew-M-G-M game and the United Artists-Consolidated game were rained out.

Fabian, W. B. Get House

Simon H. Fabian, in association with Warners, have leased the Griswold in Troy, N. Y., from the I. Wit Realty Co. of Boston. The long term lease calls for an aggregate rental of $200,000. The house will be reopened Labor Day after extensive renovation.

Detroit, June 28.—Harold C. Robinson, president of Film Truck Service, is a candidate for sheriff in Wayne County. He was undersheriff for some time.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Bride Walks Out"

(Radio)

Hollywood, June 28.—As whimsical farce, this one relies on dialogue for the most part to sustain situations which would otherwise fall somewhat short. Intelligent cutting will speed up the tempo and heighten the comedy, dramatic and entertainment values. The film rates as only fair, with the cast names of Barbara Stanwyck, Gene Raymond, Robert Young and Ned Sparks the only outstanding exhibition angles.

The theme features the marital stumbling blocks in the way of Miss Stanwyck and Raymond who are trying to live on $35 a week, with Young proving a generous, but usually polluted benefactor, and, simultaneously a romantic martyr. Ned Sparks and Helen Broderick contribute a generous supply of laughs as married friends who become enveloped in the Stanwyck-Raymond-Young triangle. The story has the usual happy ending with Miss Stanwyck resigning herself to the small Raymond salary and Young doing a fadeout.

Leigh Jason's direction is adequate for the material he had to work with. P. J. Wolfson and Philip G. Epstein penned the screenplay from the Howard Emmett Rogers original. The supporting cast performances are good.

The film is only good for key spots where these names draw.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,271. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

"Poppy" With Band Detroit Hit, $22,500

Detroit, June 28.—"Poppy," with Louis Armstrong and his orchestra on the stage, garnered $22,500 at the Michigan on the week, going over normal by $2,500.

Trailing a close second was "Private Number" at the Fox with Eddie Duchin and his band on the stage. The take at this house was $22,400, up by $2,400.

None of the other first runs could stand competition like this.

Total first run business was $59,700. Average is $60,000.

This appointment sends John Finley back to the Alvin as chief of service and John Morin to his old post at the Palace, with Morty Henderson resuming the managership of the William Penn.

"Number," Fight Films Big in Phila.

Philadelphia, June 28.—In spite of the Democratic convention, street carnivals, Paul Whiteman concerts and other competition, "Private Number" and the Schmeling-Louis fight films ran the take of the Fox up to $20,000, which was $6,000 over normal.

"Forgotten Faces," with Phil Baker heading a stage show, also managed to make money by getting $18,500, over the line by $6,500.

All other houses found the going rough, however.

Total first run business was $67,000. Average is $66,225.

San Francisco, June 28.—"Fury," on a double bill with "Early to Bed," was the only attraction to make much of an impression last week. The take was $14,000, which was $2,500 over the Paramount's average.

"Dracula's Daughter" and "Trapped by Television" went $200 over the line for a total of $7,000 at the Orpheum. "Let's Sing Again" pulled $14,900 at the Golden Gate. This was $400 on the profit side of the ledger. Other spots were in the throes of the summer lethargy.

"Four Hours" Depicts Time Reel's Growth

March of Time has produced as fascinating a pictorial record in its publication, "Four Hours a Year," just issued by Time, Inc., as any of its celluloid releases during the year. The book includes some of the outstanding photographic work which has appeared in the March of Time reel, Time, the weekly newsmagazine, and Fortune.

In a foreword, the editors of Time set forth that the book is published "to tell how The March of Time is now established in the world, and how it began and how it grew in its first year. It is a chapter in the history of pictorial journalism—in the use of a new language, difficult, as yet unmastered, but incredibly powerful and strangely universal." —S. A. K.

5,077 Amusements Inactive During 1934

Washington, June 28.—Only 11,197 out of 50,990 corporations in the amusement, hotel and professional field were able to show taxable income for 1934, according to figures made public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The 11,197 companies, the bureau reported, showed a gross income for the year amounting to $1,563,080,000 and a net income of $107,815,000 on which income taxes of $14,864,000 and excess profits taxes of $346,000, a total of $15,210,000 were paid. Of the remaining companies, 5,077 were inactive and filed no reports for 1934, and 34,716 reported gross income of $1,812,431,000, but after deductions, a deficit of $283,256,000.

The report, the first of a series to be issued on 1934 income tax returns, made no analysis of corporations in the service industries to show amusements separately, but will issue figures for such activities in the near future.

N. E. Allied Urges Film Deal Support

Boston, June 28.—In urging members to contract for the 18 Chesterfield-Invincible pictures this season, the local Allied affiliate declares in its latest bulletin:

"The present shortage of pictures in the film market, which has created a sellers' market, must be cracked down upon by every independent exhibitor, if he expects to have a profitable business investment in the future. Allied is providing you with such an opportunity. There should be no need for us to ask you to buy this product, but we do state most emphatically that failure on your part to go for this deal will convince Allied that you are satisfied with present market conditions, and that you no longer have need of an organization."

"Therefore, if the Chesterfield-Invincible deal doesn't click, Allied disbands?"

circuit, while Consolidated operates about 24. The Paramount pact covers all houses in both independent circuits.

Some question has arisen as to the legality of the I. T. O. A.'s contract with the service renters and it was only after lengthy conferences with Milton C. Weisman, attorney for the exhibitor unit, that the exhibitors put their signatures to the Paramount pact.

The I. T. O. A. contract with the independent renters was signed last January. Attorneys for Paramount hold that the film contracts signed with exhibitors last season include a clause that they must secure advertising material from the exchange. The pact also states that the material is copyrighted, leased and not to be sold.

In view of this clause, Paramount contends there is a priority in date which nullifies the I. T. O. A. agreement with the poster houses. Also, that exhibitors selling accessories to others after they are through with the material is a violation of copyright.

Distributors for years have been threatening suit against the poster renters on the copyright angle. Twentieth Century-Fox filed an action some time ago and dropped it. Accessory heads of the various major companies have been mulling over a plan to merge all the ad sales departments into one central unit in all key cities, but this has never materialized.

"San Francisco" Is Big Capitol Grosser

Happy days are here again for the Capitol. Tallying slightly over $30,000 for the first three days, "San Francisco" garnered the largest week-end take for the house since "Mutiny on the Bounty," which played there about seven months ago.

The Astor, for the 12th week of "The Great Ziegfeld," wound up with $17,300. The picture is slated to continue until the latter part of August when it will be replaced by "Romeo and Juliet."

Albany, June 29.—"San Francisco" is doing a standout business at Si Fabian's Palace here. The picture grossed $8,000 in the first four days and will probably wind up ahead of the take of "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Sabath to Continue Theatre Lease Probe

The Sabath Congressional committee is now engaged in a study of reasons behind the disaffirmance of theatre leases by companies in bankruptcy or reorganization and the methods employed by companies in obtaining reductions under leases which were renewed.

RKO officials were questioned on theatre lease changes during the past few days and officials of other companies may be called in the near future. A. H. McCausland, trustee's representative in RKO, was one of those called for questioning by the committee's counsel recently.

RKO and Paramount In Des Moines Pool

Contracts were signed yesterday by RKO and Paramount for the pooling of the Paramount, Des Moines, Strand and Orpheum. The arrangement is expected to go into effect the first week in August.

The boards of the various F. & M. companies in St. Louis met yesterday to ratify contracts in connection with the Warner deal.

Para's. Board Sets Election For Thursday

Zukor Conferring with Company's Officers

A call for a special meeting of the Paramount board on Thursday was issued yesterday with indications that the twice postponed annual election of officers will be held at that meeting.

Adolph Zukor, who arrived from the coast yesterday for a round of conferences with board members prior to the meeting, still appears to be the most likely candidate for the Paramount presidency. Zukor is scheduled to return to the coast some time next week to complete the studio work he has under way there, even though he is elected to the top Paramount post on Thursday.

The reelection of other officers of the company with the probable exception of R. E. Anderson, a vice-president, is expected. Other officers are: Y. Frank Freeman, Neil F. Agnew and John Hicks, vice-presidents; Austin Keough, secretary; Walter B. Cokell, treasurer, and Norman Collyer, assistant secretary. A prominent Paramount officer is being mentioned for elevation to a vice-presidency in the event Anderson, former treasurer of Erpi, is not reelected. Stanton Griffis is regarded as a likely candi-

Television Started From Empire State

The first field tests of television, preparatory to regular transmission, were started yesterday by RCA from the tower of the Empire State Bldg. The images were broadcast from a 10-kilowatt transmitter. Tests are being made to advance rapidly the home use of receivers.

An unmodulated receiver carrier was sent out to test the distance which the transmitter could reliably span. The broadcast was on a six-meter wave length.

RCA has invited all manufacturers working under RCA licenses to view demonstrations of television July 7.

Columbia Field Men To Make N. Y. Trips

Under a new plan put into effect at Columbia, divisional, district and branch sales heads in the field will make periodic trips to New York for conferences with home office executives.

This is in line with the decentralization of the sales force and will expedite deals under way from time to time, it was stated.

Recently Jerome Safron, Los Angeles district supervisor, and several other field men were called in during the negotiations with F.W.C. It is planned to bring in district heads every three months.

Pathe Will Take Up G. N. Shares Option

Pathe will exercise its subscription right to 32,000 additional shares of Grand National stock, giving it a total of 48,000 shares, or eight per cent of the 600,000 shares of Grand National outstanding.

Blank Takes 6 More; Forms New Company

Omaha, June 29.—Evert R. Cummings, district manager for A. H. Blank, stated today that a deal has been closed whereby Blank will take over six Sioux City houses on a partnership basis with B. H. Friedman and Sol Shulkin. The spots named are: the Rialto, only first run house; Hipp, Grenada, Iowa, Loop and Circle. These six and the Princess, already operated by Blank, will be formed into a separate company to be known as Affiliated Theatres but which will be operated by Blank. The Capitol, Blank's ace house, remains outside of the aforementioned setup. The one remaining independent is the Garden, managed by P. D. Gelfund. The Orpheum, rival first run to the Capitol, is a part of the Mort Singer circuit.

The present deal is effective July 1.

It is felt here that because of the present setup under control of Blank, Sioux City will soon be depopulated of theatres since there are now too many in proportion to the population.

Conventioneers Get The Key to the City

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—Forty United Artists delegates arriving here today for their convention were presented with a five-foot Key to the City by Mayor Frank L. Shaw and Commissioner of Public Works Robert M. Allan.

The delegates registered at the Ambassador. Their arrival completes the roster of those attending the current meetings.

Mary Pickford, District Attorney Burton Fitts and Abraham Lehr, of the Samuel Goldwyn executive staff, greeted the delegation at the studio after which they were escorted to the "Dodsworth," "Come and Get It" and "The World Is Mine" sets. They were followed by a truck bearing a variety of liquid refreshments from beer to Coca-Cola.

It is said that Walt Disney is planning to send to the delegates' hotel tomorrow a complete band composed of the falsetto voices used in his well known Mickey Mouse productions.

Wednesday night the entire delegation will attend the screen actors benefit fund show at the Pan Pacific Auditorium.

Around L. A. with U. A.

Los Angeles, June 29.—There was a private reunion between Hal Sloane of the Disney office and Dick Frank of New Orleans. It seems they went to camp together 12 years ago.

Moe Streimer gave in when the doctor said no, and is missing his first convention in years. Nat Brier of the New York exchange is subbing for Streimer.

Doak (two-gun) Roberts of Dallas scorned the train and flew in with Dick Frank of New Orleans. Fred Rohrs of Charlotte used his car as far as Omaha, then to Kansas City and the special.

Bill Richardson, here in his capacity as Atlanta branch manager, is attending his first U. A. convention.

The wives at the convention will number six: the Mrs. Lou Wechsler, New Haven; Nat Brier, New York; Ralph Cramble, Minneapolis; Irving Schlank, Salt Lake; George Schaefer, with the daughter as well.

An automatic rising vote of thanks was accorded Pat Thompson when it was learned he is in charge of the trip, the reason being excellent job he did on last year's meeting.

If Harry Gold is the winner when it comes to using the telephone, Sam Cohen goes him one better. Instead of picking up the telephone, he leans out the window and yells.

Paul Lazarus is striving to look dignified, what with being a new father-in-law.

Morris Helprin is trusting to the neighbors and the elements, hoping both will be friendly to his newly-acquired New Jersey farm while he is here.

Monroe Greenthal is trying not to be too despondent over the necessity of surrendering the golf cup he won last year. He couldn't defend it this year, even by mail. He wants to take it out on the coast publicity turf-tearers, but they won't bite.

Charles Steele, one of the right bowers of George Schaefer, is a newcomer to a U. A. convention.

Real film oldsters at the meeting are John J. Dervin, Al Hoffman and D. J. McNerney.

Haskell Masters, the big "gagman," figured he had first place as convention jester cinched—and apparently he was right.

Among the arrivals today was Charles S. Chaplin, U. A. branch manager in St. Johns, N. B. Not only does he resemble his famous namesake but he sports the same type of almost inimitable mustache.

sales, said his company would spend $2,500,000 in newspaper advertising during the forthcoming year.

He declared:

"I cannot emphasize too strongly the value of newspaper advertising, for in my recent survey of key cities of the east I found that where liberal newspaper space was taken to advertise our productions, theatres within a radius of 100 miles of those cities showed an increase in receipts and attendance."

Para's. Board Sets Election For Thursday

date for the post of chairman of the board.

The possibility that Thursday's meeting may act decisively on the settlement of John E. Otterson's contract is suggested in some Paramount quarters as a result of the election of officers being scheduled for that meeting. These officials are of the opinion that the election will not be held in advance of a decision on the settlement of the contract.

Further evidence that official Paramount regards Joseph P. Kennedy's recent withdrawal from active association with the company as a final move was had yesterday when it was stated officially within the company that not only is Thursday's meeting not scheduled to take any action on Kennedy's first report turned in several weeks ago, but no action on it of any kind is in sight for the immediate future. Kennedy is at his Cape Cod summer home. Certain board members whose resignations Kennedy recommended in his first report appear to be more firmly entrenched in Paramount now, both in their own right and through allied factions, than ever before.

Operating Pacts to Be Ignored

No action on the new Paramount theatre operating contracts is to be taken at the board meeting, either. New long term contracts, probably for a minimum of two years, have been suggested by the board for the Wilby-Kincey and Lucas & Jenkins circuits. These will be negotiated by Freeman in place of new one-year contracts which were first proposed and final action on them will be taken by the board of Famous Theatres Corp., the Paramount theatre subsidiary. The new contracts will not go before the parent company's board again.

The operating partnership with Karl Hoblitzelle for Texas Interstate circuit was extended for one year by the Paramount board at a night meeting late last week. No changes were made in the partnership agreement which provides for a 50-50 stock ownership in the circuit, but with Paramount holding an option to repurchase Hoblitzelle's interest. The principal opposition on the board to a renewal was withdrawn recently.

Kennedy Again Mentioned

The N. Y. Evening Journal yesterday said that it was advised by "informed Wall St. quarters" that "Paramount directors have made another bid to Joseph P. Kennedy to become identified with the corporation as one of its top officers."

The newspaper said that it had been unable to determine whether Kennedy has been offered the presidency or the board chairmanship, but quoted "those in authority to speak" as saying that the new president will be a man "from within the organization." In the newspaper's opinion this description fits Kennedy who, it points out, "is part of the organization since he was named special adviser about two months ago."

The Journal adds that "considerable doubt was apparent whether Kennedy would accept since reports were that he planned to take a part in the coming Presidential campaign." It stated that Kennedy is expected at Thursday's meeting.

Paramount officials said that they were not aware that the board had made any new offer to Kennedy. The former Pathe and S.E.C. head told Motion Picture Daily recently that he had "definitely decided" that he would take no Paramount post. Kennedy's office here said yesterday that it had not been advised that he would be in town this week or that he planned to attend Thursday's meeting.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mister Cinderella"

(Roach-M-G-M)

San Diego, June 29.—Putting reverse English on the old, familiar theme of Cinderella and her golden slipper, Hal Roach, with an original story and capable cast, has turned out one of the funniest pictures in the current season. Although about a thousand feet too long, the film can be trimmed down to make a picture which will amuse all ages. The preview audience at the Orpheum laughed and giggled throughout the first showing.

The story concerns the topsy-turvy experiences of Jack Haley, a barber, who substitutes for Monroe Owsley, a millionaire stockholder of Randolph Motors. The young scion has a date with Rosina Lawrence, his newly acquired bride, and sends Haley to the Randolph mansion to talk over a financing deal to put Diesel engines in the Randolph cars. Haley's befuddled experiences in posing as a rich man furnish plenty of laughs as well as fast moving action.

He falls in love with Randolph's daughter, Betty Furness. They become stranded on an island which leads to complications, forcing Miss Furness' family to announce her engagement to a supposed Meriweather. This brings the real Mrs. Meriweather to the Randolph residence to keep her revengeful brother, Tom Dugan, from killing her husband.

As the climax, Edward Brophy, a detective, rushes in to prevent the suspected double murder. Meanwhile Randolph, played by Raymond Walburn, tries to high pressure Haley into spending $5,000,000 on the Diesel scheme. The George M. Cohanish plot unravels with the arrival of the real Meriweather. Through a ruse, Haley gets a rival automobile manufacturer to save Randolph Motors from bankruptcy.

The comedy angle plus the name players should be exploited.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Easy Money"

(Invincible)

Hollywood, June 29.—This film has a ready-made break with the fake injury racket making headlines all across the country.

Onslow Stevens, a deputy prosecuting attorney, deliberately throws away an easy conviction for an insurance racketeer because the accused is his brother, Alan Vincent. Stevens offers his services to the insurance company with promises to round up the gang engaged in staging fake accidents and collecting heavy indemnities. With the help of Kay Linaker, he runs down clews which point to a successful interior decorator, Noel Madison. When Vincent attempts to go straight, Madison murders him in the workroom of the shop and flings the body in front of Miss Linaker's car. She is accused of manslaughter and is not cleared until after some fast gunplay when Stevens traps Madison into a confession.

Barbara Barondess, Wallis Clark, Selmer Jackson, Robert Homans, Robert Graves, John Kelly, Alan Woods, Monte Vandergrift, Henry Hebert, Betty Mack, Dickie Walters, Barbara Bedford, Robert Frazier and Broderick O'Farrell play supporting parts under capable direction of Phil Rosen. Maury M. Cohen produced. Paul Perez and Ewart Adamson wrote the original story with screenplay by Arthur T. Horman.

This film is a creditable effort in the low budget class and should do nicely for the exhibitor who stresses the timely angle.

Production Code Seal No. 3,333. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Down to the Sea"—An unusual type of dramatic love story told against the interesting background of the Florida sponge fishing industry, this offers good exploitation possibilities. Ben Lyon, Russell Hardie and Ann Rutherford are featured.

"Ungdom Av I Dag"—Paramount offers this Swedish film, an amusing tale of young love and its traditionally difficult course. It introduces the competent and attractive Anne-Marie Brunius.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of Motion Picture Daily.

Louisville, June 29.—Commonwealth Attorney E. Poe Harris of Catlettsburg, Ky., has started suits to force Ashland theatres to discontinue Sweepstakes Night, Bank Night and other forms of alleged lotteries.

Listing three separate charges, the suits asked that the Commonwealth recover the maximum fine of $5,000 for each offense from each of the defendants.
